CALLAHAN WAS THERE

Further Identification of Suspect In the Cudahy Kidnaping Case---Pat Crowe Was Also In the Game.

Omaha, April 26.—James Callahan, on trial, charged with complicity in the kidnaping of Edward Cudahy, Jr., appeared in court today well dressed and with his hair carefully combed, presenting a greatly changed appearance since his arrest two months ago.

B. K. Munshaw, who lives near the Melrose Hill house, was the first witness. He identified a picture of Crowe as that of a man who came to his house about three weeks before the kidnaping and asked who owned the Schneiderwind house. He said he saw Crowe on the day before the kidnaping and talked with him. On the night of the kidnaping the dogs barked late in the evening and he went out by the well and saw a buggy or spring wagon driven past. It drew up to the steps of the Schneiderwind house. He was down hill from there, and the parties were outlined from there. He saw two men go into the house and he thought the parties were moving in some of their goods. Crowe, Munshaw testified, was accompanied by a woman when he called the first time in a buggy and inquired about the house.

George Wittum identified Callahan as a man who passed his house the day before the kidnaping, between 12 and 1 o'clock. He said he and his wife both watched the man until he passed out of sight.

INNOCENT

Black Jack Makes Startling Confession.

Guiltless Men Now In the Penitentiary.

Clayton, N. M., April 26.—Thomas E. Ketchum, the train robber, whose hanging was fixed to take place here at noon today, mailed a letter to President McKinley this morning, in which he says:

"Standing in the presence of death, where no human aid can reach me, I desire to communicate to you some facts which may, perhaps, be the means of liberating innocent men. There are now three men in Santa Fe penitentiary serving sentences for the robbery of the United States mail at Steins Pass, Ariz., in 1897, viz: Leonard Albertson, Walter Huffman and Bill Waterman, and they are as innocent of the crime as an unborn babe. The names of the men who committed the crime are: Dave Atkins, Ed Bullin, Will Carver, Sam Ketchum, Broncho Bill and myself. I have given to my attorney in Clayton means by which articles taken in said robbery may be found where we hid them, and also the names of witnesses who live in that vicinity who will testify that myself and gang were in that neighborhood both immediately before and after the robbery. The fact that these men are innocent and are suffering impels me to make this confession. While you cannot help me, and while I realize that all efforts to secure to me a commutation of my sentence have signally failed, I wish to do this much in the interest of these innocent men who, so far as I know, never committed a crime in their lives. I make this statement, fully realizing that my end is fast approaching and that I must soon meet my maker. Thomas Ketchum, alias Black Jack."

Ketchum is to be executed today for a daring train robbery committed some time ago. Singlehanded, Ketchum held up a Colorado & Southern passenger train. He ordered the engineer and fireman to uncouple the engine and leave the train. The conductor and mail agent opened fire. Ketchum received the contents of a double-barreled shotgun in his right arm, but quickly changing the rifle to his left shoulder, he succeeded in wounding both conductor and mail agent. He was captured the next day, tried and given the extreme penalty.

Owing to rumors of organized bands making preparations to rescue their comrade, extreme precautions have been taken to hold the prisoner, who was removed from Folsom jail to Clayton this week by special train, under a heavy guard of deputies.

"Black Jack" is said to have been the leader of a band of outlaws who committed many train robberies and other raids in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. This band has been scattered since his arrest; seven or eight have been killed.

Twenty deputies guarded the jail throughout the night. No exact hour had been fixed for the hanging, which was simply specified to take place between 10 and 4 p. m., but Sheriff Garcia is understood to have arranged for 1 p. m. Hundreds of armed men, many of them cowboys from the surrounding country, arrived during the morning, but no demonstration occurred during the morning.

CRAFTY OLD EMPRESS

The Chinese Ruler Names a Board of National Administration to Relieve Her of Future Responsibility.

Washington, April 26.—The following cablegram has been received at the state department from Mr. Squire, United States charge at Pekin, dated today:

"The empress dowager has appointed a board of national administration to relieve her of her public functions. They embrace the members of the cabinet now with the empress at Sian-Fu, and Prince Ching, Viceroy Li and Prince Kung, who are now in Pekin."

This news is regarded as of importance, indicating as it does the relinquishment by the empress dowager of the arbitrary powers she heretofore has exercised. It also is apparent that she has placed herself in a position to avoid direct responsibility to the foreigners for whatever may happen in the future and the board will have to bear the brunt of any complaint. It is felt that the appointment of this board will make it much easier for the foreign ministers to transact business with the Chinese government. The three members of the cabinet now at Sian Fu include the notorious Jung Lu, who was one of the most active in the outbreak against the foreigners last summer. One of the other members of this council is 70 years old and is said to be greatly debilitated. The third member has been at least lukewarm toward foreign interests. The choice of these three is looked upon as likely to complicate the good which Li Hung Chang and the others may accomplish.

CUBANS ENLIGHTENED

It Is Believed That Visit of Convention Delegates Will Remove Erroneous Impressions Regarding Purpose of United States.

Washington, April 26.—The cabinet meeting today, the last one before the president's departure for the Pacific coast, was occupied almost exclusively with the discussion of the visit of the Cuban commission. Secretary Root, who has been conducting the conferences with the commission, submitted rather exhaustively an account of the interviews he had had with them. He told the president and the cabinet the objections which the commissioners raised to the Platt amendment and some of the misunderstandings regarding it under which they seemed to be laboring. There was a general exchange of opinion among the cabinet ministers regarding the situation, and in light of the views expressed, Secretary Root will hold a conference with the commissioners upon their departure. The president will not see them again except to formally bid them farewell. While there are one or two points upon which some of the members of the commission are insistent, the general feeling of the cabinet, as reflected in their exchange of views today was that the result of the commission's visit could not be but extremely beneficial in removing impressions, which, it is said, are entertained in the constitutional convention regarding the purpose of the United States. Altogether it would not be too much to say that the cabinet generally are hopeful that the convention, after hearing the report of the commission, will be much more disposed to accept our terms than they have been heretofore.

HAVE NO KICK

Tonnage Dues Against British Ships Are Merely Reciprocal.

Washington, April 26.—Inquiry into the protest, cabled from London, of Sir Christopher Furness, head of the Furness line of steamers, that tonnage dues are charged in the case of British vessels entering American ports, while Dutch and Danish vessels enter free, discloses the fact that tonnage dues are imposed upon British shipping entering American ports because the British levy a corresponding duty on American shipping under the guise of lighthouse dues. The act of June 19, 1886, authorizes the president to suspend the collection of tonnage dues on vessels from countries which do not impose fees or duties of any kind upon United States shipping. If the British government will remit the lighthouse dues, it may secure the advantages in the remission of tonnage dues on British shipping in American ports as are enjoyed by a number of other countries, including even some of the British dependencies, such as the West India islands. German shipping is in like position with that of British shipping, because the German government imposes, not lighthouse dues, but another class of treasury dues which our government has held to be of a character to prevent Germany from claiming the benefits of the law of 1886.

MANY CHRISTIANS KILLED.

New York, April 26.—A dispatch to the Herald from Rio Janeiro says: Reports from Maranhao say that Indians attacked the Christian convents in that vicinity, that a fight ensued, and that 200 Christians were killed. No official report has been received.

RACES POSTPONED.

Cincinnati, April 26.—Races at Newport track were declared off today, the track being partly submerged.

CHINESE ARE BACK

Strong Representations Made For Their Immediate Removal.

Chinese Call to Expel All Foreigners on May 15.

Pekin, April 26.—The Chinese regulars who retired beyond the great wall have reappeared at another point within the international area. Strong representations have been made to the Chinese plenipotentiaries in regard to the necessity for their immediate retirement. The French force is in readiness to renew the operations, but has been ordered to await the result of the imperial edicts.

The Chinese are wondering if the imperial committee appointed by an edict issued April 23 to inquire fully into the questions of reforms really means the relinquishing of absolute power by the court, or whether it is merely the formation of a privy council.

Notices in Chinese were placarded during the night calling on patriotic Chinamen to rise May 15 and expel all foreigners.

Yung Lu Ting, the censor of Chi Li province, has memorialized the throne to return.

Washington, April 26.—The foreign establishments here are receiving a number of important dispatches relating to the question of indemnity and how it shall be guaranteed, by a Chinese loan or to each of the powers individually. One of the dispatches coming through a European office says that Sir Robert Hart has concluded that China can pay a total of $200,000,000 and the impression is conveyed that this will be the amount agreed upon, the various claims being scaled down to this limit. Another dispatch comes from one of the most important Chinese officials, and a plenipotentiary in the peace negotiations. He makes a suggestion that when the amount of indemnity is agreed upon it will be greatly to the interests of China, as well as to the powers, if the amount payable to each power can be made by installments and not by a gross payment outright. In that case China would not be compelled to negotiate a large loan. The view prevails among officials that while this proposition is fair it is not practical, and there is little idea that it will be favorably entertained. Other dispatches which have passed within the last few days, revive the idea of having The Hague tribunal administer the indemnities after the total is once agreed upon.

NEW VERSION

Of Letter Written By Count Tolstoi to the Czar.

Berlin, April. 26.—The National Zeitung today prints Russian special correspondence which contains another version of the letter Count Leo Tolstoi addressed to the czar and cabinet. The letter protested against the system of forcible suppression of intellectual and political progress and councided the liberation of the peasants from despotic treatment, the removal of all barriers of enlightenment and the free profession of any faith. The letter concludes:

"This appeal have I, Leo Tolstoi, written not as a personal conviction, but as the conviction of millions belonging to Russian intelligence."

The correspondent asserts that the letter has made the deepest impression throughout Russia. The Cologne Volks Zeitung prints a St. Petersburg special which says the university situation has suddenly grown worse. From Moscow university word has been given to persist in passive opposition until all the sentenced students have been pardoned. The Voerwaerts publishes a joint protest from the proletariat to the world, bearing the signatures of the leaders of the socialist movement, including those of the United States, dated from Brussels, against the brutalities of czarism.

AFFIRMED.

Decision By the Supreme Court In a Duluth Case.

St. Paul, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of decisions were filed in the supreme court today, one being from St. Louis county, that of Edward B. Patterson, respondent, vs. I. Grettum and James N. Thompson, appellants. The dispute was over the sufficiency of the notice, and when the time for redeeming property in St. Louis county from a tax sale would expire. The notice was held to have been sufficient, and order was affirmed, The opinion is given by Justice Lovely.

LUDLOW IS ILL.

Appointment as Governor Has Been Revoked.

Manilla, April 26.—Owing to his illness, the appointment of Brig. Gen. William Ludlow to be military governor of the department of the Visayas has been revoked. A board of surgeons has made an examination and reports that he has suffered from an attack of grip, which has developed into a dangerous case of tuberculosis.

Gen. Ludlow will return to the United States by the first transport.

LUNATIC THREW STONES.

Bucharest, April 26.—There is no truth in the report that an attempt has been made on the life of King Charles. A lunatic recently threw stones at a window on the grounds of the palace, but was arrested and has been placed in an asylum.

FRIGHTFUL

Village of Griesheim Panic Stricken.

Eighty Bodies Found and Many Missing.

Frankfort, Ky., April 26.—By 11 o'clock this morning eighty bodies had been recovered from the debris at the Electro-Chemical works, near Griesheim, but there are still many missing. About 150 persons were injured, many of them seriously. The work of fighting the flames proceeded throughout the entire night, though the danger of further explosions was regarded as averted at midnight. The search of the ruins continues. The scenes which occurred throughout the night were most distressing. Villagers and survivors were groping about the ruins in search of relatives and comrades and endeavoring to recognize in the charred bodies, or dismembered or mutilated corpses, the identity of missing friends.

A number of children who were hurled by the explosion into the river Main were drowned before the rescuers could reach them. Several firemen are among the victims. A special train, with relief firemen and additional doctors and nurses, was sent to the scene of the disaster this morning. A number who, it was feared, had perished, reported themselves this morning.

There was a fresh outbreak of the flames among the ruins at Griesheim, which revived apprehension, and after the explosion of a great benzine reservoir, at 11 o'clock this morning, orders were issued that every one in the village of Griesheim and its vicinity must vacate their premises forthwith. The inhabitants fled, panic stricken, with such possessions as they could hastily collect, most of them coming to Frankfort. Even the firemen, salvagers and soldiers left the scene of the disaster. The railroad service to Griesheim is suspended on account of danger.

It transpires that during the panic this morning, a number of women and children were thrown down and trampeled under foot. The danger of fresh explosions necessarily retards the drawing up of a correct death roll, but the latest reports do not indicate that this is so large as was at first reported.

EXPRESS CAR IS ROBBED

Two Bandits Overpowered Messenger On Central of Georgia Train And Ransacked the Car But Missed $1000.

Macon, Ga., April 26.—A bold, but only partially successful express robbery was committed in the express car of the Central of Georgia train bound from Atlanta to Savannah, between 12:50 and 1:50 a. m. today. Soon after the train left Macon two men, who had secreted themselves on the platform, entered the express car and overpowered Messenger White. After binding him they threw a sack over his head and ransacked the car. They worked hurriedly and the search yielded only a package containing $350. Another of $1000 was left unopened on the floor. The men then attempted to open the through safe by working the combination. They were unsuccessful, however, and did not attempt to blow it open. At Gordon, twenty miles from Macon, the men escaped from the train.

Messenger White was found shortly afterward by the conductor and was released. He was uninjured.

Posses are searching the country around Gordon, but so far have found no trace of the robbers.

A HALT IN COPPER DEAL

A Temporary Injunction Has Been Granted Prohibiting the Amalgamated Copper Company From Absorbing Montana Companies.

New York, April 26.—The Herald says: Legal steps have been taken preventing the consolidation of the Boston & Montana and the Butte & Boston Copper companies with the Amalgamated Copper company. A temporary injunction has been granted by Vice Chancellor Pitney in Jersey City, restraining the Amalgamated Copper company from purchasing control of the stocks of the two companies until the full terms upon which the deal will be made are fully disclosed to the stockholders. The order is returnable on May 6.

The application for the injunction is signed by Calvin O. Oliger, who states that he is owner and holder of 104 shares of stock of the Amalgamated Copper company. In his bill of complaint he prays for a writ of injunction restraining and enjoining the Amalgamated Copper company, its directors and agents from purchasing or taking over by way of exchange of securities or for cash any of the stock of the Boston & Montana Consolidated Copper and Silver Mining company, or the stock of the Butte & Boston Consolidated Mining company upon any terms whatsoever in excess of their actual value, and not until the terms offered these companies have been submitted for approval to the stockholders of the Amalgamated Copper company.

The complaint also asks the court to further enjoin and prevent the directors of the Amalgamated Copper company from hypothecating, mortgaging or creating any lien on the property and present assets of the company, or creating any indebtedness whatever to take over the two Boston copper companies until the stockholders of the Amalgamated company are fully acquainted with the terms of the deal, which are to be approved by them. The injunction granted incidentally prevents any increase in capital stock of the Amalgamated Copper company.

A director of the company, in an interview, announced that stubborn opposition to the injunction would be made in the courts.

STOLE SAFE AND ALL

Most Audacious Robbery at Anaconda By Which the Robbers Secured $10,000 In Gold and Made Their Escape.

St. Paul, April 26.—A special to the Dispatch from Anaconda, Mont., says: One of the most audacious and successful robberies in the history of Anaconda, was perpetrated at an early hour when two burglars entered the Alaska saloon by forcing the Main street door. Bodily picking up a 300-pound safe they loaded it on to an express wagon standing near and driving outside the city limits broke the safe open with some primitive tools and secured $10,000 in gold. Starting the wagon towards town they made good their escape. There is no clue to the robbers.

IDENTICAL

Are Lines Worked By America and England at China.

London, April 26.—A representative of the Associated Press learns that Great Britain is not relaxing her efforts to induce the powers to decrease their pecuniary demands on China and substitute for a portion of their claims commercial agreements. The latest advices from the British minister at Pekin, Sir Ernest Satow, do not indicate any degree of success so far, owing, it is said, to opposition on the part of Germany, which country continues to insist on the payment in full of the large indemnity claimed. Mr. Rockhill, the American special commissioner at Pekin, and Sir Ernest Satow are said to be working on identical lines.

DR. W. H. DRAPER DEAD.

New York, April 26.—Dr. William H. Draper, one of the best known physicians of this city, died here today from pneumonia. He had been ill about ten days. He was born in Brattleboro, Vt., in 1830.

BIDWELL REAPPOINTED.

Washington, April 26.—The president today re-appointed George R. Bidwell to be collector of customs for the district of New York.

Open Saturday night till 11 o'Clock.

NATURE OF BLOODHOUNDS.

"It is a peculiar fact," said Detective Frank D. Mitchell the other day, relates the Omaha Bee, "that the general public has an entirely erroneous idea as to the nature and characteristics of the bloodhound. The popular opinion is that he is a beast of giant frame and unusually ferocious, with a penchant for eating the criminal whom he has brought to bay. Another common error is that he can follow a scent indefinitely, through a thousand sinuosities, though it may be intersected by any number of other trails.

"The average bloodhound is no more to be dreaded so far as his fierceness is concerned than a pug. He is a gaunt, rawboned creature, with a head running to a peak; sleepy eyes and long, pendulous ears. As to disposition, he is lazy. His usefulness lies chiefly in the keenness of his olfactory nerves, enabling him to follow a fresh scent many miles. He seldom touches his quarry when run to earth, however, and never does unless starved to it. The bloodhound differs from the English foxhound, in that he never 'gives tongue' or bays while following a scent.

"Bloodhounds are not of much use in tracking criminals in a city, or where there is comparatively dense population, as the numerous cross trails confuse them. This was demonstrated last winter when we were hunting two negros named Will Tony and Sam Barnette. The people of Benson had been complaining of chicken thieves. Almost every night some henroost in the suburb of Omaha would be looted and finally Detective Drummy and I were detailed to work up the case. We put in several days on it without landing our man, and the aggravating part of it was that the thefts were going right on, even when we were hunting for the criminals. Well, eventually we decided to tation with several prominent citizens of Benson, and the result was we sent to Beatrice for a pack of bloodhounds.

We kept the dogs in hiding until there was another foray on a henroop, and then, bright and early one morning, the hounds were put on a fresh trail. They followed it about a quarter of a mile and finally came to a standstill on the front porch of a house in the outskirts of the village.

"The family that lived in this house bore a good reputation, but we decided to go in anyhow and make an investigation. We searched everywhere, from cellar to garret, but there was no sign of a stolen chicken. Not even a feather could be found on the premises. Then we took the dogs back to the starting point and had them go over the trail again, and again they wound up on the front porch of the same house. Try as we could we couldn't get the beasts to leave that place. The trail seemed to end there. If the thieves had gone up in a balloon at that point they couldn't have obliterated their tracks more effectually. So the dogs were declared a failure and were sent back to Beatrice.

"Later we succeeded in catching Tony and Barnette red-handed, with the evidence of their guilt upon them, and they confessed. I have never been able to explain to my own satisfaction why the trail left off so abruptly on the porch of that particular house. There is a tradition comes up from the South, a surveyor of the ante-bellum days, that if a fleeing slave tied sliced onions upon the soles of his feet the hounds could not track him. Perhaps that is what Barnette and Tony did on the piazza of that house—I don't know."

TO MOVE THE PIGS

Rockefeller Barnyard In the Harbor to Be Broken Up.

Four Whalebacks to Leave to Take on Ore Cargoes.

Great Lakes Towing Company's Men to Go to Work.

The Rockefeller barnyard, in the Duluth harbor, is to be broken up. Four of the eight whaleback "pigs," that have been lying in the harbor basin, just off the inside of the ship canal, were to be moved this afternoon, two to Ashland and two to Two Harbors, where they are to load ore. The other vessels will remain where they are for the present, but this would indicate that the steel combine is not to continue the tactics by which Rockefeller's interests tied up almost the entire whaleback fleet last season for the effect it would have on the freight market.

The four pigs to be moved are the 117, 131, 132 and 107. The barges 117 and 131 are to go to Ashland, towed by the Minnesota Steamship company's tug Edna G., which was to arrive here this this afternoon from Two Harbors for that purpose. The barges 132 and 107 were to be towed to Two Harbors by the tugs of the Great Lakes Towing and Wrecking company.

All four vessels are to load ore, to be taken down the lakes when there are steamers in commission to tow them down. The docks at Two Harbors are becoming congested, as 350 cars of ore are coming into Two Harbors every day. By filling up the barges room will be left so that the shipping by rail from the mines can continue some time longer, though without such relief the docks would soon be filled and shipping would have to cease.

The Great Lakes Towing company is now in running order again, its men having gone to work, and five full crews are working on the tugs, fitting up some and running others that are already fitted out.

The whaleback fleet that has been lying out in the basin has been there since last June, only two months short of a year, and the common term for the whalebacks, "pigs," has given rise to the term, "Rockefeller's barnyard," for the bunch.

The schooner Tyrone yesterday loaded 138,000 bushels of wheat at Elevator K, of the Superior Terminal Elevator company, and she is now ready for a steamer to tow her down the lakes.

ARE INVITED.

Members of Tax Commission Requested to Come Here.

The municipal conference committee has invited the state tax commission to visit Duluth at an early date for the purpose of talking over the present gross earnings tax law. The commission has not accepted the invitation, but will probably do so in a very short time.

The heads of the various municipal departments comprising the conference committee are very anxious to see St. Louis county and Duluth get all that is due from railroads in this county, and which are exempt from local taxation under the present gross earnings tax law. If the law can be changed so that it will give Duluth a proper share of the $400000 this county turns over to the state treasury for railroads, the tax rate would go down about 4 mills, and this is what the present administration is very anxious to accomplish.

It has been suggested that when the tax commission arrives, the city and county officers can make a combined campaign in the interest of changes in the present law that would gain much more than the present discussion.

BRYAN CHOSEN.

Will Be Superintendent of Philippine Normals.

Indianapolis, April 26.—The position of general superintendent of normal schools for the Philippines, at a salary of $3000 a year, has been offered to Elmer Burrett Bryan, of Indianapolis, where he is at present professor of philosophy and pedagogy. The offer comes from Fred W. Atkinson, director general of education at Manilla. Professor Bryan will accept.

FATALLY WOUNDED.

Illegal Fishermen Run Amuck Game Wardens.

Akron, Ohio, April 26.—Ed Frye was probably fatally wounded last night in an encounter with Game Wardens Rukle and Fox. Frye and another man was found by the wardens in the act of netting at Long lake. They were called upon to surrender, and a pistol duel followed. Frye was shot five times and Rukle received a slight wound.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

BANK ROBBED.

Institution at Brighton Mich., Successfully Burglarized.

Detroit, April 26.—A special to the News from Brighton, Mich., says: The bank of G. J. Baetke & Co. was entered by thieves early today, who dynamited the safe and secured about $4000. So much dynamite was used that the explosion demolished the interior of the bank. The loss to the bank is covered by insurance. Officers are searching the surrounding country for the thieves, but no clue has been discovered as yet.

ON REVISION.

Sub-Committee of Presbyterians Are Preparing the Report.

Pittsburg, April 26.—A sub-committee of the committee on revision of the creed appointed by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, is in session at the Monongahela house in this city, formulating its report which is to be presented to the general assembly in Philadelphia on May 16. At the recent meeting in Washington, the committee divided and majority and minority reports were considered. The functions of the sub-committees are those of a returning board. The vote of the presbyteries has been taken on the question of changing the creed on several alternative queries.

The committee is endeavoring to tabulate results and to state just what is the wish of the Presbyterian body in the United States.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP.

London, April 26.—In the lawn tennis covered court ladies' championship games today Mrs. Hilliard beat the holder of the championship, Miss Lowther, by 2 to 0.

NOT SO EASY.

When Naaman, the leper, was told by Elisha to go and wash in the Jordan seven times, he thought the prophet had given him a ridiculous task; but it was reasonable and easy compared with the advice of Judge Baker to a prisoner that he "go and learn a trade," says the Chicago Post. Learning a trade in the United States is about the most difficult thing the American youth can set out to do. He may become a lawyer, doctor, preacher, merchant, politician or teacher; he may become president, senator or congressman, but if he wishes to learn a trade he faces a problem not easily solved.

Judge Baker had before him a culprit who admitted he was forced to steal to make his salary of $9 a week as dry goods clerk meet his household expenses. On learning that the prisoner was an American the court pointed out that foreign boys learn trades and that their example should be followed by the boys of this land if they wish to earn a competence and get along. The American boys, said the judge, take to clerking for small pay instead of learning a trade.

All that Judge Baker said is perfectly true. American boys—every boy—should learn some trade. It is the surest road to independence and competency. Unfortunately some trades unions have made apprenticeship a rare privilege, and even the more liberal ones have adopted far too many restrictions. Besides, in these days of machinery and minute subdivision of labor, learning a trade has become almost a meaningless phrase. A man learns a fiftieth part of what was once a trade.

FEED YOURSELF SCIENTIFICALLY.

Some Sure Results From Proper Food Selection.

Farmers select certain food to bring about desired results in their animals, but it is not so easy a matter with the complex machine called man, (or more highly organized woman).

The food specialist, however, has been at work, and in Grape-Nuts we find a food containing delicate natural particles of Phosphate of Potash and larger quantities of albumen.

These unite in the human body forming the peculiar soft substance which fills the cells of the brain. Therefore, when one desires to use a food directly intended for brain-building the food Grape-Nuts may be depended upon.

Fortunately it is one of the most delicious bits of food used by mankind, the delicate sweet of Grape-Sugar being of the most charming character. All prominent grocers sell Grape-Nuts, made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., at Battle Creek, Mich.

KENNEY & ANKER

329 West Superior St.

FIRST OF SEASON

Baseball Games Scheduled For Saturday and Sunday.

High School and Nelson Dewey of Superior Tomorrow.

Big Duluth Nine to Make Initial Appearance Sunday.

The baseball season will open at Oneota Park tomorrow afternoon with what promises to be a rattling fast game between the high school and the Nelson Dewey high school of Superior. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

The high school team has been in practice for several weeks and besides being stronger than last year the men seem to have rounded into form much earlier than usual. Their practice work has been clean and fast. The Nelson Dewey team is reported strong also.

Al. Cummings, who pitched such fine ball for the high school team last year, will twirl the first game. Potter will be behind the bat, Alworth going to second for the purpose of strengthening the infield. Cummings has been pitching most of the winter in order to keep himself in good condition. In practice he has shown excellent control, good curves and plenty of speed. The teams will play as follows:

Duluth.	Superior.
Potter....	Catcher ....Weissengar
Al. Cummings..	Pitcher.. ....O'Malley
Dash....	First base.... ..Sciverson
Alworth....	..Second base..... ..Duff
Peterson....	..Shortstop.. .....Malloy
Staake..	....Third base.....Frezeau
Byrd....	Left field.....Cabotte
Clayton....	..Right field.. ..Wickstrom

Dust will also fly on the Oneota Park diamond on Sunday afternoon. The Big Duluth team will meet the West Duluth Juniors, another interesting game, is promised.

The Big Duluth organization is practically the same as last year, when it was considered the fastest strictly amateur team in this part of the country. The following is the line-up for this game:

Big Duluth.	West Duluth.
Gerrard....	....Catcher .....Robinson
Lovell....	.....Pitcher..... ....Young
Randall..	....First base..... ....Coffin
DiMarco..	..Second base....A. Bouska
Bennett....	..Shortstop..... ..Ferndell
Irwin....	.....Third base....M. Bouska
Faulkner....	..Left field....Lauerman
Cole....	.....Center field.. .....Nacey
Macdonald...	Right field.. .....Carey

EMPEROR WAS ANGRY.

Gossip has it that Prince von Radolin, the recently appointed ambassador of Germany to France, owes his appointment to a mistake in judgment made by Count von Munster, who for many years represented the kaiser in Paris, says the Chicago Tribune.

The German emperor, it appears, wished much to visit the French exposition, and finally made up his mind to attempt the trip. The famous mustaches, with their stiff upward points, were carefully combed down and the kaiser's appearance otherwise disguised so that it was thought nobody would recognize him. Then, with a single friend, he went to Paris, traveling strictly incognito. He spent two days in Paris, most of the time at the exposition, and enjoyed himself greatly. He was particularly gratified that nobody got even a suspicion of his presence in the city.

A month or two later he determined to repeat the visit. Again the disguise was put on, and the trip to Paris made without an adventure of any kind. Reaching the gay city the emperor went to the exposition and walked into the German pavilion. There, as it happened, Baron von Munster, the German ambassador, was waiting with a party of friends. The baron had no idea whatever that his august master was outside of Berlin, but his keen old eyes were quick to penetrate the disguise, and he made the mistake of letting the kaiser know that he had been recognized. The same night the emperor went back to Berlin, and shortly afterwards came the news of Baron von Munster's recall.

RISING SLOWLY

Top of the Ohio Flood Has Not Yet Reached Cincinnati.

When the Decline Comes It Will Be Very Slow.

Less Apprehension Is Felt Throughout the Ohio Valley.

Cincinnati, April 26.—The top of the flood in the Ohio, at Cincinnati, has not yet been reached. While there was a rise of only two-tenths of a foot between 5 p. m. yesterday and 2 a. m. today, the rise between 2 a. m. and 9 a. m. was three and one-half tenths. The decline, when it shall begin, will be slow, as Huntington, W. Va., reports a fall of only half an inch in the past twenty-four hours.

All of the manufacturers and merchants in the bottoms will be in their normal condition before Monday, after an interruption of less than a week. Owing to the necessity for repairs and cleaning up after the flood, the railroads will not be entirely free from interruption before Monday. Many of the residences in the flooded district, especially tenement houses along the river front, will not be fit for habitation for almost a week. In this respect Newport and Dayton, Ky., and other towns across the river have also suffered very much. At Ripley, Higginsport, Manchester and other small points on this side of the river the condition after the flood is very serious as they have been practically under water for some days. Augusta and Dover and many other towns on the Kentucky side up the river have also been under the water and are in very bad condition.

The damages along the valley are comparatively small. The greatest sufferers are those who have been thrown out of work or driven from their homes. No lives have been lost except by accidents. There is no indication of a further rise and less apprehension is felt over the results of the high water in the lower Ohio valley.

Louisville, April 26.—The government gauge at the upper end of the canal here shows 31:6 feet today, being 3:6 feet above the danger line. A stationary stage is expected tonight.

TO BUY.

The Omaha Will Purchase the Minnesota & Wisconsin Railroad.

St. Paul, April 26.—The officials of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad, at a conference in this city have decided to buy the Minnesota & Wisconsin Railroad company, running north and south through St. Croix and Pierce counties, Wis. The railroad enters territory destined to become of immense importance. The road will probably cost the Omaha company something like $750,000. Including all property now owned by the Minnesota & Wisconsin company. The line of the Minnesota & Wisconsin company reaches what was once believed to be unusually rich iron deposits, and which are still believed to be profitable. Considerable pig iron was manufactured at the Spring Valley smelter, which it is understood is still in good condition. W. A. Scott was made president of the Minnesota & Wisconsin, J. T. Clark was made vice president, and L. A. Robinson, treasurer.

ENGINEERS.

The Vessel Owners May Grant Their Recent Demands.

Cleveland, April 26.—A largely attended meeting of prominent vessel owners, including representatives of the United States Steel corporation cessel interests, was in session here this afternoon, for the purpose of taking joint action with a view to ending the marine engineers' strike. The meeing was held behind closed doors, but there is said to be a strong probability of the vessel owners granting the demands of the men as they now stand.

W. C. Rinchardson, a leading vessel man, and a member of the Lake Carriers' association today signed the engineers' scale, the engineers employed on his fleet will at once return to work.

STRIKE AVERTED.

Settlement Will Be Reached Soon at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, April 26.—The danger of a general strike among the building trades has been averted by the action of the Building Trades' council in asking the Woodworkers' union to withdraw its delegates. The woodworkers will be left to reach an independent agreement with the sash and door makers, and the Building Trades' council and the Master Builders' association will speedily adjust their minor differences, so that non-label material may be used.

STORM IN ARKANSAS.

Seligman, Mo., April 26.—Great destruction is reported from a heavy rain and hail storm in Northern Arkansas. Wire communication with Eureka Springs was destroyed and many railroad bridges were torn away. It is not known if any lives were lost.

JERKED HEAD OFF

The Rope Broke While He Was Being Hanged.

Says He Was Not "Black Jack" Who Is Free.

Clayton, N. M., April 26.—Thomas E. Ketchum, alias 'Black Jack," the train robber, was hanged at 1:21 p. m. The rope broke, but the fall jerked Ketchum's head off.

Ketchum talked for over an hour during the morning with visitors, cooler than any who met him. He considered death preferable to imprisonment. Ketchum told of robberies in which he was concerned, but declared that he had never killed a man and only shot three. He said he is not "Black Jack," as that bandit is still at liberty.

Besides giving a full account of the Stein's pass robbery exonerating the men who were convicted of that crime, Ketchum said that "Bud" Upshaw was innocent of the murder of a sheriff in Texas, of which he is accused. This killing, Ketchum said, was the result of a conspiracy to which he was a party.

TO CHRISTEN.

Young Ladies Chosen to Name Torpedo Boats.

Washington, April 26.—The Maryland Steel company, which built the torpedo boat destroyers Worden, Whipple and Truxton, onitfied the navy department today that invitations to christen these vessels have been sent to Miss Isabelle Truxton, of Norfolk, in the case of the Truxton; Miss Katherine Whipple, of Detroit, in case of the Whipple, and Mrs. John L. Worden, widow of the late Admiral Worden, has been requested to select a suitable person to christen the Worden. It is expected the three destroyers will be launched at the ship yards on Sparrows Point, Baltimore, the latter part of next month.

COUNTERFEITER.

Believed to Be Ringleader of Old Gang.

St. Paul, April 26.—A New Ulm, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Chief of Police Klaust has arrested William H. Lowry for passing counterfeit money here. When arrested Lowry had bogus coin in his possession. He disclaims all knowledge of when he obtained possession of it. Chief Klaust believes he has bagged the ringleader of the gang of counterfeiters who have operated in Southern Minnesota and Wisconsin for the past four years.

SECURED INJUNCTION.

Hamilton, Ohio, April 26.—Former Governor James E. Campbell today secured a temporary injunction against the Provident Life and Trust company and Sheriff Peter Bisdorf, to restrain the sheriff from putting the governor's household goods, now in the Campbell mansion at Fourth and Ludlow streets, into the street.

ENTOMBED ALIVE.

Springfield, Mo., April 26.—Rosebud mine, at Aurora, caved in today and buried five men at a depth of 140 feet. It may be a month before they can be reached. The victims are: Grant and William Shane, Elmer Bigler, John Gillan and F. E. Stone.

NOTHING DONE.

New York, April 26.—The employing type founders of the country and their employes adjourned their joint conference at the Park Avenue hotel today. The outcome has not yet been made public, although G. W. Dwelle, the secretary of the employers' organization, said the conference was ended and that nothing had been accomplished.

RATES FIXED.

Chicago, April 26.—Western roads have agreed on rates for the annual convention of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held at Cincinnati, July 6 to 10. The rate in Western territory will be one fare plus $2 for the round trip, except from points from which the rate to the Eastern gateway of the Western roads is $6 or less, where it will be a fare and a third for the round trip.

QUAY'S MASTER STROKE.

M. S. Quay, like all of the political managers, is an underground worker, and the methods which have contributed to his power have not always been discovered, says a writer in Leslie's Monthly. His most celebraed stroke was his election as state treasurer, when he was under a cloud, and it was a masterpiece. He decided, with an audacity which has scarcely any parallel in American politics, to get the office which he had been charged with complicity in despoiling. James McDavitt, an honorable and wealthy Irish Roman Catholic of Lancaster, was put forward as the slated candidate of the machine, but before the convention was held attacks upon him began to appear in the machine papers on account of his religion.

It appeared that he was not available, and he was withdrawn, but this candidacy, which was supposed to be favored by Quay, had kept other candidates out of the field. In the meantime Quay undertook to win support for himself by a most ingenious appeal. During his long connection with the machine as a powerful member of it he had, of course, done favors for a host of politicians.

Politicians of all degrees, finding that Colonel Quay was both able and willing to help them along, never showed any modesty in asking for what they desired. Colonel Quay, when he decided that the time was ripe for him to seize the "plum," wrote a thousand letters to as many politicians who were under obligations to him and asked their aid. All the letters which he had received from politicians asking favors he had saved. He would take one of these old letters —many of them yellow with age— scribble a few lines on the back of the old envelope or on the letter near an urgent appeal for his assistance and sent it to the sender.

No argument was needed. It was an appeal to the sense of gratitude, which even politicians could not resist. They turned in, and Quay was nominated and elected by a large majority. M. S. Quay is the great letter writer of his time. Whenever he has heard that a county, borough, district or precinct was wavering in the support of the machine, he would select the men who were likely to prove useful and write them personal letters. Village constables, assessors, small politicians and active workers of every degree have received from the "old man" these letters, which were immediately treasured up as precious heirlooms.

SHORT ON MEMORY.

There is a well-known Detroit woman whose friends and family say she is short on memory but long on tact, says the Detroit Free Press. This is her latest experience, as told by herself:

"One afternoon recently I was sitting on the veranda when a man, carrying a small satchel came up the walk. He bowed pleasantly, and I returned his greeting as cordially as I could, while racking my brain for his name. It was gone forever. Here was an old friend from out of town probably—perhaps a relative of my husband—and I could not recall his name. It was agonizing. However, he must not feel a lack of welcome, so I greeted him warmly, shook hands, and invited him to be seated. I said I was delighted to see him and knew my family would be equally glad. I regretted that so long a time had elapsed since we had last met. I hoped he and his family were quite well. Of course he had come to dinner.

"Thus I rattled on, fearing to let him speak lest he discover what a hypocrite I was. Finally he managed to say:

"'I'm afraid you don't know who I am.'

"'Oh, yes, I do,' I responded. 'Of course I know perfectly.'

"'No, I am sure you don't even know my name.'

"'Well,' I admitted reluctantly, 'your name has escaped me for the moment. But don't tell me. It will come back. I am so wretched on names. No, you must not tell me. I want to think of it myself.'

"'Do not try. I am only the sewing machine fiend. I came to do some repair work.'

ONLY ONE WAY.

For the third time Gen. William J. Sewell has been elected to the United States senate from New Jersey. Senator Sewell is a serious man with a positive manner, and a certain keen wit that he possesses may be due to the fact that he is of Irish birth, relates the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Sewell, who was born in 1835 and came to this country at an early age, was engaged in business at the outbreak of the civil war. He enlisted in the Northern army, was given a captain's commission, and at the close of the war was a major general.

In 1872 he actively entered politics and, after being for several terms a state senator, he was elected to the United States senate. He was chairman of the New Jersey delegation at seven consecutive national conventions, including that of 1900.

He was for some time actively interested in railroad affairs, and once, when he was holding an important office in one of the large trunk lines, a political enemy came to him in a somewhat shamefaced way and said:

"General, I would like to have transportation for myself and family to Chicago."

The two political enemies eyed each other for a moment, and then Gen. Sewell called his private secretary and told him to make out the passes to Chicago. The politician accepted them, expressed his thanks and departed. But in a few minutes he returned, exclaiming:

"Why, general, these do not say to Chicago and return!"

"Of course not!" exclaimed the general. "I want to get you out of the state, and I'm not interested in your getting back!"

WAYS OF THE LOOTER.

Looting and the selling of loot have not yet ceased in Pekin, says a correspondent in the London Daily Mail. The discovery was recently made that some Buddhist temples are built with gold-plated roofs, and numbers set out gold hunting. A British party found a temple with 1000 feet of metallic tiles. These were plated with gold, and the looters believed that they were only worth seven Mexican dollars a square foot. They were sold today, however, at $10 a tile. There is a Chinese report of a race between Japanese and French to seize six other temples. The Japanese won and carried off twenty-one carloads of loot. The British are now offering for sale three gods, each weighing two tons. They are made of copper and are plated with gold. Smaller gods are being sold daily.

WOULD RIDE THE FALLS.

Several yearsa go C. Bartholomew, of this city, invented a device by means of which he proposed to go over Niagara falls and by the use of which claims a man would be as safe in making the perilous trip as he would in riding on a railway train or by any other means of conveyance. At that time he made all arrangements for an experimental trip, but before his ideas could be carried out he was stopped by the United States government, which refused to permit him to make the trip, says the Detroit Journal.

Recently Bartholomew wrote to Secretary Fleming, of the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, offering to make the trip as a feature of the exposition. He suggests that in giving the exhibition moving photographs would be taken which could be exhibited on the exposition grounds and the sale of photographs would net a large amount.

The appliance with which Bartholomew proposes to go over the falls is made with two large balls covered with sheet steel and lined with cork. In each ball is a silk bag for holding gas and the two balls are attached by a steel rod from which are hung bags of sand for ballast. The operator also rides on the shaft, which he uses as a trapeze bar while making the descent.

The two balloon sacks in the spheres will have a lifting power of five tons and in case of danger, by releasing the bags of ballast the apparatus will rise into the air and float away like a balloon.

The machine will be constructed on a large float in the water and after being ballsted down will be towed by two tugs as near the upper rapids as possible, when it will be rolled into the water and glide over the falls and down the river.

Bartholomew, the inventor of the apparatus, is probably the best known aeronaut in the world. In 1888 he made the circuit of the globe with the American baseball team maing ascensions in every country visited. He was also the first man to use a parachute, and has probably made as many balloon ascensions as any man in the world. He is a man of supreme nerve and can be depended upon to carry out any scheme of the kind which he undertakes.

DO NOT LIKE HIM.

The Dutch people do not seem to be taking at all kindly to their queen's husband, says the Washington Post. He is passionately fond of shooting, and shortly before his marriage he caused a quantity of rare deer to be sent from Mecklenberg to the various Dutch royal parks in the expectation that they would do well there, and in the future give him plenty of sport. On the morning of his wedding, however, news arrived at the palace to the effect that everyone of the animals had been killed by unknown hands.

It is possible that this was done with the idea of preventing the prince of the Netherlands from turning the royal parks, now open to the public, into game preserves for his own private entertainment. It is by no means unlikely, also, that the slayers of the deer may have imagined that they were doing a good turn to their queen, who is notoriously averse to any form of sport that entailed the killing of animals or birds. But the general disposition seems to be to regard the outrage as a manifestation of dislike or ill-will toward Prince Henry.

RAPIDLY SETTLING

Northern Minnesota Is Undergoing a Great Change.

Lands Being Taken Up and Opened to Agriculture.

Developments of Vast Importance Made and Projected.

Maps of the state of Minnesota, which will be issued in the next few years will, it is claimed, differ widely from the state maps of the present time. The change will not, however, be shown in the southern part of the state, but in the northern part, a large portion of which is now represented by a trackless waste. It is predicted that the new maps will show railroad lines, new cities and towns and all those details which mark growing communities, says the Minneapolis Journal of yesterday. The tide of immigration into the Northwest this season has been marked. Of the enormous number of colonists that have passed through the Twin Cities it is claimed that a very generous proportion has come into Northern Minnesota and many have gone into North Dakota. Crop conditions have been so favorable in the Northwest that land agents have been more than usually successful in inducing settlers to establish their home in these northern districts and a steady development of the resources of the land is looked for from now on. The Minnesota Colonization company, which bought the Northern Pacific land grant in Minnesota is said to have disposed of nearly 600,000 acres.

The largest recent sale of interest is that of St. Louis and Carlton lands to the Boston and Duluth Land company. The importance of this sale is said to lie in the fact that it takes out of the market almost the last of the large tracts of available railway land in Minnesota and indicates the alacrity with which lands are being taken up in this state. Hitherto, says the Journal, St. Louis county has been regarded as almost worthless for agricultural purposes. Investigation, however, has shown that most of the land can be utilized for general farming, and while this country requires considerable draining, it should open up a large amount of fertile land tributary to the city of Duluth.

The Winnipeg & Port Arthur road already extends thirty miles beyond Warroad, Roseau county, and it is expected that the line will be completed to Port Arthur by fall. This road will bisect the last area of the aboriginal forest land in the state and open up the fertile valley of the Rainy river. Hundreds of settlers have already gone into this region and are rapidly taking up the remaining homesteads. Contrary to belief the country on the Rainy river has proved to be a fine agricultural district with a rich black loam soil and a clay subsoil. A large portion is "brush prairie," which is easily cleared. It is predicted that this district will add a large area of land to the wheat growing district of the state.

A great deal of importance is being attached to the proposed line of the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy River railroad, from Virginia to Koochiching, which will be put through in the near future with local capital. Not only will it open up a rich timber country that has been out of reach of Duluth interests, but it will establish another fine outlet for the business of the Duluth jobbing houses. Freight into that region has been largely from St. Paul by the way of Bemidji, but this city is nearer the district than St. Paul by about 150 miles and with the railroad facilities it would seem that the question of competition will be out of the question, and in favor of Duluth.

Work is now being pushed on the extension of the Northern Pacific from Duck Lake to oKochiching, where it will meet the Winnipeg & Port Arthur road. By the completion of this line, and the Virginia & Rainy River road, these great counties of the state will finally be opened up for development.

The three counties, Beltrami, Itasca and St. Louis, each have an area about the same as that of Connecticut. Some of the land is fertile, and the lands that are not available for agricultural purposes are either covered with timber, or underlaid with iron and mineral products. The addition of this region to the productive area of the state is now being regarded with great interest in every part of the state. These great counties, will easily support many hundreds of thousands, and the railroad facilities of the region will divert most of the business to the head of the lake, yet the Twin Cities hope that the north and south line will divert some of the business there. The Twin Cities are said to be counting much on the projection of the Great Northern from Mora to Swan Lake, in that it will give them an entrance to the mining regions of St. Louis and Itasca counties.

SABIN-PHILLIPS.

Marriage at St. Paul's Church Next Month.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Ethel Raymond Sabin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight May Sabin, and Thomas Charles Phillips, to take place at high noon on Tuesday, May 14, at St. Paul's church. They will be at home Tuesdays in June at the Spalding.

DISTRICTS CHANGED.

Some Deputy Revenue Collectors Laid Off.

Under the consolidation of revenue districts which has been made by Collector Von Bombach, Deputy Collector Thomas H. Martin, of this city, has had more territory added to his district. He is now to have Stearns, Benton and Mille Lacs counties. The consolidation is due to the passage of the law cutting off the war revenue tax very materially. Four men have been cut off in the state. B. Mueller, of St. Cloud, was one of those relieved, and some of his territory was added to Mr. Martin's district. The policy of Collector Von Baumbach was to dispense with the services of the deputies last to be appointed, readjusting the counties of the state into new districts.

To Complete It.

The Eastern Railway company is taking steps for the putting of its recently constructed line to Virginia in shape for operation. The road is now obtaining figures on the cost of building a bridge across the Missabe road's tracks a little above Wolf. The track of the Eastern will pass above that of the Missabe road running to Mountain Iron. The roadbed is also ironed.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

Pleasing Suit News.

For Women—For Misses

HERE'S a pleasant hint of three new suits for Misses that came in yesterday. We're most particular, in selecting these garments, to have them as exactly correct in make and fit as the older folks and still keep down the prices. The consequence is that you can buy a stylish, handsome suit for your daughter at so low a price as to beat home work, with the added advantage of unusually excellent materials and sewing.

At $4.50—Blouse Sailor Suits of serge for girls from 6 to 12 years; have broad collar; jauntily trimmed with four rows white braid; have bishop sleeve, with narrow cuffs and long tie at breast; skirt has deep hem; colors, red, brown and blue.

At $9.00—Misses' Suits, of good cheviot, with braid and button trimming on Bolero jacket; skirt cut with flare and has deep hem; sizes 8 to 14; colors, browns and blues.

At $10.75—Misses' Suits, of cheviot, homespun or covert, with Bolero or Box Jacket, very prettily trimmed with gold braid and buttons; sizes 8 to 14; colors, gray, red, castor, blue, etc.

Special Sale of Children's Jackets

At $2.50—Worth variously $3.00, $3.75, $4.00 and up; good cloth, excellently made, in good styles, with fancy braid trimmings; sizes are mostly for 10 and 12. We put this low price to make quick clearance, as there are but one or two of a kind.

Our Tailor Suits . . . . $15 to $25

We have no hesitation in saying (and hundreds will back up the assertion) that we show the most comprehensive assortment of women's suits ever gathered together between these two prices. It includes all the styles now accepted by fashionable people, and in point of excellence, tailoring and material stands unrivaled. If you're thinking of getting a suit—if you're at all interested in suits and suit styles—we invite you to come in and see the peerless showing. Special values tomorrow at $15, $19, $22.50, $25.

Cheviot Skirts at $5.75—Carefully made from heavy cheviot, without lining; 5-gore, with flaring flounce, trimmed with three rows stitched taffeta silk; a perfectly shaped and hung skirt, at $5.75

The New Colored and White Shirt Waists at $1.00

Are meeting with great approval. Sixteen new styles of white waists and about fifty colored are ready now; you're welcome to come and see the new ideas and fabrics. Of course, every price waist is here, but tomorrow will see three or four extra value styles at $1.00

PANTON AND WHITE

THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE

DULUTH, MINN.

Nothing like it before—Our Fourteenth Anniversary Sale.

SATURDAY—the last day of that truly remarkable 14th Anniversary Sale—never were reductions greater nor values as big as they are in this great sale—the response from the public has been so generous that our sales have been record-breakers. Being the last Anniversary Sale we will celebrate in The Glass Block as it now stands, it certainly is auspicious for the next Anniversary which we will hold, which will be in the new building—the crowds that have attended have been unusual even for The Glass Block—many of the bargains advertised for Thursday and Friday have been entirely exhausted, yet so large were our preparations for this sale that most of the very best ones will last all day Saturday—we have gone through our store from basement to attic and selected the choicest of seasonable merchandise, cutting the prices unmercifully—but do not come with the idea that everything from The Big Store is sacrificed, for it is not—some of our merchandise is selling at "regular" prices and "usual" profits, but the public well understands what this means, for our regular prices are invariably as low as most store's "specials"; in fact, it frequently happens that our every day prices are lower than our competitors' specials. This is the store that stands between the people and high prices — doing the "greatest good to the greatest numbers"—we tell the truth about our goods—that is the fundamental principle of begetting public confidence—it's the primary essential of continued success. Remember that the sale closes tomorrow night.

Our 14th Anniversary sale closes Tomorrow.

UNBROKEN SUCCESS

Panton & White Complete Fourteen Years of Prosperity.

A Great Special Sale Is Arranged to Mark the Event.

Work on Enlargement of Building to Begin Soon.

It was in March, 1887, that two hustling, ambitious young men opened a small, unpretentious store at the corner of First avenue west and Superior street in Duluth. The store had a frontage of but twenty-five feet and was only sixty feet deep. The members of this firm were John Panton and Joseph Watson. It required scarcely seven months for these hustling young men to build up a patronage that forced them out of these small quarters into a larger building. After carefully searching for a desirable place, they secured a lease of the building on Superior street now occupied by the Kelley Hardware company. This contained three floors and 4,750 feet of floor space. It required but a year or two for these prosperity-seeking young men to cause them to look for additional quarters, and in the spring of 1896 Mr. Watson's interests in the firm of Panton, Watson & Co. were purchased by William A. Paton and Mr. White. The business was then conducted under the name of Panton & White. Although Panton & White achieved a wonderful success, the firm added new features to their business methods and new departments from time to time. Their reputation for fair dealings, fairness to employes and honest goods, prices, garments, coats, millinery, dress goods, shoes, furnishings, drugs, hardware etc. they are celebrating their fourteenth anniversary with a special sale of unprecedented magnitude. It is a wonderful & particularizing fact that every department is carrying a special sale as this. It has been the most successful sale ever held by this firm. It has been the talk of the town for weeks and weeks. Their sales have always been prominently in the front. They always aim to keep in keeping the times. They always aim to make a thing half-hearted. They have been "events" ever since Panton & White have been in business. Duluth and Superior's buying public expects a treat in store when Panton & White announcement like the one appears in tonight's Herald. INSURANCE.

Steel Combine Has Arranged to Carry Its Own Insurance.

New York, April 26.—The executive committee of the United States Steel corporation has practically completed arrangements for the establishment of an insurance department of its own, which will be conducted along the same lines as the insurance business of the Standard Oil company and the Pennsylvania railroad. Each company has been asked to furnish statistics and data of the insurance carried previous to the merger, and this is now in the hands of the executive committee.

Regarding the matter of distributing stock to some of the employes of the big steel company it was learned that no formal consideration has been given to it by the finance committee. It is understood that some members of the committee are in favor of allowing some of the higher salaried employes to share in the profits of the corporation in a manner somewhat similar to Andrew Carnegie's co-operative plan established several years ago.

It was officially stated that the coming wage scale negotiations and other labor questions have not been considered by any of the committees of the United States Steel corporation. Warner Arms, vice president of the American Tinplate company, who has conducted the negotiations for his company with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, said that it was most probable that all adjustments on the labor question will be made by each constituent company as heretofore.

Official announcement was made that up to Tuesday $550,000,000 of the new stock of the steel corporation had been issued by the several trust companies in return for the certificates of stock deposited with them. The transfer office of the company will not be opened for a week.

NOTICE OF CONTEST.

Claim of No Election at St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 26.—Notice of contest was served today on Mayor Rolla Wells by Lee Meriwether, the municipal ownership party candidate for that office. In the notice of contest Meriwether asserts there was no legal election, that 15,000 names were fraudulently placed upon the registration books and voted by the judges and clerks, and hired repeaters, and that a conspiracy to steal the election existed.

HEAVY DAMAGES.

Asked of Northwestern By Injured Passengers.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 26.—The Chicago & Northwestern Railway company has been sued for $250,000 damages by forty-four claimants alleged to have been injured in the wreck at De Pere, Wis., June 24, of last year, on the Saengerfest excursion train. All are residents of Oshkosh, Menasha and Fond du Lac.

A GLASS PAVEMENT.

Experiments Being Made In Streets of Paris.

Paris, April 26.—The municipality is experimenting with glass paving material. A section of Rue de Havre has been laid with it as a test. It is pure glass subjected to a process called devitrification. The result is a hard, smooth, opaque, non-porous substance, which does not retain damp or odors. It possesses remarkable resistance. The inventors claim that it combines the solidity of granite with the smoothness of asphalt. It is not affected by heat or cold. It, however, is expensive, costing 9 to 12 francs per square metre. Another drawback is its extreme resonance.

WELTMER FINED.

Kansas City, April 26.—Stephen A. Weltmer and Joseph H. Kelly, former president and secretary of an institute of magnetic healing at Nevada, Mo., who recently pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with using the mails to defraud, were today each fined $1500 in United States district court.

NOT SERIOUS.

Failure of Japanese Banks Will Not Cause Any Trouble.

London, April 26.—The London managers of the Yokohama specie bank and the Hong Kong and Shanghai banking corporation informed a representative of the Associated Press today that they do not fear anything serious will develop from the bank failures in Japan announced yesterday in a dispatch from Yokohama. They say the majority of the banks involved are very small concerns with a capital of not more than £3000 or £6000 apiece. They are more in the nature of money lending agencies than banks, and apparently only the Japanese themselves are involved. Some trouble has been expected for a long time owing to the stringency of money in Japan which now costs about 15 per cent. In the opinion of those quoted this is entirely due to the present balance of trade being so much against Japan, the imports greatly exceeding the exports.

TO WIND UP BUSINESS.

Debenture Company Will Distribute Its Assests.

Cincinnati, April 26.—Directors of the United States Debenture company today decided to ask permission of the court to wind up its business and to distribute its assets, amounting to $4,000, in full. It is said to be able to pay in full the amounts received from certificate holders. This action followed the report of A. B. Tenedict, referee, which is against the legality of the debenture business.

PHOTOS OF CARD SHARPS.

New York, April 26.—A rogues' gallery of card sharps is to be provided by the New York police, to be hung in the card room of each of the big trans-Atlantic liners running out of this port. This action is the result of the alleged swindling of Dr. Joseph Muir out of $8000 on a recent voyage.

REV. LYMAN SHERWOOD DEAD.

Lyons, N. Y., April 26.—The Rev. Lyman H. Sherwood, the founder and head of the Lyons musical academy from 1854 to 1894, is dead at his home here, aged 73 years. He was ordained to the Episcopal ministry in 1850. A son is Professor William H. Sherwood, pianist and composer of Chicago.

DEVOUR QUININE.

Americans Eat Quantities to Ward Off Disease.

The quantity of quinine taken by the foreigners on the southeast coast of Mexico is something simply incredible, said a resident of this city who is interested in coffee culture in the sister republic, to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. There is a general belief among the American and English all through that region that the drug is necessary for the preservation of life, and they keep full of it from one year's end to another. The first time I visited the coast I stopped at Frontera, the first port east of Vera Cruz, and as soon as our ship tied up it was boarded by a tall, sallow man, who turned out to be an American engineer, in charge of a big sugar plant up the country. He made a bee-line for the purser. "Hello! Billy!" he said; "did you bring that quinine?" "Sure," replied the purser, and diving into his cabin he came out with an armful of tin boxes, about the size of tea canisters and japanned green. Each of them held a pound of quinine. I never saw it put up that way before, and, naturally, I was surprised. I soon scraped an acquaintance with the engineer, and made bold to inquire what in the world he wanted with such a supply. "Are you getting it on speculation?" I asked with a very vague idea that it might be intended for some Mexican army contractor. He laughed heartily. "Speculation nothing!" said he; "this all goes to our little colony of Americans back in the interior, and it won't last very long either." With that he drew a penknife from his pocket, opened a blade that had been ground off round, like a spatula, and thrust it into one of the cans. He brought out a flaky, white mass—enough to heap a teaspoon—put it on his tongue and swallowed it like so much sugar. "Have you any idea how many grains you are taking?" I asked in amazement. Only approximately," he replied carelessly; "a man quits weighing quinine after he has been down here a few months." That was my first encounter with a bona fide quinine eater, the coffee planter went on, but I met plenty of them afterward. They generally keep the stuff in rubber tobacco pouches, to protect it from perspiration, and when they feel like taking a dose they dig in with one of those spatulated knives that they all carry and swallow as much as they see fit. As they go entirely by guess, it is hard to say how much will be taken in the course of a day, but I have weighed the amount that can be lifted on the ordinary knife blade and found it to range between 25 and 50 grains. You see, quinine is as compressible as cotton, and two wads of it that look about the same size will vary 100 per cent in weight. One would suppose, as a matter of course, that scuh enormous quantities of the drug would produce an intolerable ringing in the head; but, strange to say, they do nothing of the kind. The average white man down there who keeps under the influence all the time experiences nothing except a slight feeling of exhilaration—at least so I was assured by dozens of habitues. Whether the use of the stuff is any real benefit is something I am skeptical about. I never took a grain of it myself, and I was the only man on our plantation who didn't have a touch of fever.

WORM EATER OF MADAGASCAR.

One of the queer little animals of Madagascar, which is highly regarded by the natives as a table delicacy, is the worm-eater Tenrec, Centetes Ecaudatus, of the family of Centetidae. His habits are strictly nocturnal. Like his cousin, the mole, he dotes on worms, and he has the family nose remarkably developed.

There is little or no chance for a worm when Tenrec noses him from above; down through the earth like a knife into butter goes the probosis, and subsequent proceedings interest the worm no more.

The Tenrec has an ancient pedigree, and is one of primitive types of mammals for which Madagascar is famous. He is the sole representative of his family, and is especially remarkable for the total absence of any sort of tail (whence the name Ecaudatus), and for a unique arrangement of teeth, four upper triturbercular molars. This, say the naturalists, with his singular skull, proclaims his relationship to the marsupials of Australia and America, another family of extreme antiquity. The Tenrec is a spiny, bristly and hairy creature, of a general yellowish brown color, a foot or so in length, and takes things easy for half the year, hibernating below ground.

Then it is that the worm has his revenge, for just as Tenrec roots up worms, so do the natives of Madagascar root up Tenrec, and for precisely the same reason. Roast Tenrec is, in fact, one of the special dishes of the Malagasy cuisine.

SIZE OF THE ARMY

Gen. Miles' Plan For Seventy-Five Thousand Men Goes.

Only About Five Thousand More Men to Be Enlisted.

Babcock's Bill to Reduce Iron and Steel Duties.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Recent dispatches have pointed out the fact that it would not be necessary for this government to have a standing army of 100,000 men. Rapid changes have occurred in the Philippines recently; the situation in Cuba is not as acute as it was a few weeks ago, and the Porto Ricans have practically decided that it would be to their best interests to submit to the rules of the United States government. The capture of Aguinaldo in the Philippines has probably brought about a chance for the United States to make peace within the near future with the insurgents.

In view of the fact that matters have so changed in our colonial possessions lately, the plan of Gen. Miles to have a standing army of only 75,000 men has practically been agreed to by President McKinley and Secretary Root. Miles' plan provides for an army of 76,000 men, based on the ratio of one soldier to every 1000 of population, and that the result will be the enlistment of the artillery force up to its full authorized strength of nearly 20,000. This action was taken after conference with the president. Reports from Gen. MacArthur show also that the conditions in the Philippines have undergone a decided change for the better since the apprehension of Aguinaldo.

Gen. Miles has insisted ever since the passage of the army reorganization act that there is no necessity for enrolling the full authorized strength of 100,000 men, even with conditions remaining unsettled in the Philippines. So the decision means that the enlistments for the regular service can be completed by July 1. Fear was entertained at the war department that it would not be practicable to secure the full 100,000 in the short time intervening between now and the death of the volunteer force. It was said by an army official that under the new plan will be necessary to enlist only about 5000 more men to fill the quota, and that these will be readily obtained within a month or six weeks.

The preponderance of the artillery will be noticeable, since it is larger than that allowed in any army as compared with the infantry and cavalry arms. This is made necessary by the great system of coast defenses now requiring attention. Artillery officers will naturally be elected at the turn affairs have taken in their direction, for it means quickened promotion through all the grades.

Strong evidence is given in the recent decision of the administration's belief that serious trouble in the Philippines is at an end, and that the large force maintained there can be with safety reduced to 40,000 or less. Even this number, however, would represent fully one-half of the standing army as it is proposed to maintain it. The president is given, under the plan, the appointment of five colonels, three lieutenant colonels, twelve majors, sixty captains and forty-eight each of first and second lieutenants. The artillery arm, when fully organized, will therefore consist of 14 colonels, 13 lieutenant colonels, 29 majors, 95 captains and 195 each of first and second lieutenants. A number of recruiting stations will shortly be closed in view of the reduction contemplated, and the army of 76,000 men will have the full number of officers authorized for an army of 100,000.

Under Gen. Miles' plan the army will be thus distributed among the three arms: Infantry, 38,440; artillery, 18,912; cavalry, 15,300; hospital corps, engineer battalion, etc., 3544.

Eastern newspapers are giving considerable space to the bill introduced by Representative Babcock, of Wisconsin, at the last session of congress which declares in favor of removal of duties on iron and steel. Mr. Babcock announces that he is determined to press his bill for the removal of these duties when congress meets next December. Mr. Babcock says that congress would fall very far short of its duty if it failed to remove the tariff on articles so completely controlled by a single combination as to enable that combination to fix prices without regard to consumers, especially when such articles no longer needed protection on the lines advocated by the Republican party.

"This," said Mr. Babcock, "is in accordance with the Republican theory of protection to American industries. When an article can be manufactured in this country cheaper than it can be made anywhere else that industry needs protection no longer and revenue cannot be raised from it if the Republican party fails to meet the new conditions its whole theory of protection falls to the ground."

Mr. Babcock said that during his absence from Washington he had talked with the representatives of many of the largest interests of the country and had found one manufacturer who did not endorse his views. The only opposition, he said, came from men who looked upon the protective tariff as a sort of a Chinese joss—to be admired, but not to be touched.

Mr. Babcock was chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee during the last and preceding canvasses.

STEAMER WENT ASHORE.

London, April 26.—Advices have been received here that the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Sobraon, which left Shanghai homeward bound April 23, went ashore on Tong Ying in a dense fog on April 24. Her mails and passengers were landed by Chinese junks at Foo Chow. The Sobraon was launched in 1900. She is reported to be in a critical position.

TAME CATS

Left In the Woods Become Fiercely Wild.

During the past winter several men at Holden and Eddington have been trapping on the brooks leading into Holbrook's and Eddington ponds. This section is one of the best places for mink and muskrat to be found in Eastern Maine, and in past years the trappers have made good money at the business. Their profits have been small this winter, and the cause of it brings to light a most remarkable condition of affairs, says the Lewiston Journal.

Several cottages and camps are located on the shores of both of the ponds. They are owned by Bangor people and are occupied for a greater part of the summer. The different owners go there with their families early in June, and as the camps have been closed during the winter, they are found to be overrun with mice. The first thing necessary is a cat. One is usually to be had from a nearby farm house, and in a few days the mice soon disappear and the women folks come down out of the chairs and from the tops of tables and walk on the floor.

When it comes time to go home in the fall the cat is usually forgotten. Pussy hangs about the camps for several days after the family has gone, and finally, not getting its daily rations at the back door, starts out to get its own living. In the course of a month these once domesticated animals will become as wild as a bob cat and no one can get near them. It's these wild house cats that have prevented the trappers from doing a profitable business. Some of the trappers have seen signs around their traps which were positive proof that a mink had been caught and later devoured by another animal.

There would be tracks leading away from the trap in an opposite direction from that traversed by the captured animal, and the snow in some cases has been found to be covered with blood, and evidences of a terrible fight between the animals have been seen.

At Holbrook's pond the camp of a Bangor man has been kept open all winter by A. W. Thayer, of Camden, a well-known Maine hotel man. He has two sons, Ralph and Carlton Thayer, and both of them are "chips of the old block" when it comes to hunting. They can hunt and fish with as much success as ever their father did, and the oldest boy, Ralph, is one of the finest rifle shots of any youngster to be found in Maine. The boys have bred a large family of English rabbits during the winter, and they have been allowed to roam about in the woods in the vicinity of the camp.

Several weeks ago they began to disappear, one by one, and the boys in tramping through the woods found where some animal had killed and eaten them. The other night Ralph heard a noise in the rabbitry, and looking out of the camp door he saw an animal running through the woods with one of the rabbits in its mouth. The boy grabbed his rifle and fired. It was so dark that he could hardly see the object at which he aimed, and he made up his mind that he did not hit it. The next morning he went out and found that he had killed one of these wild house cats. The cat weighed over twenty pounds and was as fat and sleek as a fat cat. Thus the young hunter has killed eleven of these once domestic animals, and they have killed as many of his rabbits. The trappers at Eddington and Holden have made up their minds that these cats were responsible for killing their game.

NEW DISCOVERIES IN ROME.

Another important discovery has just been made in the Roman Forum, says the Baltimore American. In front of the Temple of Saturn, between the Rostra and the Basilica Giula, Signer Boni has found a large platform of concrete, with marks of massive construction, which formerly stood upon it. These marks have been recognized as those of the arch of Tiberius, which was of the same dimensions as the arch of Septimus Severus, and which stood on a line with the arch of Augustus.

The position of the foundations corresponds exactly to the position assigned to the arch of Tiberius in the bas-relief on the arch of Tiberius. Traces of these foundations were first discovered in November, but could not be certainly identified until now.

The arch of Tiberius was erected in the year 16 of the present era, in order to celebrate the recuperation by Germanicus of the eagles lost by Varus when the three Roman legions were destroyed by the Germans under Arminus.

From the point of view of topography the discovery of the foundations is most important, since many historians and topographers have placed the arch of Tiberius at the opening of the Vicus Jugarius, and have drawn erroneous conclusions, as the arch is the topography of the Forum during the first century of the empire.

HOMESTAKE

Monarch of All Black Hills Gold Mines.

Has Six Mills and Two Thousand Employes.

Deadwood, S. D., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—At last, with my own eyes, I have seen the plant of the great Homestake mine. It is almost impossible to go into any community where some one will not glibly give you facts and figures concerning this wonderful gold producer and then attempt to sell you stock in a property that is identical with the Homestake in size, character and quality of its ore body and that will, if you invest promptly, equal the monarch of all Blac Hills mines in gold production and the payment of dividends. I have seen and heard of so many alleged second Homestakes that I determined to see the original. To do so, I traveled 600 or 700 miles out of my way. I am more than satisfied with the time and expense taken. The educational benefit has been of great value and hereafter I'll not feel my ignorance so keenly when cheeky, windy and presumptuous stock brokers try to instruct me concerning a property they never saw and, practically, know nothing about.

* * *

The Homestake mine is located at Lead, a place of 8000 people, five miles west and a little south of here. The property was located about twenty-two years ago and in time passed into the hands of Senator George Hearst and associates. Today the Hearst estate and J. B. Haggin, of New York, own fully two-thirds of the stock. So long as this mine holds out, William R. Hearst will not lack capital to push the New York Journal, the Chicago American and the San Francisco Examiner.

Seven-eighths of Lead real estate belongs to the Homestake company and those owning buildings occupy sites by sufferance of the company. The Hearst Mercantile company conducts a large store here and corrals a heavy percentage of the town's trade. Then there is the Hearst free library, the Hearst free kindergarten and other philanthropic and educational institutions. Recently, too, the Homestake company has issued strict orders against its employes frequenting saloons. Just a few days ago nearly a score of miners were discharged because of their fondness for "leaning up against the mahogany." The company takes the position that a man after filling up on liquor is not only in poor shape to do a full day's work, but that he is more apt to cause loss of life and property by negligence and accident.

The Homestake has six mills ranging from eighty to 200 stamps each and aggregating 960 in all. Three of these are at Lead, two at Terraville and one at Central City. All of these are within a mile of one another. Very soon, now, the whole 960 stamps will be dropping and reducing 3700 tons of ore every day in the year.

The deepest shaft is down only 1100 feet. At the 600-foot level the ore body is 450 feet wide. On one level the ore body has a width of 700 feet and, on the 800-foot level, it is double the width on the surface. There are forty miles of underground tracks for tramming ore and thirty-five head of live stock, chiefly large horses. The smallest animal is a 1050-pound mule.

The ore averages about $4.80 per ton in gold. The cost of mining and milling is around $1.85. No attempt, apparently, is made to sort the ore and some of the rock brought up would be thrown on the dump at mines of smaller capacity and less scientific management. It's a great mixture—white quartz, quartzite, talcose matter, dirty, slatey stuff, horn blende and I know not what. The stamps average four tons a day each, and even a little better in some of the mills. In one mill I isited, the pulp ran over forty-six feet of amalgamated plates. The tables for the concentrates, chiefly iron and copper suphides are not in the stamp mills, but in a separate building, on the creek, many rods away.

* * *

The Homestake company owns many hundred acres of property in the Black Hills and is capitalized for $21,000,000. The stock is in shares of $100 each and now sells at about $80 a share. Very few transfers are made, however. The settling up of an estate is about the only time a sale is recorded. The present dividend is about 50 cents a share a month, but with improvements near completion, it is not unlikely that that will be doubled within six months. In the last seventeen years this mine has paid $9,000,000 in dividends. I am told this is the best record made by any gold mine in the world and for 1900 it was exceeded only by Stratton's Independence mine at Cripple Creek. There are but five mining companies, including silver, copper and lead, which surpass the dividends paid up to date.

The company at present employs over 2000 men, is liberal in its management, pays the highest wages in the Hills. Close to $200,000 is distributed for wages each month. The superintendent is paid $12,500 a year, and is provided a mansion in which to live.

The bullion is worth about $15 an ounce, and is shipped to the First National Bank of New York. The Monday morning I was at the mine four bricks were run out. They weighed about 1700 ounces each and had an aggregate value of $103,760.

* * *

If I had what the Homestake company has lately paid out in improvements I would try to content myself and withdraw from the race for wealth. A flume from Spearfish Creek, twenty-nine miles long, built to supply the plant with water, has just been completed at a cost of $1,050,000. The power plant and buildings at the Ellison shaft, across the valley from the stamp mills, nears completion and represents an outlay of $250,000.

The largest cyanide plant in the country soon will be treating tailings from the mills on the Lead side of the Hill. This plant represents a cost of not less than $250,000. This plant has a capacity of 1200 tons of tailings a day and will save $40,000 a month that heretofore has gone down the creek to waste. This plant, alone, is worthy of a separate article. It is most complete in every way, and is the product of the skill and experience of C. W. Merrill, a mining man of Denver, who has a national reputation in the cyanide process of gold extraction. One impressive sight in the cyanide plant is fourteen huge wooden tanks, nine feet deep, about thirty feet in diameter and with a capacity of 700 tons each. Later, it is expected the company will erect a second plant on the other side of the hill.

* * *

I am much pleased with the Black Hills and would like to spend three months here among the mines. There is a great development going on now. Much heavy capital, backed by experience, is coming in. The Burlington Route last year built a "cut-off" from Brush, Col., to Alliance, Neb., thereby giving a short and direct line from Denver to the Black Hills. The distance is 456 miles, and the trip is made in about eighteen hours. Its route passes over high and level prairies, through sandhills, by ranches and cattle ranges, through thriving Western towns, on up through the pine ridge in Northwestern Nebraska, and then into the Black Hills themselves. This new route beats anything any other road can present, or any two roads combined. It not only offers a short route into the Hills, but enables mine owners a shorter and cheaper route to the Denver smelters. Much Denver, Colorado Springs and even Cripple Creek capital has come in, and more is coming. With it has come a wide and successful use of the cyanide process. Mines that had been closed down because of inability to extract values from the ores prove extremely profitable under this process. While I am not posted sufficiently to be a good judge, it owuld not surprise me in the least to see another boom in the Black Hills, and one with such permanent and substantial results that it not only would throw the boom of the early '80s in the shade, but make Cripple Creek look to its laurels.

* * *

Gold was discovered in the Black Hills in 1874 by H. N. Ross, who now is city marshal of Custer, the metropolis of the South Hills. The hills then were "Indian country" and not only were filled with hostile and blood-thirsty Sioux but government troops were provided for the purpose of keeping out white trespassers. A rush started, however, that even government troops could not wholly stop. Railroads were far distant and the new Eldorado could be reached only by long travel or horseback, through a half desert country. Provisions were scarce and costly. Gold seekers laid in the brush and divided their energies between washing out placer gold, fighting Indians, dodging United States troops and hustling for food. Ex-Alderman Cox is one Duluth man who went through all that. Another Black Hills pioneer is W. J. Johnson, Suffel's popular shoe man. Alex Hamilton was an amalgamator in the hills for many years before he came to Duluth to spread paint. With the opening of the hills and a heavy production of gold, came bad men, gamblers, dance houses, women and all the features of a typical Western mining camp. All that has passed. Quartz mining has practically supplanted placer mining—in fact the Black Hills district claims to be the third in importance as a gold producer in the United States.

The Black Hills proper have an area of about 5000 square miles. Their altitude runs from 3500 to 6500 feet. Harvey peak, the highest elevation, reaches 7000 feet skyward. Ten geologic ages are represented in the rock formation and scientists say that in this wonderful region, 60 by 120 miles, but two of the universal elements are lacking and that in no other part of the world does the same condition exist. The scientists, too, are divided as to whether the hills are the result of volcanic action or lateral pressure.

Among the best known minerals are gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, manganese, nickel, tin, graphite, mica, antimony and a still longer list. Tin ore has been found that runs as high as 74 and 75 per cent. There is quite a revival in tin mining under way and strong hopes are centered in a copper lode. Some excellent mica is found and wolframite, from which comes tungstic acid, used in hardening steel, has been found in limited quantities. Of course gold is the main thing. The greatest development is in the North Hills, of which Deadwood, with a population of several thousand people seems to be the center. The South Hills have great merit but are a little slower in development. There is some excellent prospecting ground in the South Hills.

Deadwood, in its day, was one of the "warmest" towns any mining camp or mining boom ever saw. It was the point of destination in the hills for all classes. Here "Wild Bill" he noted shot and "bad man" was killed. Here "Calamity Jane," the woman scout, dressed as a man and in buckskin, passed over the bar for the drinks, the head of an Indian that she killed with her own knife. Deadwood is a quarter of a century old and it is proposed to hold a quarto-centennial celebration for four days, the first week in July. The enterprise will be under the auspices of the Society of Black Hills Pioneers and a time is promised that will be worth going many miles to see. There will be all sorts of festivities and amusements. Several hundred Indians will be there in all their paint and glory and a special effort will be made to have many of the old time characters there, such as Bat Masterson, "Calamity Jane" and others. Then there will be a Palace of Gold, artistically constructed and decorated and containing a display of Black Hills minerals that never has been equalled. Every part of the hills will be represented and an immense attendance as well as a "mad and merry time" is assured.

JOHN L. MORRISON.

Stomachs That Won't Work

That Retain the Food and Refuse to Digest It, Make the Head Heavy and the Nerves Weak, Need Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is a cure for dyspepsia. Sufferers who have tried noxious nostrums will probably be skeptical, but skepticism vanishes when Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are tried. Whether the trouble is dyspepsia of long standing, or merely a simple case of digestion, relief is prompt and pronounced. The less the trouble the fewer tablets need be taken.

Heaviness after eating, sour stomach, as indicated by belching, fatigue with slight exertion, or with no exertion at all, disturbed sleep, nervousness, constipation, depression, "blues," these things can commonly be set down as symptoms of dyspepsia. And dyspepsia is merely indigestion in an aggravated form.

By promoting perfect digestion, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets produces strong nerves, restful, refreshing sleep, pure blood and good, sound, healthy flesh. They make the skin clear, the eyes bright, the mind cheerful.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a medicine and more than a medicine. They digest the food and make it easy of assimilation, and they relieve the inflamed, diseased condition of the membraneous linings and the glands of the stomach and bowels. They help the digestive organs over the hard places, and put them into a healthy, active condition. They effect a quick and permanent cure. You don't have to continue taking them forever, still it is well to have a box handy and take one at the first return of the trouble.

Perfectly well people are made sick by eating too much, or unwholesome food, but not if they take a tablet after eating. Treatment with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets does not necessitate dieting or any change of habits. They digest the proper food and act upon the other kind in such a way as to make it pass off quickly and harmlessly. You may eat and drink what you like, when you like, and as much as you like if you take a tablet afterwards.

Send to F. A. Stuart company, Marshall, Mich., for little book on stomach diseases, mailed free.

DECREASING.

Spread of Smallpox Has Ceased and Cases Growing Less.

St. Paul, April 26.—Reports of new cases of smallpox made to the state board of health during the past fortnight show that the spread of the disease has ceased and that the number of new cases is decreasing rapidly. Two hundred and sixty-one new cases are reported as compared with 424 for the previous two weeks, 261 for the fortnight ending March 25 and 328 for the two weeks ending March 11.

The cases reported are more isolated than in any of the previous statements. Five communities report more than ten cases. Minneapolis which reported eleven new cases for the previous two weeks, has thirty-one new cases, showing there has been a renewed outbreak of the disease in that city.

Bemidji, where many people were afflicted with the disease, cared for thirty-seven new patients during the past two weeks. Fifteen other communities reporting more than ten cases are Cass Lake, 13; Greenwood, 14, and Rives, 11.

St. Paul had four new cases, as compared with nine new cases in each of the three previous fortnights. No smallpox exists in other parts of Ramsey county.

The report shows that smallpox is more scattering than during the previous fortnights. New cases were reported from seventy-nine localities last fortnight, as compared with seventy-three for the two weeks ending April 8, sixty-four for the two weeks ending March 25, and seventy-two for the two weeks ending March 11.

Mercury AND Potash

Everybody knows that Mercury is a dangerous medicine even when administered in very small doses, and few constitutions can stand it for any length of time.

Potash produces inflammation of the stomach and bowels, and a dangerous form of dyspepsia and often chronic diarrhœa follow its use.

Now, the doctors will tell you if you have Contagious Blood Poison you must take these minerals for two years or longer; first, a course of Mercury, and when your teeth get so sensitive and sore that you can't eat, and the gums have a spongy, unnatural appearance, you are told to stop and a change to Potash is made. When the stomach rebels you are put on Mercury again, and so on ad infinitum, or until the system becomes so thoroughly saturated with these poisonous drugs that the most disgusting sores break out on the body, the bones become diseased, and the muscles and joints are racked with the most torturing pains. Mercury and Potash drive the eruptions and blotches from the skin, but the virus remains in the blood and the reappearance of the old symptoms and the occasional sore mouth show that the poison is still active, and you can never hope to completely eradicate it by this method of treatment.

S. S. S. is the only antidote for this destructive virus, and an infallible remedy for this peculiar poison. It destroys and eradicates every particle of the poison, and makes the blood as healthy and pure as before the disease was contracted.

When I was about twenty-one years of age, or eighteen years ago, I contracted Blood Poison in a bad form, and am satisfied that the rapid progress the disease was making would soon have made me a life-long invalid or ended my life. As my system came under the influence of S. S. S., the sores, splotches and pimples gradually disappeared and soon no evidence of the disease was left. I am now thirty-nine years old, and have seen no signs of it during the past eighteen years. S. S. S. does all you claim for it. WM. EMERSON, Pevely, Mo.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and we offer $1,000 for proof that it contains any mineral ingredient whatever. The general health improves as the Specific purges the system of impurities, and as new, rich blood begins to flow in the veins the unsightly sores and other evidences of blood poison disappear; strength returns and you are forever rid of this loathsome disease.

Our Home Treatment Book on Contagious Blood Poison tells you all about the symptoms, different stages, etc., of this disease. We will mail you a copy free.

If you need advice or special directions, write our physicians; it will cost you nothing and may hasten your cure. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO, ATLANTA, GA.

KISSED IN PUBLIC

Was Surprised at the Denial of Their Engagement.

Believes It Was Made to Appease Angry Relatives.

San Francisco, Cal., April 26.—A dispatch to the Examiner from San Diego says:

Miss Hattie Ross Laube, who is reported to be engaged to Senator W. A. Clark, manifested a little surprise when shown a telegram from the Examiner stating that Mr. Clark had denied that he was engaged to her. The surprise was only momentary, however, and she soon regained the composure that she has maintained since the report was first published. The senator's statement did not cause her to make a denial, but rather had the effect of bringing out a confirmation of the engagement.

"I do not wish to criticize any course the senator may deem best to pursue," she said; "His may be the best way to deal with angry relatives. I do not care to say much on the subject, but I am willing to tell you a little about our acquaintance. The story I have always considered an interesting and uncommon one, with a tinge of romance about it.

"We kissed each other publicly the first time we ever met, which, by the way, was long before I ever came to California. If you wish to know anything further, such as whether the sweet lovers' custom was continued or abandoned later, or whether our affection for each other has increased or lessened since, it may not be necessary to bother the senator about it, but just apply to J. Ross Clark for full particulars, as he seems to assume himself to be the possessor of all information concerning the senator and myself."

"You admit then, that the report of the engagement is true?" she was asked.

"Really, I don't wish to make any stronger statement than I have already," she replied. "Senator Clark may have some good reason for making a denial, and I should not care to do anything that he would not like."

"You would not care to make a direct answer of yes or no, would you?"

"I don't think so," she said with the same pleasing smile that accompanied all of her answers. "I should like, however, to make reply to a dispatch from Los Angeles, printed in several papers, which does me an injustice. The statement that I called upon Senator Clark's mother without being invited is false. I visited Mother Clark because the senator told me he would be glad to have me call on her when I went to Los Angeles.

"Why do I call her mother? Because I love her; because she is the senator's mother, and because she is like a mother to me. I always felt that there was a welcome in her dear heart for me. She told me she could not go to see the people; they must come to see her. And more than once, in her own sweet way, as I kissed her goodby, she invited me to come again. I never left my photograph with her, so her daughters never had a chance to consign it to the waste basket, as it is said they claim to have done."

Miss Laube's father was present at the interview and gave his assent to everything his daughter said. He also stated that Senator Clark had perhaps some reasons for making a denial and it would therefore be unwise for his daughter to say anything to the contrary. Matters would adjust themselves in time, he said.

Miss Laube and her father have spent nearly all their mornings and afternoons since their arrival here in visiting nearby places of interest. They will remain in San Diego for a few days longer.

TAX BILL HUNG UP.

Michigan House and Senate Trying to Agree.

Lansing, Mich., April 26.—The two houses will try to get together on the railroad tax bill, although the prospects for success are not encouraging. After the house had voted unanimously against concurring in the senate amendments, the senate voted to insist upon its amendments, and then each body appointed a conference committee. It is believed that the lion's share of concessions must come from the senate if an agreement is reached.

A bill providing for examining and licensing of miners passed the house. The house smothered the bill prohibiting the sale of adulterated white lead by sending it to a hostile committee. In the senate all after the enacting clause was stricen from the bill, making it unlawful to manufacture or sell baking powder containing alum.

GATES' LUCKY TIP.

He Made a Fortune In Union Pacific.

New York, April 26.—John W. Gates, the Chicago speculator, has made $275,000 on the New York stock exchange since Monday on one transaction. How much more he has made in his fight with James R. Keene is not known, but he is supposed to have picked up another $250,000 in the break of Tuesday, which was planned by him, it is said, and executed by his workers. On Sunday last Mr. Gates got a tip that Union Pacific was going to move on Wednesday. The tip came to him in Chicago, and he immediately telegraphed Jacob Field, his broker, to buy 25,000 shares for him "at the market" on Monday. Field bought the stock at 94.

The move in Union Pacific came as Mr. Gates expected. On enormous transactions the stock sold up to 107¼. Gates' brokers sold out at an average of 105. Mr. Gates' profits were $275,000.

A great struggle is going on in the market for the control of Union Pacific. Over 61,000 shares were traded in Wednesday, while millions of dollars' worth of the bonds were bought at steady advancing prices. Many of the large buying orders for the stock came from the Southern Pacific railroad interests in London, while Vanderbilt-Harriman brokers were also conspicuous in the scramble for the stocks.

OIL!

Before investing in oil stocks, investigate those of the King Phillip and Occidental Oil Companies offered for sale by Marcus W. Bates, 4 Exchange Building, Duluth. These companies own over two thousand acres of oil lands situated in the now famous Sunset, Midway, McKitrick and Tremblor districts of Kern County, California, and right in the midst of flowing and producing wells. The lands of these companies have all been selected with great care, and are the best in the districts named. The King Phillip has one well nearly completed with such a showing for oil as assures its success. The Occidental has one well now producing, and are drilling on several others and expect them to be producing oil withing sixty days from them. The stock is going very fast and I am offering for a short time only—

OIL!

King Phillip stock at 30 Cts. per share.
Occidental stock at 20 Cts. per share.

These stocks are nearer a paying basis than any others offered on this market. Don't make any mistake; get the best. Call and talk with the agent about these remarkable properties before buying oil stocks.

NOT BRYAN.

Says He Is Not Planning For Another Presidential Nomination.

Lincoln, Neb., April 26.—In a statement given publicity last night W. J. Bryan says in effect he has no intention of seeking a third nomination for the presidency. Mr. Bryan's announcement is in answer to an article in an Eastern paper speculating on his future plans as a political leader. Mr. Bryan said:

"I am not planning for another presidential nomination. If I were I would not be editing a paper. If I ever become a candidate again it would be because it seems necessary for the advancement of the principles to which I adhere, and that does not now seem probable. I shall, however, take an interest in politics for several years yet if I live, and can be relied upon to support those who as candidates advocate Democratic principles and who can be trusted to enforce them if elected.

"I have no enemies to punish. No matter what a man may have said or done against the ticket in 1896 or in 1900, that man becomes my friend the moment he accepts Democratic principles. Neither have I any disposition to reward political friends at the expense of our cause. No matter what a man may have said or done for the ticket in 1896 or 1900, that man becomes an opponent the moment he turns against Democratic principles. Political battles are fought not in the past or in the future, but in the present. The heretofore cannot be recalled and the hereafter cannot be anticipated, but the now is all important."

ELEPHANT

In Fit of Anger Drowned Trainer---Elephant Killed.

Peru, Ind., April 26.—Henry Huffman, an animal trainer with the Wallace circus, met a horrible death yesterday afternoon, being killed by "Big Charley," a monster elephant. While the elephant was bathing in the Mississinewa river, east of Peru, "Big Charley" wound his trunk about Keeper Huffman and hurled him far into the stream. Huffman was uninjured, and when he returned, attempted to molify the elephant. The next instant he was again grabbed by the elephant, thrown to the bottom of the river and held there by the elephant's fore feet. Several showmen shot at the elephant, but with no effect. He broke down fences and roamed about in a field, keeping everybody away from him. Some apples loaded with strychnine were thrown near him and he ate one. An hour later he laid down and was in terrible agony. A rifle shot then killed him.

"Big Charley" weighed over three tons, was valued at $10,000, and in his lifetime had killed four men. Keeper Huffman at different times was animal trainer at Fairmount park, Philadelphia, and Central park, New York. His home was in Columbus, Ohio.

BRILLIANT WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Stephenson to Oshkosh Man.

Marinette, Wis., April 26.—The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Stephenson, daughter of Isaac Stephenson, who christened the battleship Wisconsin, to J. Earl Morgan, of Oshkosh, was solemnized yesterday at the home of the bride's parents.

A reception and wedding feast followed. Among the presents was a check for $10,000 from the bride's father, also large checks from her uncle, S. M. Stephenson, and one from J. R. Morgan, of Oshkosh, father of the groom. Irving Scott, president of the Union Iron works, of San Francisco, builders of the battleship Wisconsin, sent an elegant oil painting of the boat. Large numbers of guests were present from Chicago, Milwaukee, Oshkosh and other Wisconsin cities.

WHERE IS SANTA CLAUS?

Letter Returned From the Dead Letter Office.

New York, April 26.—Where does Santa Claus live, anyway Somewhere in the frozen north, all tradition agrees, but just where? Powerful governments cannot discover, though they tried, and little May Bertil set them at it. So the disappointment of the 6-year-old girl over the failure to communicate with the toy manufacturer may be tempered by the pride of having had the United States and Great Britain and Denmark and Iceland all exerting themselves to aid her quest.

May lives at 492 High street, Newark. She is the adopted daughter of Mrs. Therese Bertil. She made up her mind before last Christmas what she wanted Santa Claus to bring her, and to make sure of her gifts she decided to write him. "Dear Santa Claus," she wrote, "my name is May Bertil. Please bring me a stove, a doll's bed, a doll, a kitchen and I send my regards."

This request she inclosed in an envelope, stamped it, and addressed it "Mr. Santa Claus, Jayville, Iceland," and sometime before Christmas she dropped it in a letter box.

Then she awaited the outcome. She learned it today, when her note was returned from the dead letter office in Washington.

Markings on the envelope show that it was sent to Copenhagen, Denmark. From there it went to Leith, Scotland. Thence to Reykjavik, Iceland. The postmaster there probably thought Santa Claus lived near Pinzsyjjarsysia, Iceland, so he sent the letter to that place, where it arrived Feb. 14, three months after May posted it. But the Pinsyjarsysia fellow did not know Santa Claus, nor where to look for him, therefore he started the letter on the back track and it went to Copenhagen and to Liverpool and back to Washington, where the authorities returned it with all its travel marks to little May.

Unnecessary Noise a Nuisance.

If people suffer from noise-makers, it is because they have not sufficient intelligence or ability to take steps to have the noise, stopped. At least such would seem to be the case from recent decisions bearing on the question of noise. Your next door neighbor or the man doing business in the street has no right to carry on his business in such an unnecessarily noisy manner as to make himself a nuisance, and if he will not stop at your request the courts will make him, provided a reasonable case can be established. This principle of law was demonstrated by the recent act of the Georgia supreme court in restraining the unnecessary blowing of a factory whistle at unseasonable hours, the court stating that it was "so loud, harsh and terrific as seriously to interfere with the plaintiff's reasonable enjoyment of their habitations," and therefore a nuisance. A clear and concise statement of the law as to the right of city workers to insist that all work shall be performed with a minimum of noise is that made by an Ohio superior court, as follows: "There is a time for work and a time for rest, and where one seeks to work all the time for the discomfort of his neighbor and the deprivation of the natural rest to which the neighbor is entitled, there is a material interference with the neighbor's rights for which he is entitled to a remedy." And the New York supreme court ruled that neither a contractor nor his workmen had a right to disturb dwellers in an apartment house by doing their work either at unseasonable hours in the morning or in an unnecessarily noisy way. The court in this case restrained the contractor from so carrying on his work. There is one point which, if always remembered, will avoid all trouble, and that is that others have rights that we are bound to respect.

Conscience Plays Queer Pranks.

The recent receipt by the secretary of the treasury of 2S cents, to be credited to the "conscience fund" called to the minds of the officials that at one time some one sent in a 2-cent postage stamp for the same fund. A letter accompanied it in which the writer confessed he had made unlawful use of a stamp which had come through the mail accidentally uncancelled on an envelope addressed to him. The repentant sinner would have saved the government a great deal of trouble if he had kept his stamp. At the treasury there was a question whether it could be accepted, it being merely a belated payment of postage, and as it thus fell within the jurisdiction of the postoffice department, it was sent over there. The letter of transmittal and a note of contents, was first entered in the record of mail received at the office of the postmaster general. It was then taken to the chief clerk, who sent it with other mail matter to the third assistant postmaster general. He in turn referred it to the chief of the finance division. In each instance an indorsement had to be made on the document by the officer receiving and referring it, involving so much time, labor and ink. The chief of the finance division pasted the stamp upon the letter in which it had been enclosed, drew his pen through it twice crosswise, wrote "cancelled" under it, and signed his name, at the same time having the act witnessed and his signature attested by one of his subordinates. The letter was then filed away where it will probably remain a long time. Conscience is a queer thing and there is no knowing what a repentant man is liable to do at any time.

DULUTH'S BACK YARDS.

A writer in a recent number of the New York Evening Post recalls the days when the man who owned a country place was a rarity and when one month's sojourning at Saratoga or some other fashionable spot constituted the regulation absence from city life. Then it was that the back yards of New York were joys to their owners and to all who could see them, this writer says. As early as February the family seedsman and gardener inspected the yard and made his allowances for necessary changes and improvements. And his recommendations were for such beautiful old-fashioned things as lilacs, snowballs and the like. The result was that the back yards were converted into beautiful spots that it was a pleasure to gaze upon.

Summer came in the houses, too, in New York, as well as in the back yards, and preparation was made for meeting it in the way of mattings and fresh, white coverings for the furniture. Palm leaf fans were the chief articles of furniture, and pitchers of iced lemonade were within easy reach of all comers. There was no vacation for the man of the house, however, for the whole month then consecrated to recreation for the rest of the family. From a Saturday to a Monday he managed to get away, only, and it was partly for his use and behoof while left in town, presumably desolate, that the house was given its summery aspect.

All this has been changed. The leisure class has grown so strong as to make the social laws, and it is their fashion for each family to have half a dozen residences respectively ready to occupy at the appropriate seasons. It is noticeable that Mr. Carnegie is determined to get some pleasure out of the back yard at his new Fifth avenue house, although he has had to buy an entire block's end to accomplish it. In Europe no city mansion is complete without its surrounding gardens. Why should not the old custom be revived generally in this country? All people cannot own residences in the country, where they can retire in the summer months, but there are few persons who cannot, if they so desire, transform their back yards into gardens that would brighten the whole city by their floral beauty.

The mayor's request to "clean up" today is being quite generally respected, and the city will be much improved in appearance. There are many people who have not complied with the request today, some having found it impossible to do so. The city authorities will not be displeased if the delinquents attend to this duty tomorrow, or even on Monday, although the earlier it can be done the more quickly will the city be cleaned as it should be. Let not the work of beautifying stop with the cleaning process. Clean back yards and lawns are pleasant to look upon—but how much more beautiful would they be, and how much more attractive would they make the residences, if they were filled with plants and flowers. A very small amount of money invested in seeds and plants will produce great results.

FIGURING THE COST.

The capture of Aguinaldo, his taking of the oath of allegiance to the United States, and his proclamation to the Filipinos, urging them to lay down their arms and accept American sovereignty, together with the previous surrenders by insurgents, are regarded, and with good reason, as signs of the dawn of peace in the Philippines. It is a good time, therefore, to figure up the cost of our venture in the far Orient and consider whether the acquisition has justified the expenditure.

Estimates based upon the statistics contained in the government reports show that the insurrection of the natives cost the United States $202,583,090 in money, 908 in officers and men killed and died of wounds, and of 2120 in officers and men dead from disease. The losses of our troops in the Philippines, from Aug. 6, 1898, to April 1, 1901, were as follows:

Killed	741
Died of wounds and accidents	472
Died of disease	2,296
Total deaths	3,509
Wounded	2,638
Grand total	6,147

Estimates made by the treasury department show that the cost of the army since the breaking out of the Philippine insurrection, Feb. 4, 1899, has been about $246,550,000 more than it would have been had the same rate of expenditure been maintained that prevailed before the war with Spain. Much of this additional expenditure would have been entailed, however, had the United States abandoned the Philippines. This is particularly true of the increased naval expenditure, most of which has been for new construction and other improvements not in any way connected with the insurrection in the island. Most of the increased cost of the army has been necessitated by the operations in the Philippines, but part of it is chargeable to the military occupation of Cuba and Porto Rico and to the campaign in China.

Deducting $73,000,000 from the increased expenditures on account of the army and navy for these reasons, leaves a net increase of expenditures under these heads on account of the Philippines of $73,550,000. To this amount must be added $20,000,000 paid to Spain under the treaty of Paris and $100,000 paid for the islands of Cagayan and Sibutu; interest on the war loan since June 30, 1899, $8,423,000, and the cost of the various Philippine commissions and other miscellaneous expenditures estimated at $500,000. This brings the total cost of the islands to date up to $202,583,000.

It was also a costly experience for the natives of the Philippines. The war department puts the Filipino losses at 50,000, 7667 rifles have been captured or surrendered and 605,142 rounds of ammunition have ben seized. No estimate is made of the losses sustained by the country at large, the wreck of towns and country homes, the destruction or disappearance of personal property and the partial suspension of farming and business inseparable from war. For the twenty-seven months ending Nov. 30 last the total number of Filipinos captured or surrendered was 13,468 officers and men, and the number of rifles turned in 4933. Since Nov. 30 last 6600 officers and men have been captured or surrendered and 2734 rifles have been delivered to or captured by American troops. The number of surrenders in the latter period have far exceeded those of any similar period to Nov. 30 last. These statistics are made up to April 1, and during the present month there have been many surrenders to the American forces.

EXPORT COAL TRADE.

The proposed export duty as provided in the English budget will handicap English exporters still further in their competition with American dealers. Of late years American coal has been making rapid strides into European markets, and the war duty will certainly prove a benefit to American interests. The growth of the export coal trade during the last decade has been much greater in the case of the United States than in the case of either Great Britain or Germany. Since 1890 exports from the United States have increased more than threefold, while exports from those two countries have increased only 50 per cent. Indications point to a total exportation for the fiscal year ending June 30 next of about 8,000,000 tons. The amount for the first eight months of the year was 5,136,232 tons, which represents an increase of over 600,000 tons over the corresponding period last year. Especially noteworthy is the growth of our coal exports to France, Germany and other European countries.

The exports to France increased from 5776 tons during the first eight months of the fiscal year 1900 to 143,854 tons during the same months of the current year. The increase in exports to Germany for the same period was from 2125 tons to 8176 tons, and in exports to the rest of Europe from 56,495 tons to 330,223 tons. It has been argued that in the long run it will not be profitable for the United States to supply the largest part of coal for European consumption, but would be far better to keep its coal supply for home consumption and send finished products to foreign countries. However, that matter need not worry at present. Later, if it seems advisable, it can be easily arranged.

It is barely possible that this new contrivance for aerial navigation just constructed for the inventor by the builders of the Shamrock II will turn out to be the very thing with which to reach the North Pole. The inventor, Senor Vargara, a young Spaniard, is reticent about his invention, but states that the plan is quite simple, and that the machine is constructed on the principle which enables birds to fly. There is no balloon or similar contrivance attached. Something of the sort may eventually be perfected, even if the above experiment fail; so that one day we shall all be able to take a flying trip to the North Pole as easily and safely as we can now go by rail to Chicago.

Minister Wu is of the opinion that the immigration of an undesirable class of Chinese could be checked by this government without resorting to either treaties or drastic exclusion laws, if congress would establish an educational test. He says it only would be necessary to require each immigrant to read a passage from the constitution of the United States and write the same in either the English or the Chinese language, and there would be no further trouble from undesirable Chinamen in this country. Wu may be right, but the present laws relating to the Celestials are working very nicely.

It is remarked as one of the ironies of fate that while there is a magnificent monument to Gambetta in Paris his grave at Nice is unmarked by any stone. It is covered by piles of decaying, sodden wreathes, and is generally so ill cared for as to have occasioned much comment from foreign tourists who have sought the last resting place of the great tribune. The local authorities have been stirred up by this comment, and are now considering plans for marking and caring for the grave of the most famous man of the third republic.

A special train bearing a party of New York business men on their way to Texas has made the run between New York and New Orleans in thirty-six hours and twenty minutes, which is six hours better than the regular schedule by the route traveled. The excursionists on the same day ran through a snowstorm in Tennessee, passed through budding springtime in Alabama and entered upon summer in Louisiana.

An amazing condition exists at Manayunk, near Philadelphia, where the big blanket mills have been shut down on account of too much prosperity. The mills are rushed with orders, but owing to the failure of the railroads to move the goods promptly all the storerooms of the company have been choken with manufactured goods, until they possibly cannot take care of any more and for that reason the mills will remain idle.

New York Herald: This is the season when you can make your back yard patch agreeable to the eyes and feelings of your neighbors. It will be a small charm of green and color, it is true, but every little helps to soften the dreary repellant barrenness of city outlooks.

Hitting 'Em in the Ribs.

New York Sun: The makers of umbrella ribs have formed a trust. What do high-minded men think of this new outrage? No good Bryanite will be guilty of buying umbrellas any more. Rather let the rains of heaven fall on the unbending head. Rather filch or borrow some plutocrat's umbrella. This is not a question of mere umbrella ribs, but a question of principle.

A Pleasing Experience.

Chicago Inter Ocean: The president of the French republic, who has just taken a trip in a submarine boat, expresses himself as being greatly pleased with the experience. It is said that one of the most delightful sensations an ordinary human being is capable of feeling is that which comes upon him when he is safely out of a submarine boat. But it cannot be much more delightful than the sensation of safely stepping out of the basket after the balloon ascension.

Because Litigation Is Costly.

Kansas City Star: The mania which Oberlin M. Carter displays for litigation denotes that he succeeded in getting a good wad of money from some source.

Cruel Joke on Corbin.

Detroit Free Press: Gen. Corbin is engaged to be married, and it is refreshing to know that there will soon be somebody in Washington whom he won't boss.

Forced to Extreme Measures.

Chicago News: Gen. DeWet did not get any decorations, so he will be obliged to capture a lot of British officers and help himself.

See He's a Big Thing.

Washington Post: The New York financiers look upon Tom Reed as a good thing, and are pushing him along at a lively rate.

DAILY STORY.

By Her Husband's Hand.

By IRVINGTON HARPER.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller.)

It is a December day and a stage coach drives into Harper City amidst a whirl of snow and its passengers almost frozen in their seats. It was the last trip of the season on that route—from Bennington to Harper City—from Harper City to Colliville and Fort Davis and beyond to Edgerton—there was no staging after winter set in. Four passengers had come up on the trip. They had taken their chances. They might get through by stage and they might not. One of the four was a woman—an officer's wife bound to Fort Davis, if she could get through all right; if winter shut down then she must stop at Harper City or Colliville until sent for.

Two days after the stage was laid up, and with two feet of snow on the ground and more falling, the landlord of the Eagle hotel said to the dozen men congregated around the stove in the barroom:

"Boys, I'm feeling mighty sorry for the officer's wife. I can't make her comfortable here, do the best I can, and it may be a fortnight before anything goes over the road in either direction. She's got pluck to push on to the Fort if she had half a show."

"What d'ye call a show?" queried one of the men.

"Well, a man about your size and two ponies would help her through."

"Not this winter. It's twenty-eight miles to Davis, and with this snow on that means two days' travel. Say, men, before this storm lets up we'll have snow up to your chin. Ponies! Why the drifts will be too big for an elephant to break through!"

"She's got two kids," resumed the landlord, "and at Bennington, before the wires went down, she got a dispatch that both were down with the smallpox. Got it bad at the Fort, they say, and lots of men are dying off."

"Who's the woman?" asked one of the men at last—a youngish man who had appeared the day before, coming from no one knew where nor inquired.

"Capt. Carey's wife," answered the landlord.

The stranger half rose from his chair and uttered a curse, and the others looked at him in surprise.

"She's crying and wringing her hands and taking on, and I'll put $20 on top of any sum the captain may shell out. I've told my old woman to keep an eye on her for fear she may start out alone."

The stranger said he would like to talk with the lady, and two minutes later was in her presence. She recognized him on the instant and pronounced his name. He calmly replied that he was Samuel White, soldier and deserter, and though she was the wife of the officer who had hounded him into a breach of discipline and desertion, he stood ready to offer her his best services in the emergency. She at first declined his offer, realizing how he must feel, but he insisted and the landlord told her that of all the men about the town the deserter was the only one who dared face the perils of the trip. By and by she yielded, weeping and sobbing in her anxieties, and he said:

"By the day after tomorrow the storm will have ceased and we will make a start."

All that day and all the next the wind continued to rage and the snow to fall, but the morning of the third dawned bright and clear. Private White was not seen again until he rode up on his horse ready to make a start. The snow was hip-deep on the level and the wind cuttingly cold, and as a start was made one of the group at the door of the tavern shook his head and said:

"That's the last of 'em, boys—the last of 'em until the spring thaw lets their bodies be found. Lots of pluck, but it's throwing life away."

At noon they had made their eight miles through the heavy snow, but a halt was made to build a fire, make a pot of coffee and permit the woman to move about and restore the circulation of her stiffened limbs. When night fell a camp was made in a grove on the banks of a creek. The soldier dug away the snow, bent the tops of three or four bushes together and flung a blanket over them, and the half-frozen woman was lifted from the saddle. Then a fire was built, the horse turned loose to shift for himself, and presently the deserter had prepared both food and drink. There was anxiety in the eyes of the woman as she watched him moving about. He was pale and haggard and seemed ten years older than when making the start. It had been a terrible tramp, and she wondered that he had not given up entirely. One camp-fire would at least prevent her from freezing—a second, twenty feet away, would help his pull through the long night. The captain's wife wanted to talk to Private White—to thank him—to speak words of sympathy, and by-and-by she mustered up courage to say:

"I heard more than one at the fort say that you were driven to do what you did. I am sorry—bitterly sorry—that my husband should have been the cause of it."

"I am a deserter—almost an outlaw," he replied, "but what matters it? If I can get you through to the fort I shall be glad."

"Tell me your story," she said as she looked at him across the camp-fire. "Every one says you are a man of education, and a gentleman—that you are far above the rank and file."

The man bowed his head for a moment and then looked up with a bitter laugh and added:

"The past is the past, and it is better to leave it so. There is no one who cares for me."

"But I am sure that there are those who care for you," she persisted. "A wrong has been done you, and I shall not rest until it is righted. When we get to the fort your case——"

"I shall not enter the fort with you," he interrupted with a shake of his head. "Three months ago, as you seem to know, I was court-martialed for striking my superior officer. He is your husband and I speak with all respect, but from the day I joined his company he was down on me. What for, God only knows, but he harrassed and hounded me 'till I could bear it no more. No, I will conduct you safely to your children and then—well, it don't matter whether I pull through or the drifts furnish me a shroud and grave."

She would have protested and entreated, but hastily rising to his feet he disappeared into the darkness. For an hour the captain's wife awaited his return, and then hearing nothing from him she fell asleep.

When morning came he aroused her, prepared breakfast, and as he placed her in the saddle he quietly said:

"Tonight you will see your children if they are still alive."

"Living or dead," she answered, "I shall owe you a greater debt than I can ever repay."

High noon—2 o'clock—3 o'clock—4. A weary horse—a man ready to fall down and die—a woman with tears freezing on her cheeks. Now the Fort is only a mile away. When they turn the eastern edge of this grove or turn it to avoid the great drift which has piled up across the path. She does not know how near the Fort is or she would say to him:

"God bless and reward you, my brave man, and now you shall turn back."

There are soldiers out from the Fort after fuel. There is a captain out for game to make soup for the little ones fighting for life at the post. As the deserter enters the grove he suddenly hears the sound of axes—the shouts of men—he comes face to face with the officer who had hounded him to disgrace and desertion.

"Private White—the deserter—halt or I fire!"

Her horse has slowly followed on, and the woman saw it all. The deserter turned as if to flee—a rifle was raised and fired—the man fell forward with a bullet in his heart and was dead before her wild shriek had ceased to echo on the evening air.

That was all—all that except a woman who grieved, a man who ever afterwards walked in the shadow—another grave in the soldier's lonely burying ground on the hillside.

GROWTH OF ADVERTISING.

New York Tribune: In the last quarterly publication of the American Statistical association, Sidney A. Sherman gives an instructive sketch of the great growth of modern advertising and the important part it has come to play as one of the forces of civilization. Fifty years ago there was little advertising in the daily or periodical publications, and as a rule advertisements were inartistic and unattractive in form and crude in conception. Today it is estimated that advertising influences sales to the amount of $10,000,000, and that on the basis of 3 per cent as an average, this represents an annual outgo for advertising of $500,000,000.

The largest advertiser in the world is said to be a sewing machine company, though it reckons its payments to canvassers as advertising. One soap manufacturing concern spends about $1,000,000 a year in advertising, and an appropriation of from $300,000 to $500,000 a year for advertising is by no means uncommon in the business world. Mr. Sherman thinks that up to a certain point, the so-called trust method of doing business is inimical to advertising, as it tends to eliminate competition. But the facts hardly justify this view, because many of the business concerns, as, for instance, iron mills, that become consolidated, never advertise anyway, and others apparently can only remain monopolists, as against an army of rivals who want to become monopolists themselves, by liberal and constant appeals to the public through the advertising columns of the daily press.

The progress of advertising has been great in the United States during the last few years and there is comparatively little of the offensive advertising that makes the railway stations and omnibuses in England so hideous. Moreover, the newspaper advertising in the English papers is, on the whole, less attractive than the advertising in American papers. The English advertisements are too bald, too prosy and too mechanical in their makeup. The art of writing and displaying advertisements has made great progress in this country. Advertising, in fact, has been put in the hands of specialists, who have made an exhaustive study of the subject. But, great as has been the progress of advertising, it is by no means as general as it ought to be. Nearly two-thirds of the large general advertisers are to be found in the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware. About a third of them are in New York state. Outside of this state Massachusetts and Illinois lead all the other states in advertising. It may be added that a little more than 25 per cent of all the general advertisers of the country center their business in this city. But an appreciation of the importance, or rather the necessity of advertising is growing in other parts of the country, and has been especially notable since the present era of business expansion set in. Prosperity not only stimulates old wants, but creates new ones. And those who are in keen competition to meet those wants find that only by constant advertising can they hope to succeed.

Are the People Crazy That's a Question.

There is no doubt that investments in both copper and oil are likely to make small fortunes for the lucky investors. Nothing venture, nothing have, is as trite as it is true. How many who have watched the rapid rise in stocks of all kinds during the past few months but have wished they had taken a few shares even at any sacrifice, and as prices have climbed day by day, have wondered if they have not been on the borded of insanity in not comprehending the situation and taking a chance.

There are some good stocks being offered on this market, stocks having real value, and a little observation and study will determine the good and the bad. The Anglo-American Copper company have been selling their stock at a very low price, considering the nearness to actual production of refined copper, and it is a bargain at a much higher price than it is being sold for. In oil stocks, the King Phillip Oil company and the Occidental Oil company are among the new companies which are actually producing oil in paying quantities or with such a development of their wells that production is assured.

Stocks like these at the prices for which they are selling are certainly very cheap.

HE WILL REPORT

Representative at Cleveland Conference of Engineers Home.

Will Make Statement to the Local Engineers Tonight.

Tug Tie-Up Is Likely to Be Soon Relieved.

Roughly speaking, there is not a ton of ice at either end or either side of Lake Superior to hinder navigation, yet for reasons known to everyone navigation is not yet.

The steamer Minnie M., which left the Sault Tuesday for Michipicoten harbor is back and reports that the entire way is clear. The journey was made without difficulty, and while there is ice in sight, and some of it was encountered, it is of a very mushy consistency and not troublesome to vessels.

If there were any vessels ready, and they had engineers to run them, they could leave Duluth today and make their way to the lower lakes without a bit of opposition. Navigation is up to the engineers' strike altogether, and for the first time in the history of the lakes navigation is entirely open and no boats are running.

On the surface the strike condition remains unchanged, and the end of it is as far off as ever. Nevertheless the situation is not without hope. The recent conference at Cleveland did not result in a settlement, but there are many who hope that it will pave the way to a peaceable and satisfactory close of the difficulties between the vessel owners and the engineers.

James H. Bishop, a member of the local branch of the Engineers' association, and its representative at the Cleveland conference, has returned, but he does not care to discuss the conference. He will make a report to the local branch at its regular meeting tonight in its hall in the Hunter block.

It is not likely, however, that his report will vary greatly from that already given by The Herald's telegraphic report of the Cleveland meeting. The engineers have been authorized to treat separately with their employers, whether they are members of the Lake Carriers' association or not, providing that they do not vary from the advanced scale of wages arranged by the association. This will probably go a long way toward settling the difficulty. It is very likely that it will put an end to the delay in the tug situation, at any rate, and it will release many independent owners, who are willing to conform to the demands of the engineers.

There are some boats under charter to make trips at the begining of navigation, and this will give them an opportunity to carry out their contracts. Whether they allow the scale for the season or not, some of them will probably be willing to allow it long enough to make their contract trip, and by that time doubtless some settlement will have been made.

CATCHING ON.

Brooklyn Beginning to Appreciate President Greatsinger Already.

President Greatsinger is already beginning to convince the Brooklyn people that his heart is in the right place, or at least that he has some heart, for the popular idea of a street railway corporation is generally that he has none. He recently introduced some new cars on some of the lines in Brooklyn, and this is what the Brooklyn Eagle had to say of it:

"If Mr. Greatsinger has many more improvements of the Brooklyn trolley service equal to the parlor trolley cars, of which specimens have been put on several lines, Brooklyn is likely to hail him as a benefactor. The Heights management has been so frankly and promptly criticised for some of its shortcomings that it is only fair that a contribution like this to the comfort of its passengers should be as promptly commended. Riding in one of the single chairs of these cars robs the trolley of half its terrors, and makes street transit a luxury almost like the drawing room cars for long journeys. Every passenger who gets a seat at all gets one in which it is impossible for his neighbor to crowd him and gives each passenger liberty to move his arms without the rubbing elbows which has been accepted as one of the inevitable if lesser evils of the overcrowded trolley cars. The seats extend so far into the aisle that a standing passenger cannot by the aid of the straps overhang those seated. The result is that not more than two or three people, aside from those on the rear platform, stand in these cars, and one can walk the aisle without embracing a dozen men and women in one's progress toward the door.

"It would be obviously unfair to expect the company to use such cars during rush hours or on the most crowded lines. They only seat thirty-six persons each, and with the available standing room will carry less than fifty passengers. They would not aid in solving the problem of getting Brooklyn people downtown before 9 o'clock in the morning or carrying them home after 5 o'clock at night. But there are half a dozen or more lines upon which the travel is not very heavy, except during rush hours. One of these beautiful, comfortable cars will carry all the people who usually ride on those lines during two-thirds of the twenty-four hours. If the company should put a few of these drawing room cars upon each of those lines, so that its patrons may have the chance of hitting one of them once a week, it will greatly modify, if not the rigors of the trolley system, at least the asperities of temper in which that system is viewed by the correspondents and editors who ventilate its shortcomings in print. The memory of one ride downtown in absolute comfort will so soothe a man's nerves that he hardly finds it in his heart to say hard things of the company for at least a week. These cars are an evidence of the desire of the company to do something for the comfort of its patrons as well as for its dividend accounts. The American public is proverbially generous to the man who does his best in a trying situation. The plea not to shoot the pianist who was doing "as well as he knew how," was the effective even in a mining camp. The same clemency is waiting for railroad presidents. These fine cars are an evidence that our latest accession in that line of industry is trying to win forbearance by doing the best he can with a situation which neither he nor anybody else can make agreeable until we have a millennium of pneumatics or balloonatics applied to rapid transit."

CLEANING.

The People Are Observing the Day Very Generally.

The manner in which cleaning up day was observed throughout the city proved very satisfactory. Mayor Hugo's appeal for citizens to co-operate with the city departments was responded to in a most energetic manner, by owners and many tenants of property, but the agents for property owned by non-residents did not seem to catch the spirit of the occasion to any overwhelming extent.

At any rate the movement has been a success. Hundreds of alleys and back yards are being cleansed of filth and disease generating rubbish and the movement will probably continue tomorrow when the children from the schools will be able to help at home.

In all the public schools today there was a general cleaning up and this afternoon arbor and bird day was celebrated with appropriate exercises. In many of the schools trees were planted, but the exercises this afternoon proved the event of the day in the schools.

The pupils were taught the value of preserving the forests and birds of Minnesota, and also given practical talks on he benefit of beautifying the city through cleanliness.

As a holiday it was not very generally observed among the business houses. The offices of the city hall were closed, but banks and other institutions, usually observing holidays kept their doors open.

INSPECTOR.

William Lanzslow of West Duluth to Inspect Meat.

All the members of the new board of health attended the initial meeting last evening in the office of the health commissioner. As announced in yesterday's Herald the new board's first official act was to re-establish the office of meat inspector. William Lanzslow, a well known West Duluth butcher, was selected for the position. His appointment is for a period of three months, during which he will draw salary at the rate of $60 a month.

Mr. Lanzslow will inspect all the meat markets and wholesale meat houses, and if he discovers any unwholesome meat the health department will confiscate it.

The general sanitary conditions of the city were talked over by the new board, and it was decided to lose as little time as possible in getting down to work. Two additional health inspectors were put on the list for the month of May.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEWIS MORRISON'S "FAUST."

A cardinal point in the farewell production of Lewis Morrison's "Faust" is said to be its magnificent scenic completeness. It is claimed that never in the history of this famous play has it been presented in as perfectly uniform a manner as now. From the time the curtain rises upon the dark sepulchral cell of Dr. Faustus until it falls upon the beautiful tableaux of the Apotheosis, it is a series of elaborate spectacular transformations, ranging from ecclesiastical solemnity to diabolical weirdness. At the Lyceum Saturday evening.

"THE WATCH ON THE RHINE."

Monday evening Al H. Wilson will appear at the Lyceum in "The Watch on the Rhine." In this play Mr. Wilson will have ample opportunity to use his rich baritone voice, which from a musical standpoint has earned him the sobriquet of "the golden-voiced singer." During the action of the play various touching, pathetic and heartfelt songs will be rendered, several of which seem from resent indications to become popular with the masses. The play itself will be a sumptuously mounted production of more than usual magnitude, scenes depicting the grandeur of the river Rhine, the famous schloss of Heidelburg, beautiful Bingen and other places famed in song and story.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

The North Bros.' company drew another full house at the Sixth Avenue theater last evening to witness the reproduction of "A Celebrated Case." The play was given much better than on the previous evening and met with the hearty approval of a crowded house. The work of Miss Goodwin and Messrs. Chapin, Carter and Chapin was exceptionally clever, fully demonstrating their great dramatic ability. Tonight the bill will be changed; from the emotional they will step to the very humorous and appear in the best farce comedy of their repertoire, "Turned Up." It is a laugh from start to finish and overflows with comical situations. The specialties, as usual, will be a feature of the evening. At the matinee Saturday afternoon the same bill will be given.

Mr. Bailey Relieved.

In the case of Flora D. Smith against W. T. Bailey and others, involving the foreclosure of a mortgage on certain lands in this county, the parties have entered into a stipulation dismissing the action so far as concerns the interests of Mr. Bailey. His lands were not affected by the mortgage, but he filed an affiravit in court Saturday to the effect that he had discovered that the foreclosure proceedings was including them, and charged that fraud and misrepresentation had been used to get him to neglect the matter. The stipulation was entered into between Theodore Hollister, attorney for Mr. Bailey, and A. N. McGindley, attorney for the plaintiff, dismissing the action so far as it concerns Mr. Bailey.

CAUSES OF DISEASE.

Dr. Rodermund Lectures At the Armory.

Dr. M. J. Rodermund, of Appleton, lectured at the Armory last evening, before a small audience, on "The Causes of Disease." In speaking of smallpox, he said that the theory of germs in the air was all a delusion. He went a step further, saying that persons might inhale foul air fairly reeking with germs, but the disease would not be conveyed to the blood. He said that the pustules and pimples of smallpox simply carried the waste and filth from the body. Fever, he said, was simply nature's effort to burn up the waste matter of the body. He pronounced vaccination one of the greatest humbugs of the age.

Sultan Agrees to Pay Uncle Sam's Claim.

Washington, April 26.—The sultan of Turkey has made another promise to pay the United States the claim of $100,000 which this nation has held against him for many years and which on two occasions has nearly led to a severing of diplomatic relations. Minister Leishman has cabled Secretary Hay that the sultan has personally informed him of his purpose to settle, and the minister adds confidently, that he is satisfied that the sultan means business his time.

Secretary Hay, however, does not share Minister Leishman's optimism. He fears that the wily Mohammedan ruler is taking advantage of the inexperience of the new American diplomat and that the claim will remain unpaid when Mr. Leishman has concluded his diplomatic experience and returned to private life unless the drastic measures that were threatened last summer are brought into play.

It is known that Secretary Hay wants to collect that money, and if he had his way he would send a fleet to the Bosphorus to back up his demand for it. This course was practically decided upon last August, when the sultan let it be known that he would arrange to pay the $100,000 through the Cramps. The Cramps believed for a while they were to act as agents for the transfer of the money, but found later that they were mistaken and that the sultan had fooled them as he had repeatedly fooled the state department.

A BACHELOR'S CONFESSION

Professor Says He Never Kissed a Woman.

Chicago, April 26.—Professor Algie R. Crook, the bachelor member of the faculty of the Northwestern university, surprised the students during a heart to heart talk in the laboratory yesterday by saying that the frivolities of the world had not tempted him.

"I have never uttered a profane word," said Professor Crook, "never have smoked, chewed tobacco, drank intoxicants, nor hugged or kissed a woman."

"Well," spoke up a student, "you don't know what you've missed, professor."

Professor Crook, after a moment's silence, and as if talking to himself, remarked: "Perhaps not."

Professor Crook is a graduate of the Ohio Wesleyan university, a co-educational institution, and he studied for two years at Munich. He has been at the Northwestern since 1893. He is 37 years old and is known as one of the most athletic and erudite men at the Evanston institution, and he is a favorite at Woman's hall.

MERRIAM OPPOSED

To Large Standing Army For United States.

Denver, April 26.—The Rocky Mountain News today prints an interview with Gen. H. C. Merriam, commander of the department of Colorado, in which he is quoted as being opposed to a large standing army. According to the interview, the general said:

"As to the regular army, the number which has been decided upon by the Washington authorities is quite enough. We do not need 100,000 men in the regular army. What we do need is a small and thoroughly drilled, disciplined and equipped body that is not afraid to work and is ready for any emergency. Officers and men should be kept constantly employed and they are then kept out of mischief. We have no need of a large standing army."

DEFENDED BY CONGER

No Apology Needed For What American Missionaries Did.

Stories of Their Wholesale Looting Are Pronounced False.

Legation Would Not Have Been Saved Without Them.

San Francisco, April 26.—In reference to the accusations of looting made against the missionaries, United States Minister Conger, who arrived here last night, makes the following statement:

"The Americans have a larger nummer of missionaries out there than any other nation, and I am frank to say that under the circumstances there are very few things which the missionaries have done, if any, for which there need be any apology whatever. The stories of their looting are false, to my knowledge.

"Believing that our government would not demand a monetary indemnity for the murder and pillaging of native Christians, I advised them that wherever they could make a settlement themselves with the villages where those murders or destruction of property had taken place, to make them on their own responsibility. Li Hung Chang and Chang Yen Mao suggested that settlements might be made in this way with the least possible friction. There are none going out and compelling the people to pay anything. It was altogether voluntary on their part.

"The missionaries have been criticized very severely for going immediately after the siege was raised, into abandoned houses for shelter for themselves and the native Christians who had been expelled from their homes. I said: 'If there is a Boxer's habitation abandoned, take possession of it so you can have a place in which to shelter and take care of the native Christians.'"

Speaking of the siege, Mr. Conger said:

"It took every white man we had to stand by the guns. Without the missionaries the legation would not have been saved, and without the native Christians none of us would have been saved. The missionaries were not the prime cause of the trouble: they were only one of the causes. The missionaries were not responsible for the building of the railroads or for any of the other foreign innovations against which the hatred of the Boxers seemed to be directed."

San Francisco, April 26.—Rev. W. S. Ament, of the American board of foreign missions of the Congregational church, whose collection of indemnity for damages done by the Boxers in China has caused considerable discussion, takes vigorous exception to the criticisms made by Mark Twain and others as to the alleged misconduct of the missionaries. He says:

"We found ourselves at the close of the siege with 500 native Christians upon our hands, no food, no clothing, no money and every Christian house burned.

"On the very day of the arrival of the allied forces, we were informed that we must leave the British legation, as it was to be used as headquarters for the officers of the British army. I immediately thought of a mongol prince, Hsi Ling, who was an ally of the Boxers and whose place was the headquarters of Boxers and black legs. We found the prince's place entirely empty and the next day we brought up our native Christians and occupied the deserted place. In that house and its neighboring houses that we occupied, we put more than 400 people. We took only abandoned property.

"The only food in the prince's place was a bit of rice. We decided to sell the clothing and curios found upon the premises and realized $2500 in gold. They were bought by British and American officers and a private sale of two weeks' duration.

"Native Christians brought us furs and sables which they had purchased at a low price from wealthy Chinese, who feared they might be looted by the military people and who were willing to dispose of them for a little money. These articles were sold at our place to British and other officers. I considered that that was a fair, honest speculation, which injured nobody and that benefited many people.

"There may have been some looted goods taken, but it was without my knowledge. The Russians and the Sikh soldiers were selling off truck very cheap, but my people did not do the looting."

RIVAL TO STANDARD

King of the Texan Oil Fields Is Fully Aroused.

Opposed to Standard Oil Company Getting Texas Wells.

John H. Kirby Is Forming a Fifty-Million-Dollar Company.

Dallas, Texas, April 26.—John H. Kirby, of Houston, Texas, who recently flashed into such prominence as to be known as the "Texas oil king," is possessed of those peculiar mental and business resources so necessary to properly equip him for the contest he has undertaken with the Standard Oil monopoly with that prince of finance, John D. Rockefeller, at its head.

Mr. Kirby has declared boldly that the Standard Oil company shall not get possession of the Texas oil field, now attracting so much public attention to Beaumont and other points in this state He has started out on the gigantic task of getting together $50,000,000 capital for the purpose of organizing a company to compete with the Standard Oil company and to keep the Beaumont and other Texas fields independent.

Eighteen years ago Mr. Kirby was not worth $1. Today he is easily the possessor of $1,000,000. During that time he has handled all kinds of enterprises—from selling lumber as a clerk for the rehabilitation of broken railroads, to president of the Planters and Mechanics' National bank of Houston.

The writer of this sketch has known Mr. Kirby intimately for many years, and has been able to study his character both as a poor working boy and an active business man of wealth.

Riding from Washington to New York with Mr. Kirby about ten years ago the writer learned much of his affairs at that time. He was en route to Boston to finance a large enterprise in Southeastern Texas pine lands. He was only in a comparatively easy financial standing at that time, and much depended upon his success in Boston. Looking seriously into the future, he took a glance backward and made this statement: "Six years ago I got married down in the piny woods of Eastern Texas. I was working in the lumber district at a small salary, but had determined to get to the front, if energy and application would enable me to do so. I had to borrow the money to pay for the marriage license, and started out much on the footing of 'love in a cottage.' Fortune has smiled on me fairly well, and if I succeed in this Boston venture I shall make a good deal of money. If I fail, I may go back, financially, to the level I occupied when I bought the marriage license."

But he did not fail. He financed the pine land deal and soon became a millionaire. Mr. Kirby has always attended strictly to business. The only interest he has taken in politics has been to help his friends. He twice refused to permit the Democratic party of his district to nominate him for congress, and could at any election during the last ten years in Houston have been elected mayor of the city had he desired.

Mr. Kirby is 40 years old, and was born on a farm in Tyler county, Texas. His family originally came from Virginia, being of the fine stock of Colonial days in the Old Dominion and North Carolina. His own family consists of a wife and one daughter. He is president of the Southwestern Oil company, which is now building a large refinery at Houston to oppose the operations in Texas of the Standard monopoly.

One of the enterprises that owes its existense to Mr. Kirby's foresight and energy is the Gulf, Beaumont & Kansas City railway, which he originated and built the first 125 miles of track out of Beaumont. He is interested in lumber lands, sugar lands, rice lands and oil lands in that section of Texas of which Beaumont is the magnetic attractive point at the present time. He and his friends control more than 1,000,000 acres of these lands, and he declares positively that the Standard Oil company nor any other monopoly shall ever, while he is able to prevent it, get possession of so much as one acre of it. These lands are in the heart of the now famous oil field.

Five years ago the street railroad system of Houston was in a bad way. Bankruptcy finally overtook the concern. Mr. Kirby was appealed to by men whose money and energy had become tied up in the enterprise to assist in rehabilitating it. This looked like a hopeless undertaking, but Mr. Kirby promised to try. After getting conflicting interests harmonized he went to New York and Boston, hoping to interest financiers in the property and to make it once more a valuable and useful enterprise for his home city. He succeeded, and today Houston has one of the best equipped and most successfully managed street railroad systems anywhere to be found in the South.

He now speaks as hopefully of the prospects for success in his self-imposed fight with the Standard Oil company as he ever did of any enterprise with which his determination combated. Mr. Kirby is now in the East, dividing his time between New York and Boston, laying before the capitalists of those cities the immense resources of the Texas oil fields and the opportunities to at once and for all time break the power of the greatest industrial monopoly the world has ever known.

Just before starting for the East, Mr. Kirby said: "As a plain, common-sense business proposition there is no reason why the Standard Oil company should assist in developing the Texas oil fields, or in refining or marketing its product. This country has plenty of young men who have the intelligence, the energy and the ambition to handle the situation, and ample money can be had for that purpose.

"I and my associates mean just what we say. The Standard Oil company shall not get possession of, or control the oil field of Texas. I have made gratifying progress in organizing the company which I propose to head with $50,000,000 to keep this field free and independent for the benefit of the oil consumers, not only of this country, but of so much of the world as it can be distributed over.

"The Texas field is most favorably located. It is right at the edge of the sea—God's own highway—and shall not be monopolized by anybody. We can develop wells, build pipe lines and storage apparatus, and the ships of the world can come and get our product and carry it to the ends of the earth, without asking the Standard Oil company or any other monopoly for permission. We will incorporate in a few days under the laws of the state of Texas, and start operations at once. I do not care to mention the names of associating themselves with me in this enterprise, nor the name of the company to be chartered. These facts might be of advantage to those who are opposing us, and we do not care to assist our enemies; but it will not be long before the Standard Oil company will find a fully equipped rival."

The oil territory of Southeastern Texas is approximately 300 miles square, extending that distance north of the Gulf of Mexico, and occupying all that portion of Texas between the Sabine and the Trinity Rivers.

IN MICHIGAN.

The Lind Case Ended In a Verdict of Acquittal.

Houghton—The case of the people against Alexander Lind, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was taken up, a verdict of not guilty being rendered. Much interest was taken in copperdom in the case, it being claimed that Lind had hypnotized a Calumet man, then working him for $2000. The verdict gives general approval.

Quincy—John C. Richards, of the Franklin, died Wednesday at the home of his father, E. H. Richards. The deceased was raised at the Franklin location and from boyhood he has resided there. He died at the age of about 33 years. Lately the deceased has been in Butte, Mont., for his health, but returned about a month ago, thinking maybe he would get better here. Ever since his return heart trouble and dropsy has been working on him and was the cause of his death.

Lake Linden—The three smelters of the copper district have commenced to accumulate refined copper upon their docks in anticipation of the arrival of the first boats, although all-rail shipments east still continue. At South Lake Linden the Calumet & Hecla has all of 1300 tons already piled upon its docks ready for shipment, and at Dollar Bay the Tamarack-Osceola plant has about 600 tons, while the Quincy has just commenced piling metal upon its dock and now has in the neighborhood of 150 tons.

THE DAKOTAS.

An Unexpected Explosion Killed One and Injured Several.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—Charles Wood was killed Thusray, and Jack McCloud and Henry Bailey dangerously injured by an explosion of an old blast in one of the Hardin mines in Two Bit. A large piece of rock was blown clear through Wood's breast. One of the other men lost an eye and the other had a rock blown through his leg. Push Covington, working in the tunnel with the other men was slightly injured. A blast put in by night shift failed to go and the day shift accidentally struck it when drilling a new hole.

Charles J. Brann, the man of many aliases, who is wanted at Perry, Iowa, Chadron and other places for obtaining money under false pretenses, has been bound over to the next term of the grand jury under $500 bonds. He is in jail here and will be confined until the September term of court.

Sioux Falls—Adolph Miller, a prominent farmer in the western portion of this (Minnehaha) county, was probably fatally injured by the premature explosion of a blast. He was engaged in blasting rocks on his farm.

Vermillion—Word has been received here that Calvin G. Shaw, for many years postmaster of Vermillion, and subsequently county treasurer of Clay county, lost $5000 in the failure of the bank at Vancouver, Wash., whose president and cashier committed suicide several days ago. Shaw has been in the prune farming business in Washington since leaving here ten years ago and has accumulated much money.

S. W. Kidder, formerly postmaster here, but who recently sold his 600-acre farm four miles north of Vermillion to an Iowa mal for $21,000, will start soon for a trip of several months to Texas, Old Mexico and California. He expects to return to South Dakota and to continue to make this his future home.

A lively contest is going on over the oppointee for sheriff to succeed Sheriff Johnson, who died last Thursday. There are several candidates for the place and the selection will not be made without some hard feeling. The Populists have the majority on the board and will thus come into possession of one county office. The commissioners will meet Friday to make the appointment.

Judge Smith of this circuit has inflicted a fine of $200 or 100 days in jail upon Nick Anton, the representative of the Sioux Falls Brewing company, who was convicted at the late term of court for selling liquor at retail without license. The case will be appealed by the brewing company on the contention that their representative has the right to sell beer by the bottle under the liquor law of 1897.

Sisseton—Dr. McNutt left this city Monday after placing the greater portion of Roberts county under quarantine. The matter is now left entirely in the hands of the local board of health, and the state officials are not expected to visit this city again. The fact that Sisseton mail has been refused transmission is regarded by citizens as an outrage inasmuch as no such drastic measures have been resorted to in other cities in the state while under quarantine. There are now but eight cases of smallpox in this city, and with the precaution exercised there is absolutely no likelihood of a further spread of the disease. It is expected the quarantine will be raised in about two weeks. Meantime Sisseton is ostracised from the rest of the wrld.

Hill City—The upper class of society in this little mining camp has been given food for talk in the arrest of two women for fishing before the proper time, according to the state law. They were taken before a justice of the peace who fined each lady the minimum of the law, or $35. The fines were paid and the ladies were saved the necessity of going to jail. They assert that fishing will be unusually good this season, the creeks being full of large sized trout.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Prompt and cool-headed work of a traveling man saved the life of a passenger on a west-bound Northern Pacific train. The train stops ten minutes in Jamestown and, as usual, when it was ready to leave, several passengers had not finished their lunch. There was a wild rush, and one fellow slipped and fell between the platform and car. That he was not at once ground to pieces was due to his having grasped an iron rod. He was about to let go when a traveling man pulled him from the front of the wheels. The strange part of the affair is that the man held to his sandwich all through the ordeal and contentedly munched it as the train pulled out.

Mandan—A committee of three, consisting of ex-Judges Rose and Templeton and John D. Benton, of the State Bar association, is here inquiring into charges against State's Attorney H. G. Voss for disbarment. About twenty affidavits charging him with accepting money from blind piggers and gamblers have been filed. Political enemies are said to be at the bottom of the trouble, and Voss is confident of winning out.

ANOTHER BIG SHOW

South Carolina Interstate and West Indian Exposition.

Will Be Held In Charleston, Beginning Next December.

Handsome Series of Buildings Is Now Being Erected.

Charleston, S. C., April 26.—Good progress is being made in the construction of the handsome series of buildings of the South Carolina interstate and West Indian exposition, which will be held in Charleston from Dec. 1, 1901, to June 1, 1902.

The architect of the exposition is Bradford L. Gilbert, of New York city, who was chosen to fill this position because of his familiarity with exposition work, as well as the reputation which he has attained in New York and elsewhere as an architect, especially in the line of heavy constructive work.

The exposition grounds are beautifully adapted to the purpose for which they will be used, and are situated on the east bank of the Ashley river, about one and one-half miles from the business center of the city of Charleston. The grounds are divided into two main sections, one consisting of the old Washington race course property and the other of the Wagner farm. The architect has adopted the general plan of developing the race course on purely constructive lines, and of preserving, so far as possible, the natural beauties of the Wagner place. For this reason the two sections are known as the Natural park and the Art park.

In the latter will stand the great Court of Palaces, consisting of the cotton, commerce and agricultural palaces, connected by colonades and partly surrounding the sunken garden, with its lake. Avenues of palmettoes have already been planted in this park, and the flower beds fashioned. Pergolas, with sheltering vines and an old sun dial will also lend attractions to this part of the grounds. Here, too, will stand the auditorium, capable of seating 3500 people.

The Administration building stands just at the dividing line of the two parks, and opposite will be the Mining and Forestry buildings. The twenty-two acres set apart for the Midway attractions form part of the art tract also.

In the Natural park, which is already adorned with groves of century-old oaks and with a natural lake, will stand the Avenue of States and Cities, in which about twenty states have already signified their intention to be represented. Here, too, will be the Art building, and the building in which it is proposed to house the various government exhibits, which will be made in spite of the failure of congress to make the expected appropriation for this purpose.

The building devoted to the woman's department is an old colonial home which has stood on the grounds for many generations. This is a very good example of the pure colonial style. It will be enlarged on the same lines and three of its rooms devoted to a display of colonial relics, in which the state of South Carolina is very rich. This exhibit will be in the hands of the Colonial Dames.

The general style of architecture chosen for the exposition buildings is an adaptation of Spanish renaissance, with wide overhanging roofs and many columns and balconies; but most of the state as well as the woman's buildings will be of the pure colonial type, which is so familiar in Charleston, as in most of the older cities of the South.

The site for the Maryland building has already been chosen and the plans made and accepted. This building will also be colonial, but the color scheme will be very rich. It will stand on the shore of Lake Juanita, which is thirty acres in extent.

The administration building, which stands at the entrance of the grounds and is virtually finished, is of the most attractive design. The central dome of the building is 75 feet in height, and each of the two wings is flanked by towers of lesser height. Two pylons are connected with the main building by tiled arcades, and these will form the exits and entrances to the grounds. In the center a large porch projects into the grounds. Inside the central dome, three stories in height, a richly decorated colonade supports the overhanging gallery. This building contains convenient offices for the transaction of exposition business.

The mineral and forestry building will contain between 20,000 and 30,000 feet of floor space. This building will stand opposite the administration building. It will be circular in form with flanking towers. The Spanish renaissance and the Spanish mission type of architecture, as exemplified in Southern California and in Texas, will be combined in this building in the most effective way.

The palaces of agriculture and commerce will each contain about 40,000 square feet of floor area in addition to their connecting arcades, which contains about 20,000 square feet. Each of these buildings will have a central dome with corner towers, emphasizing the entrances to these as well as to the center pediments.

ORE BUYING.

Fair Business Done, Five Million Tons Having Been Sold.

Cleveland, April 26.—Ore buying has gone on to such an extent that some ores are now pretty well taken up. With all the uncertainties the United States Steel corporation has brought into the situation, tending to make more ore buyers cautious, there has been a fair amount of business done, and it is estimated that upwards of 5,600,000 tons has been sold, including Mesaba ores of the combine handled through two local offices. In addition to the Puyal output, the United States Steel corporation has reserved for itself the Genoa ore, but it has put on the market through local agents a limited amount of Mesaba Bessemer, principally from the Lake Superior group at Hibbing. Non-Bessemer Mesaba ores from truist properties have been sold also to some extent. With possibly one or two exceptions Mesaba Bessemer ores have been sold below $3. From the Eveleth district Elba, Corsica, Sparta and Malta ores have sold at $2.85. The Stevenson, with a guarantee of 65 per cent in iron and 8 per cent moisture has had a considerable sale at $2.75. Roberts has sold at $3 and Hale and Kanawha at $2.75. The Sauntry was mistakenly quoted last week at $2.75; the figure should have been $2.90. Among Bessemer association ores, in addition to the prices quoted last week, the following may be noted, figured from the new $4.25 base: Chandler, $4.62; Iron Belt, $3.99; Montreal, $4.63; Brotherton and Sunday Lake, $4.39; Cary Empire, $3.75; Granada, $4.03; Lawrence, $3.83; Princeton, $3.71; Hennepin, $4.19.

There is no prospect of an early opening of navigation, but there is plenty of ore on docks and furnacemen are not urgent. Last year ore boats brought down 300,000 tons in April. There will be no April ore this year. And if the ice were no obstacle, there is no counting on any early settlement of the engineer's strike. Announcements have come in the week of negotiations that may lead to a solution, but at this writing there is little chance of agreement. The United States Steel corporation's vessels managers have answered the union that they cannot grant its demands, but are willing to treat with their own engineers. Chartering has been done this week on behalf of the United States Steel corporation and other shippers, at 80, 70 and 60 cents from Duluth, Marquette and Escanaba, respectively, 10 cents lower than the figures which the independent vesselmen's pool has proposed to maintain. It is estimated that the tonnage taken amounts to about 2,000,000 tons.

Best Remedy For Rheumatism

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies, but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. George F. Parsons & Co., druggists of this place., to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

AT WEST DULUTH

It is stated on pretty good authority that the teachers in the city schools, even those of this part of the city, that live too far from their homes to go to them at the noon hour, are eating cold lunches now, the edict having gone out from Superintendent Denfeld's office that hereafter no teacher shall have in the school buildings an oil stove or an alcohol lamp to warm her lunch. The latter practice is said to have been in vogue until within the last few days, when the oil lamp used by one of the teachers of the Lincoln school exploded in the wardrobe, and a large quantity of feminine wearing apparel went up in the flames before the conflagration could be subdued. Some of the teachers had to borrow headgear to wear home that afternoon. The matter has been kept very quiet, but recently leaked out.

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT.

Harry Huntoon, who has a position at one of the mines at Eveleth as timekeeper, returned to West Duluth last night on a short business trip, going back to Eveleth today. Mr. Huntoon says that there is a little work going on at some of the mines, and about eight ore trains have been sent out, but matters are not being rushed, the ore boats not having begun to run. The people on the range are hoping that the engineers' strike will soon be settled, so that the mines will start up to their full capacity.

EVERYBODY COME

—TO THE—

Senate Club's First Annual Ball in Great Eastern Hall Tonight.

TICKETS 50 CENTS.

BACK FROM ALABAMA.

Frank Page, of Fruithurst, Ala., is in the city visiting the family of his daughter, Mrs. John Cashin, of West Duluth. Mr. Page says that the town from which he comes is a new one, only about six years old, but already in a prosperous condition. The country and climate are both all that could be desired, and it is, as its name would indicate, a great fruit country. Another West Duluthian is also located at Fruithurst, J. W. Phillips, who built and conducted the Phillips hotel in West Duluth for some time. Mr. Page expects to return to Alabama some time next fall.

CLEANING UP DAY.

"Cleaning up day" was religiously observed in West Duluth today, and the air was full of smoke from the many bonfires at which West Duluth citizens were burning the rubbish that has accumulated about their premises during the winter. The idea of a cleaning up day met with great favor here, and everybody seems to have entered into the spirit of the thing. Even the children were cleaning up the school grounds this morning, and the street commissioners were in evidence on the city highways. The allies back of the business places received a great renovating.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

This evening the Senate club will hold its first annual ball in the Great Eastern hall, and it is expected that the affair will be one of the finest social events of the season. The committee on arrangements, composed of E. G. Kreidler, O. S. Olsen and T. F. Olsen, have been very busy for some days completing the details of the party.

Lou Alger has taken a position with Wieland & Wade.

F. Blackmarr has made arrangements to open a bank in Proctorknott on May 1. Mr. Blackmarr has had considerable experience in the banking business in Michigan.

Jerry Daley, conductor, and P. Corrigan, engineer, have returned from Spokane, where they were employed for the winter on the Great Northern.

C. O. Mills, a fireman residing at Proctorknott, has returned from an extended visit in Florida.

The matter of purchasing a chemical engine for fire protection is being talked over in Proctorknott. It is understood that the railroad company and some of the business men are willing to contribute toward the purchase of an engine.

President C. W. Nitterauer of the West Duluth Republican club has called a special meeting of the club for Saturday night to listen to the report of the committee on the proposed banquet and to take action on the report.

A boy has been born to Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Merritt, of Oneota.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leidinger were pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening by about thirty of their friends, it being the tenth anniversary of their marriage. The evening was spent in dancing.

REVOLVERS

Claimed Attention of Court In the Eastman Case.

Cambridge, Mass., April 26.—After three days given up to what may be called "eye witness" testimony in the case of Charles R. Eastman, the Harvard instructor, who is charged with the murder of Richard H. Crogan, Jr., the government today directed attention to the revolvers which figured in the tragedy.

Karl A. Londin, Jr., an employe of the Clarke Lens factory, who knew both Eastman and Crogan, was the first witness today. He identified all the revolvers which have been submitted in connection with the case as those he had seen and handled on the Clarke estate.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Desires the Bond-Blaine Convention Ratified.

London, April 26.—Premier Bond of Newfoundland has requested the British government to secure the ratification of the Bond-Blaine convention, and Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, has notified Mr. Bond that he has taken the matter up and has communicated with Canada.

A representative of the Associated Press learns that the negotiations between Canada, Great Britain and Newfoundland are likely to come to a definite conclusion shortly after Mr. Bond's arrival here on the Tunisian, on which vessel he sails May 2.

DUE TO VIOLENCE.

Verdict of Coroner on Death of Smith.

London, April 26.—At the inquest today over the remains of "Billy" Smith, the American pugilist, who was fatally injured Monday night at the National sporting club by "Jack" Roberts in a boxing contest, a surgeon testified that the autopsy showed a laceration of the right side of the brain, that otherwise Smith's physical condition was perfect and that his death was due to violence. Nat Smith raised the question of his brother having been given something to drink at the end of the seventh round, which caused his collapse. The coroner reserved the point for decision Monday. The right name of deceased is Murray Livingston. He resided in Philadelphia.

DIED AT SEA.

Three Deaths on British Ship Dovenby Hall.

San Francisco, April 26.—The British ship Dovenby Hall, 114 days out from Liverpool, with general cargo, has arrived at this port. Three deaths occurred on the voyage, as follows:

JAMES BENNETT, seaman, native of England, died March 3, and was buried at sea.

BOTH ARE DEAD.

Chicago, April 26.—R. D. Houghteling, who shot Officer Messenger at the Harrison street police station Wednesday, died today from wounds inflicted by Messenger's fellow officers. Messenger died yesterday.

Police Discover Proper Treatment For Confirmed Vagrants.

Mention of Whipping Post Strikes Terror Within Them.

A Persistent Vag Is Quickly Reduced to Tears.

Annoyed by flashily dressed colored sports and scantily clad white idlers, the police this morning stumbled on to the solution of the vagrancy problem if there was only something in the state laws by which the new discovery of an old appliance could be put in effect.

Early this morning an officer arrested a giddy colored youth wearing a full dress suit, white spats, a red necktie and a cream colored raglan overcoat. The colored man wanted to know why he was being arrested, and was told it was because he had no visible means of support. He then desired to know what was going to happen to him. The officer said he thought the whipping post would be about the proper punishment. With the words, "whipping post," the dazzling colored man made one wild spring for liberty. When last heard from he was passing down Garfield avenue dodging back and forth behind a street car out for a record, and pleading with the conductor to have the motorman either speed up or get out of the way. He had an important engagement in Superior.

When this was reported at police headquarters, several of the headquarters' force thought they would try the "whipping post" joke on a white vagrant they had locked up. He puts in his time living off the authorities in Duluth and Superior, and the local officers have tried to drive him out of town in every possible manner but he refuses to leave.

One of the officers secured a long black whip and went back to the jail with it. He ordered the vagrant to prepare himself for a thrashing. The vag got down on his knees and begged to be allowed one more chance to leave town. He cried like a child, though he was a big, husky man of 28. The officer had no intention of using the whip, but it had the desired effect, the vag entered into a solemn agreement to leave Duluth forever at the first opportunity.

ORDAINED.

Two Young Men Elevated to Episcopal Priesthood.

Yesterday, at St. Paul's Episcopal chirch, two young men were ordained to the priesthood by Rt. Rev. James D. Morrison, bishop of Duluth. They were Rev. R. C. Fugard, who has been stationed at Tower, and Rev. K. S. Tottenman, who has been in charge of the Swedish Episcopal church at the West End.

The ordination sermon was delivered by Rev. E. C. Johnson, of Lakeside. He took for his text Tim. iv, 16: "Take heed unto thyself and unto the doctrine; continue in them; for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee." The following clergymen were present and assisted in the laying on of hands: Archdeacon Appleby, Rev. L. I. Belden, of Virginia; Rev. Palin Saxby, of West Superior; Rev. J. V. Alfvegren, of St. Paul, and Rev. E. C. Johnson and Dr. A. W. Ryan, of Duluth.

Back to Watertown.

At the First Christian church tonight at 8 o'clock a farewell reception will be tendered Rev. M. B. Ainsworth to which all friends and acquaintances are invited. Mr. Ainsworth, who has been pastor of the Christian church for the past year will go to Watertown, S. D., where he was minister prior to coming to Duluth.

THE CANAL.

The British Will Claim Neutrality as Sine Qua Non.

London, April 26.—No definite decision has yet been reached by the foreign offices here regarding the probable attitude of the United States Senate towards the projected Nicaragua canal treaty. The negotiations proceeding on the subject of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in this connection are understood to be based on the sine qua non of neutrality of the canal. If this can be definitely assured, it now seems likely Great Britain will agree to abrogate the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, though there is still the possibility of an endeavor on the part of Great Britain to simultaneously bring up the Alaskan boundary matter. This last contingency is officially described as being merely a question of policy not very likely to be pursued if the United States is content to make the canal neutral.

TO RETAIN LABORERS

Planters Oppose Emigration From Island of Porto Rico.

But Small Proportion of Those Booked For Hawaii Went.

Ill Treatment at Ecuador Stops Movement to That Place.

San Juan, Porto Rico, April 26.—It is not likely that more emigration agents will come here. Those already here had 2000 natives recruited for Hawaii and expected to ship 1000 of them on the steamer California Wednesday, but she sailed with only 544 emigrants. The agents announce that this is due to the opposition of the planters, who wish to retain the laborers available until harvesting begins, and that therefore any further attempts on a large scale to promote emigration will be useless.

The emigration to Ecuador has been put an end to, on account of the widespread publication here of an official report of the Jamaican authorities regarding the ill treatment of Jamaican laborers in Ecuador.

Secretary Hunt says the alcades and other officials in the interior towns acknowledge that the times are much better than a year ago and htat the pissimists are gradually changing their opinion. The recent appropriation bill for road work will provide employment for hundreds of people and open up a wonderfully rich coffee country which at present it is difficult to reach.

Mr. Hunt says there is no doubt that the entire opposition to Governor Allen proceeds from the disappointed party which did not vote in the elections in 1900 and which is now so anti-American that its chief prohibits his followers to accept government appointments. Yet the richest planters and merchants in the island are enrolled in this party. Level headed people see progress in the near future. The Federals do not like to see the school houses springing up. They are rich and do not worry about the education of their own children, but it annoys them to see the poorer classes being educated to their intellectual level.

FELL THROUGH.

A Scheme to Seize Chinese Empress.

Paris, April 26.—The Gaulois affirms that Gen. Bailloud and Col. Marchand, some time ago, contemplated an attempt to seize the Chinese empress and court. Gen. Bailloud approached Col. Marchand and asked him if he would undertake a certain enterprise which would very probably hasten the end of hostilities. The colonel replied that he was willing, and Gen. Bailloud and Marchand drew up a plan, the execution of which was venturesome but feasible. The diplomats, however, opposed the scheme and it fell through.

LESS DRAUGHT.

The Shamrock II Draws But Nineteen Feet.

Glasgow, April 26.—A measurement of the Shamrock II at her dock shows she draws exactly 19 feet. The draught of the Shamrock I is 20 feet 4 inches and that of the Valkyrie III 19 feet 6 inches.

"BAILEY" A SUCCESS.

Washington, April 26.—Rear Admiral Evans of the naval board of inspection telegraphed the navy department today from New London, Conn., in regard to the trial of the torpedo boat Bailey as follows: "Bailey splendid success. Best speed 31 knots. Average for two hours, 30:2."

NO DECISION REACHED.

Chicago, April 26.—No decision was reached at today's conference between Illinois Central officials and the committee of the National Association of Machinists, which yesterday presented their demands to the company's superintendent of machinery, William Renshaw. The conference lasted several hours, and an adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

FRENCH ARE GAY.

Victoria, B. C., April 26.—H. M. S. Icarus returned last evening from a cruise through the South seas, during which she visited all the American and British islands. Her officers say that there was much talk at Tahiti over the action of officers of the French cruiser Protet, who carried off a number of native girls and took them on a trip on the vessel.

CREW IS MISSING.

Philadelphia, April 26.—The three-masted schooner Emma C. Knowles, Capt. Rogers from Charleston, S. C., for Fall River which was discovered capsized yesterday off Atlantic City, passed Hereford life saving station at 9 o'clock this morning in tow of an unknown tug, heading for the Delaware breakwater. No tidings of the crew have as yet been received.

SHAH IN BAD SHAPE.

Berlin, April 26.—The Cologne Gazette's St. Petersburg correspondent telegrapha that the condition of the shah of Persia is becoming worse. His liver and kidney affections and difficulty of respiration are assuming more acute forms. The correspondent also says considerable excitement exists among the population of Teheran because of the heavy taxes recently imposed upon meat and other foodstuffs.

FRANCIS D. BEARD DEAD.

New York, April 26.—Francis D. Beard, the millionaire horse owner, died early today at his home at Lakewood, N. J., as the result of an operation for appendicitis Sunday night.

Ladies!

This is very important to you.

Our New York house sent us this morning, and will be shown tomorrow—

30--Extreme Novelty Suits--30

with instructions to sell them at a slight advance on the actual cost of making. There is only one suit of a kind and in our opinion are the swellest ready made gowns we have ever seen. They are really beautifully finished, are made from fine imported Broadcloth, Venetians, Cheviots—black, blue, red, grays and tans, only one of a kind, Princess, Etons and Vest effects, some silk lined, others lined with nearsilk; tailored by our own skilled workmen; designed by our most expert and original designer in New York.

We are extremely anxious that you see these gowns, whether you wish to buy or not, as they will give you some conception of the elegance of the gowns we make and carry.

PIERCE CASE.

Motion For New Trial to Come Up Tuesday.

The expected motion for a new trial in the case of Dr. Thomas J. Pierce, who was convicted of abortion at the present term of court, has been made, and it will be argued next Tuesday at the latest, and, perhaps, before that. The ground for the motion is that errors of law occurred at the trial, that the verdict was not justified by the evidence and that the defense has newly discovered evidence that could not have been known at the time of the trial.

It is said that the state will be in rather a hard boat in case the motion for a new trial is granted. The reason for this is that the complaining witness has disappeared. The least heard of her she was living at the poor farm, and until recently it was supposed that she was still there.

A recent search, it is said, has failed to reveal her presence. Her trunk is still at the poor farm, but so far as the authorities have been able to learn nothing is known of her present location.

The cases against Robert H. Harris, accused of grand larceny in the first degree, will be among the most important to come up at the coming term of court. When the indictments were returned at the last term it will be remembered that Mr. Harris was ill in the hospital. He was carried over to be arraigned and to enter pleas of not guilty to the indictments, but he had to be carried back again.

He did not furnish bail immediately, but was kept under the direction of the sheriff for a time. Since then, however, he has furnished bail and he has left the hospital and is at liberty. His bonds were fixed at $1500 in one case and $800 in the other, and they were furnished by W. A. Wagner, S. H. Rothermel, Henry Folz, J. J. Haley and James Boyle.

MAY KNOCK IT

Opposition Likely to Prevent Building of Vaudeville Theater.

The fact that certain members of the council have shown a disposition unfriendly to the proposed new vaudeville theater is likely to knock Duluth out of a good, popular-price amusement house. It was learned today that a reliable Milwaukee concern had about decided to put up a first-class theater on West Superior street next to the Spalding hotel, but since the aldermen seem to be against the proposition, negotiations are at a standstill. The Duluth man interested in the proposed theater has spent several years in urging the Milwaukee people to go into the project. They have backed vaudeville houses in larger cities, and at first refused to go into the Duluth vaudeville house, believing that the city was too small to support two theaters.

This spring, however, the Duluthian brought considerable pressure to bear, and negotiations for the house were under way when the news leaked out and the aldermen expressed opposition to it.

It is generally understood that the council's opposition comes direct from persons owning property in that vicinity. Alderman Neff, who has given notice that he will call up a resolution Monday night, by which the council shall refuse the new theater a license if built east of Fifth avenue west, talked over the matter the other day and said that there was no objection to the theater coming here, but he did not think a vaudeville house modeled on the same lines as the Dewey in Minneapolis would look well next to the Spalding hotel.

DIES IN MANILLA

Felix McCue of Duluth Has Succumbed to Disease.

Has Been in the Cavalry For Nearly Two Years.

Parents Old Residents and He Was Well Known.

Word was received yesterday that another Duluth boy had given up his life to the cause of his country in the Philippines. He did not die fighting, but he died a harder death still, that of a wasting illness after a long stay in the hospitals at Manilla.

The boy is Felix Greeley McCue, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCue, of 816 East Third street. He was born in Duluth, in the same home that was stricken yesterday with the news of his death, where his father, mother, two brothers and a sister live. He was born Aug. 1, 1875, and was, therefore, a little less than 26 years of age. His father is a pioneer, having come here in 1869.

Felix McCue enlisted in the regular army for the war in the Philippines May 15, 1899, and he has been in the archipelago ever since. He was assigned to Troop F, of the Third United States cavalry, in which command he still was at the time of his death.

He had been ill practically ever since last August, when the fever took him, and most of his time since then has been spent in the hospitals there. When death came he had been for two weeks in Santa Mesa hospital, Manilla. The young man was well known in Duluth, his home from the day of his birth, and the news of his death will cause profound regret among his friends. His parents will try to have the remains brought home for burial here.

STATE TO PAY

Liable For Claims For Bringing Requisitioned Prisoners Back.

A telegram from St. Paul in The Herald last night stated that Attorney General Douglas had decided that the state has to bear the expense of bringing requisitioned prisoners back to the county where they have to be tried. It also quotes the attorney general as saying that for years the counties have been paying those expenses without knowing that the charge falls on the state.

St. Louis county will have to be excepted from that statement, for it has not been paying these charges. In the recent case of James A. Taylor, the bigamist who was brought back from Seattle, the bills were not paid by the county, but were sent to the state. They have not been paid by the state, however, as the fund out of which the money has to come is not more than enough to pay claims already in. It is a proper charge against the state, however, and the state will have to pay it ultimately. There is no disposition on the part of the county authorities to let Sheriff Sargent go unpaid for this work, however, and it is probable that the county will pay the bills and then put in a claim to the state for the money.

In many counties, however, and perhaps in the past in this county, such bills have been paid without any thought that the state had anything to do with it, whereas the statutes directly require the state to pay the expense.

Assigns His Interest.

The Northern Ore company has acquired from John T. Jones his right to a mining contract with Louis W. Hill, on the ne¼ of the nw¼, the s½ of the nw¼ of the sw¼ of section 20, 58-19. The property is a mineral lease from the state, which was issued in 1892 to the Itasca Iron Mining company, assigned to C. T. Clement, by Clement, to John T. Jones, and by Jones to Louis W. Hill. The latter made a contract with Jones, by which he was to explore the property and pay $30,000 for a lease, and Jones has assigned his interest in this contract to the Northern Ore company. The papers were filed yesterday afternoon in the office of the register of deeds.

BLOCKADE BROKEN.

Ice at Foot of Lake Huron Cleared.

Port Huron, Mich., April 26.—An ice blockade at the foot of Lake Huron, which has been holding back navigation for a week, was broken by the combined efforts of the steamers City of Berlin, Hadley and Fedora, releasing about twenty vessels. A number of the craft had been in dangerous positions and as the Berlin broke through the ice into clear water, she was saluted with a chorus of whistles from all the imprisoned boats.

THE MARKET.

Cherries Make Their Appearance, as Do Green Peas.

Cherries are ripe.

That is, they are partly ripe—a few of them, at least—and a few stragglers have appeared on the local markets. They are only the advanceguard of the main army, however, which will be along in a short time. Then cherry pie will be in order, and if there is anything more gorgeous than beautifully tart cherry pies, with crisp flaky crust, it has never found its way into the dictionary. But just at present the few cherries on the market will have to be accepted as a promise of things to come, for there are hardly enough of them to make a respectable cherry pie.

Green peas are the latest delicacy in green stuffs on the market. There have been some occasionally from time to time, but they only began to arrive in good quantities within a few days. They cost $2.50 per bushel box. Strawberries are cheaper, and there is no reason why they should not grace the tables of the lowly with their luscious beauty and tickle the stomach of the laboringman with their acids.

The celery that is on the market now is the Florida variety, and it is rather more expensive than the sorts that have been for sale before, which went for 80 cents to $1. The price is now $1 to $1.25.

Cranberries are growing cheaper as the turkey season passes into the mists of memory. Instead of $2.50 to $2.75 per box, they are now $2.35 to $2.40.

Poultry is all live stock now, and while there is no surplus of stock and the supply is rather low, prices are lower than ordinary for this season of the year.

CITY BRIEFS.

Tibbetts, undertaker, 31 East Sup. St.

The best cigar made in Duluth is the Tom Reed. Ask for it.

The grand opening of the Palmer house bar, at 110 West First street, will take place Saturday evening.

Engle & Hawkinson were the lowest bidders on the sanitary sewer contract on Gladstone street, Lakeside. The bid was $592.92.

Ladies' Home Journal for May now on sale at Lundberg & Stone's, 223 West Superior street.

The work of building the superstructure of the north canal pier was begun yesterday by Contractor Stone, the first of the monolithic blocks being built. The weather at the present time is excellent for the work and it will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Charles Hoffman, the young West End boy, who gained some police court notoriety some time ago by throwing eggs at a passenger train, was arrested this morning for stealing metal from a Northern Pacific car at the Garfield avenue yards. He was taken up in police court late this afternoon.

Thomas Moynahan, aged 47, died at St. Mary's hospital this morning. The funeral services will probably be held on Sunday afternoon from the cathedral.

William Faubister, of West Duluth, was arrested this morning for using profane language. Several weeks ago he and another West Duluthian became very disorderly on a street car out near Thirtieth avenue west and they were put off the car by several passengers who went to the conductor's assistance. The hearing will take place on Tuesday morning.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Moore, of 829 East Third street.

Ward Ames will give an illustrated lecture at the Pilgrim Congregational church this evening on China and Japan. Mr. Ames has a fine collection of colored slides showing interesting sights that he saw when on his trip a few year ago, and these will be thrown on a screen by G. S. Richards' dissolving view stereopticon machine.

Two wills of outside parties owning real estate in this county were filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. Joseph Tuckerman, of Newport, R. I., left a large amount of money and makes some large legacies. For instance he leaves $50,000 to one servant, $5000 to the servant's wife, and $5000 to their children. The will of Margaret Sprague Pillsbury, of Minneapolis, was also filed.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Napoleon Proux and Mary Lessard, and to William F. Siewert and Kitty Hall.

P. R. McDonnell, of this city, and James Kennedy, of North Dakota, who have just closed a contract with the Northern Pacific Railway company for the construction of a 30-mile extension northwest from Auburn, N. D., will begin with it immediately and the new line is to be finished by the first of August. Mr. McDonnell will begin Monday to ship teams, men and supplies from this point to a point north of Jamestown. A large force is to be put on the work.

Work on the McKay hotel on Fifth avenue west and First street was begun today. John Grandy is the contractor.

TIMBER BUYERS COMING.

Several Said to Be on the Way.

There have been few, if any reports of lumber sales this week, but it is understood that there are several Eastern buyers already on the way to the head of the lake with the view of making purchases. A feature that is entirely new in the local situation, this week, has been the inquiry sent a prominent lumber shipper here for a quantity of No. 4 and No. 5 boards to be shipped West by rail. So far as known there has never been an inquiry before in this direction and the filling of such order would be attended with difficulty in the matter of getting lumber loaded at the present time. The lumber in stock of this grade is piled on the docks here and would have to be loaded on cars from tram cars run out to the lumber piles. As the mills are now running, the tram cars are in demand to take care of the new lumber.

TRAVELERS.

Annual State Convention at Waukesha, Wis.

Waukesha, Wis., April 26.—The annual state convention of the Travelers' Protective association opened today at G. A. R. hall, and it is expected that 100 delegates will be here by tonight.

There will be a spirited contest for the presidency at the election tomorrow morning. The leading candidates for the office are said to be Bernard Brachman, of Milwaukee, and M. E. Gibbs, of Green Bay.

A musicale and banquet are the features this evening. Racine and Milwaukee are foremost in the contest for next meeting place.

THE GIANT'S BATHS.

"About his baths?" said the old circus man to the New York Sun. "Oh, dear me, that was as simple and easy as could be.

"In the house that I told you about, that the old man had built especially for the giant, at our winter quarters, we had a bathtub built in the basement. This tub being in shape and proportions not unlike a long section of very large sluice box, but of course very much larger. This bathtub was supplied with water from a beautiful clear stream of considerable size that ran close by one corner of the house. The only trouble about the bathtub at all was to put it at the right level, and of course that was the work of a civil engineer. We sent to the neighboring town and got out an engineer, and he ran the levels for the bathtub, and then we went ahead and built it.

"We connected it with the stream outside by a pipe of suitable dimensions with a cut-off gate at the intake, this gate being adequately weighted to carry it down into place again after it had been raised. It was lifted by means of a rope running up over sheive wheels to a point inside the house by the bathtub. When the giant wanted to take a bath he simply pulled the rope and lifted the water gate, with the result practically of diverting the stream from its natural bed to a course through the giant's bathtub. But it was quite a stream and the water supply was almost always ample.

"When the giant had finished his bath he would open a gate at the foot of the tub, which was built as any tub would be, with a slight incline, and the water ran out into into a ditch that we had dug for it outside and by this back into the channel of the stream below.

"On the road it was almost as easy. If the road was near a canal the giant would go, before people were up in the morning, and take a bath in the lock. We used to arrange with the lock keeper to fill the lock same as he would let a boat through, and the giant would take his bath, and then they'd just open the lower gate in the usual way and so empty the big bathtub.

Sometimes we found suitable rivers, or streams large enough for him to bathe in, and if everything else failed the giant could always get a shower bath, anyway.

"He and the balloon-ascension man were great friends, and the balloon man was always ready to oblige the giant in this way. He'd get feed buckets of water in the car, and then his helpers would let the balloon up high enough above the ground for that, and then the giant would come under, and so fast as he was ready for them the balloon man would pour down these buckets of water on him.

"Oh, my, if we never'd had any more trouble about anything else than we did about his bath we'd have got along easy enough."

FORGOT HER FARE.

A young woman got aboard a West Broad street car a few days ago and discovered to her humiliation that her fare was missing when the conductor called, says the Columbus Democrat. In a gruff manner the custodian of the car said he'd have to get the fare at once or the woman would have to walk. This declaration added to her embarrassment. The car was crowded. On her right sat a genial Irishman, and on her left a well-known bookkeeper. The bookkeeper and Irishman exchanged several meaning glances. The conductor was about to pull the bell-rope. The bookkeeper said he'd pay her fare as the young woman looked perfectly honest. The conductor repeated that he'd put the woman off. This aroused the Irishman, who said: "If you put the woman off your funeral'll be tomorrow." Seeing a slight nervousness on the part of the conductor he continued:

"How many people on this car want to attend the funeral of this conductor?" Several answered in the affirmative. The conductor grew excited and in the altercation that followed walked to the platform without securing the woman's fare.

IT'S THE ONLY WAY.

The bell in the private office rang three times and the man at the desk hastily reached for a flannel bandage, which he put around his neck, says the Chicago Post. Then he arranged a sling in which he put one arm, mussed up his hair, drew up the corners of his mouth, got out of his chair and painfully limped toward the door.

"Mr. Smithkins?" inquired the well-dressed man who opened it just at that moment.

The man with the bandage gave a half-suppressed groan and answered: "Yes, that's my name. What can I do for you?"

"You seem to be suffering," suggested the caller.

"Suffering!" returned the other. "Do you think I am doing this for fun? Do you suppose I bandage my throat for amusement, tie up my arm for sport and limp because I think it's graceful? And I've been this way for six months. But what can I do for you?"

"Pardon me," said the caller, backing out. "I'll call again some other time."

"It's some trouble," soliloquized the man with the bandage as he removed the harness and returned to his desk. "but experience has taught me that it is really the quickest way to discourage a life insurance agent and keep him discouraged. That fellow never will come back."

INSURING QUEEN'S LIFE.

How Monarchs Become the Speculation of Subjects.

The queen's life was insured by her subjects for about £400,000. This statement was made to a London Express representative by an insurance official in London, whose authority is indisputable. The particular company of which he is the head must pay out £9000 among a number of people who held policies on her majesty's life. An utterly erroneous statement has been in circulation estimating the total insurance of the queen's life at £10,000,000. The absurdity of this will appear at a glance. There are about seventy offices in this country where her majesty's life might be insured. None of these companies permit any one life to be insured, by any number of people, for an aggregate exceeding £10,000. Besides, in a number of these companies £2000 is the maximum, so that, striking an average, you have £000 as the amount of the insurance on the queen's life in each company, and multiplied by the seventy offices the total comes out, as above stated, at about £400,000.

It is a curious fact that a monarch may thus become the object of the providential speculation of his or her subjects. The life of the king, as prince of Wales, is also widely insured, and will certainly be more so hereafter as Edward VII. Obviously, of course, people are not at liberty to insure a monarch's life merely at will. It must be shown that they have what is technically called an "insurable interest in the queen's or king's life." A vast variety of claims may be advanced on this understanding, and it is not usual for insurance companies to be exacting in their demand for proof of "interest." Managers of theaters and great public entertainments have almost invariably insured the queen's life, in view of the effect of her death upon their business, involving diminished audiences for an indefinite period and closed doors on certain dates. Similarly great drapery warehouses in London safeguarded themselves by insurance against the certainty of the queen's death causing a sudden interruption of the ruling fashions.

It is also not uncommon for people to insure the lives of members of the royal family, though the statement that the life of the German emperor is largely insured in England is rather incredible, in view of the kaiser being the head of the German army—a fact which would raise the premium to a prohibitive rate. For example, Prince Arthur's life was very generally insured when he was yet a boy, but upon his joining the army and going out to Egypt as the duke of Connaught, the premiums almost doubled with the additional risk of war. Hence a preference exists for insuring the lives of female members of the royal family, whose natural chance of reaching a ripe old age has the effect of keeping the premiums at or even under the normal rate. In the west of England—and absolutely nowhere else—leases were commonly taken "for the period of the queen's life," instead of for a stated number of years, as in other parts of the country. The custom gave rise to the practice of leaseholders insuring the queen's life lest by her sudden demise they should suffer heavily through the expiry of their leases. How the custom originated nobody seems to know. It may astonish people to learn that while so many of her subjects manifested this pecuniary interest in the late queen's life, her majesty never insured herself for any sum, great or small.

JOKE WAS ON TARSNEY.

Ex-Congressman Tarsney, of Kansas City, who was appointed to a federal judgeship in the Indian territory by President Cleveland, was once in the midst of a political campaign in the state of New York, whither he had gone in the service of his party, and was announced to speak there in a country town, says the St. Louis Republic. The chairman of the meeting, a local celebrity, was properly minded to give the gentleman from Missouri a handsome reception. "Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "we have with us tonight one of the greatest statesmen of the great west, an orator famed throughout Mississippi valley. A gentleman whose name is to his constituency a household word. Permit me to introduce you to Mr.—Mr.——"

Here the flow of his eloquence was checked, and, leaning toward the orator of the evening, he whispered:

"What did you say your name was?"

"Tarsney, of Missouri," whispered the orator.

"Fellow-citizens," resumed the chairman, "it is my proud pleasure to introduce to you Mr. Larceny, of Missouri."

SULTAN'S BAGPIPES.

It would appear that the sultan of Morocco has become deeply fascinated with Highland music. His love for the bagpipes, for Scotch music, and for the tartan is simply unique for one who is not a native of Scotland. Ten years ago a piper became one of the institutions at his court, and very recently he commissioned a well-known Glasgow pipemaker to furnish him with a set of bagpipes for his own use. Possibly this set of pipes now furnished is the most ornate and costly that has ever been made in Scotland. They are mounted with 18-carat gold, and cost £300. The credit of introducing both the bagpipes and the Highland dress to the notice of the sultan is, no doubt, largely to the influence of Kaid Maclean, one of the chief officers of the court of his majesty.

MILLIONS TO QUEEN.

Included in the vast fortune left by the late Queen Victoria was a legacy amounting to about $2,500,000 which was willed to her by John Camden Neild, an eccentric old gentleman of Buckinghamshire, almost half a century ago. The vast estate must have increased in value to more than $5,000,000 by the time of here death, says the New York World.

This is perhaps the most remarkable instance on record of a great fortune being conferred on a queen by a man whom she had probably never seen nor spoken to, and the man who gave it was every whit as remarkable.

Neild was a man of education, though he had many eccentricities. It is said that he would always superintend any work that was being done for him, no matter how much inconvenience it put him to, to make sure the workmen did not cheat him by their idleness.

He refused to have his clothes brushed because, he said, it destroyed the nap.

When Neild came into possession of his father's fortune he developed symptoms of miserliness, though from time to time he performed acts of charity.

In 1852, at Neild's death, it was found by his will that, with the exception of a few legacies, his whole fortune—a vast one in those days—had been left to the queen for her sole use.

It is possible that there was some romance in Neild's early life because of which he had never married; in his later years he must have been deeply impressed by the beauty of the young and lovely queen, whose pictures he had seen everywhere, and who was only about 30 years of age when he died.

When the queen was notified that this fortune had been left to her she was reluctant about accepting the money. She made careful inquiry to ascertain if Neild had left any relatives, and upon finding that he had none, accepted the bequest. She increased the legacies of the executors by £1000. She also conferred an annuity upon Mrs. Neale, a tenant of Neild, who had saved his life when he attempted to commit suicide in 1828.

Another thing she did in her memory was to rebuild the chancel of North Marston church. He was the patron of the parish, and having once been asked to repair the roof of the chancel, he did it by filling up the fissures with strips of painted calico, saying that they would last his time. This job Queen Victoria had done properly, and she otherwise beautified the structure.

The records of the church bears the inscription: "This records and the stained glass window above it were erected by Her Majesty Victoria in the eighteenth year of her reign in memory of John Camden Neild, Esq., of the parish, who died Aug. 30, 1852, aged 72.

Sensational Breach of Promise Suit at Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, April 26.—Society circles were surprised at the filing of a damage suit for $25,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry against King McCreery, a well-known wealthy Toledoan. The fair plaintiff is Miss Alice M. Cole, a very popular young lady of this city.

The plaintiff alleged that on Oct. 20 last the defendant asked her to become his wife, and after mature deliberation she accepted and received his promise to marry. Both were unmarried at the time.

Miss Cole alleges that she has suffered great distress of mind, as well as mortification, physical anguish and nervous prostration as a result of the defendant's conduct toward her. She says that her health has been permanently impaired, that she is unfitted to enjoy life, and all on account of the nervous shock produced by the defendant's alleged duplicity. She alleges that her former friends and associates do not regard her with the same depth and warmth which they did prior to the defendant's marriage to his present wife.

The defendant is wealthy. Both parties belong to the best of families here.

Miss Cole was formerly a resident of Springfield, Ohio. The main evidence in the case will consist of several hundred love letters written during the past six years by McCreery to Miss Cole, which are now in the possession of her attorney.

A GIRL PLUNGER.

By Buying St. Paul She Made a Fortune.

Philadelphia, April 26.—"Buy St. Paul" was the tip passed out by Bertha Patchell on April 16, when she bought 100 St. Paul. She bought 100 more on the first half point rise, and on every rise since she has put up her good money and always bought St. Paul. Her first buy went on the sheet at 153¾, but the second at 153⅞ net. She bought again at 154¼ and again at 155⅝. Day in and out Miss Patchell bought St. Paul, her pyramid of shares mounted higher and higher, and her holdings multiplied until she had $10,000 of cold cash in the hands of her broker over and above her first $1000.

From 155 St. Paul passed to 156, to 157, to 158, and on every rise Miss Patchell put up more money and bought more St. Paul. When the shares touched 160 her friends counseled her to close out her account and take her profits. Professional tipsters were advising clients everywhere to sell St. Paul, but Miss Patchell said "Buy, buy." The ticker reported the never-ending boom in St. Paul, and five points more went to Miss Patchell's account. The crowd said, "Sell," but the girl said "Buy, buy."

The board boys marked up 166, 166½, 167, 167⅝, 168½, 169, 170, and again they said: "Sell," but the girl would have none of their advice.

"It's good for another dollar," said the girl, and at 171 she closed her stock and cashed $37,500 in clear profits. She denies having had a tip, and says, "I figured out this proposition for myself."

A FATAL HEMORRHAGE.

Journey to His Dying Child Caused Death.

Denver, Col., April 26.—While hurrying East to his dying child, Dr. Roy Ingliss, of Denver, was taken with a hemorrhage, from which he died. Dr. Ingliss was a special inspector of the state board of health. He came to Colorado on account of lung trouble about a year ago, leaving his wife and two children with her parents at his old home in Jersey City.

Last Saturday night Dr. Ingliss received word that one of his children was dying with pneumonia. He hastily got ready and took the first train East. At Ottumwa, Iowa, he left the train to take a lunch, but the oppressive air and the exertion of the journey affected him greatly and he became ill. A doctor told him if he proceeded further East it would mean death.

He accordingly boarded the next train West, but was taken with a hemorrhage just before reaching Colorado and died the next morning.

JESUS APPEARS TO APOSTLES

International Sunday School Lesson For April 28, 1901.

John 20:19-29: "When therefore it was evening, on that day, the first day of the week, and when the doors were shut where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. And when he had said this, he showed unto them his hands and his side. The disciples therefore were glad when they saw the Lord. Jesus therefore said to them again, Peace be unto you: as the Father hath sent me, even so send I you. And when he had said this, he breathed on them and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost: whosesoever sins ye forgive, they are forgiven unto them; whosesoever sins ye retain, they are retained.

"But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the prints of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into his side, I will not believe.

"And after eight days, again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Jesus cometh, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst and said, Peace be unto you. Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and see my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and put it into my side; and be not faithless, but believing. Thomas answered and said unto him, My lord and my God. Jesus saith unto him, Because thou has seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed."

Golden text: "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." John 20:29.

PEACE BE WITH YOU.

Cleopas and his companion lost no time, after they recognized Jesus, in returning to Jerusalem to relate to the disciples all the things they had seen and heard. On arriving, they found the eleven disciples gathered together earnestly discussing the strange news they had heard. Cleopas was in breathless haste to tell what was on his mind, but the eleven did not give him an opportunity until they had first eagerly related the fact that "The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon." Then Cleopas astonished them with an account of what he and his companion had learned. What was thus told to the disciples threw a flood of light on the things they had just been discussing, for it was Jesus' own commentary on the facts of his death and resurrection.

The city was full of rumors about the empty tomb, and there was some talk of violence against the disciples of Jesus. So they gathered together in a room to discuss plans for their common safety and to talk over the things of Jesus. All the doors were shut to prevent them from being surprised by their enemies. The time was far into the evening, for it must have taken until a late hour for the two disciples to return from Emmaus after supper.

Notwithstanding the reported appearances to Mary and Peter and to Cleopas and to his companion, there was grave doubt in the minds of these disciples as to whether there was anything in the strange testimony they had heard. It ought to be kept clearly in mind that these disciples all showed a positive aversion to accepting the report of a resurrection. That they were finally persuaded, notwithstanding this fact, ought to be conclusive proof that the evidence presented to them was irresistible. That evidence came in many unmistakable ways.

In the midst of their reasonings about the matter, they were suddenly awe-stricken by the veritable appearance of Jesus himself in their midst. How had he arrived? The doors had not been opened. They were fastened. There had been no earthquake or other terrifying circumstance. Eleven men had been sitting quietly discussing a serious matter and listening to the repeated testimony of Peter about what he had seen. There in the midst stood him about whose condition they were holding their conference. Was it really he? He had appeared to them, as he had previously left the two men at Emmaus, without apparent explanation, and had overcome the obstacle of closed doors in some way not common to physical bodies. But he showed them his hands and his feet that they might see the nail marks. He bade them handle him and see that he was flesh and bone. He gave them such tangible proofs of his reality and identity that they could not possibly say thereafter that they had been dreaming. He even asked for a fish and ate it. It was he, and not one of those present ever thereafter doubted it.

At his appearance they were all filled with terror, that sort of terror which many feel in anticipating the judgment day when they must stand in the immediate presence of God, who is a spirit. But he said, "Peace be unto you." The sound of that voice, speaking his customary salutation, reassured them, and they were glad at His coming. He immediately rebuked them for their doubts, unbelief and hardness of heart because they had not believed the reports of those who had seen Him since His resurrection. But He said once more, "Peace be unto you." From the lips of most persons these words would have no more meaning than the ordinary "good day!" of our common parlance. The believer in Christ thinks of them, however, as gaining a richness from His utterance of them.

During His ministry Jesus spoke a great deal about peace, rest and joy as things which He could offer to man. He said, "Come unto me and I will give you rest;" "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth, give I unto you." Each student of this lesson should read anew Henry Drummond's "Pax Vobiscum," and learn the true secret of obtaining the blessing of Christian peace, which comes not accidentally as a chance gift, but in pursuance of trusting Christ and doing His will. It is part of the fruit which will grow as a product of consistent, steady christian living.

TYPE OF THE APOSTLESHIP.

Jesus exalted the ministry to which he sent the apostles and early disciples. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the work that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto the Father." "As the Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." The emphasis which Jesus always laid on the fact that His ministry was of the Father in heaven adds greatly to the significance of this latter passage. The authority which He had received included not merely that of preaching and healing, but also that of authorizing others to continue to carry on this work. For Him to confer such authority and power was the same as if the Father had done it. He had given this authority to those who had gone out under His personal supervision during His own ministry; but on the occasion of this appearance He conferred it as a duty to be done after He had been taken away. The Christian's duty is not fulfilled by merely obeying Christ while in the sanctuary of His presence, but Christ must be carried everywhere in the sanctuary of the heart; and, wherever the believer is, there is a place where Christ's work must be done in ministrations of whatever sort the spirit requires.

At the beginning of Jesus' ministry the Holy Ghost was given unto Him. His was a ministry directly from God. As the second Adam He received the inbreathing of the divine spirit that He might have the power of the life more abundant. His ministry was occupied in imparting this eternal life to others. In sending out these disciples to continue and multiply His own ministry, He breathed upon them as a sign to them that the Holy Ghost was breathed from God into their lives. If they were to do the same sort of work He had been doing, they needed at least some of the same qualifications which he had received. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My spirit saith the Lord;" this was the utterance of an Old Testament prophet, but it may well describe the method of the work of grace to be done through the apostles and disciples of the new covenant.

To those who received this inbreathing of the Holy Ghost Jesus gave the commission to forgive sins, which reminds us of the words He had previously spoken to Peter, "I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."

It is the privilege of the true servant of Christ to carry to the sinner the assurance that upon repentance his sins are forgiven. Christianity teaches that each believer is his own priest unto God, making his own confession and receiving directly the Holy Ghost's witness in his own heart that his sins are forgiven. But the minister of the gospel can offer the truth that is the basis of every experience of grace.

In this passage Jesus sets forth the relation of the church and of each believer to the Father, the Son, the Holy Spirit and to the world. To the world the relation is that of a minister of grace. To the Father the relation is that of paternal reverence and authority. To the Son the believer looks for a revelation of the Father's will and way. To the Holy Spirit's indwelling the believer looks for the spiritual energy that enables him to do his spiritual task in the world.

AN EVIL HEART OF UNBELIEF.

Some people have their minds thoroughly made up that they will never believe. It is a firm intellectual determination accompanied by a will that is set in unbelief. It is a distinct choice with the purpose of adhering to it. There are other people who know that Christian faith is inconsistent with their manner of life, and, since they have no intention of changing their manner of life, they do not for a moment consider the question of faith. In each case there is an evil heart of unbelief. In the former case the evil may not be such as will be accounted sinful by man, because it involves no direct and immediate crime against man; but it is evil because it separates the life from its fellowship with God, and that is an evil result, no difference whence it springs.

Thomas seemed dangerously near possessing such an evil heart, for he avowed that he would not believe the testimony of the other disciples that they had seen the Lord. He saved himself from such an imputation by the suggestion that he might believe if he were given the same sort of evidence that had been given to the other disciples.

It was on the next Sunday after the above incident with the eleven that the disciples were gathered together and Thomas with them. This time, without causing fright as on the former occasion, Jesus suddenly appeared among them. His "Peace be unto you" fell a welcome sound upon their ears. None of them were especially astonished unless it was Thomas, to whom the Lord at once addressed himself. "Reach hither thy finger, and see my hands, and reach hither thy hand and put it into my side, and be not faithless, but believing."

The doubt of Thomas had been one of inquiry rather than of set purpose Perhaps he thought that he ought not to be persuaded on less evidence than had been given to others. When that evidence was presented, he at once acknowledged his belief in terms of stronger allegiance than had been expressed by any of the others. There is really no sin in inquiring into the reality of religious truth. It is, rather, a privilege and a duty of faith to make such inquiries as may assure ability to give a reason for the hope that is in one. Thomas became a better witness of the resurrection because he received that revelation of his risen Lord. Jesus does not withhold himself from the inquiring mind and heart, but rather, reveals himself to those who in simplicity of heart and mind desire to know God and do His will, even if they are harrassed by many doubtings.

THE LAST BEATITUDE.

"My Lord and my God!" was the spontaneous expression of the strong conviction of Thomas that Jesus stood before him in reality. He cared not about nail prints and spear wounds when his Master was before him. Jesus' invitation to Thomas was half rebuke and half entreaty of love. Thomas' response was repentance for unbelief, faith expressed with joy and devotion with fullest love. For him to see was to believe. Thomas was very human. Faith seems so hard to many. Oh, if God would only give us tangible evidences of himself! How often we sigh for such a boon! But life goes on in the same old way and God comes to us only in the working of His laws in the physical and spiritual world. We cannot reach out our hands and touch him, but with every prayer we realize "He is closer to us than breathing and nearer than hands and feet." We have not seen him and yet we love Him and say with the confidence of a child: "Our Father which art in heaven."

To such faith come the words of Christ's last beatitude: "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." Yes, faith has its own reward. There are those who have no certain dwelling place in the world who look for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God. To them it will one day come down from God out of heaven, the new Jerusalem. It will be the city of many mansions which Jesus has gone to prepare. Those of faith possess it even now with a clear title. It is the voice of faith which speaks—

Be thy pure spirit present with the Lord,
Where thou for faith and hope hast perfect love,
And open vision for the written word."

But all the hope and brightness of this faith come from the fact that it has linked itself with that

"Strong Son of God, immortal love,
Whom we that have not seen thy face,
By faith, and faith alone, embrace,
Believing where we cannot prove."

FIGHTING MACHINES

New Vessels Soon to Be Added to American Navy.

Battery of the Ohio Will Be Marvel of Power.

Will Have No Equal Afloat as a Gun Platform.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Officials of the navy department are greatly interested in the new naval fighting machines to be added to our fleet within the near future. The first addition to this fleet will be the battleship Ohio, the launching of which President McKinley and cabinet are to witness, and she is expected to join the squadron of Rear Admiral Casey before the close of the present year.

A sister ship of the Maine, building at Cramps, and of the Missouri, building at Newport News, the Ohio will represent the most advanced stage of naval development and will have no equal afloat as a gun platform. Her battery will be a marvel of power, and while her guns will not be mounted in superposed turrets, she will have most effective broadsides.

The occasion will be the first where any distinguished persons of the government have witnessed launches on the Pacific, and the Ohio will be the first warship the president has seen launched.

The Ohio is 388 feet long and 73 extreme beam, and on a draft of 23 feet 6 inches displaces 12,230 tons. The hull is protected abreast of the boilers and engines by a side armor belt extending 3 feet 6 inches above the load-water line and 4 feet below it, having a thickness of 11 inches for a depth of 4 feet 6 inches, tapering to 7½ inches at the bottom of the belt, and by the casement armor 6 inches thick, which extends from the side belt to the upper deck and is worked from the center of the forward to the center of the after barbette.

In the casemate are placed ten of the 6-inch guns. Above this, on the upper deck, four of the 6-inch guns are placed in the vicinity of which 6-inch armor is worked far enough forward and aft to afford protection to the crews of these guns. Protection is afforded the vitals of the ship below the water line by a protective deck worked flat within the casemate and sloped forward and aft of it. Cofferdams are built on the protective deck from the diagonal bulkheads to the bow and stern in the vicinity of the waterline and on the berth deck for nearly the length of the vessel. All of these cofferdams are filled with cellulose.

The main battery will consist of four 18-inch guns, placed in two balanced turrets, and sixteen 6-inch rapid-fire guns. The turrets are turned by electricity, and the motors used for this purpose can revolve one of these through 360 degrees in one minute. The armor of both the turrets and barbettes is 12 inches thick. Ten of the 6-inch guns are within the casemate, two others are on the berth forward in 6-inch armored sponsons, and four are on the upper deck. Those in the sponsons forward and two on the upper deck can fire directly astern, in addition to having a broadside fire. The secondary battery consists of six 3-inch rapid-fire guns, eight 6-pound rapid-fires, six 1-pound rapid-fires, two Colts and two 3-inch rapid-fire field guns.

A new feature introduced in the offensive power of this Ohio is the submerged torpedo tube. While they are not new abroad, German warships having been equipped with them for a number of years, the Ohio class is the first of our navy to be supplied with them. Prior to her construction many vessels of the navy were fitted with torpedo tubes above the waterline. The Ohio will have two of these tubes, one on either side, situated about fifty feet from the bow and about 10 feet 6 inches below the water line.

The magazines and shell rooms can stow 240 rounds of 12-inch ammunition, 3200 rounds of 6-inch ammunition, 9600 rounds of 6-pound and 4000 rounds of 1-pound ammunition. The forward magazines are located immediately forward of the dynamo rooms and the after ones just abaft the engine rooms. There are two military masts fitted with the usual signal yards, tops and topmasts; two tops are built to each of these masts. The armor of the forward conning tower is 10 inches and that of the after or signal tower is 6 inches thick. A steel tube 12 inches in diameter inside and 7 inches in thickness extends from the forward conning tower down to the protective deck, and protects the voice tubes and telegraphs from the commanding officer to the important stations in the vessel. The Ohio will carry fourteen boats, of which one is a 40-foot steam cutter of the usual navy type. Hydraulic gear is used in steering the vessel, and can put the rudder from hard aport to hard astarboard in twenty seconds when the vessel is moving at full speed.

Four powerful search lights, two of which are placed on the top of the pilot house and two on the mainmast above the upper bridge, will give warning of the approach of hostile vessels, and for night signaling the ship carries two electric signaling apparatus. The normal coal supply is 1000 tons and the capacity of the bunkers is 2000 tons.

The Ohio and her class are the first battleships of the United States navy in which water tube boilers were provided. Steam for the propelling machinery is supplied by water tube boilers of the Thorneycroft type, placed in four water-tight compartments. There are three smokepipes. The collective indicated horse power of the main engines, with their circulating, is about 16,000 when the vessel is making a speed of 18 knots. It should be stated here that the Ohio ranks next to the Georgia class of battleships of our navy in regard to speed. The Georgia and class, which will have the greatest speed of any battleships yet authorized by congress, are designed to make 19 knits. The construction of the Ohio class was authorized by congress on May 4, 1898, when the Spanish war demonstrated the wisdom of a greater increase in the navy. The keel was laid on April 22, 1899, and the contract price of hull and machinery is $2,899,000. Her complement is 35 officers and 511 men.

Omega Oil

Cold in the Chest

Now, see here a minute, my friend. You ought to know that you can't cure a cold in the chest, or sore throat, or shooting pains in the lungs, by swallowing medicines. The stuff you swallow goes into your stomach, and your trouble is not there at all. What you want to do is to rub your throat and chest with Omega Oil, and do it quick, too. Nature made this oil for exactly this purpose. It subdues and overcomes the inflammation and is at least a hundred times better than a sticky, itching, nasty porous plaster. Don't lose time fooling with such things, but start using Omega Oil as quickly as you can.

Tell your druggist you want Omega Oil and nothing else. If he refuses to supply you, the Omega Chemical Co., 257 Broadway, New York, will mail you a bottle prepaid for 50c. in cash, money order or stamps. 144

MARKET STRONG

Wheat Started Out Higher, Sold Up and Then Reacted.

It Ruled Strong and Active Throughout the Session.

Sharp Advance at Liverpool the Chief Bullish Factor.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 26.—The wheat market started out higher this morning, sold up soon after the opening and then reacted slightly, but ruled strong and quite active throughout the morning. The continued strength of corn was a contributing cause of the firm feeling, but the chief factor was a sharp advance in the Liverpool market, where wheat closed firm and ½@¾d higher. The cash demand for wheat continues good. Broomhall cabled this morning that the demand from the European continent continues. The Russian crop report has evidently seriously alarmed the continental buyers. Shippers in Chicago also report a good demand, but the impossibility of testing when shipments may be made is keeping the demand away from Duluth. May wheat in New York is very strong, and for the past two or three days has been leading the advance in the American markets. A squeeze in New York May is now being talked of, the gossip being that Milmine, Bodman & Co., control the New York stock of wheat. The rumor does not obtain very much credence, but there is a possibility that it is true. New York sellers of the May option may be relying on Duluth wheat to fill their contracts and the failure of navigation to open by reason of the strike on the lakes might embarrass those who are counting on Duluth wheat to fill their contracts.

There is more or less rumor of crop damage every day, but definite statements are lacking. A dispatch from Topeka, Kas., says that the Texas wheat louse is doing more or less damage to wheat and corn in the southern tier of counties in Kansas, and that in McPherson county the Hessian fly is doing some. Another dispatch says that wheat growers say that Kansas never looked so well; that all former records will be broken; that wheat stands 15 inches high and that predictions are for a crop of 100,000,000 bus. The Modern Miller says:

"St. Louis reports of insect and insect damage to wheat are increasing from the Southwest, but the condition is not considered serious as yet. The crop requires growing weather in order to reveal the actual conditions. East of the Mississippi river wheat is in about as good shape as could be expected. California reports no rain has fallen yet and that late sown grain is badly in need of moisture."

Primary receipts of wheat were 357,573 bus, last year 245,500 bus. Shipments 230,-651, last year 424,231. Clearances of wheat and flour were 185,000 bus. New York reported 20 loads of what taken for export, St. Louis reported selling 100,000 bus of No. 2 red wheat for export today and 100,-000 bus yesterday afternoon. At the seaboard yesterday exporters bought 392,000 bus of wheat. The Argentine shipments for the past week reported at 1,352,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 229 cars, against 275 last week and 207 last year. Chicago receipts, 38 cars, none of contract grade.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ¼c higher at 74⅜c, sold up to 74¾c at 9:42, reacted to 74⅛@⅜c at 11 and 74⅜c at 12:30, advanced again to 74⅝c at 1 o'clock and closed at that price. This was an advance for the day of ½c. Chicago advanced ⅝c and Minneapolis ⅜c.

Cash sales were light, aggregating 9000 bus. Wheat to arrive brought May price and wheat in store ½c under. No. 2 northern and No. 3 wheat strengthened in price.

Corn in Duluth was marked up ¾c today, not because of any sudden demand apparently, but to follow the Chicago advance of the past two or three days. In Chicago the advance in May was only ⅛c. Phillips was reported to be buying some May corn today. It is generally conceded that he has the market entirely in his control at the present time, and it was rumored on the Chicago board today that some shorts had settled with him at 45¾c. Chicago gossip says he has line.

"Does Phillips' May corn line reach 14,-000,000 bus? The figure is not impossible. When a long line can be reduced by 1,-500,000 bus to 2,500,000 bus as the Phillips holding was yesterday and the market hardly showed any difference, the aggregate must be a large one. Phillips himself declared in a conversation in the pit yesterday that his interest reached 14,-000,000 bus. When he was interviewed he said: 'It would not be business like to give the figure, but the May holding is a good deal larger than anybody supposes. In discussing the matter a corn trader said: 'The 14,000,000 bus figure is not unlikely. Phillips sold possibly 2,000,000 bus of May corn today in an hour. We know he has been buying it for two months."

Primary receipts of corn were 328,656 bus, last year 321,227 bus. Shipments 280,-670, last year 452,261 bus. Clearances of corn were 159,000 bus.

Rye was very strong today and closed ¾c up in Duluth. The demand in Chicago was strong. May flax was active today and sold as high as $1.67 and closed at $1.66, an advance of 3c. Cash and to arrive flax closed at the same advance. September was ½c up. Oats did not change in price.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 76⅝c; to arrive, 76¾c; May, 76¾c; September, 75c. No. 1 northern, cash, 74¼c; to arrive, 74¾c; May, 74⅝c; September, 73c; July, 73⅜c. No. 2 northern, 70¼c. No. 3 spring, 66¾c. Oats, 27¼-27c. Rye, 51¾c. Flax, cash, $1.65; to arrive, $1.65; May, $1.66; September, $1.27½; September Northwestern, $1.50; October, $1.25. Corn, 43¼c; May, 43¾c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 23; corn, 1; oats, 1; rye, 4. Receipts—Wheat, 18,065 bus; rye, 1834 bus; flax, 1231 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 7517 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

July Corn Active as Also Was Wheat.

Chicago, April 26.—Belief that corn bulls are turning their attention to the July option gave that delivery a strong demand today. May, while holding steady, was not active. Light receipts and higher cables were factors in sustaining prices. May opened unchanged to ½c higher at Estimates on stocks are for an increase of lard of 4000 tierces for the week. No change in pork and a slight decrease in ribs. Shipments of products light. Liverpool is 2d up on lard. Estimates for tomorrow 20,000. Speculation lacking.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Feeling on the New York Exchange Was Improved.

There Was Aggressive Demand and Trading Became Enormous.

The Closing Was Moderately Active and About Steady.

New York, April 26.—The market showed well distributed strength at the opening, but the most conspicuous movements were in the United States Steel stocks, Rock Island, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Kansas & Texas, in which the advances run from 1 to 2¼ on first sales of from 1000 to 25,000 shares for the individual stocks. United States Steel preferred sold from 95¾ to 95½, compared with 94¾ last night on sales of 15,000 shares and the common sold at 47¾ and 48¼, compared with 47 last night on sales of 25,000 shares and then advanced an additional fraction. Pennsylvania sold at 152 and 153 ex-rights, compared with 151 last night's close. There were gains ranging up to a point among the grangers and some of the low priced specialties. Amalgamated Copper sold down 1½ from last night's close, selling at 120 to 121, then receded to 119¾ on the transfer of 4000 shares. The stock rallied momentarily then fell back below 120. Smelting rose over a point. These stocks were both affected by the issue of injunctions interfering with the proposed consolidation which each company has in view.

While the tone of speculation was strong, the leading railroads did not advance much beyond their opening prices, as the demand was only about equal to realizations. Baltimore & Ohio was a notable exception, rising 2½ to 104½. Speculation was very broad, many usually quiet stocks being actively dealt in and improving. Conspicuous among these were the Colorado Southern, Great Northern preferred, Denver & Rio Grande, General Electric, Continental Tobacco, Chicago Terminal, Chicago Great Western common and preferred B, and a number of others which were up from 1 to 3 points. Pennsylvania rights sold at 8½ to 9¼. Sugar was bought heavily at a gain of 2 points but Brooklyn Transit and People's Gas fell sharply. Union Pacific declined from 103¾ to 102¾ at 11 o'clock, which induced free selling of other Pacifics and grangers and the entire market weakened.

The depression of the market was short lived as an aggressive demand for stocks caused a general demand for both accounts and trading became enormous on the advance. Leading features on the rebound were Sugar, Tobacco, Amalgamated Copper, Chicago Great Western, and the Colorado stocks gained 2@4. Northern Pacific and the grangers rallied to the best. Burlington touching 196½, but Union Pacific, the United States Steel stocks and Southern Pacific met abundant offerings and did not recover fully. Bonds were firm.

The market was rather quiet during the last hour as there was some confusion incident to the close of the last day of trading in the present exchange building. Prices receded slightly and then hardened again. Northern Pacific rising to 109. The grangers and Baltimore & Ohio also touched top prices. There were gains of 2 to 3½ points in Canadian Pacific, Northwestern, Lackawanna, North American, Chicago & Eastern Illinois and Pacific Coast first preferred. The closing was moderately active and about steady.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 26.—Cotton opened steady with prices 2 to 5 points higher. Rumors that a leading Greek export house intended taking over some 40,000 to 45,000 May notices which had been circulated over up commitments, alarmed the bears. Following the call May settled back to 802, July to 804 and October to 727. Toward the close of the first hour July shorts became alarmed owing to the great scarcity of offerings and bid prices up to a level above the opening figures.

WISDOM OF THE HEN.

Something More Than Mere Sitting To Hatch An Egg.

A fresh egg has the yolk perfectly balanced in the middle of the white. Unless it remains thus balanced, the chances are decidedly against its hatching. Brooding hens understand that, says the New York Sun. When filling the nest a hen turns over all the eggs in it before she quits it after laying a new one.

She knows, too, that in hot weather the sun will addle her eggs, so she chooses a shady nest spot. But in winter a nest is often made where the fullest sunshine streams into it.

Brooding is throughout full of quaint surprises. Eggs will hatch if kept at blood heat—98 degrees. But they hatch more certainly and turn out stronger chicks if the temperature is a degree or so higher. Just how it is done nobody knows, but mother hens someway contrive to raise the normal heat of their bodies to the requisite pitch. Further, they strip the whole breast of feathers, so the eggs may have the benefit of full heat. Twice a day they turn over every egg in the nest, cuddling them separately up underneath their beaks, making little soft, half fretful chuckling noises the while.

Hens are most uncalculating egg stealers. All eggs in sight will be drawn into the nest, though the stolen eggs may crowd out those legitimately there. Still, in a way, hens take stock of what they brood. With few eggs they sit prim, with trimly folded wings. With too many they sprawl and their wing feathers loose enough to let light between the feathers and frequently turn themselves about reaching for uncovered eggs, and drawing them underneath the breast.

A hen of average size can not profitably cover more than fifteen eggs. In cold weather thirteen is a better limit, although in midsummer the same hen might cover a brood as large as twenty. Left to themselves, the unchecked instinct of egg-steading with hens is apt to result in a nest full of spoiled eggs, with maybe one or two feeble chicks.

Twenty-four hours of brooding makes hardly a perceptible change in an egg. Sometimes in warm weather there is the least reddish tinge beside the whitish clot in which the germ is broken, will quiver all through and feebly move the head. It has, however, no vestiges of the fine downy coat it will wear a little later. The coat forms rather rapidly.

The period of incubation for a chicken is twenty-one days, and for two days before leaving the shell the young fowl is practically perfect. Yet it would not live were the shell forcibly removed. It spends the two days gathering vital force to make its own way out into the world. It lies snug within the shell, the head bent upon the breast, in such a position as brings the beak full against the shell.

The beak is armed with a tiny detachable piece of horn, flint-hard, and set upon the very tip of the upper mandible. At full hatching time the chick presses this triangle against the brittle shell, and breaks a triangle hole in it, possibly a quarter inch across. An hour later the chick, having turned itself slightly, presses the beak against a new spot and makes a fresh break. As more air comes in the little creature grows stronger. It writhes still more strongly in its prison, turning always from left to right. In two hours or ten it breaks the shell in two and slips out into the nest, a wet and weary sprawler.

Egg production varies enormously. A hen's capacity is about 400 eggs, divided pretty equally through the first three years of her existence.

A TRAMP BARBER SHOP.

Down on West Broadway a tramps' barber shop has been opened, where all who come may be shaved, shampooed or have a haircut absolutely free of cost, says the New York Sun.

This barber shop is a curious institution. It is not elaborately furnished, but all the necessary articles are there, and sometimes there are more barbers hanging around to attend to people than there are customers to be attended to, although not often. The place is run in connection with a barber school, several of which have been started in this part of the country in the past few years. The students at the school are trained to shave and cut the hair of dummies, and as they have competent instructors it is not long before they master the rudiments of the business. Then they get a dummy razor and practice with it on the face of an instructor. This gives them confidence, and after a few days of practice they are turned loose in the shop. At the present time there are fifty-eight barbers putting the finishing touches on their education in the West Broadway shop, and since the place has become known to the lodging houses and tenements they have all they can attend to. Tramps flock there and the fifty-eight barbers attend to their wants with courtesy, invariably inviting them to come again when the shave or the hair cut is accomplished.

HIS BUNGALOW.

Retreat of Author Gillette In North Carolina.

William Gillette, playwright and actor, who has given to the theater-going public such characters as the Reverend Mr. Spaulding," the "Private Secretary," daring Capt. Thomas and the cool and skillful Sherlock Holmes, is little known outside an intimate circle of acquaintances, except in the roles he has created behind the footlights, says the St. Louis Republic.

Where Mr. Gillette spends his time when the curtain is down may be best described as a hermit bungalow, situated in the mountains of Western North Carolina, near the little hamlet of Thousand Pines and about forty miles from the magnificent estate of George Vanderbilt

The bungalow is an excellent place in which to either rest or work. The climate and scenery are all that could be desired, and there is quiet enough to suit the most hardened hermit. It is in this restful spot that much of the actor-writer's best work has been done.

Nature is the only landscape gardener that has beautified the grounds around Mr. Gillett's dwelling. The bungalow is located deep in the heart of the woods. Not a tree, twig or leaf was moved more than was actually necessary for the laying of the foundation, and so careful is Mr. Gillette to make his approaches and departures by different ways, that not even a path leads through the forest to the doorway.

Here it is, deep among the rhododendrons and honeysuckle, with the tall pines standing sentinel and the rugged sides of the great mountains hemming him off from the world, that he takes his ease.

It is needless to say that Mr. Gillette lives here absolutely alone; he is his own cook, his own butler; his own chambermaid, his own housekeeper. The only person who has the entree is a cute little coon, who brings fresh eggs and milk every morning, and who performs the duties of postman.

The principal enemies of Mr. Gillette are the ants, and the contrivances that he has arranged to keep them from his cupboard would bring him fame in other than literary lines should he some day give them to the world.

Mr. Gillette does not keep himself absolutely secluded in his bungalow; he is too fond of nature for that, and, besides, he likes to select his own bit of tenderloin for breakfast, so there is hardly a day during his stay in North Carolina but he appears at the village in his long light coat and rough cap, and there is no more approachable man at that time than he.

Every one in Tryon knows him and loves him. Not as Gillette, the famous actor and playwright, who has made thousands laugh at one moment and held them spellbound and breathless while they hung on his slightest motion the next, but Gillette the man, the kind, good-natured, funny gentleman, who always has the right thing to say to the children, and gives you a word, too, that makes the day seem brighter just for his passing.

Sometimes he drops into your cottage and takes the baby on his knee and talks to you—not of the stage, for many of the people of North Carolina have never seen a play, nor do they know what an actor is—but of their own affairs, their pleasures and their troubles—their own little world, in which they move and have their being. But there are no worlds that Mr. Gillette does not know, and none that he cannot make brighter, and his coming to a cottage is never forgotten. Not because (as I have tried to impress upon you before) that they have entertained Gillette, the actor, for they have never heard of him, but because they have seen Gillette, the man

Mr. Gillette's original reason for seeking North Carolina was to regain his health, for his long and arduous labors without relaxation had been followed by the worries attendant upon his only failure, "Ninety Days," and the more sad event, and one which threatened to end his career—the death of his wife. At first he occupied a cottage near the town, owned by "Cap'n" Smith, a Northerner, and a man who has a sense of humor and the ability to tell a story on a par with Gillette himself.

The cottage was adjoining the one to which Sidney Lanier, the famous poet-musician, lived just prior to his death at "Lynn," a short distance away.

The mountains about Mr. Gillette's home are infested with the typical mountaineer moonshiners, peaceable enough if let alone, but dangerous if disturbed in the pursuance of their avocation. Only about a mile from the bungalow is the beginning of that corner of North and South Carolina and Georgia, which is known as the "Dark Corner." Every where there are homes-combed through the mountains the illicit stills, an it is as much as a man's life is worth to approach those mountain recesses. Perhaps Mr. Gillette will penetrate them some day, and give us a play more thrilling than is "Sherlock Holmes."

TAGGED FISHES.

It seems rather an odd idea to fasten metal tags to marine fishes and then let them loose in the ocean with the idea of identifying them as individuals in case they happen to be caught at a future time; but this is what the United States fish commission is doing just now with cod, 1600 of which have been duly tagged and released this year, says the Washington Times. No two tags are alikpe, the markings on them being stamped ui a series of letters and numbers, record of which is kept in a book in such a manner that if a tagged codfish turns up, a moment's reference to the memoranda will furnish the history of that particular specimen, with date of liberation, weight and so forth. STYLES IN MILLINERY

Great Attention Being Paid to Details and New Methods of Trimming and Arrangement Are Being Devised.

The following advance information on spring headwear is taken from the Paris letter to the Millinery Trade Review: As usual, when no very marked innovations are on the tapis, greater attention is paid to details. This is the case at the present moment. Probably, if ingenuity had been exercised in the production of some very novel shapes milliners would have been less pre-occupied by the necessity of seeking for new methods, either of trimming or arrangement. Some of these methods are extremely ingenious and do great credit to their authors.

Among the new methods there are various ways in which straw braids and tulle may be combined. One of these consists in wrapping up narrow straw braids in several doubles of tulle of different tints, imparting a softness to the straw. A somewhat similar effect is obtained by using crape instead of tulle, only one layer being necessary, which is an economy of time, and, hence, comes less costly. Shapes are made up of sewn straw braids treated in this way, the covering of crape being a match to the straw or another harmonious color. But there are other ways. For instance, a relatively simple and yet elegant toque is composed of pleated chip braids, each braid covered with crape. The pleat forming the crown and narrow brim is made up of narrow pale turquoise blue braids covered with crape of the same color, a dozen strands of braid, divided up into three, being simply pleated together. Around the edge of the brim, and tied in a bow on the left side, is a much thicker pleat of dark chestnut brown braids covered with brown crape. Three dozen strands of braid are required for this pleat. Through the straw bow are stuck two short, wide couteaux, prettily marked with turquoise-blue Arabesques on a very dark brown ground. This arrangement may be carried in other combinations of colors. It would look very well in pale lilac and damask-rose color.

Very dainty toques and small hats are made of tulle, on which are sewn narrow-strip braids. I described some models of this sort in white tulle and greme or fancy Tuscan in a previous letter, the tulle being put on in loose pleats, forming a sort of turban. The more recent models are made of colored tulle folded round the shape and not forming volume in any way. Different shades of dull green are considered most applicable to the purpose, the braids being chosen of low medium tints and in nacre mixtures. Here is one (the wired shape of which is of the bolero form with a rolled brim) made of sea-green tulle and nacre chip braids one-third inch wide. These are sewn, almost touching each other other on the tulle which surrounds the brim, whereas, the crown is first covered with plain tulle and then trimmed with the braids. This crown is rather fantastic, and may be likened to the center of a royal crown, such as was worn by Queen Victoria; bands of tulle striped with braid being attached to its top by a triangular rosette of the same and forming curves to its base. The brim turns up on the left side; three gauze roses shaded from dark gray to pink rest on its edge, three more shaded from sea-green to pale blue are placed underneath these, and a little knot of merveilleux ribbon is squeezed in under the base of the brim. All the shades exhibited in the toque reappear in the broche of this ribbon.

Another model has a pale beige chip crown and a foundation brim of sage-green tulle. About the latter is draped a square of tulle sixty-four inches square, so that two of the corners meet at the back, the other two being knotted at the side and secured by a large, oblong, dull gold buckle. This square is bordered with eleven rows of chip braid of different colors or shades—two shades of beige, two of light brown and two of pale gray, one each of lilac, pastel blue, khaki, maroon and dark bluish green—rows crossing each other at the two corners shown in the knot. The sides of the square with their bands run round the brim, the plain center of the square resting loosely within and about the crown.

Two other models, of which the foundation is pale chestnut-brown tulle, also deserve special mention. One is a toque, about which tulle of this color, striped with bands of nacre wrinkled straw, is swathed round, turban fashion. The trimming consists of three pure white roses, with brownish-green leaves ensconced on the left side, and two of the same flowers underneath the brim. As for the other, it is rather more complicated. The brown tulle is arranged on a net toque shape of large size in drawn bouillonnes encircling the crown in a spiral, and in straight rows, along the rolled brim. Under each off these bouillonne are four strands of turquoise-blue grenne caught together every inch, so as to give much the effect of little bunches of forget-me-nots. A bow formed of a plain piece of tulle is fastened on the left side by a square buckle of dull gilt metal set with imitation turquoise, and into it are stuck two short couteaux of a very dark shade of blue, arabesqued with light metallic shades of the same color.

Toques are also made of superposed rings of lisse combined with circular pieces of the same, bordered either with fancy hair braid or with a fancy buttonhole stitch worked in floss silk. A dozen rings of material are required to form the brim, these being all of equal size, slightly waved, and half a dozen flat circular pieces to place on the top; the latter are graduated in size, the lower one having the same diameter as the rings.

Wide, plain crinoline braids, edged with narrowest velvet ribbon, sewn on lisse of the same color, make up well in large toques. In a model of this sort the lisse used to drape the brim has two rows of braid running horizontally, and is mounted in a voluminous bouillonne caught on either side of the front and twice again at the back, so as to form a sort of large, square bow. The crown is covered loosely with plain lisse, as well as the under side of the brim. Palest lavender gray is the color chosen for the lisse and braids, the latter being bordered with black velvet. For trimming their are two large, pale pink roses resting on the bouillonne; a third is fixed under the brim.

Broad bands of straw are used for trimming hats, instead of ribbons, and will prove very convenient for country and seaside wear. Some of these bands are made of narrow, plain chip braids of different colors, or shaded from one tint or shade to another, but the shading need not run from edge to edge in regular progression. A nacre-gray chip hat is trimmed with a twisted drapery of straw band two inches wide, showing half a dozen shades of pearly gray and as many of lilac and violet. Two slate-colored couteaux are inserted in the drapery.

Some round hats of medium size have appeared lately, the crowns of which are almost flat. They are sometimes arranged with the brim turned up in front, sometimes with the back of the brim turned up straight, or leaning over toward the front, the trimming—flowers, or a large bow of ribbon—lying on the crown. Others are left flat. They are made in paillasson, chip and also of transparent materials. One of the last, built up on a foundation of dull, pale-green net, has little quillings of net sewn on the under side and edge of the brim, which is turned up in front, the rest of the outer side being covered with cream guipure sewn down flat upon it. A piece of broad, black velvet ribbon is draped round over the lace and fastened behind by a silver buckle. In front, against the upturned brim, is a big cluster of small pink roses. Other hats, on the contrary, have moderately high crowns with straight sides. Frequently this shape is capriciously bent about, in the case of a black lisse hat, entirely sun-pleated. The brim is turned up in front, slightly so behind, and dips somewhat over the ears. It is trimmed with a closed wreath of small pink and white roses, the flowers clustered more thickly behind than at the sides, and still more thickly in front, where there is a chiffonne of pink and white broche merveilleux ribbon under the brim.

The same idea of laying on the trimming is carried out in 1½-inch black velvet ribbon, bordered with a white silk cord, on another black hat of sprigged net; the ribbon is caught to the edge of the brim so as to form upstanding loops, much longer and set more closely front and back. This hat is further trimmed outside and under the brim with large pink muslin roses.

For the summer it seems probable that a taste for very wide brims will be revived, but perhaps more as the exception than the rule.

Very wide brimmed hats worn by some of the actresses in the latest new plays have met with general approbation. Several of them are signed Carlier. They are trimmed low, generally with a wreath of flowers running right round, and have very low crowns. One in fancy white straw is encircled by a wreath of large white poppies, slightly shot with gray and green; a second, in cerise chip, is wreathed with white cherry blossoms; a third, in palest mauve straw, is trimmed with pink roses; a fourth, in manilla straw, has a garland of cherries; a fifth, in white straw, is surrounded by a full quilling of black tulle, relieved by a windmill bow of cerise velve on the left side; a sixth, in rose-pink straw, has two large rosettes of pink tulle on the right side, and on the left several large white roses. In all cases foliage is mixed with the flowers or fruit; there is often also a small cluster of flowers under the brim on the left, either squeezed in between the brim and the hair or placed on a small band that tilts the hat very slightly on one side.

The shades that will be most popular, although undecided, are pastel, pearly, and dull-green harmonies are very much favored, milliners are by no means a verse to bright colors. Rose and china pinks, cerise, poppy red, turquoise, and very bright dark blue are all likely to be extremely fashionable this summer. Ribbons run en suite in soft, low-toned harmonies and very brilliant, often crude, harmonies. Some new methods of treating ribbons deserve mention. The wide, soft satin ribbon of a china-pink tint that trims a small, flat hat of some pink paillasson, is twisted round the crown, knotted in front, then passed over the brim and knotted again underneath. Two dark couteaux are added outside. Broad plaid taffetas hibbon may be draped round a small hat or toque, so as to even the underside and edge of the brim, and then be tied in a large bow in front. White taffetas plaid, with two shades of mauve, blue or cerise, is applicable. Somewhat the same arrangement is carried out with a large foulard handkerchief, the center of white framed in arabesques of bright blue or red, and plain blue or red border.

Toques and small hats made of flowers continue to be favored by la mode, but milliners have to exercise their ingenuity and make them as varied as possible, since the wholesalers are placing on the market good assortments of these articles which find a ready sale at the stores. Among the latest novelties in this line are the toques, composed of geranium flowers and leaves. Madame Reloux made one the other day in white geraniums and brownish-green leaves, slightly powdered with white; red geraniums or pelargoniums are, however, more usual. Cherry leaves and bunches of flowers and fruit make pretty toques. Others have the low crown covered with blue or pinkish blue forget-me-nots, and a double cordon of the gray-green foliage round the brim. Tulle is also provided, sewn all over with small flowers, such as violets, cowslips, forget-me-nots, hyacinth bells, or the petals of roses, which may be draped according to fancy, on hat or toque.

A CHARMING CREATION.

Testimonial From England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years. She is now quite well." It is a great pleasure to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be able to publish testimonials of this character. They show that great good is being done, pain and suffering relieved and valuable lives restored to health and happiness by this remedy. It is for sale at Boyce's drug store.

R & G CORSETS

NEVER STRETCH

The moderately straight R & G No. 397 was and is the corset of comfort with the essence of style. It is straight enough for the prevailing vogue and curved enough to conform to healthful anatomical lines. In 1900 we were unable to fully meet the demand for straight-front goods and unwilling to resort to any makeshift to meet the conditions. At present, however, considerable additions to our factory facilities enable us to keep the trade supplied with real straight-front corsets at retail prices from $1.00 to $2.50, and also our 397, 197, Empire and other popular numbers. There are over seventy styles and sizes of R & G Corsets—a corset to fit every figure. R & G Corsets are the corsets that do not stretch. Every hairbreadth of stretch is taken out of the goods by means of steam-heated iron forms. This gives a permanency to the right shape and form that will stay in it until the last day you wear it. Every R & G Corset is sold with the understanding that it must give satisfaction to the wearer, or the dealer will supply a new one free of cost. If your dealer hasn't it, send us his name and we will see that you are supplied with what you want.

A HEROIC CURE.

A Motorman Cured His Rheumatism By Fasting.

Kansas City, Mo., April 26.—For seven days, until 6:30 Tuesday night, not a particle of food has passed the lips of Motorman Lew S. Purdy, of the Eighteenth Street Electric line, and yet during this long fast he has not missed a run. Now, he declares he feels better than he has in years. Purdy believes in the theory that a seven-days' fast will cure any bodily ailment. He had rheumatism, which frequently laid him up for days at a time. Now, at the closing of his fast, Purdy says his rheumatism has entirely disappeared for the first time in over three years.

"I never felt better in my life," said he, just before breaking his fast. "I have lost about ten pounds, but I have not lost one bit of my strength. As for hunger, I am not at all hungry. I am afraid to begin to eat again this evening, and feel that it will be harder to do that than it was to stop.

"I made up my mind last Tuesday that I would not eat anything or drink anything but water for three days. I did as I had resolved, and after three days felt so much better that I made up my mind to continue the fast for ninety-six hours longer, finishing the full course of abstinence prescribed, seven days. During this time I have not missed a trip. My work entails standing up all day long, but it has not fatigued me in the least. I drank from twelve to fifteen glasses of water each day at first. It did not taste good, but today a glass of water tastes like sugar to me.

"As for my strength, I can truthfully say that it is now greater than it was a week ago. Every day I have tested it by 'dipping' on the seats and 'chinning' myself on a horizontal bar. I can 'chin and dip' many more times today than I could possibly a week ago."

THEY ELOPED.

Girl, Aged Twelve, Donned Male Attire After Leaving Home.

Yarmouth, Mass., April 26.—Cruel parents, hard, unsympathetic guardians, kept two loving hearts apart, and there was nothing to do but elope.

Joseph Roderick is 14 years old, Margaret Tower has just budded into a woman of 12. They had loved so strongly that live for one with the other away became unbearable. So Joseph Broderick, like Lochinvar, all save the horse, bore his love away. The thing must be done with finesse, for the very thought of simply going away made Roderick shudder. There must be rendezvous, a secret pledge, a stolen kiss and then a mystery.

The mystery was provided when Margaret slipped from her feminine form the garb that marked her sex and then climbed into male attire. At the edge of Perch Pond the change was made, and then Roderick, like Roderick Dhu at the borders of the loch, said: "Come one, come all; this rock shall fly from this firm base as soon as I." Only he added a trifle or two he had picked up from the language of "Juan the Brave," in the American hero series.

When the police found the full set of girl's clothing at the pond's edge they were sure that some ghastly crime had been committed. It could be nothing less than murder, they argued.

The clothing was carefully gathered in and marked "Exhibit A" at the jail. It has been viewed by hundreds since Saturday. The love story of Roderick came to an end at Barnstable Tuesday afternoon when he and his masquerading bride were rudely arrested by an unfeeling deputy. Roderick, robbed of his heart's desire, was shipped back to his parents at South Dennis, where he expected an interesting interview with a father and a bed slat in the wood shed. Margaret, with love undaunted, was brought here, where she is a town charge.

When questioned both admitted that it had been their desire to walk to Boston, where lay golden opportunities for the display of pluck and energy, and where love was a legal condition.

Much disappointment exists over the collapse of the treasured murder mystery of the pond.

MME. YALE'S HAIR TONIC

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

It affords me great pleasure to call the attention of the public to Mme. Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic, which is the first and only remedy known to chemistry which positively turns gray hair back to the original color without dye. It has gone on record that Mme. M. Yale—wonderful woman chemist—has made this most valuable of all chemical discoveries. Mme. Yale personally indorses its action and gives the public her solemn guaranty that it has been tested in every conceivable way and has proved itself to be the ONLY Hair Specific. It STOPS HAIR FALLING immediately and creates a luxurious growth. Contains no injurious ingredient. Physicians and chemists invited to analyze it. It is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary, it makes the hair soft, youthful fluffy and keeps it in curl. For gentlemen and ladies, entirely gray and with bald heads, it is especially recommended.

A SCIENTIFIC MEDIOINE.

Dear Madame Yale:—I wish to say a few words in regard to your Excelsior Hair Tonic and Hair Cleanser. I have used both with the best possible results. My hair had been falling out for some time. I had used various remedies with little or no avail. Finally my attention was called to your Excelsior Hair Tonic. I purchased a bottle and began using it. The result was beyond my expectations; after the second application my hair had ceased to fall out, and as I continued my hair seemed to have more life and vigor and new hairs began to come in. After using the second bottle I was surprised to see that my hair was no longer tinged with gray but had returned to its natural color.

Our Excelsior Hair Tonic is certainly a scientific medicine and I believes the only one that treats the hair as a sick member and feeds and nourishes it until it is restored to its natural and normal state of health. I cheerfully recommend it to any one who is in need of a Hair Tonic or Restorer, as I have the utmost confidence in the efficacy of all your remedies.

Respectfully,
MRS. C. L. BROWN,
51 Harper Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

SENT FOR CHILDREN.

Must Support Mother or Go to Jail.

Philadelphia, April 26.—Bent with years, eyes dimmed with tears and body racked with pains, Mrs. Rebecca Joseph dragged herself into Judge Cunningham's court to ask for a commitment to the poor house. Her neat appearance, the traces of refinement in her countenance and the delicacy with which she broached the subject interested the judge, and after he had signed the document he stopped a moment and called the old lady to his side.

"Why do you want to go to the Blockley?"

"My folks do not want me around, sir. They won't give me any money and I cannot earn any. I once paid taxes to the county, and am now forced to ask the county for shelter."

"Where are your folks?"

"My eleven boys and four girls live in Philadelphia."

By kind questioning the judge secured the addresses of the undutiful children and then told Mrs. Joseph to rest herself in his private office.

Special officers were sent to the fifteen addresses given by Mrs. Joseph, and the round-up brought four of her sons to the dock in less than an hour.

"Is this your mother, gentlemen?"

"Yes, sir."

"It is ordered that each of you shall contribute $1.50 a week toward her support, and your brothers and sisters must contribute enough to make the total amount $10 a week. I will hold each of you in $500 bail to guarantee the payment of the entire $10 a week, and if there is any default I will send the whole fifteen of you to jail for ninety days each."

Twilight Trains.

There are only two Twilight Limited trains, one south-bound and one north-bound, over "The North-Western Line" between the head of the lakes and the Twin Cities of Minnesota, leaving each starting point after the business of the day is over, arriving at destination at early bedtime. Gentlemen enjoy the comfortable, commodious club smoking room of the observation cars and the 6 o'clock superb dinner in the popular diner. Ladies have all the luxuries of their own home in the large and roomy parlor cars, with their upholstered revolving chairs. Then, again, it saves you sleeping car fare by taking this train, enabling you to reach a comfortable hotel for a night's refreshing sleep, or possibly your own home. The traveling public appreciate the service and the schedule.

Remember the hour of departure—4:30 p. m. daily from the brownstone depot of "The North-Western Line," foot of Fifth avenue west.

BOUNDARY.

At the direction of the state department an expedition is being organized by the geological survey to start from this city at an early date for the purpose of surveying and making the far Northwest boundary between the United States and Canada, says the Washington Post. This is the line over which England and this country were once on the verge of war. E. C. Bernard has been designated by the secretary of the interior as topographer to run the line, in which work he will so-operate with C. H. St. Clair, an astronomer from the coast and geodetic survey. The state department requested that three geologists be sent from the geological survey, and Bailey Willis, F. L. Ransom and G. O. Smith have been named for that portion of the expedition. They will have little, if anything, to do with the actual work of making the boundary, but will undertake to study the geology of the country in the vicinity of the dividing line between the two countries.

The task before the expedition is a very difficult one, and the results will necessarily be somewhat tentative. The state department will notify the English government of the organization of the expedition and it is hoped that Canada will send a similar expedition to co-operate with the Americans in determining the exact boundary. But this preliminary work will eventually, of necessity, be followed by a treaty between the United States and Great Britain describing in detail the location of this portion of the Northwest boundary and the monuments by which it is marked.

In this connection a very thorough search has been made at the state department and elsewhere in recent months for the original documents that should describe the Northwest boundary, but the search has been unavailing. It may be that the British government has some such documents, but if so, nothing definite is known about it here in Washington. This does not mean that there is probability of any controversy between the two countries about the location of the boundary. On the contrary, there are certain definite points well established in the boundary which make any dispute well nigh impossible. But the monuments along the boundary between the summit of the Rocky mountains to the Pacific coast are very far apart, and sometimes for as long a distance as fifty miles there is nothing to indicate just where the territory of the United States ceases and where the territory belonging to Great Britain in the Dominion of Canada begins.

The northeastern boundary, extending from the eastern coast of Maine to the Lake of the Woods, was agreed upon by the treaty of peace at Ghent, Dec. 24, 1814, and was eventually surveyed and marked in a satisfactory manner. Granite posts, for the most part, were used to mark the boundary, and they were placed at intervals of about one mile. The portion of the boundary between the northwest point of the Lake of the Woods and the summit of the Rocky mountains, along the forty-ninth parallel, was the subject of the second article of the convention between the United States and Great Britain, Oct. 20, 1818. This was surveyed by the northern boundary commission in 1872 and 1876, and marked in a substantial manner, 388 monuments having been established in a distance of about 861 miles.

The water boundary at the extreme western end of the line was settled in a treaty proclaimed Aug. 5, 1846, and defined by Emperor William I of Germany, as arbitrator, in 1871, as extending from Point Roberts through the waters of Georgia, Haro and Juan de Fuca straits to the Pacific ocean. He decided in favor of the United States.

The actual survey of the land portion of this northwestern boundary, which is 410 miles long, was undertaken about 1856 by a joint commission. The Americans on the commission included Archibald Campbell as commissioner, and the late Gen. John G. Parke, as astronomer and surveyor. They did not actually begin work till the summer of 1857. There was a large party of scientists and others attached to the commission. The commissioners of the two countries found it inexpedient to cut a track through the dense forests, because of the great expense, the consumption of time, and the impracticable nature of the country.

It was agreed to designate certain Astronomical stations along the boundary, within a half mile of which on either side a track not less than twenty feet in width in each country should be cleared. It seems that about 100 miles of the whole 410 miles were marked according to the agreement. The civil war followed soon after the completion of what field work the commission accomplished, but probably on account of the active hostilities between the two sections of the United States, no report of the operations of the survey was published. There is evidence that such a report was prepared, but no trace of the manuscript can be found, although careful search has been made through all the departments and the files of congress.

Various manuscript maps relating to the Northwest boundary are on file at the state department. The most important are ten detailed sheets, seven relating to the land portion and three to the water portion of the boundary. On the former are shown trails, timber camps, monuments and vistas cut through the forest. The British minister in 1871 deposited with the state department an atlas comprising maps, views and tables of geographic positions relating to the Northwest boundary. According to these British tables there are 161 monuments, marking parts of the boundary line, 410 miles in length.

The difficulties before the new expedition are much the same as confronted the commission before the civil war, when it was decided as impracticable to attempt to mark the boundary through some of the wildest and most rugged parts of the Rockies and Cascades. Much of the country to be traversed is without roads or trails. Richard U. Goode, in charge of arrangements on the part of the geological survey, says that the summit of the Cascades, adjacent to the boundary, is above the timber line, and immense glaciers lay athwart the boundary. Turbid and impassable streams, born of the glaciers, flow between precipitous ridges and lofty granite peaks, making long detours necessary to an advance in any direction. On either side of the summit, below the timber line, is a thick mantle of vegetation, with great firs and cedars growing up from a mass of tangled underbrush. The same difficult conditions exist in a somewhat less degree along the remaining unsurveyed portion of the line.

Meanwhile contests are becoming more and more frequent, as that section of the country is penetrated, as to which nation jurisdiction over property belongs. A recent controversy is over valuable mines, claimed to be both in Montana and in British Columbia. It is expected that at least three or four years will be required to execute the surveys necessary to the proper marking of the line.

HIS IDEAL.

Cattle King Has All That He Aspires to.

James McMicken has reached that ideal to which most men aspire, says the Omaha Bee. After years of labor and industry he finds himself able to do about as he pleases the year around, and just at present he is enjoying a visit in Omaha—for no other purpose than to take a rest and indulge in the pleasures incident to life in a metropolitan city.

Mr. McMicken is one of the most prominent cattlemen in Central Colorado. His home is at Buena Vista and most people know him as the "Cattle King," but his modesty forbids him to allow that title to be applied to him without at once entering a protest. At any rate he is about the last of the big cattle dealers left in the South Park country and is now in a position where he is getting from the perseverance with which he has followed the cattle business.

The incidents of his life and the stories he has related to friends in this city during the two weks that he has been here are of the genuine Western order and always secure him close attention. One of the best of these concerns the herd of wild horses which bothered the cattlemen of the West for so many years, but which are now said to be extinct.

"The last I saw of those wild horses," said Mr. McMicken the other day, "was in 1893, when a party of six of us went up the gulch between the 'saddles' of Buffalo peaks and drove the herd down in order to cut out about seven of our horses which had been mixed in with the bunch. It was a ride for life and we had a hot time.

"It is twenty-five miles down the gulch from the head where we found the wild horses to Hall's salt works, one of the largest enclosures in that part of the country. The six of us went up the gulch and camped. Among those in the party I remember Mel DeWitt, Tom McQuaid, my partner and Joe Kluxen. It fell to Joe and myself to go up and start the horses down.

"Now, all wild animals are alike in certain things and one of them is that if you are in the way when you are trying to corner them, you want to look out for yourself, for they will go the way they are in the habit of going, even if they have to go over or under you. We rode on past the timber line until we were about 12,000 feet above sea level and ten miles above the first picket stationed below us. We hadn't been able to get a sight of the horses until all at once we spied them over to the right. Another peculiar trait about most animals is that you can't drive them over a ridge when their trail leads them down the gulch. Sheep are the only ones that can thus be driven over, but it is out of the question to attempt to drive wild horses over. When the leader gets his head up in the air and makes a break in your direction, you can be pretty sure that a moment the whole bunch will be right on you.

"In this bunch the leader was a fine black stallion. Oh, he was a beauty as we saw him standing there that day. His head was away up in the air. As we rode up, he looked at us and then the others looked. Their heads went higher and higher in the air. The wind caught their manes and their tails and blew them out straight. It was a pretty sight, especially in the excitement of the moment. We knew that we were about to begin a terrible race, which must last for at least ten miles, and in which one or both of us might be killed, for we were going to turn our horses loose in that wild herd and ride down the mountain with them. To do this our horses would have to jump over fallen trees most of which were big cottonwoods, and the least misstep would mean that we would go down.

"Joe rode around behind them when they started. We were about 300 yards from them. I cut across and came in at the head as they flew down the mountain. I dropped my reins on my horse's neck and let him run with the leader of the wild bunch. It was all you can do in a case like that and—you can depend on it—the free horse is more likely to bring you through safe. Keeping up with the bunch was out of the question. On and on we went down the gulch, the wild horses pulling away from us every minute. Each of us had a revolver and we fired and shouted almost continually to warn the other fellows below that we were coming, so that they could join in and relieve us from the chase.

"When the herd reached the first picket we were away in the rear, but he joined in with the leaders and commenced to shoot and shout. We could hear him circling through the woods on the lower mountain as we hurried our horses on down the slope. After he had joined in, it was our business to follow on as fast as we could and keep away any of the herd from turning aside.

"Well, it took us three days to make that chase down the Buffalo peaks, but we succeeded in driving ten horses into the corral. Of that number about six, I think, were tame horses belonging to the cattlemen, and the others were wild ones that we cut out with the tame ones.

"Those wild horses were practically no good after they were caught. If you did lariat one you had to tire it out before you could handle it. By the time you had one of these horses under control the life was out of him and he drooped every day. He never seemed to revive. They were larger than the ordinary pony and ran from 600 to 800 pounds in weight. When I first went out there in 1885 there were possibly 200 of them wandering about the mountains, but so far as I have seen and heard they are extinct now.

"The cattlemen were terribly bothered by the herds, for they would drive off our riders, and after the domestic horses had run with the wild ones for two or three days they were as wild as any of them. You would seldom see more than one stallion in a herd and he was the leader."

One of the peculiar things about Mr. McMicken is that he has never dabbled in mining. He has been in the heat of several mining excitements and men have gone from his side and become fabulously rich in a few days. In explaining his refusal to go into that business, he says he don't believe in making money so fast. "Oh, those fellows get rich in a day and then they are not satisfied. They keep on after more gold and the first thing you know they lose all the money they made. Take Stratton, for instance. To my mind he is ... along a course where if he don't watch out he will find himself a poor man again. No, I have made good money in cattle. It comes slow but it is sure, and I am content to make it a little slower than those fellows."

BURGLARS

Rob American Express Company at Paris.

Safe Blown Open---Watchman Is Arrested.

Paris, April 27.—Three masked burglars entered the American Express company's office last night, surprised the watchman asleep and then gagged and bound him, and escaped with 30,000 francs.

The colored lad who acted as watchman, says the robbery was committed by three men who spoke English, one of them with a noticeable American accent. According to the boy's story, he was awakened by one of the men kneeling on his chest and choking him. Afterwards two of the men left his room to open the safe, the third standing guard. The carpet from the office floor was wrapped about the safe to deaden the noise of the explosion, but in spite of this the detonation awakened a watchman in a building opposite the one in which the express company's office was located, and the force of the exploding charge was so great that it twisted coin lying loose in the safe. The burglar who had been guarding the boy, the latter says, left him with a warning not to stir under pain of death. Burglar tools of American make were left behind by the cracksmen. The watchman has been arrested, the police not crediting his account of the burglary.

A CLEW TO MISSING BOY

The New York Detectives Say They Have Hopes of Finding Little Willie McCormick of High Bridge.

New York, April 27.—Captain of Detectives Titus held a conversation over the long-distance telephone today with Detective McConville of the central office, who is in Washington following what is thought to be the most important clue in regard to missing William McCormick, of High Bridge, that has yet been unearthed. Capt. Titus said today that the signature "Gertrude" found on the slip of paper that had been left at a photographer's in Washington by the two gypsy girls arrested there yesterday had been compared with the signature of Gertrude McCormick, the missing boy's sister, and that the two are almost identical. Capt. Titus said he attached great significance to this clue and now had hopes of finding the boy.

Washington, April 27.—The two gypsy girls, Hannah and Lizzie Michel, who were arrested here yesterday in connection with the disappearance of Willie McCormick, the New York boy supposed to have been kidnapped, were released from custody today, the police not being able to make a case against them.

CUBANS SAY FAREWELL

Senor Capote Urged That Something Be Done at Once Towards Reciprocal Trade Relations For Cuba's Benefit.

Washington, April 27.—The members of the Cuban commission called upon the president today to bid him farewell. Senor Capote urged that something be done at once toward reciprocal trade relations for the benefit of the Cubans. The president replied that nothing could be done until the questions were settled; that it would be necessary for the Cubans to form a government before any negotiations could be entered into. He assured the delegation that as soon as the Cuban government was formed he would appoint a committee to consider economic relations.

Washington, April 27.—There is a general impression among those who have been in close touch with the Cuban delegates that they will secure the acceptance of the Platt amendment by the constitutional convention when they erturn to Havana. Secretary Root has made it plain to them that the amendment is the United State's policy.

IN CHINA.

Germans Have Returned From Expedition With Some Losses.

Berlin, April 27.—The Cologne Gazette's Pekin correspondent says the headquarters staff has received information that a German mounted force which proceeded beyond Kalgan found the country quiet. No garrisons were encountered. The Germans only saw Chinese police.

London, April 27.—A Reuter dispatch from Pekin says the headquarters staff has received a telegram from a British officer accompanying the Franco-German expedition to the effect that April 23 the Germans crossed into Shan Si, through the Kuk Nau and Chang Cheng Liu passes, in pursuit of the retiring Chinese, whom they followed eighteen miles, fighting a Chinese force. The Germans returned April 25 and the French handed over the passes to them and returned to their previous outposts. The Germans are said to have had four men killed and five officers and eighty men wounded. The Chinese loss is not known.

VERY GRATEFUL.

French Pleased With Reception of Training Ship.

Paris, April 27—The hospitality shown to the French training ship Duguay Trouin, at Baltimore, Annapolis and New York has attracted attention here and is highly appreciated in official circles. Dispatches received at the foreign office spoke of the warm welcome extended to the French cadets, and the Associated Press is authorized to say that the French government is extremely grateful for the sympathy towards France displayed in the reception of the officers and men of the Duguay Trouin by the American authorities and people.

MRS. RODGERS DEAD.

Tucson, Ariz., April 27.—Mrs. Charles K. Rodgers, daughter of the late Ohio millionaire, P. P. Mast, and sister-in-law of Francis B. Loomis, minister to Venezuela, died here today.

FOURTEEN

Bodies Taken From Griesheim Ruins and Many Still Missing.

Frankfort, April 27.—It is officially announced that up to 11 o'clock this morning fourteen bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the buildings destroyed by the explosion and fire at the electro-chemical works, near Griesheim, Thursday afternoon. Several persons are still missing.

APPOINTMENTS.

President Names Some For Three Departmets.

Washington, April 27.—The president today made the following appointments:

Interior—Henry Meldrum, surveyor general of Oregon; Harry D. Chamberlain, Indian agent Crow Creek agency, South Dakota.

ORDER RESTORED.

Ten Killed and Several Wounded at Marguerite.

Algiers, April 27.—According to an official telegram from Marguerite order has been restored there. Seven white civilians and three natives were killed during the disturbance. Three officers and several gendarmes were wounded. The trouble appears to have been largely the outcome of monopolists buying up the forests and depriving the natives of their usual means of earning a livelihood by making charcoal and selling wood for fuel.

MAY ACCEPT GIFT.

Albany, N. Y., April 27.—Governor Odell has signed the bill which authorizes New York city to accept the $5,200,000 gift of Andrew Carnegie for a free library system.

EMPEROR WAS JOLLY

Took Command and Led Off the So-Called Salamanders.

Many Humorous Incidents Enlivened the Festive Occasion.

Cronberg, April 27.—Emperor William arrived here at noon and drove to the castle, at the entrance of which he was greeted by his mother, the Dowager Empress Frederick.

London, April 27.—All accounts agree that Emperor William thoroughly enjoyed himself at Bonn, and among the students to his old corps he became a student again. The emperor wore the white cap, and across his breast the black and white ribbon of the Borussia corps. His majesty himself took command at the symposium, issued orders in a firm tone, and led off the so-called salamanders, the thunderous rattling of beer mugs on the table, when the leading toast was proposed. He also joined heartily, with a loud voice, in singing students' songs, bringing down the flat of his rapier, in the orthodox fashion, with a crash on the table at the end of each verse. The proceedings reached a climax when his majesty called for that grandest of German student songs, "Landesvater" ("Father of the Country"). At one of the verses in which the students swear to live or die for king and country, each man crossed his rapier with that of the man opposite him, and caps are taken off and spitted on the rapier points, the youthful crown prince crossed rapiers with the aged Gen. Von Loe, himself an old Borussir.

At another part of the proceedings, in which the emperor with great pleasure was calling up the former corps students, some of them aged men, so that their health might be drunk in the order of the years they studied, the emperor called for a salamander for a blind old lawyer, Herr Lauff, father of the dramatist, Josef Lauff, who, annually, under his majesty's directions, produces a new historical drama at Wiesbaden, illustrating the achievements of the house of Hohenzollern. Later, joined by the students, he called out, "Our youngest fox," the slang nickname of the youngest student. The emperor laughed heartily, and, clapping the crown prince on the shoulder, said: "Hoerts du dasser meint dir?" ("Do you understand that means you?")

There was another humorous incident when one of the veterans, in reply to the toast to the men of his year, drank to the canal bill, and expressed the hope that the old fellows of Berlin might at last realize that the canal must be built. The emperor lay back in his chair and laughed loud and long.

BEST BUILT.

Sir Thomas Lipton Is Highly Pleased With Shamrock II.

Glasgow, April 27.—The Shamrock II was undocked early this morning and towed to Greenock, where her sails were bent and her compass was adjusted. She will start for Southampton in tow of the Erin this afternoon, Mr. Fife accompanying her. Designer Watson inspected the challenger and expressed enthusiastic approval of her.

Sir Thomas Lipton, in the course of a conversation, said:

"I am satisfied I have the best challenger ever built, and I warn my American friends that they have a big job this time."

RUSTLERS.

One Killed and Another Is In Charge of the Sheriff.

Cody, Wyo., April 27.—News has been received here of the killing of "Jim" McPeck by Detective Smith, of Miles City. Smith and a posse arrested James Chapple, charged with rustling, and were taking him to a ranch about sixty miles away. On the way they were approached by McPeck, who was also wanted and who began a fusilade. The posse men returned the fire and McPeck was killed. None of the posse was badly wounded. The authorities have sent out men to scour the country for rustlers.

WAS JUSTIFIED.

University Faculty Sustains Action of President.

Stanford University, Cal., April 27.—The university council has issued a statement, signed by thirty-seven heads of departments and associate professors, declaring that after fully investigating the matter the conclusion has been reached that in the dismissal of Professor Ross no question of academic freedom was involved, and that President Jordan was justified in dismissing him.

BANK BURGLARIZED.

Toledo, Ohio, April 27.—The bank of Pionee, Williams county, forty miles from here was entered by burglars during the night. The vault was wrecked by dynamite and the sum of $1000 is said to be missing. There is no clue to the robbers.

PLANT TO RESUME.

Niles, Ohio, April 27.—All departments of the American Sheet Steel company will resume here next Monday after having been idle about a year.

AN ALIBI

Defense of Callahan In Kidnaping Case.

Neighbor Says He Saw Him at the Time.

Omaha, April 27.—An alibi was offered when the defense opened today in the trial of James Callahan, accused of participation in the kidnaping of Eddie Cudahy.

Charles McDonald, a neighbor of Callahan, related a converastion he claimed to have held with the defendant on the afternoon of the kidnaping, Dec. 18. At the moment the abduction was taking place McDonald said he sat on the porch, in company with Callahan, at Mrs. Kelly's house, the defendant's boarding house. McDonald said he and Callahan were together between the hours of 3:30 and 5 o'clock. McDonald remembered the date because it was the twentieth birthday of his son.

On cross-examination he admitted having recently told two detectives that he was not quite sure whether it was Dec. 18 or on the day or second following. Mamie McDonald, little daughter of McDonald, proved an unfortunate witness for the defense. She said she rememered a man called Johnson, who often visited Callahan, and had heard it whispered that he was Pat Crowe.

Mrs. Kelly, sister to Callahan, will be put on the stand this afternoon.

MEXICO IS AWAKENED

The Republic Patches Up Differences With Austria and Will Resume Diplomatic Relations and Also With Other Countries.

Washington, April 27.—A complete rapproachment between the governments of Austria and Mexico has been brought about, and as a result each country is about to send a minister to the other. This terminates an international estrangement dating from the days when young Maximilian of Austria sought to gain a foothold in Mexico and lost his life in the adventure. Ever since then Austria and Mexico have suspended all intercourse with each other, commercially and politically. Recently, however, friendly overtures have been made to terminate the estrangement, and have resulted in a satisfactory agreement between them by which their old relations of friendship will be resumed. A bill has passed the Mexican congress reciting the fact of a rapproachment and providing for a minister to Austria at a salary of $15,000 annually. Austria will take similar action by sending a minister to Mexico, and this will close the long and historic separation.

The Mexican government has also taken steps to resume diplomatic communication with South American countries, the first move in that direction being the appointment of a Mexican minister to the Argentine republic. For many years there has been no diplomatic intercourse between Mexico and her sister republics on the Southern continent, as there was little commerce between them and nothing requiring diplomatic relations. Recently, however, Argentina made a friendly move by accrediting a minister both to Washington and to Mexico City, and Uruguay has taken similar action. The selection of Mexico City as the place for holding the congress of American republics has had a further influence in inducing Mexico to extend her relations with Southern countries. As a result of this statement a minister to Argentina is now named, and one to Uruguay probably will be appointed before long. It is expected that this will develop speedily into an extension of diplomatic relations between Mexico and all of the South American countries.

THE LONDON THEATERS

Nearly All Are Again Open and Doing an Excellent Business---Successes of Mrs. Langtry and Edna May.

London, April 27.—The re-opening of the Savoy and Garrick theaters leaves only three West End theaters with closed doors. Most of the playhouses are doing remarkably well. The greatest success of the moment is undoubtedly Mrs. Langtry's new play at her new theater. No playhouse in London equals the Imperial in prettiness and good taste, while the series of pictures of Paris and Versailles is staged with a completeness and richness unsurpassed, though the play itself is considered by critics not to be worth much.

Next in interest to Mrs. Langtry is assuredly Edna May and despite the marks of disapproval which were manifested in some parts of the house at the first performance of "The Girl From Up There," and the generally cool criticisms, people are crowding to the Duke of York theater. The nightly advance sales amount to over £3000 sterling. The disturbance on the opening night is a danger to all American productions here and one for which overzealous Americans themselves are responsible. The American colony in London and American visitors generally are intensely loyal to their own country productions, and when an American company comes over they generally fill the theater on the first night and applaud everything and everybody with indiscriminating enthusiasm. This produces the impression of an organized clique, interrupts the performance and unduly prolongs it by encores not desired by the rest of the audience. If American agents in London could induce their supporters to be more discreet in their expressions of partiality on first nights, they would have no more difficulty with the pit and the gallery.

Charles Frohman has adopted another financial and artistic success Wednesday, when he produced "Sweet and Twenty" at the vaudeville theater with Ellen Terrish and Seymour Hicks in the cast. Capt. Hood's play is generally acknowledged to be one of the most charming little love plays seen here in a long time.

Gertrude Elliott's first appearance in London since her marriage was not auspicious. Forbes Robertson's production of "Count Tezma" at the Comedy theater is generally condemned.

CREW PROBABLY SAVED

Captain of Fishing Schooner Saw Three Steamers Standing By the Schooner Knowles Soon After She Was Struck.

Philadelphia, April 27.—The captain of the fishing schooner Mary A. Fisher, which arrived at the Delaware breakwater this morning, reports that he saw the wrecked schooner Knowles soon after she had been struck on April 24. Three steamers were standing by the Knowles at the time. The captain of the Fisher also reports that he picked up a yawl boat with oars gone, off Barnegat, supposed to belong to the Knowles.

Philadelphia, April 27.—The wrecked schooner Emma C. Knowles passed in the Delaware breakwater today in tow. The Emma C. Knowles was first sighted by the steamer Sunnidale on the afternoon of April 24, off Atlantic City, lying on her beam ends, with decks awash. The captain of the tug that brought her in reports that the Knowles had evidently been in collision. There was no sign of life on board the schooner. It is the general belief in shipping circles that the crew of nine men has been lost, but the owners of the Knowles cling to the belief that the vessel which was in collision with the schooner has picked up the crew and that the men will be landed at some foreign port.

WILL SPEAK.

The President to Talk at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 27.—President McKinley will deliver a speech in convention hall during his stay in Kansas City on his way home from the Pacific coast, according to E. M. Clendenning, secretary of the Commercial club, who has just returned from Washington. Mr. Clendenning says that the president personally approved the elaborate plans mapped out for the occasion.

FREY CASE.

Findings Dividing Property of Husband and Wife.

Judge Dibell has filed his findings in the J. J. Frey divorce case, giving the plaintiff, Mrs. Grace D. Frey, a divorce and custody of the children, and dividing up the property.

He finds that the parties were married in Fountain City, Wis., in 1890; that the plaintiff, Mrs. Frey, is 42 years of age and the defendant, 46 years of age, and that there are five daughters who are to be cared for by the mother. The court finds that for a number of years past the defendant has been guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment, and the divorce is granted on this ground.

It is found that the defendant owns property of the value of $8770, and that the plaintiff has in her name property worth $4590, which is not enough to support her and her family. When they were married, the court says, the plaintiff had no money and the defendant had about $200, and their property gained since then has been the result of not only the husband's energy and sagacity, but of the wife's faithful service. Besides this property there are two life insurance policies for $5000, the cash surrender value of which is $1758.

The conclusions of law are that the plaintiff is entitled to a divorce and the custody of the children, and that the defendant has permission to visit his children at their mother's home. All of the property standing in the name of the plaintiff is to go to her, and the husband is to keep all of the property standing in his name. The household goods, with the exception of the piano, are to go to the wife. Neither is to have any further right in the property of the other. In addition, Mr. Frey is to pay Mrs. Frey $480 in monthly installments of $20, and $200 in cash at once. The judgment is not to effect Mrs. Frey's rights in the insurance policies.

Another Great Cure
—BY—
DR. MITCHELL.
READ IT!

Read the following statement, it is one of the most remarkable cures ever performed by human skill. Miss Gravelot was taken with pain, some two years ago, in the back of her head and neck. At first, she thought nothing of it, but the pain increased in severity until she had to call a physician and in spite of all the doctor could do, the pain grew worse, and Miss Gravelot was drawn out of shape; her spine became crooked and one hip was much higher than the other and she was drawn over sideways in a half circle. She was taken to two different hospitals and they said there was no help for her, but applied a steel waist, which extended from her hips to her neck, and laced or strapped to try to straighten her up. With the steel waist on she could move around on two crutches but could not move even on crutches without the steel waist. In this condition she went to Dr. Mitchell, at 17 East Superior street, Duluth, and after an examination she decided to place herself under his treatment and see what could be done for her, against the advice of family and friends for they all thought that no one could ever help her. After five treatments Miss Gravelot could walk on her crutches without the steel waist, and after the tenth treatment she could walk without either crutch or brace, and today is as straight and active as she ever was.

Mr. G. W. Thompson, of 807½ East First street, says: "I was sick. Was advised by physicians to fix my business up for I could only live thirty days at the longest, they said I had a very bad case of diabetes and it was impossible to do anything for me. Hearing of Dr. Mitchell and his wonderful power to heal diseases, and being told by Mr. C. H. McCormac, of this city about how the doctor had removed a tumor of five years' standing for him, I decided that if this could be done there might be some help for me, and I placed myself under Dr. Mitchell's treatment for one month, for which I am very thankful, as his treatments worked wonders for me. That is five months ago and I now weigh more than I ever did."

Mrs. E. Loring, 935 Twenty-second avenue west, cured by Dr. Mitchell's magnetic treatments of St. Vitus dance, from which she had suffered everything.

If you are sick do not neglect the opportunity of consulting Dr. Mitchell. Consultation is free. Go and learn how your disease can be cured without medicine. Act for yourselves. To allow the opinion of others to rule your choice, is but submitting tamely to the lowest and most ignominious slavery.

Dr. Mitchell has an office at 17 East Superior street. By bringing this advertisement with you, it will entitle you to consultation free.

SUDDEN END.

Nils Nilson, One of Duluth's Old Residents, Is Dead.

Nils Nilson, one of Duluth's early settlers and best-known citizens, died last evening at his home, 321 East First street. He was born in Sweden sixty-six years ago and has lived in Duluth for the past thirty-two years. He always took great pride in the city and maintained a keen interest in Duluth's welfare, even after he had retired from an active participation in municipal affairs. He was a member of the board of public works under Mayor M. J. Davis in 1890, where he made a splendid reputation for the clear-cut businesslike methods he introduced in the department.

Mr. Nilson's death was due to heart trouble, from which he has been suffering for several months. For the past four days he has been unconscious a great deal of the time. Death came very quietly about 5 o'clock last evening. He is survived by a widow, his children having died some years ago.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Nilson home, 321 East First street. Rev. Harbo, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church, will deliver the funeral sermon.

SAD MISTAKE.

Frank Wilton Should Have Continued to Be Dead.

Frank Wilton made the mistake of his life, when he denied he was dead. His funereal expression cast a shadow over the happiness of police court this morning, and it was very evident that he regretted his denial of a friend's statement that he was the floater found in the harbor last week.

There was a striking resemblance between the floater and Wilton, which led to a supposed identification of the body. Wilton read his obituary and approved of it, except that he denied he was dead. Otherwise the obituary was very accurate and nicely written. Detectives took more interest in his denial than they did in the original publication for they had been searching for him for many months. The police claim that he is a forger and that last December when he left the Bon Voyage, on which he had been working, he received an order on the Howard Transportation company for his wages. He sold this order to the cook of the boat, and then wrote out a forged order on which he collected the wages he had assigned. Not satisfied with this, it is claimed that he even broke into the office of the Howard Transportation company and stole a number of order blanks so that he could pay himself off whenever he felt inclined. He cashed about $8 of stolen orders before he took to the woods and detectives failed to get a trace of him until he voluntarily walked into the fierce white light of publicity with the assertion that he was the only and original Frank Wilton, and the "floater," had not been properly identified. Wilton was arrested while working on the Bon Voyage last evening. This morning in police court he waived a preliminary examination and was bound over to the May grand jury.

Died of Paralysis.

B. G. Peterson, of Columbia Junction, died last evening at St. Mary's hospital of paralysis. He was 56 years of age and well known throughout St. Louis county. For a number of years he was employed as a foreman on construction work for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, but more recently he has been in the pulpwood business.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in Tibbetts' undertaking rooms. Rev. Krantz will conduct the service. The interment will be at Hermantown.

STRIKES COAL BED

J. C. O'Hara Has Made a Find In Canadian Country.

He Finds Lignite While Looking Over Spruce Lands.

Will Get More Land and Explore It Thoroughly.

J. C. O'Hara, the well-known explorer who has worked in this vicinty and in the Rainy Lake country for some time, has made a lucky strike for himself and some Duluth parties who are interested with him in Canada. While looking for spruce lands up north this winter, he found not only a vast quantity of the timber he sought, but what are claimed to be great beds of coal. The coal found is lignite, but experts say that other coal will undoubtedly be found in that vicinity.

Mr. O'Hara has spent about a year exploring in the North, and today he left for that section to close a deal for 16,000 acres of timber lands that include the coal find. Last fall, while he was exploring the country for spruce, for which purpose he was sent out, he found the coal. Later investigation proved the find to be a rich one, and for Mr. O'Hara and his associates it is likely to prove one of the luckiest grubstakes on record.

The land was bought very cheaply about six months ago, and the deal is about to be finally closed at a price that is said to be in the neighborhood of $50 per acre. The parties are keeping the vicinity of the find quiet, because it is their intention to get hold of a good deal more land than they have secured.

If the coal turns out as expected it will prove a very important find. The coal used in the Winnipeg country now is brought from the Cascade range, and it will be a very easy matter to bring in coal from the O'Hara find very much cheaper than it can be brought from the far West.

The spruce part of the deal would have been satisfactorily rich, for it is said that the land to be secured under pending arrangements contains 300,000,000 feet of spruce.

Mr. O'Hara's trip included a large area north of Winnipeg, and he has been traveling with dog teams for the better part of a year. The Hudson's Bay company people told him that he was the first to make the trip in the winter. Very little is known about the country he reached.

THE MEETING.

Tax Commission Likely to Be at Court House.

Arrangements will probably be made to have the tax commission, when it meets here May 14 and 15, hold its sessions in the room at the court house used by the board of county commissioners. The room is probably large enough for the purpose, as it is not likely that the attendance of interested taxpayers will be so large as to tax its capacity. The hopes of those who are interested in having the commission visit this city will be amply fulfilled if the room is comfortably filled.

It will be necessary to have someone to address the commission in behalf of the plan of apportioning the gross earnings taxes. The more there are to talk in behalf of the scheme, the better it will be, of course, but there must be some one or two principal speakers. It has been suggested that if Chester A. Congdon is in the city he will be an excellent selection for this purpose, as he is thoroughly familiar with the plan and has taken a deep interest in it. Mayor Hugo is also versed in it, and he will undoubtedly be present to speak upon the measure.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell it at 50 cents, or it will be mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

If you have a good business, advertise and keep it. If you have not, advertise in The Herald and get it.

ARGUMENTS

Are In Progress In the Cedar Island Lake Case.

Arguments in the famous Cedar Island Lake cases have been in progress before Judge Cant in district court since yesterday morning, and at noon today they were still going with the end in sight. The evidence in the cases was taken some time ago, and by agreement the arguments were put off until yesterday. Messrs. Vanderlip, Briggs and Dickinson have taken the leading part in the arguments.

The two cases on trial are those of the Security Land and Exploration company against H. A. Wesley and others, and the same company against G. A. Burns and others. The defendants are the settlers on the space between the meandered lake shore as the surveyors hastily left it, and the actual shore of the lake. The plaintiffs claim the property by virtue of fillings on the land running up to the meandered line, which fillings they claim give them title to all the large area of land left between the meandered shore line and the actual shore land. The settlers claim that the area in controversy is unsurveyed government land.

ICE HOUSES BURN.

A Big Blaze on Connors Point.

Two big ice houses belonging to the Stafford estate and located on Conner's Point near the Interstate bridge barned this morning. It is supposed that the fire was started by a spark from a passing engine. Conner's Point is pretty well covered with sawdust and the fire department of West Superior by hard work prevented a very serious conflagration. Some four or five blocks of vacant lots, covered with sawdust, were burned over. A fire tug from the Duluth harbor went over and did effective service in saving from the flames a small dock on the bay front. The ice houses were old shells of buildings and have not been used for some time. The value is not known, but would not be very much. They were not insured.

Pillsbury Distribution.

A certified copy of the decree of distribution of the estate of the late Charles A. Pillsbury, of Minneapolis, was filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. It is an immense document, covering 151 type-written pages with the descriptions of property in this state belonging to the estate and distributed equally between the widow and the two sons. The St. Louis county holdings include two-ninths interest in lands in 57-20 and 21 and 58-20 and 21, 59-20 and 21. The other lands are all over the state, some of them in adwjoining counties.

Pigs Taken Away.

Yesterday afternoon the Duluth & Iron Range tug Edna G. took the whaleback pigs 117 and 131 to Ashland. This afternoon the tug Record, of the Great Lakes Towing company, was to take the 107 and 132 to Two Harbors, and tomorrow afternoon two more whalebacks, not yet selected, will be taken to Ashland. All of them will be loaded with ore.

Gophers Defeat Tigers.

The Tigers were defeated in a baseball game by the Gophers this morning at Woodland by a score of 24 to 16. The feature of the game was a very pretty one-handed catch by Arsenal, of the Gophers. The two teams lined up in the following order:

Gophers—		Tigers—
Schafer	catcher	McKenzie
McLean	pitcher	Duncan (capt.)
Miller	first base	Harrison
Carlson	second base	W. Bradley
Fenton	short stop	Drane
Mitchell	third base	Jones
Arnson	right field	Dietz

AT WEST DULUTH

Park Commissioners Burnside and Helm visited the site of the West Duluth park on Thusrday and found that some person or persons have been taking up young trees for transplanting purposes. The varieties taken were Balm of Gilead and balsam. There are many growths of these young trees, and unless this practice is stopped great damage will be done. Not only have trees been taken, but other young trees have been hacked wantonly with hatchets or axes and ruined. The park board, while it does not believe that anybody has been taking the trees or doing the damage with a view of damaging the park site, is taking steps to prosecute to the full extent of the law any man, woman or child that is caught performing any damage at the park.

The commissioners were delighted with the purchase, and Mr. Helm says that the site is even far better than he had any idea that it was. The city engineer's force has surveyed and outlined the tract, and the surveyors claim that there is the making of one of the prettiest parks at the head of the lake. Fine drinking water is furnished from a spring brook that runs through the tract. There is also a great diversity of surface, more so than at any other park in the city. On the lower side there is a system of natural terraces that, with a little improvement, are sure, the commissioners say, to be one of the best features.

Commissioner Burnside says that a fountain could be put in at the foot of the falls that would throw a stream fifty to seventy-five feet high. It is understood that the park board is planning to improve on the east and south side this season just as much as they can with the funds available for the purpose. It will take some time and money to put the park in first-class condition, but improvements will be carried along every year as much as possible.

'LONGSHOREMEN TO MEET.

The West Duluth 'Longshoremen's union will meet in Gilley's hall tonight for the purpose of nominating the officers of the union for the coming year. The election of officers will be held about the first of May. George O'Neil has been president of the organization for the year just closing. This is the first regular meeting of the union that has been called since last fall. A special meeting was had during the winter to elect delegates to attend the conference with the officers of the Lumber Carriers' association, at Ashland, at which the wage question was settled for the season. Last season the 'longshoremen received 60 cents per hour, but the scale was reduced to 50 cents this season. The members of the union are anxious to see the marine engineers' troubles settled and the lumber boats running.

HORSE RACE.

West Duluth has quite a sporting event planned for tomorrow. There has been a question raised as to the relative speed of the horses belonging to Louis Fouault and to Barney Nellis, and the test will be made tomorrow afternoon, on Grand avenue, at 2 o'clock. The race will be the best two in three heats, and for $10 aside.

SENATE CLUB MEETING.

The Senate club gave its first annual ball at the Great Eastern hall last evening and the event was a memorable one. The hall was filled, some of the visitors coming from West Superior, Duluth and Proctorknott. The decorations and music and supper were all conducive to a good time. The music was furnished by the Columbian orchestra, and Felix Herzog, of Duluth, was prompter.

THE MATCH FACTORY.

There is a large amount of work going on at the Duluth Match factory in the way of getting the plant ready for the machinery. A fine maple floor is being put in to cover the immense floor space in the main building, new boiler beds are being put in, and the engines, which are said to be in very good condition in spite of their long idleness, are being repaired and painted. Some of the machinery could be put in now, but the management is waiting for the match making machines, in the construction of which there has been a slight delay.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

There will be a forty-hour devotional in honor of the Blessed Sacrament at the St. James church in West Duluth, beginning May 7 and ending May 9. The services will commence and end with solemn high mass. They will be conducted by Rev. Father Feeheely, who will be assisted by priests from Duluth and from out of the city.

Contractor H. C. Brown has taken the work of repairing the building, near Gosnold and Central avenue, occupied by the shirt factory that was recently burned out. It is understood that the shirt company will put in some new machinery and start up in the same building in the near future. It will have an enlarged capacity.

The West Duluth Republican club will have a special meeting this evening for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee appointed to look into the matter of getting up a banquet next month.

A jolly wagon ride was given by a number of young people of West Duluth last evening. The party were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Emil Zauft.

The West Duluth Juniors will meet the Big Duluth team tomorrow. It is expected that it will be the warmest ball game thus far pulled off this season.

Chief Crandall was a visitor at West Duluth this morning. He said the visit was of no special importance.

There will be no services in the Congregational church tomorrow morning, but next week F. O. Karuse, of Appleton, Wis., will take charge of the services.

Anna Strange hive, No. 6, will give their second annual ball in Gilley's hall, Thursday evening, May 2. Good music.

Di Marco's string orchestra will furnish music at The Office this evening. Henry Breen will be prompter.

The partnership heretofore existing between Phillip and Lindgren, as Phillips & Co., has this day been dissolved by mutual consent, C. M. Phillip retiring. The business will be continued by Lindgren Cycle company, who will collect all accounts and pay all debts of old company. The new company are agents for the Dayton & Thistle bicycles.

BELT LINE ASSURED.

Milwaukee Railroads Agree On a Plan.

Milwaukee, April 27.—The Journal today says: The railroad belt line for Milwaukee, about which there has been so much talk for the past few years, is now practically assured. The belt line is to be made a certainty through an agreement which has been reached between the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroda companies. Each road is to use part of the right-of-way of the other, and a spur connecting the two roads will be built immediately. The improvements planned will open a large tract of property for manufacturing purposes and give to the city such railway facilities that it has never before enjoyed.

BURNED TO THE GROUND.

The Postoffice at Tyndall, S. D., Is Destroyed.

St. Paul, April 27.—A Tyndall, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: During a terrific gale last night the postoffice building and the store of William Metzgar burned to the ground and the whole town was threatened, but the fire stopped at the two-story stone store of Joseph Kielbauch.

The losers are: A. A. Dye, of Madison, Wis., owner of the postoffice building; William Metzgar, Postmaster C. H. Stilwell and Joseph Kielbauch.

POSTAL DECISION.

Money Orders Payable Only at Office Drawn.

Washington, April 27.—The comptroller of the treasury has decided that postal money orders are payable only by postmasters upon whom they are drawn and to whom notice of the issue thereof has been sent. It has been the practice heretofore to cash money orders at postoffices other than those on which they are drawn, and for the postmasters cashing such orders to turn them in to the postoffice department as vouchers.

TO BE A DIPLOMAT.

Copenhagen, April 27.—It is generally understood in political and diplomatic circles that when the Schested ministry retires, as it is expected to do at the end of June, Herr Bramsen, the present minister of the interior, will be appointed Danish minister at Washington. Herr Bramsen was formerly manager of an insurance company.

INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

Cleveland, April 27.—Secretary Paul North, of the American trap shooting team, said today that arrangements have been practically completed whereby the contest between the American and British teams in England will take place early in June. "Our team will hold a conference in New York Monday," said Mr. North, "and if the transportation can be secured we will sail either May 23 or May 25."

COMPANY SIGNS SCALE.

Pittsburg, April 27.—J. A. Pryle, of the International Association of Structural Iron Workers, announced today that the American Bridge company has signed the new scale submitted by the structural workers of the different cities to go into effect May 1, with the single exception of Milwaukee. There a dispute is on which may result in trouble.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—

ASPHALT PETITION

New Complication Arises In Superior Street Paving Matter.

Request For Sheet Asphalt to Go In Monday.

But Two or Three Names Lacking to Compete.

A petition to pave Superior street with sheet asphalt will probably be presented to the council on Monday evening. The board of public works will not be ready to report on the vitrified brick petition at that time, and the indications are that there is going to be a very brisk fight for the Superior street contract.

The asphalt interests have been working so quietly, it was generally conceded that the asphalt people had withdrawn from the race, giving a clear field to the supporters and petitioners for vitrified brick. The announcement that a second petition is likely to be presented Monday night will probably create a stir.

Agents for the Barber Asphalt company are in the city today, but decline to say anything regarding their petition. From a thoroughly reliable source it was learned that the asphalt petition is only lacking two or three names until it will have the requisite "25 per cent of the property owners owning 25 per cent of the property to be assessed."

The two or three names are expected by noon on Monday. The vitrified brick interests are claiming that the members of the board of public works have held up the brick report, but this is claimed to be absurd by the board. The fact is that the commissioners have been unusually busy with other improvements since the vitrified brick petition was presented two days ago.

President Wilson of the board of public works examined the brick paving at the Marshall-Wells new building yesterday and says that although it has only been down about a month, he notices that it is chipped considerably.

A representative of the asphalt people say that they can make the Superior street paving fully as cheaply as the price for vitrified brick when all matters are taken into consideration. Telegrams were sent by this representative from here to the city engineers of St. Paul and Minneapolis today as to the price for vitrified brick. St. Paul replied that the brick in that city cost $1.95 per square yard, without a guarantee that the paving should last for a period of years. The Minneapolis engineer wired that brick paving cost that city $1.75 per square yard, the city putting it down by day labor. This was also without a guarantee. A third telegram was then sent a large brick dealer in Chicago asking if an additional charge would be made on brick paving if a guarantee should be demanded. The reply was that 25 per cent additional would be charged for a 10-year guarantee.

The Barber Asphalt company offers to pave Superior street at $2.10 per square yard and give a 10-year guarantee that the material will prove satisfactory.

IT IS SOLD.

Property of Northwestern Supply Company Disposed Of.

F. W. Parsons, assignee of the Northwestern Supply company, sold all of the property of the company Thursday afternoon, and this morning the court confirmed the sale, which did not include the book accounts and bills receivable.

The sale was a good one, and most of the property was purchased by the Northwestern Manufacturing company. This company took nearly all of the large stuff, including the machinery and materials. The Duluth Iron and Metal company, the Duluth Scrap Iron company and the Marshall-Wells Hardware company also made purchases. The assignee's report does not show what the sale brought in the way of cash, as the articles were sold at the rate of so much per ton and not in the lump.

Judge Dibell, in special term this morning, signed an order confirming the sale. W. F. Leggett presented a claim of $84.50 for services as a traveling salesman, and asserted that his claim should constitute a lien on the property. This matter was taken under advisement.

New Use For Electricity.

A professor recently discovered that electricity is a stimulant for the brain. We do not wish to dispute the merits of this discovery, but are inclined to think that the only natural stimulant for the brain is sleep. If you are not able to sleep you are certainly in a bad way. It is usually caused by the stomach being out of order, the disturbance being communicated to the brain. Keep the stomach in good condition by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and you will have insomnia no longer. It is a splendid medicine for strengthening the nerves and will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and biliousness. As a spring tonic it has no equal. See that our Private Revenue Stamp is on the neck of the bottle.

Her Last Services.

Tomorrow's services at the First Methodist church will be the last in which Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Woodward will take part and special programs have been arranged to mark the event for both morning and evening. The numbers will be requested ones in response to the wishes of friends.

The best cigar made in Duluth is the Tom Reed. Ask for it.

The grand opening of the Palmer house bar, at 110 West First street, will take place this evening.

D. W. Powell, of Marquette, of the contracting firm of Powell & Mitchell, is in the city today. This firm has the government work at Two Harbors and Mr. Powell said that a tug and scow left Marquette today for Two Harbors, with the intention of opening up the work for the season by next Monday. The firm worked all last season and the remaining contract work will not last very long.

Marriage licenses have been issued to John G. Elder and Eleanor Leytham, and to Clement Gill and Martha Braaswik.

A meeting will be held at the First Methodist church Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to discuss the organization of a Y. W. C. T. U. in Duluth.

Professor Mosner, the celebrated trick bicyclist, will give an exhibition at Odd Fellows' hall, Monday evening, April 29, at the masquerade ball given by the H. A. D. club of Duluth.

W. I. Thomas, of the Duluth central high school, will address the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting tomorrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock on "A Man of Practical Affairs." This will be preceded by a short praise service in honor of the coming secretary, Mr. Bevis, and for Mr. Schuman's arrival at Rio de Janeiro.

Profanity, when used in a street car, is expensive. Andrew Solberg and William Faubister, two young men from West Duluth were given a hearing in police court this morning on that charge, and both were found guilty. It cost each of them $4.25.

Mrs. Evaline Hillman, mother of Mrs. F. A. Pettibone, died last evening at the home of her daughter, on Duluth Heights. Mrs. Hillman was born in Vermont 79 years ago and has lived in this city for the past ten years. The funeral arrangements had not been announced at a late hour this afternoon.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Grochauski, of 217 Pittsburg avenue.

County Auditor Halden had his class of assessors in today, but as the assessment this year is on personal property there was not much to tell them outside of the routine, so most of the assessors took their books and blanks and flew. The work of assessing the personal property of the county begins next Wednesday, and it will take several weeks to get it in shape.

Judge Cant has filed his findings in the case of Fletcher B. Rowell against the S. J. Thomas Lumber company, in which a large number of claimants intervened. He finds judgment for the claims as proven, and orders the receiver of the company to pay them in full if there are funds enough, and if there are not funds enough to distribute them pro rata.

Ward Anes gave a very interesting talk last evening on the Orient. He gave a brief summary of his trip through China and Japan and illustrated it with views of interest and much variety taken in those countries. Mrs. R. L. Knebel gave vocal solos during the evening.

The Minnesota grand lodge of the Royal Arch will hold its next biennial meeting in this city. This was decided on at a meeting of the grand lodge held in St. Paul yesterday. It is expected that the Duluth meeing two years hence will be a very large affair.

EVEN STAGE.

Waters of Ohio Holding Even and Will Recede.

Cincinnati, April 27.—An even stage has been maintained in the Ohio river flood since 9 p. m. The register is 59.7 feet. This, of course, delays the resumption of business, but as the weather everywhere above Cincinnati is reported clear and warm, it is certain the water will soon begin to recede. Little can be done in the way of cleaning up in the submerged district before Monday.

HAS TO PAY.

Chicago Jury Holds Option Dealings Are Not Gambling.

Chicago, April 27.—Alonzo J. Cutler, a board of trade broker, was today awarded a verdict of $54,000 against C. W. Pardridge. The amount of the verdict represents losses which Mr. Pardridge was alleged to have refused to pay on the ground that they were gambling debts, having resulted from speculation on the board of trade. The action of the jury is also a victory for the board, upholding as it does the validity of contracts made on 'change for future delivery of grain or provisions.

TO BUILD HOMES

Ten New Cottages to Go Up On Park Point.

Duluth Man Sees a Good Investment There.

Some Plans For Improvements For the Summer.

The erection of ten cottages on Park Point is the scheme which has been hatching in the mind of a Duluth man, and he has figured out a nice profit in the investment. The contract is let or about to be let for the construction of at least ten new cottages at convenient locations on the Point not very far from the pavilion. These cottages will be models of convenience, with plenty of room and substantially built. They will not be built close together, but scattered. It is understood the new cottages are to be about 26 feet long and 10 feet wide, with three rooms. A kitchen of a good size will be built on the rear. Porches will extend across the back and front. Parties that are interested in this deal already report a rush of people who wish to rent on the Point for the summer.

Already there is a tide of campers setting toward the Point. Yesterday and today the pilgrimage of people, with light household furniture and bedding was quite heavy, and if the warm weather continues a rush is expected by the first of next week. Many of the old campers have taken advantage of the spring season to repair and build additions to their cottages, while nearly a dozen new cottages of various designs and sizes are in the process of erection between the canal and the pavilion. Some building is going on on the other side of the pavilion.

The Interstate Traction company has laid a temporray cable across the canal and are supplying enough power to keep one car giving hourly service to the end of the line on the Point. Owing to the dredging work now going on in the canal, permanent cables cannot be laid for about ten days, as the temporary cable has to be moved every little while to keep out of the way of the dredges. As soon as the dredges have finished, two cables will be laid and power will be supplied to run the Point railway line to its capacity. Twenty-minute will be given when the cars are put on.

The Interstate Traction company has planned a number of improvements to begin in the immediate future. One is the improvement of the grove just at the end of the street car line into a park. People owning shacks that have squatted on the land have been notified to move off and the movement has already begun. It is possible that the system of switches at the end of the line will also be pushed a little farther on. The space between the pavilion and the bay will be cleaned off and steps taken to terrace and beautify it. The action of the waves has done considerable damage to the cottages along the bay shore and there is hardly a cottage that stood close to the shore that has not been damaged. New building is now going on on the higher land on the north side of the tracks.

Some time in May, when the weather is warm enough, the company will put on some new open motor cars. Open trailers will be run in connection with these, for night service, when there are crowds at the pavilion.

HOUSE SOLD.

Handsome Church Residence Bought For Steel Combine Official.

The handsome B. C. Church residence at the corner of Dingwall street and Twenty-first avenue east has been sold, and it is understood that the purchaser is someone connected with the United States Steel company. Thomas F. Cole, who last week bought the Chapin house for his own use, has been negotiating for the Church residence, and is reported to have bought it for $13,000. The house is a very beautiful one. It was built by E. C. Holliday, who put a great deal of money into improvements upon it, and afterwards it was sold to B. C. Church, former manager of the Imperial Mill company.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Coaching Party Overturned at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 27.—A coaching party, consisting of several of the most prominent young men in Philadelphia, was overturned at Fifteenth and Spring Garden streets today. Joseph E. Widener, aged 30 years, son of P. A. B. Widener, had his skull fractured and is dying at a hospital. Harrison K. Caner was also badly injured.

At 3 p. m. the hospital officials reported Mr. Widener had recovered consciousness and was slightly better. Hopes are now entertained for his ultimate recovery.

AFTER SMUGGLERS.

Extensive Scheme Said to Have Been Found.

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 27.—A special to the Daily Telegraph from South Bend, Ind., says: The chief of the Grand Trunk detective force is here investigating an extensive smuggling scheme, alleged to have been carried on for months between Canadian parties and accomplices in South Bend. No particulars have been obtained.

Dr. Humphrey's

SPECIFIC SYSTEM covers a wide range of disease as it is safe for a layman to treat. A few of the most used cures are:

GRIP AND COLDS.—The use of "77" starts the blood coursing through the veins until it reaches the extremities, when the feet warm up and the Cold is broken.

RHEUMATISM.—The use of No. 15 neutralizes the uric acid in the blood, and the poison passes off through the kidneys.

DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, Weak Stomach—The use of No. 10 stimulates the gastric juices, the food assimilates, the digestion is perfected.

MALARIA is prevalent owing to the upheaval of the streets. The use of No. 16 "breaks up" the Chills and Fever, while its tonicity sustains the system.

A FULL RUN.

Mitchell & McClure Begin Day and Night Work.

The Mitchell & McClure mill at West Duluth started yesterday to make day and night runs. Thus far the mill has been sawing with two band saws, and no trouble has been had in finding enough men to keep up with the work. A little later, as soon as matters are moving smoothly and without delay, the gang saws will be put in operation and more men will be needed. Duncan & Brewer will in a few days start up running days and nights. This mill was the first to start up this season. It is understood that some of the other mills will be running day and night before the season is far advanced, but so far as can be learned the Merrill & Ring mill will not be among the number.

There is a strong rumor to the effect that the negotiations by the Diamond Match company for the Merrill & Ring property have not fallen entirely through as some would have it appear. The publicity given the proposed deal has not been at all pleasing to either party. The match company officials are said to be displeased because the reports of the pending deal have had the effect of causing timbermen all over the Northwest to put up their prices for standing pine, when the idea was to keep the deal quiet until the match company had secured as much timber at the lowest figures possible.

WARMEST OF THE YEAR.

Weather Gets Up to Summer Point.

This is the warmest day of the year, the temperature being 78. In the downtown district the day has been as sultry as if it were mid-summer. The record of the weather bureau, however, shows that there have been more torrid days earlier in the spring, the April warm weather record being 81. The temperature today is 20 degrees above the average at that. The sultry wave may be driven off by local showers tonight and tomorrow, but there is little prospect for a general rain.

Chicago Court Turns Down Chicago Tunnel Mandamus Case.

Chicago, April 27.—Judge Neely, sitting in the circuit court today, refused to issue a writ of mandamus to compel the West Chicago Street Railway company to lower its tunnel under the river at Van Buren street. The writ was asked by the city, alleging that the tunnel impedes navigation. The case will be appealed.

WILL ASK ADVANCE.

Window Glass Workers Want More Money.

Pittsburg, April 27.—The wage committee of the Window Glass Workers' association, L. A. 300, met at headquarters today to complete the new scale. There is no doubt that a substantial advance will be asked and that a settlement will be made soon. President Simon Burns said the demands would not be made public until they were first presented to the manufacturers Tuesday afternoon.

DYNAMITERS AT WORK.

Plot to Blow Up a Mine Discovered.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 27.—An attempt was made during the night to blow up the Midland Plaster company's mine near here. A fuse leading to 500 pounds of dynamite, so placed that its explosion would wreck the mine, was discovered by an employe who destroyed it. Forty men who were employed in the mine, getting out stuff for the Pan-American exposition, struck yesterday. The mine was guarded today by a force of deputies.

VISIT THE SECRETARY.

Washington, April 27.—Nearly all the foreign ambassadors called upon Secretary Hay today to bid him farewell before he left on the president's trip. Practically all of them have signified their intention to visit Europe during the secretary's absence. Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, announced that he had changed his plans and would leave shortly for England.

COUNT IS ACQUITTED

French Count Cleared of Murder of His Wife.

Shot Her Thrice as She Left Admirer's House.

The Acquitted Count Makes Speech to the Jury.

Paris, April 27.—Count Cornulier, after two days' trial for the murder of his wife, Nov. 17, by shooting her three times as she was leaving the house of a lawyer, M. Leroux, an admirer of the countess before her marriage, was acquitted today amidst the applause of those in the court. The count made a speech in which he thanked the jurors in the name of his three children.

The Countess Cornulier was a woman of unusual beauty, and 31 years of age. She was a daughter of Count Vianney and married Count Charles Cornulier, who is 43 years of age, fourteen years ago. The eldest of their three children is 13 years old. The marriage proved unhappy, and on the advice of his father the countess separated from her husband four years ago. Last year she was given a decree by which she obtained possession of her children. The count discovered that the countess frequently visited M. Leroux, who is said to have acted as the legal adviser of the countess. The count, Nov. 17, secreted himself on the stairway of M. Leroux's home, after having ascertained that his wife had entered the house, and when she descended the stairs, without a word, he fired at her three times with a revolver, each shot taking effect. She died in an ambulance without regaining consciousness. The count surrendered himself to the police, saying: "I did it. I am her husband." He was the first to give aid to his wife after she fell and asked that a priest be sent for.

FIENDISH.

Dr. Durrell Says That Was Grogan's Dying Expression.

Cambridge, Mass., April 27.—The bullet which caused the death of Richard H. Grogan, Jr., was handed around for microscopic examination by the jury today, in the trial of Charles R. Eastman, charged with murdering Grogan. The bullet was introduced in connection with the testimony of Dr. Durrell, who was summoned when Grogan was killed and who was present at two autopsis subsequently held.

Dr. Durrell testified that after the shooting of Grogan he went to Eastman's house, where Eastman recounted the affair and illustrated how he stood relative to Grogan when the shot was fired. Eastman said he was trying to revolve the cylinder in the old revolver, when it went off accidentally. He said when the shot was fired Grogan fell to his knees, and that the latter had a "fiendish or devilish" expression on his face.

Dr. Durrell told where the bullet was found in Grogan's body, and said that it fitted into the old rim-fire revolver.

The only other witness of the day was Police Inspector Jones, who testified that after the shooting Eastman said to the witness that he (witness) must have heard of the trouble in the family, but that it had been settled three months before and everyone had shaken hands over it. Eastman said he never had any trouble with Grogan and in fact had helped him. Eastman showed witness a wound on the side of the hip. He said he did not know how it happened or whether it was before or after the shooting of Grogan.

Two hours after Eastman was locked up, witness said he and the chief of police went to Eastman's cell and the chief said to Eastman: "What would you think if I told you that I had a witness who had seen a struggle between you and Grogan?"

Eastman replied that he should say that it was not so. Some time later the chief of police and the inspector again went to Eastman's cell and Eastman retracted his former statement and said that a struggle had taken place, but that it was not until after Grogan had been shot.

TROUBLES FOR TURKEY.

Is Rolling Up Big Bills For Ships.

Constantinople, April 27.—The Turkish government is concluding a contract for a new cruiser, although nothing has been paid on account of the cruiser ordered in the United States. Neither has anything been paid on the Krupp account for naval guns, nor have the eight ironclads, which have been contracted to be transformed into modern ships, being taken to Germany, owing to lack of funds. Two torpedo boats bought at Genoa have not been delivered for the same cause. The sum of 20,000 pounds (Turkish) is due to the Krupps, and their demands for a settlement are becoming pressing.

ARE MADE BRIGADIERS.

Two Officers Are Rewarded For Faithful Service.

Washington, April 27.—The president has appointed Col. Merritt Barber, of the adjutant general's department, and Maj. Oscar F. Long, of the quartermaster's department, brigadier generals of volunteers on account of their long and faithful services during the campaign in the Philippines. Maj. Long has had charge of the transport service at San Francisco and Col Barber rendered important service at the headquarters of Gen. MacArthur at Manilla.

OBSERVED THE DAY.

Knoxville, Tenn. April 27.—The thirty-sixth anniversary of the destruction of the government transport Sultana on the Mississippi river, near Memphis, by which 1600 lives were lost, was commemorated here today. About 100 of the 300 men who escaped from the boat were present. Several states were represented.

MEMORY OF GRANT

Fitting Exercises to Commemorate Birthday of Great Leader.

Held at Galena, Ill., and Were Attended By Thousands.

Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus Was the Orator of the Day.

Galena, Ill., April 27.—Exercises in commemoration of the 79th anniversary of the birth of Gen. U. S. Grant were held today in this city. Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus and a party of guests arrived from Chicago shortly after noon. They were escorted by the G. A. R. posts and hundreds of visiting delegations from surrounding towns.

At Turner hall an immense audience gathered. President William Rippin of the Grant Birthday association opened the exercises in a short speech.

Letters of regret were read from Mrs. Gen. Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, Admiral Dewey, Chauncey M. Depew, Senator Allison and others.

Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus, the orator of the day, in his address said:

"We are worthy of the memory of Grant only when we have his magnanimity, straightforwardness, heroism and sense of justice toward the oppressed of every race. It is demoralizing for us to parade our shallow scepticism as to the value of emancipation and the necessity of honest suffrage for the negro in the presence of this great name and seek to simulate contentment as to the condition of the freedmen when the thunder of his uncompromising righteousness fills our ears. Justice must be done to the negro who has the ballot in his hands and the franchise must be protected, or we must at last sink into abysses of hypocrisy with Grant's monument casting a shadow over us. Our American life needs now as never before to emulate the man who was as gentle as he was strong, who never knew how to boast and who believed in the simplicity of righteousness. It was Grant who prevented the republic from breaking its moral contract made by the greenback, and it will be the American spirit such as we then saw incarnated in Grant at a moment when dividends were counted more precious than honor or manhood, which shall now redeem our pledges to the negro who was as effective as the greenback in helping to purify our flag.

"When Grant sent Sheridan to Louisiana to carry justice to the negro, his was a republicanism which must always believe that a flag worthy of respect will protect its citizens, black or white, from outrage and wrong. It will require a stern heroism at the North to beat back a wave of supercilious and unmanly prejudice against the negro which will aspire to deprive of civil rights as the same prejudice once enslaved him at the South. It is a great day when Wise of Virginia, who has in his blood the memory of that Wise of Virginia who hung John Brown, stands courageously against the apparent decadence of the Union League club of New York city and helps to bring it back to the standard under which it fought in the days of Grant and Lincoln. It was mercantilism which was willing to permit Lincoln and Grant to be ineffective against the slave power nearly forty years ago. It is now a sodden and greedy commercialism which chokes the conscience of the republic, and nothing but the love of justice in which the sword of Grant was sharpened and ground will save our nation and our constitution as before. So long as state sovereignty may annul constitutional amendments and destroy the liberty or threaten the ballot of an American citizen, be he black or white, we are utterly unworthy of the memory of Ulysses S. Grant. His spirit alone makes us a nation."

PLAYING OFF TIE.

London, April 27.—The Sheffield and Hotspur ball teams replayed the final tie game at Bolton this afternoon. The grounds were packed with 40,000 persons. At the end of the first half the score stood: Sheffield, 1; Hotspur, 0. Shortly after the resumption of play the Hotspurs evened up the score.

DEATH SONG.

Gang In a Barroom Received a Shock and a Sermon.

Philadelphia, April 27.—Death stopped the songs and stories at Devine's place. Death gave the gang a shock and a sermon, and claimed a victim there. It was a goodly crowd that had gathered in the place. The bar room was cozy; the streets cold and wet and bare. There was laughter in the bar room, with music on the side. A crowd from the Central club happened along and someone offered to buy.

"Al" Rouleau, the son of a builder, and who had never tasted drink, passed in with the crowd and joined in the general cheer. Songs were sung by men who could sing, and stories were told as only some men can tell them. The entertainment was decent, the crowd orderly, and Devine's proved a pleasant spot for all.

The cheer passed round and round, and it was up to Rouleau to sing a song or tell a story.

"I'm cold and can scarcely speak boys," said the lad. He was 22 yesterday.

"Drink a drop of gin," suggested Jerry, the prince of mixers behind the bar. With a stiff drink of gin the boy loosened up and told this story:

"We were at Siboney, the fever camp just below Santiago, and things looked pretty blue for all of us. One fellow who had traveled a bit and read a lot kept us up nights telling us of his experiences. A more entertaining beggar I never knew, and he was at his best this night. Eight of our men had died that day, and Stannard said Siboney reminded him of a b—l hole in India where a bunch of English soldiers died of fever years ago. He dug up some verses and read them to us, and if you'll stand for them here I'll recite them as near as I can."

Another drink all round, and the crowd hunched back to the wall to give Rouleau a chance. The youthful veteran of Santiago took another stiff drink of gin, and with his back to the bar, facing a crowd of fifty or more, Rouleau began the wall from the lost in—

"INDIA—THE REVELRY OF DEATH."

"We meet 'neath the sounding rafter,
And the walls around are bare,
As they echo the peals of laughter
It seems that the dead are there.

"But stand to your glasses steady,
We drink to our comrades' eyes;
Quaff a cup for the dead already,
And hurrah for the next who dies."

That stanza made a ten-strike, and cheers greeted the effort. Some fool with money proposed a drink, but was cried down by the crowd, and Rouleau went on:

"Not a sigh for the lot that darkies,
Not a tear for the friends that sink;
We fall, midst the wine cup's sparkles
As mute as the wine we drink."

The grewsome verse seemed to please the gang, and no artist on the stage ever received a better hand than Rouleau.

"Who dreads to the dust returning?
Who shrinks from the sable shore,
Where the high and haughty yearning
Of the soul shall sing no more?"

Then he stopped to take a drink of gin, his sixth in less than an hour. With flashing eyes, rum-inspired vigor, natural eloquence and artistic effect, he silenced the shifting bunch with the finale:

"Stand, stand to your glasses steady!
'Tis all we have left to prize!
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next who dies!"

As he finished, and while the audience was applauding, he suddenly grew pale, tottered and exclaimed:

"It's hot, boys! Hot as h—l! A drink—quick—not gin—water, water—Jesus—mamma—Oh, God, I'm dying!"

Rouleau was dead.

Devine's place was closed—closed by death.

EXPOSITION IS OPENED.

DRIVING IS ACTIVE

Work on Rivers and Streams Beginning In Earnest.

The Swan River Logging Company's Great Record.

St. Louis River Filled With Logs---Getting Lower.

Log-driving on the rivers is beginning in earnest in the district around Duluth, and it is likely that before the end of the coming week there will not be a log-ging stream in the Northwest that will not be the scene of considerable activity along this line. The Swan river landing was broken very successfully and 50,000,000 feet of logs have been started down the river in three days. The breakup is said by those that witnessed it to have been quick and effective. The river was high, so that no trouble was encountered. The landing that is broken was about 5000 feet long, running back from the mouth of the river and filling the stream with logs in every conceivable position from bank to bank, with the exception of a narrow channel of open water on the farther side. The Swan River Logging company's year will close on July 1, and by that time the company will have handled 120,000,000 feet of logs. Of these, 20,000,000 are to be handled between the present time and July 1. There is no hauling being done on the road now, but it will be started up as soon as the lakes into which the logs are dumped in the winter are free from ice.

The Swan River company has been in existence about eight or nine years, and during that time has banked over 1,000,000,000 feet of logs. The timber now being cut by the company was purchased nine years ago from the Weyerhaueser interests by the Wright & Davis company, the price paid being $1,450,000. The contract was taken to log and deliver at the Mississippi. The Duluth, Mississippi & Northern logging road was then built and work started on the contract. Not long afterward iron ore was found on the timber lands, and a few years ago J. J. Hill bought up all the Wright & Davis interests, paying $5,000,000. The price at that time was a large one, but Great Northern officials say that Mr. Hill could sell the same lands today for $20,000,000 and perhaps more.

In Silver Lake, at Virginia, Moon & Keer have put in 5,000,000 feet of logs, which have been sold to the Northern Lumber company. The logs will be hauled by rail to the St. Louis river and driven down the Cloquet for sawing as soon as the lake is free from ice. Logs are moving quite freely. The St. Louis river is lower than for a week past and the jam in the river extends for many miles from Cloquet. Millions of logs are jammed in the river in what would seem an inextricable confusion, filling the stream from bank to bank, and still more are pressing upon these from above. The Cloquet mills are working and the driving crews are busy at the sorting works.

Lumbermen that are operating on the south shore streams are getting their logs into water as fast as they can, and many crews are working along these rivers. Some logs are already being towed to the mills. The Amnicon, Nemadji, Middle, Poplar and Brule rivers are all open and running high, a condition very different than a year ago at this time. The Empire Lumber company, operating the St. Croix & Duluth logging road, have over 20,000,000 feet banked on the St. Croix river, and will break the landing and begin driving down to the Mississippi within the next ten days. The road will be hauling logs to the river until late in August.

Work has begun on the Thunder Bay & Nepigon railway. This road received large land concessions from the Dominion government, and proposes to build from Thunder Bay to Lake Superior to the Nepigon river, a distance of about eighty miles. It is said by engineers that along the proposed line there is a larger body of pulpwood and hardwood timber than in any other district of the size in this country. It is said that the projectors of the road expect to hold out great opportunities to paper makers and timber operators when they get the work further under way.

All Odd Fellows

are requested to meet at I. O. O. F. Hall tomorrow, 1 p. m. sharp, to attend anniversary ceremonies at West Superior.

By Order of Committee.

HE WILL COME

Jack Revoyr, the Star Twirler, to Join Duluth.

Here's great news for baseball enthusiasts. Jack Revoyr, the crack French-Canadian twirler, has been secured from the Chicago White Stockings. He will do the heavy pitching this season if he signs the contract that has been forwarded by Manager Hansell. A letter received from him today indicates that he will be glad to come here for another season's experience before joining fast company.

Revoyr pitched most of the practice games for the Chicago team this season, and in his last game he shut out the hard hitting maroons from the University of Chicago.

Manager Hansell has also signed a new third baseman. His name is Connors, and it is claimed that he is the fastest man that has ever signed to play third for the local team. His work resembles that of Shepperd at short, which will make a pretty fast infield.

Sturgeon, the Milwaukee catcher, reported for practice at Oneota park yesterday. A few of the players and candidates went through light practice and showed up in good form for so early in season. Those already selected for the Duluth team are: Sturgeon, catcher; Revoyr and Glenney, pitchers; Shepperd, short stop; Connors, third base; Lambert, center field, and Randall, right field. First, second and left field are still open.

Nothing has been heard from the Ironwood-Hurley team, and all that remains to complete the organization of the Northwestern league is for the fans of these two towns to get together.

WETMORE'S GELATINE.
Granulated or shredded; 10 cents at all grocers.

Dentists Will Feast.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Duluth-Superior Dental association, last evening, arrangements were made for a banquet, to be given at the Spalding on May 11. During the afternoon of that day a clinic will be held by Dr. Wedelstaedt, of St. Paul, in the office of Dr. S. R. Holden. Papers will be read by Dr. Wedelstaedt and Dr. Marcus B. Cullum.

Back From Philippines.

A quartet of Duluth volunteers returned last evening after a two-years' service in the Philippines. They are: Albert Dryer, Adolph Rappenecker, Lewis Harcourt and John Pyves. They served in Company A, Thirty-fourth Volunteer infantry, and were stationed at a coast town of Baler, in Luzon. The men were recently mustered out at San Francisco.

Celebrating Students Are Arrested By Houghton Police.

Houghton—Students of the Michigan school of mines celebrated the passage of the appropriation bill of $175,000 for the school, with bonfires and parades Friday night. The disturbance led to a collision with the police and seventeen students were arrested. Friends secured their release and subsequent discharge.

The tug Valerie made her first trip Thursday. She went to Portage entry in the afternoon. Capt. Dedler had aboard Rev. Fr. Rezek, of Houghton, Dan Powell, of Marquette, and W. G. Cooper, of Portage entry. The latter says that considerable sheet ice was encountered during the trip but they had no trouble in getting through and in returning. The Valerie was the first boat from here to go to the entry this season.

Bessemer—Some five years ago Gust Bergstrum, a merchant of Wakefield, this county, reported that his [illegible] had been robbed of $200. Detectives [illegible] at work, but in a few weeks [illegible] was found where it had been [illegible] owner. About seven weeks ago the same store was reported to have been robbed again, and a complaint was made, charging Malcolm Stewart, a traveling salesman for Swift & Co., of Duluth, with the crime. The amount taken was claimed to have been $1000. A warrant was issued and upon examination Mr. Stewart was discharged, there not being sufficient evidence. Now again it is reported that the money has been found where it had been left by Mr. Bergstrum.

Children playing near the house of Mrs. Ross, at Ramsey, made more noise than was acceptable, and Mrs. Ross told them to go away, but they refused. She became angered and began firing a revolver. Luckily no one was hurt.

Gogebic county is experiencing a lively interest in real estate. Transfers are more numerous than at any time for the last ten years.

IN A VISION.

Cousin Saw the Murder of George Stover Committed.

Philadelphia, April 27.—After the funeral of George Stover, who was murdered last Saturday night, Mrs. Margaret Butcher, a cousin of Mrs. Stover, made the following remarkable statement:

"On Thursday, April 18, I fell asleep in my sitting room, and saw a boy of 18, with tawny hair, blue eyes, broad shoulders and big hands, deliberately aim a revolver at George Stover's head, fire and run, making the jump over the fence at a single bound. On Friday, the day before the murder of George Stover, I saw the same boy in real life standing in the alley back of Stover's house, and that night I awoke my husband to tell him of the coincidence.

"Later in the night I saw the murder re-enacted, just as I had witnessed it on Thursday. I took a nap on Saturday afternoon, and, as I hope to meet my God, I saw that awful scene a third time—always the same boy; always the same cold, blue eyes, the same shining tawny hair and the same thin, bloodless lips. That night George Stover was murdered."

Mrs. Butcher is a clear-headed, unemotional woman of 45 years, and her description of the assassin seen in her dream fits a known enemy of the murdered man.

CONDITION OF DAIRIES

Detailed Report of State Inspector Otto Gafvert After Duluth Examination---Fine Condition on the Whole.

Otto Gafvert, state dairy inspector for the Duluth district, has completed his inspection of the local dairies and the cattle therein, and reports the general condition as excellent. But few were found that did not show up well and in some cases they were found to be almost as clean as many houses. In many of the dairies the cows were found to be sleek and clean as well kept horses. Especially noticeable is this excellence in the dairies at Woodland, Lakeside and on the Harmantown road.

Mr. Gafvert will open an office at room 306 Manhattan building, but does not know as yet whether the state commission will maintain it permanently but hopes that it will. All dairymen, which means all persons who keep more than one cow and sell milk, the required to take out licenses and these are done on May 1.

The report of the different dairies in detail is a matter of considerable interest to everyone who buys milk and the publicity is one thing which has great weight in inducing the dealer to keep up the condition of his place. Where extra good condition was found the fact has been noted in an after remark. The report is therefore given in brief:

THE DAKOTAS.

Violent Dust Storms Cause Great Inconvenience and Damage.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Dust storms of great violence have prevailed over the Red River valley. Friday afternoon an electrical storm accompanied by wind, rain and hail, demoralized telegraphic communication, but no other serious damage is reported. A feature of the storm was the dense darkness which made it necessary in all the towns in the northern part of the state to turn on lights at 3 o'clock. The rain was heavy and will retard seeding several days, but farmers are well along with their work in this neighborhood.

Fargo—After waiting nearly three months the Dickey county authorities have at last decided to prosecute Mrs. Brucker for the murder of her husband early in February. Mrs. Brucker is the daughter of a well known Russian in the western part of Dickey county. She had been married to Charles Brucker but a short time when they separated and he went to Kulm. On February 5 he left Kulm, announcing that he was going after his wife, and intended to settle with some of her family. Arriving at the home of his father-in-law a row ensued. He was disarmed by Mrs. Brucker's brothers and tied with a rope. Mrs. Brucker was left to guard him while the boys went for their father. According to her story Brucker freed himself and started to strike her, when she blew off the top of his head by discharging a shotgun at him. The corner's jury exculpated her and the matter was supposed to have been definitely settled. Recently some of the neighbors became suspicious and as a result of the agitation a warrant was sworn out for the woman's arrest. Incidental to the case Brucker was a member of the Woodmen and carried $2000 insurance, which his wife is attempting to collect.

There was much surprise here over the decision of the supreme court in holding that the city contract for electric lighting is void. It was a 10-year contract with the Fargo Gas and Electric company. Some time ago the Fargo Edison company brought an action to have the contract set aside on the ground that the city had no right to pledge unpaid taxes before the assessment was made on which they could be collected. Judge Pollock held the contract was legal and was reversed on the appeal.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—Health Officer Bracken, of Minnesota, arrived yesterday to consult with Dr. McNutt of the South Dakota board of health relative to the fight between Sisseton and Brown's Valley over the quarantine in Roberts county. Superintendent Bracken expresses entire approval of McNutt's actions.

C. H. Llen, of Roberts county, has formally declined the tender of appointment as member of the board of charities and corrections.

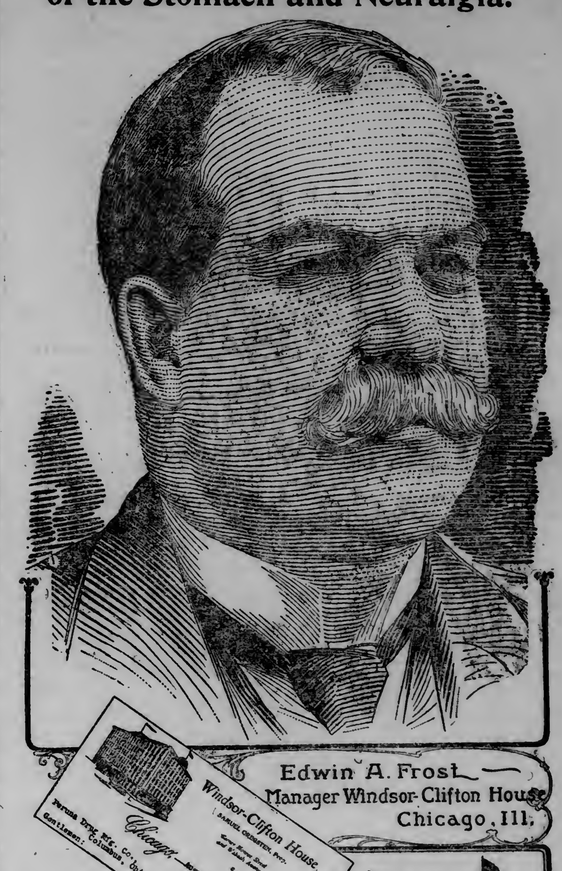
Mitchell—Miss Jessie Fuller, late clerk of the state supreme court, has decided to go extensively into the stock business. She has completed the purchase of a sheep ranch, eight miles north of Mitchell, comprising 960 acres of land, which is equipped with two artesian wells, good buildings to shelter 1500 head of sheep and ten miles of fence.

Vermillion—The contest over the vacancy caused by the death of Sheriff Ole Johnson ended when Will Gelchrist, of Wahonda, secured the appointment. He is a Populist.

The police arrested W. V. Dunton, wanted in Minneapolis, on a charge of collecting money at Spokane, Wash., in the name of the Minneapolis Times and not making an accounting.

PERUNA ALWAYS WINS.

Some Remarkable Cures of Catarrh of the Stomach and Neuralgia.



Hon. E. A. Frost, manager of the Windsor-Clifton house, corner of Monroe street and Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill., says in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., the following words in praise of their catarrh remedy, Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, O.:—Gentlemen—"Before taking Peruna I had suffered for twenty years from malaria to the extent that I had chronic neuralgia of the stomach, and could not sit out in the night air without suffering the next day. I had tried many so-called remedies but with only partial and temporary relief. It has been two years since I used Peruna but I am satisfied that my cure is complete and permanent."—Edwin A. Frost.

Nothing in the world produces more disastrous aenema of the nerve centers than neuralgia. Anyone who has ever had neuralgia will find himself constantly liable to nervous troubles. This is especially true is he has been subject to taking much quinine.

Peruna Increases Nutrition.

Neuralgia is always an expression of nerve weakness. Some nerve center has been deprived of nutrition, and neuralgia is the signal of distress which this nerve center is able to make. Thus it is that neuralgia depends on a want of nutrition of the nerve centers.

Peruna increases the nutritive value of the food eaten in the northern part of the state to turn on lights at 3 o'clock. by correcting the digestive organs. After the digestive organs have been once put in good working order by Peruna, then the food is able properly to nourish the body.

This is how it happens that Peruna cures many cases of old neuralgia which have resisted all other forms of treatment. Peruna is not a specific for neuralgia, but it is a specific for catarrhal affection of the digestive organs. There is no remedy in the world that is so sure to put the digestive organs in good working order as Peruna.

Peruna Strikes the Source.

All diseases, including neuralgia, that depend on a want of proper nutrition are curable by a course of Peruna. Peruna strikes at the foundation of all chronic diseases by increasing the nutritive function of the digestive organs.

Doctors Surprised.

N. E. Bunker, Newman, Cal., writes: "I was sick for nine years with one of the worst cases of catarrh of the stomach possible. All that time I did not have a natural taste in my mouth. Could not eat, barely kept life in me by nibbling—could eat nothing of any substance, only soft foods, and little of that. I got as low as 108 pounds. The first cause was la grippe. By accident I used Peruna; began it last February. I have now been well six or seven months—entirely well. Am heavier than for thirty years. Doctors are surprised, as are all my friends. I have advertised Peruna extensively in many parts of the state, personally; many are helped. I am very thankful."—N. E. Bunker.

"Never Felt Better."

Mrs. T. E. Frech writes from Excell, Tenn., as follows:

"Having been afflicted with catarrh and stomach trouble for seven years, I tried four different doctors. They only relieved me for a little while. I gave up all hope of being cured, having been reduced to 130 pounds. I was so weak I could scarcely get out of the room. I was induced to try Peruna, and to my great surprise I am now perfectly well. My weight is now 188 pounds and I never felt better in my life. I shall always praise Dr. Hartman and his remedies."—Mrs. T. Frech.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SIXTY THOUSAND LOST.

On a Game of Hearts In New York.

New York, April 27.—Hearts are expensive nowadays about the Waldorf-Astoria, so rumor has it. They are reckoned at $1 a point with "flyers" on the outside, and, according to the latest story heard about the corridors of the hostelry, three of a party of five men last Monday night toyed with the fickle game until they arose from the board with an aggregate loss of $60,000.

The game of hearts is now understood to be the most popular of card amusements indulged in by patrons of the hotel, and nearly every night in one or two of the card rooms a pretty stiff game may be found in operation.

It is reported that several members of the recently-formed giant steel corporation, who make their headquarters at the hotel, have been the heaviest losers at the game, though who the winners have been none will even hazard a guess.

John W. Gates, it will be recalled, some time ago was credited with losing $50,000 in a little friendly game of poker at the Waldorf-Astoria, but Mr. Gates, it is asserted, was not one of the players in this latest talked-of game of hearts.

The story has it that at about 8 o'clock on the night mentioned five men sat down to play for $1 a heart. Two of the party were said to be members of prominent trusts. The game continued until well into the night and broke up when the timepiece began to usher in the hours of the day.

When accounts were straightened out it was found that three of the five were losers. One's loss was said to be $48,000; another owed $8500, while the third was loser to the extent of $2500. Naturally, those concerned kept the matter as quiet as possible, but in some manner the facts leaked out.

The Spring Medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

In thousands and thousands of homes—in cities, towns and villages—three doses a day of this great medicine are now being taken by every member of the family.

In some homes, even the visitor is given a teaspoonful with every meal.

Why such wide and general use? Because Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved itself by its wonderful effects in cleansing the system of all humors, overcoming that tired feeling, creating appetite, clearing the complexion, giving strength and animation, the best of all Spring medicines, so that it is par excellence the Spring Medicine.

Take it. "Hood's Sarsaparilla is a grand blood purifier and health restores. My husband and I take it through the spring months and find it just what it is represented it to be." Mrs. D M. Chandler, Barnum, Maine

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Somerville Journal: It is generally regarded as wrong for anybody but a minister to work on Sunday.

Philadelphia Press: Possibly not a single person will back up the claim of that New York clergyman that all unmarried people are happy.

Boston Transcript: A Montreal prelate calls cremation a pagan rite. For all that, it is certainly preferable to recent exhibitions Christendom has made of itself in China.

Detroit Free Press: Speaking of the dissolution of the Baptist church, the negro congregation in Missouri that spanked the pastor seems to be entitled to distinguished consideration.

Washington Star: In spite of the adage about music having charms to soothe, an Oklahoma congregation got into a quarrel over a church organ, and finally resorted to dynamite.

Boston Globe: The Methodist ministers of New England are opposed to fishing on Sunday, and yet as fishers of men most of them make bigger hauls on Sunday than on any other day.

Washington Post: The relatives of a missionary who was killed in China wants $100,000 for the loss of life and $15,000 additional for the loss of property. When it comes to the matter of assets our missionaries manage to keep up with those of the other countries.

Chicago Chronicle: A distinguished kindergartener complains that the stained glass windows of churches hurt eyesight. There is truth in the statement. Most of them hurt the sight in more senses than one. Their crude colors are injurious to the optic nerve. Their grotesque composition is often destructive of religious gravity.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: A Baltimore preacher who does not believe in deathbed repentence says that preachers should not be allowed to attend people who are ill. "The sick bed is not the place for the transformation of the lives of individuals," he says, and maybe this is true, but any place where mortals are in trouble ought to be a good place for a minister of the gospel.

Grand Masquerade Ball

At the Odd Fellow's Hall, Duluth, Monday evening, April 29. Prof. Mosher will give an exhibition of his famous tricks on the bicycle. Two prizes will be given away. Admission, 25c each.

BLASTS FROM RAM'S HORN.

A man may have a keen mind without a cutting tongue.

True fishers of the souls have little use for bread and butter bait.

Your worth depends on what you are and not on what you have.

There is often more of Christ in the kitchen than in the cathedral.

It is always harder to use the heart than to work the head in religion.

A man will usually wince on the spot where his conscience is most worn out.

A man's interest in religion will be according to the amount of principle he has in it.

The only man who is fitted to disseminate his thoughts is he who can concentrate them.

Many who are willing that their work should be done by proxy will be surprised to receive their reward that way.

He who cannot forget the kindness he has done is little better than he who remembers the injuries he has received.

HER SHROUD PREPARED.

Columbus, Ohio, April 27.—Rose Miller, who was discharged from the penitentiary at the completion of a three years' sentence from Wooster for incest, saw her own shroud before she left. For weeks she has been ill with typhoid fever, and as her recovery was not expected all preparations were made for her burial. She fooled the doctors and got well, and now wants to take the shroud home with her for future use.

BOARD OF OPTOMETRY.

St. Paul, April 27.—Governor S. R. Van Sant has appointed the following as members of the state board of optometry: Alexander Swenningson, Moorhead; J. W. Granger, Rochester; S. A. Upham, St. Paul; C. A. Snell, Minneapolis, and H. U. Hitchcock, Redwood Falls.

IN COPPER DISTRICT

Opening of Isle Royale Mill Postponed Until May 15.

The Adventure Has Recently Made Another Good Shipment.

Houghton, Mich., April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Navigation opened at the copper country ports this week, though lake vessels are not yet running regularly. The opening of the lake season finds the wharves of the smelters nearly bare of copper, which has been rushed forward by mixed rail-and-lake routes during the winter at an average cost of $8 per ton greater than the cost of shipment by water as far as Buffalo. The Calumet & Hecla has stored about the usual amount of mineral—rough copper, as it comes from the stamp-heads—for summer shipment to the Buffalo smelters, but otherwise there is very little copper in sight in this district.

The Isle Royale mill was to have been started on May 1, but the opening has been postponed until May 15. A considerable appreciation in the price of shares has been brought about by the anticipation of a favorable showing when the mill starts. It is my opinion that the Isle Royale will return a scant 1 per cent of refined copper, but because of the magnificent equipment and the thorough manner in which the mine has been opened, a handsome profit will be made from a net product, averaging less than 1 per cent. The mine is capable of making a much higher average, but modern methods and powerful machinery enable the management to handle a large tonnage so cheaply that rock running as low as ½ per cent—ten pounds of ingot copper to the ton of rock as broken—can be handled at a profit in some instances. The tendency of all of the mines is to treat lower grade rock from year to year, and rock that was absolutely worthless ten years ago is now highly valuable. This condition is brought about almost equally by the great reduction in mining and milling costs and the appreciation in the price of the metal.

The new six-stamp mill of the Calumet & Hecla is rapidly taking shape and will be in commission earlier than had been hoped. This mill is to treat the amygdaloid rock taken from the Osceola lode on Calumet & Hecla lands.

Work on the new mill of the Osceola is being rushed. The percentage of rock taken from the Osceola mine proper was very low last season, but is now showing a gain.

With the completion of the present installation of new hoisting machinery at the Atlantic, that mine will be enabled to secure a larger production than ever before, and will also cut down the cost of production. The Atlantic has made a great deal of money in the past five years, the bulk of which has been put back into the mine in the shape of betterments, and the mine was never in as good shape as at the present time.

About 150 tons of mohawkite, worth $140 to $150 per ton, net, has been barreled at the Mohawk mine awaiting shipment.

Developments in the so-called "west lode" of the Quincy and Franklin mines have not been as favorable of late as was anticipated from the initial openings.

Work at the conglomerate shafts of the Franklin Junior is being pushed actively, and the shafts on that lode will soon be supplying a large proportion of the copper-bearing rock stamped at the new mills.

Construction and equipment is proceeding at satisfactory speed in the new mill of the Mass. The erection of this mill was sadly delayed last year, owing to the inability of the contractors to supply material when promised, but the delays seem to have about reached an end. From present indications it will be possible to start the first stamp about July 1, and a second within a few months later. Underground the mine is looking beautifully, and is showing a larger amount of heavy copper in a greater number of different openings than ever before in its history.

The Adventure has recently made another good shipment of mass and barrel copper to the smelters. The Adventure and Mass are located in the same district, and the Adventure carries the same lodes as the Mass, and a couple of extra beds as well, these being the Champion and North Butler, which have not been as yet located in the Mass mine.

The snow is now nearly gone, and Dr. Hubbard, in charge of the Champion mine of the Copper Range company, will devote some attention to opening the fissure vein of chalcocite which was uncovered accidentally last season. The vein is merely a narrow seam, but chalcocite, or copper glance, is by far the richest ore of copper, and in view of the wonderful developments resulting from the discovery of the little fissure vein of mohawkite at the Mohawk mine, the promising fissures will hereafter receive careful attention at the various mines in which such seams may be found. In the early days of Lake Superior copper mining the fissure veins were exploited solely to the neglect of the amygdaloids and conglomerates, while for the past quarter century the latter have been sought and the former neglected. That the fissures are occasionally of great value is evidenced by the Central mine, with a dividend record of nearly $2,00,000, and the Cliff, which paid more than $2,500,000 from a single fissure vein.

Recent developments at the Arnold show a fissure of considerable promise, and it is hoped that the extension of the celebrated Owl Creek fissure has finally been located. It was from this fissuret hat the Copper Falls mine, now a part of the Arnold, earned the dividends of $100,000 paid shareholders of that property.

The Victoria will explore its property with diamond drills. The diamond drill is being used far more extensively in this district than ever before.

Albert C. Krause has been appointed superintendent of the Champion mill. The season being favorable to construction work, good progress is being made in the preliminary work on the erection of the mill.

A duplicate of the present hoisting plant has been ordered for No. 5 Tamarack, which is soon to become the deepest mining shaft of the world. The drum of the hoist is twenty-five feet in diameter, and carries a mile and a quarter of inch and a half steel cable, nd can hoist ten-ton loads at a speed of about forty miles an hour.

The Lake Superior Concentrating company has erected a sludge mill on the Franklin sands, and will rework the tailings for the copper known to be carried therein. The mill is in all essentials a duplicate of the numerous sludge mills which have so successfully reworked the tailings of the lead and zinc mines of the Joplin-Galena district of Missouri and Kansas. Experimental tests were made here last season, with encouraging results.

The Adventure is now installing a Rand air compressor, weighing nearly 150 tons, and which is to supply air for sixty drills. No. 4 shaft of the Adventure, east of Adventure Gap, has finally struck the ledge, after passing through a very heavy overburden of sand, and a crosscut is now being sent in the direction of the Butler lode.

Two opinions are held as to the whereabouts of the great Baltic lode, north of No. 5 shaft of the Baltic. The opinion more generally accepted is that the lode makes a sharp swing to the north, and that the northern extension will be found in section 16, owned by the Atlantic, but there is a minority opinion that the lode continues parallel with the eastern sandstone, and but a short distance to the west thereof. The facts in the case will be determined by developments.

The promising prospects of the Mass mine are responsible for a real estate boom in Mass City, the townsite owned by the Mass company. As a successful mine in this district works 500 to 5000 men steadily, large 'populations are built up about the good mines, and realty becomes very valuable. The largest camp in the district is Calumet, with 32,000 people, but there are a number of other centers of population, the Portake Lake district, of which Houghton is the heart, having about 25,000 people, while Lake Linden and South Lake Linden, stam-mill towns some distance from the mines, have about 10,000 people, collectively.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

SHOCK WAS FATAL.

Death of Boy Killed an Old Man.

Philadelphia, April 27.—Love killed Henry Sagee. The family physician and those representing Coroner Dugan agree on this. The old man died of a broken heart.

He devoted the last sixteen years of his life and almost all of his income to the education and entertainment of his nephew, "Andy" Miller, who was buried Wednesday morning. The downpour of rain kept the old gentleman in the house. He could not follow the white hearse to the cemetery, and while the family and friends were sorrowing at the side of the open grave, the old man paced the floor, uttered a few short, sharp cries and then fell dead on the floor.

When the funeral party returned Mrs. Miller, mother of the boy, herself on the verge of collapse, discovered the body of Mr. Sagee and fell upon his corpse in a dead faint.

MR. ANDERSON OF PRATT

Don't Believe in Doctors, Has Appendicitis But Prevents an Operation.

Astonishes the Town of Pratt, Minnesota, By Coming Home Well.

Pratt, Minn., April 27.—Mr. John C. Anderson, well known in Pratt and recognized for his prominence in business matters, is now well and sound, after having a disease which doctors said could not be cured without an operation, which might prove fatal. Mr. Anderson had appendicitis, that dangerous acute intestinal disorder which carries so many away daily. Doctors wanted him to submit to an operation, but he refused. After going East and consulting with a noted specialist on stomach troubles, he bought a bottle of Cascarine, and after continued use for two months he was cured absolutely. The operation would have cost him $100 and perhaps his life. Cascarine cost him only $1 and saved his life. "Thousands of people," said Mr. Anderson, "submit to an operation when there is no need of one; in fact, it is becoming a great fad to have some doctor carve you. Cascarine cured me, and I advise everyone suffering with any trouble of the bowels, kidneys, liver or stomach to buy a bottle at once."

Cascarine is a laxative tonic, pleasing in taste and pleasing in action. It will not gripe the most delicate stomach. It is the best laxative for mothers, fathers and children. Every good housewife should have a bottle close at hand. She will find it the most economical article she ever bought. It cures the little ones of stomach troubles and constipation. It cures everyone of distases of the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys.

Buy a bottle today at your druggist's. Price per bottle, 50 cents. If he hasn't it, ask him to get it for you of his jobber.

The manufacturers of Cascarine will send to any address, free of charge, a little booklet which explains thoroughly the diseases of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, with instructions how to treat them, also one week's sample treatment for 10 cents in stamps to cover postage.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

Debating League Idea Finds Much Favor In Duluth.

Interscholastic Field Day May 24---Duluth to Enter.

Annual Sacred Concert of the Musical Society Sunday.

A movement has been inaugurated in Minneapolis by the Journal of that city and Professor Edward Eugene McDermott, assistant professor of rhetoric in the university of Minnesota, which meets with the high approval of the Duluth high school authorities. It is for the inauguration of a high school debating league. Professor Charles Alden Smith, principal of the Duluth high school, says that it is just what is needed and that he will enter the Duluth high school in the league. Professor McDermott outlines the plan as follows:

"The preparatory schools of the state have made rapid progress in methods of teaching composition in the last quarter of a century. Fairly good results are now secured—although, of course, they are still far from perfect.

"But if one doubts this assertion, it is only necessary to compare for a moment the old with the new. Many who read this will remember with a shudder the day when they were told they were old enough to write "compositions." Verily, they stood under the shadow of the gallows when it was announced that they might have for their theme 'Virtue,' 'Hope,' 'Friendship' or something equally intangible. The average child concluded at once that he never could learn to write. He dodged composition, feared it and never learned the subject in his entire course of study.

"This was not only unfortunte, but entirely unnecessary because composition is no more difficult than the average subject in the courses of study. It is possible for every child to attain a degree of skill in it that is commensurate with his general development.

"Thanks to common sense methods, these results are now being secured. The child begins to write in the primary. He writes daily about what he hears and sees and knows until he can express clearly any idea that his mind clearly conceives. If his teacher is patient, if she is willing to take one fault at a time and ignore the others, if she does not drown the child's budding genius by flinging a bottle of red ink at his first effort, he is able to write well by the time the child of the last generation was told to begin.

"But I am sorry to say the same progress has not been made in the spoken word. This part of rhetorical work is still sadly neglected. High school students who write fairly well often speak very badly. Many of them cannot correctly construct three consecutive sentences even when speaking upon familiar subjects. There is no lack of talk. Indeed, there is much. But the art of good conversation, the art of simple, natural, vigorous expression in public is too rare.

"Nor does the difficulty stop with the high schools. One of the leading educators of this state said to me this week: 'Seniors cannot recite so that I can understand them. They omit the subjects in half their sentences. They use singular subjects and plural predicates. They run half-constructed sentences together. They put their thoughts in such broken and chaotic order that they become unintelligible.'

"This is a serious charge, if true; and it is too often true. It is a charge that teachers of rhetoricals all along the line ought to take home to themselves. It offers a splendid opportunity for reform. The causes of these defects in oral expression should be discovered and adequate remedies applied, but the scope of this paper forbids.

"It is sufficient for the present to say that the Minnesota High School Debating league is intended to remedy, in a measure, this defect. It will not reach every individual of the school.

"Debate is an advanced exercise in vocal rhetoricals. It presupposes a certian fluency and a degree of reasoning power. It should be preceded all through the grades and earlier years of the high school by simpler exercises, exercises which will enable the student to think consecutively on some one subject, and which will give him a fluent command of his present vocabulary.

A constitution has been proposed for the league, and this states its object to be the improvement of rhetorical work in the schools of the state by friendly rivalry and the exchange of ideas. The important provisions are as follows:

"Any high school of the state of Minnesota which prepares students to enter the state university, or any academy or private school of equal rank, may become a member of this league by notifying the secretary of the debating board of the state university that it is ready to enter the league under the existing conditions, and by paying its annual dues. Failure to take part in the contests any one year or to abide by the provisions of the constitution and by-laws cancels membership.

"For convenience the state shall be divided into nine debating districts, which shall correspond with the congressional districts as described in the reapportionment of 1901. A series of interscholastic contests shall be arranged and carried out in each district first. The winner in each district shall, when practicable, be paired with the winner in an adjacent district. The final contest shall be held in Minneapolis near the close of the school year and under the auspices of the debating board of the state university.

"Each district shall have a director of debate. It shall be his duty to arrange the series of contests, attend to all details, and keep up interest in his district. The high school which wins first place in each district shall have the right to elect the district director for the succeeding school year. When for any reason a district has no director, the debating board shall appoint such officer.

"The series of contests in each district shall be concluded before Jan. 1; the series between districts shall be concluded by April 15, and the final shall occur in May. Each team shall be composed of three debaters. Alternates may be provided if desired.

"A single resolution shall serve for the entire series of debates. The debating board shall submit the resolution at the close of the series each year for the next year. Choice of sides shall be granted the visiting team, or it may be decided by lot if the competing schools prefer. Each speaker shall have ten minutes in his opening speech and five minutes in rebuttal. The affirmative shall lead in the opening speeches and the negative in rebuttal.

"The entertaining team shall pay the necessary expenses of the visiting team. Each high school shall pay $3 annual dues to the treasurer of the debating board in order to become eligible to the contests for that year. The necessary expenses of the final contest shall be paid from annual dues and admission fee to the final contest. If this proves insufficient, the two high schools entering the final must make up the deficits."

Officers and their duties are also provided for. The constitution is to be effective when twelve schools have joined the league.

The Minneapolis Journal offers to each member of the winning team a souvenir badge and to the winning school a silver cup.

Briefly, it will be seen that the aim of the Minnesota High School Debating league is to have a series of debates each year between as many high schools as possible, culminating in one final contest at Minneapolis, at the end of which the high school represented by the winning team will receive a silver cup, which can be held as a trophy by that school for the term of one year, when it must be competed for again. Should one school win it three consecutive years is becomes the property of that school. Each member of the winning team will also receive a medal suitably inscribed. The same question must be debated from the beginning, so that by the time the two teams meet for the finals the debaters will all be fairly well acquainted with the subject.

THE FIELD DAY

May 24 and Duluth Is to Enter.

The interscholastic field day meet will take place at Minneapolis, Friday, May 24, instead of June 8, as previously announced. Professor Hutchinson was notified of this change last week, and also of the fact that Duluth had been admitted to the association and would be allowed to take part in the meet this spring. The preliminary field day here at Duluth was scheduled to take place on May 25, but will probably occur on the 18th. A baseball game with Ashland, at Ashland, was arranged for this date, and Manager Richards of the baseball team will endeavor to have it changed to another date. Professor Hutchinson of the track team said that if the baseball game could be fixed for another time, it was practically certain that Duluth's track team will go to the interscholastic at Minneapolis.

The track athletes are at it hard, and some very promising men are out every day. The fine weather which has been the rule for the last few days has put the ground in fairly good condition for running, and it is to be hoped that some records can be established at the preliminary. On account of the interscholastic meet being placed earlier than it was expected, the men will not need to have so much fear of overtraining, as only three weeks remain before the preliminary field day takes place. This is an important factor, as some of the men have been holding off and not getting into hard training at once.

Woodsmen

Know that in spite of hard work in the clear forest air the blood often becomes impure. The heavy food served in the lumber camps is to a great extent responsible for this condition of the blood, which renders the body an easy prey to many forms of disease. There is no better blood purifier than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures eruptions, pimples, eczema, scrofula, rheumatism, and other diseases caused by an impure condition of the blood. It cures absolutely and altogether by cleansing the blood from the poisons which breed and feed disease.

Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is no other medicine "just as good" for the blood.

"I will forever thank you for advising me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mrs. James Murphy, of Fonda, Pocahontas Co., Iowa. "It has cured me of chronic scrofula of twelve years' standing. I also had chronic diarrhea for twelve years. I am in good health now—better than I ever was in my life, owing to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took several bottles of the 'Discovery' before I stopped."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, and over 700 illustrations, is sent free on receipt of stamps to defray expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper cover, or 31 cents for the book in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Literary Society.

The regular meeting of the high school literary society was held yesterday afternoon in the assembly hall and the following program was presented:

Recitation .....
Miss Stuart.
Piano duet .....
Misses Searles and Pearson.
Recitation .....
Miss Rudolph.
Vocal solo .....
Miss Boyle.

Baseball Games.

The baseball season opens today with a game between the high school team and the Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior at Oneota park. The home team is in fine trim and the boys expect to win the game. The two teams lined up in the following order:

High School Notes.

Next Friday evening at the High School the seniors will present two comedies from the pen of John Kendrick Bangs, "The Bicyclers" and "A Proposal Under Difficulties." The participants have been working hard for the success of the affair and will no doubt find their efforts fully rewarded.

A new and valuable addition to the museum has been recently made in the form of a cross section of the century plant, from California. The plant was 32 feet high at the time the specimen was secured.

The seniors gave a supper and dance last evening at Lester Park, to which the juniors were invited, and a large number was present. The affair proved to be a very enjoyable one.

LABOR WORLD

All Duluth Unions Report Their Members Well Employed.

Labor meetings next week are:

The Cigarmakers' union, Wednesday, at 21 East Superior street.

The Electrical Workers' union, Thursday evening, 21 East Superior street.

Building Trades' council, on Friday evening, Kalamazoo block.

Marine Engineers' union, Friday evening, Hunter block.

* * *

A feature of the meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly last evening were the reports of the various unions on the condition of trade. With the exception of the freight handlers and longshoremen, whose season of activity has not begun, all the unions reported members well employed and considerable work in sight. From the standpoint of organized labor it would seem that the current year is to be more prosperous than last year.

* * *

The assembly had adopted several important amendments to the constitution. The offices of financial secretary and treasurer will be combined and a salary of $20 a month will be paid to the person holding this office.

* * *

The Meat Cutters' union held its annual election on Tuesday evening. The following are the new officers: Mose Tierney, president; A. Rickard, vice president; William Tunell, secretary; C. Newman, financial secretary; Fred Schoening, treasurer; J. Sabrowski, guide; Messrs. Tunell, Sorbeck and Rickard, delegates to the Federated Trades' assembly.

* * *

The following are the newly-elected officers of the Tug Firemen's union: John McCaffrey, president; Len Greene, H. White and James Gleason, vice presidents; John Debrau, secretary; John McLain, treasurer, and J. Grover, financial secretary.

* * *

J. L. Heasley, former president of the Carpenters' union, was down from Virginia during the week. Mr. Heasley expects to go into the contracting business at Gillette, Wis., in the near future.

* * *

The Longshoremen's union will hold its first meeting of the season in Gilley's hall at West Duluth this evening. The report of the Ashland conference will be received.

* * *

The Harbor Cooks' union met last Sunday evening and elected the following officers: John McKinney, president; George Mitchell, vice president; C. N. Jones, secretary; Joe McMillan, treasurer.

LABOR NOTES.

Prominent labor leaders claim that the eight-hour day has effected a reform among the intemperate class, and that a change in the desire for strong drink has been wrought about.

Streator, Ill., claims to be the best organized town in the country. The city is said to be so well organized that it is impossible for a man or woman to work on any job without holding membership in some labor organization. As a result of thorough organization the wages of all trades have been increased, and their working conditions much improved.

British Columbia fishermen are active on lines of organization, and have formed five unions on the different rivers, including in their membership Indians as well as white fishermen. An effort is being made to keep the Japanese, who are alleged to have broken up last year's strike, off the river.

New York has a Workmen's Political league.

London is engaged in a good work for the people who spend their lives toiling for the city. The council has decided to buy 225 acres of land on which to build houses to accommodate 42,000 workmen.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters handled strikes in 214 cities during the past year. Only six of these were failures; in 17 compromises were effected, and 191 were complete victories.

Frisco Brewery Workmen's union sent $600 to the Portland strikers.

Frisco has an Assistant Undertakers' association.

At a meeting of the Minneapolis Carpenters' union $1000 was voted to pay the men locked out and not yet employed. It was stated that of the 223 men locked out, all but 1009 were now at work in the city, with many opportunities open for the others to get outside if they desired it.

St. Paul printers struck.

Atlanta hasn't a non-union printery.

George Cadbury, the English chocolate manufacturer, has presented to the city of Birmingham an estate of 416 acres, valued at $900,000, upon which to build houses for working people. The firm of Cadbury Bros. some time ago refused to fill an order from the English government for chocolates for soldiers in the Transvaal, giving as their reason that, being Friends, they disapproved of war.

John Burns, M. P., Thomas Burt, M. P., and other English labor leaders are conferring in regard to the feasibility of the proposed federation of the employers' and employes' unions, to be known as the National Federation of Masters' Associations and Trade unions, the objects being to educate the employers and employes in respect to the expansion of the British trade, and to devise means to meet foreign competition. The preliminary work is being chiefly confined to the iron and steel trades, which, through fear of inroads by the new American steel combine, seem particularly anxious for some organization which will present a united front.

Economists who have been studying the social and industrial problems of Eastern Asia predict that the Chinese will soon become a bread-eating instead of a rice-eating people. The president of the San Francisco chamber of commerce said, at the rate of the present enormous increase in flour exports to China, there will, within three years, be employment for forty first-class merchantmen carrying flour from Pacific coast ports to the Orient.

The labor unions of San Francisco have edected the biggest woodworking plant in the state of California, and are turning out material as fast as 2000 union carpenters can place it on the buildings in the city. It gives employment to 160 union millmen.

Only one-tenth of the wage earners of the United States are organized. The nine-tenths have earned millions of dollars annually on account of the activity of union men, and the debt they owe will never be paid.

The Ohio convict labor commission is making an investigation of the employment of convict labor in the Southern states. The report of its investigation will form a basis upon which the legislature of Ohio will enact laws for the purpose of eliminating competition against free labor.

Up in Winnipeg the Journeymen Bakers' union is booming its label by offering prizes for handing in the largest number of labels, each of which must be cut from union-made bread.

Important to Sufferers.

How You May Obtain a Lasting Cure From Piles.

No Surgical Operation, No Pain, Trifling Expense---A Simple Harmless Remedy But It Does the Work.

There are some people who have piles as regularly and frequently as other people have colds. Any little bowel trouble will bring them on, any extra exertion, as in lifting, will produce them, and, in fact, will often appear without any apparent provocation. Piles, however, is much more serious than a cold, as the tendency is always to grow worse until the trouble becomes deep seated and chronic, or develops into some fatal rectal disease.

While there are many pile remedies which give relief, yet there is but one which not only gives instant relief, but at the same time makes a permanent cure, and that is the well known Pyramid Pile Cure.

This remedy is composed of simple, harmless vegetable ingredients, but combine so effectively and act so promptly and thoroughly that it cures every form of piles whether itching, blind, bleeding or protruding. In long-standing cases the Pyramid Pile Cure has proven to be the only certain cure, except a surgical operation, and its advantages over an operation are many, as it is painless, causes no delay or interference with daily occupation and, last, but not least, is cheaper than any surgical operation could possibly be, costing 50 cents a package at any drug store. The cases that the Pyramid Pile Cure will not reach are so few that physicians are doing away with operations for piles and depending on this cheap but effective remedy to accomplish a complete cure, and it never disappoints, except in cases beyond the reach of medical skill. The Pyramid Pile Cure is prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Marshall, Mich., and is for sale by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. Each package contains a treatise on the cause and cure of piles, together with testimonials from every section of this country.

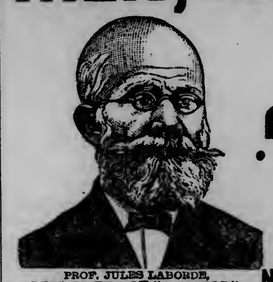
MEN; BE STRONG!



PROF. JULES LABORDE, DISCOVERER OF "CALTHOS."

You Can Be Cured of NERVOUS DEBILITY and LOST MANHOOD BY

"CALTHOS"

Full 5 Days Treatment ABSOLUTELY FREE By Sealed Mail.

NO C. O. D. OR DEPOSIT SCHEME.

For years the cry has gone up from hundreds and thousands of men, young and old, for a remedy that would rid them of the terrible result of early follies or excesses, or of the overwork and worry that sap the physical vitality.

The medical profession of this country seemed powerless to cope with the appalling and disastrous diseases and annoying weaknesses of men resulting from violation of Nature's laws.

PROF. LABORDE'S WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

It remained for the eminent French authority, Prof. Jules Laborde, to conduct scientific inquiry into the cause and cure of Lost Vitality, Sexual Weakness, Spermatorrhoea, Epilepsy, Impotency, Small Parts, and the world today acknowledges the supremacy of the wonderful remedy "CALTHOS."

The Von Mohl Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, recognizing the commercial value of Prof. Laborde's discovery, secured the sole American rights for "CALTHOS," and through its agency thousands of men who suffered from sexual diseases and enfeebling nervous maladies have been restored to health and the virile powers of perfect manhood.

THE VON MOHL CO'S. REMARKABLE OFFER.

We are now authorized, by The Von Mohl Company, to announce that every man who sends simply his name and address will be supplied absolutely free by sealed mail, with five-days full treatment of "CALTHOS." This is no C. O. D. or Deposit Scheme, and there is positively no condition attached to the offer. You need not give humiliating details regarding your trouble. You need not send one cent of money—not even a postage stamp. All The Von Mohl Company desires is that you give the remedy a fair and thorough trial, and they are willing to stand all the expense connected with the trial to prove the faith in its merits.

POWER OF "CALTHOS" PROVED.

The first day you take the treatment you will be benefited. The second day you will feel an improvement. The third day you will note an increase of strength. The fourth day will show a gain both mentally and physically. The fifth day you will feel like a new man. If you suffer from any form of Nervous Decline and Sexual Weakness, Spermatorrhoea, Varicocele, Impotency, Small Parts, Night Sweats, Palpitation of the Heart, Nervousness, Confusion of Ideas, and Loss of Memory, you can positively be cured by "CALTHOS," but if the disease has progressed to the stage marked by the symptoms of Epilepsy, Consumption or Insanity, we cannot promise complete recovery.

PROMPT ACTION IMPORTANT.

As you value your health, your happiness, your very life, do not delay beginning treatment. The Von Mohl Company has thousands of testimonials on file from persons who have taken the treatment, showing its marvelous restorative power.

The Company does not publish testimonials, and your correspondence is sacredly confidential.

Many who take only the five-days free treatment write that they are entirely cured.

For the sake of your family and friends, as well as for your own best interests, write to The Von Mohl Company for the free treatment by mail, in plain sealed package, at once.

THE BARGAIN COUNTERS

Require Women Shoppers to Go Forth With Complete Armor---Tailor Gowns Cheerful In Tone---Compressed Air Corsets.

New York, April 24.—The wise woman who goes forth to shop these days does not miscalculate the daring and danger of the enterprise. For the above reason she takes the precaution to wear heavy rib pads, a stout elastic on her hat, a strong check rein on her temper, and carefully trains her elbows to move like piston rods as an offensive and defensive weapon. The woman of the future will doubtless go a-purchasing armored like a South African railway train or a college football player—that is, if bargain counters continue to multiply at their present rate of increase.

At the bargain counters of yore only damaged goods, spotted gloves, dingy ribbons, etc., used to be sold, but today every counter displays such perfectly amazing and irresistible temptations in flawless lace boleros, bolts of peau de soie, trimmed hats, imitation jewelry, etc., that throughout April and May the women who have their wits about them, breakfast early and even carriage customers are among the first to feverishly and gloatingly select and buy.

Last week there was a famous bargain day in handkerchiefs that proved the continued vitality of the Napoleon craze. Small, very fine and soft handkerchiefs, edged with a delicately narrow hem and double hemstitch, and embroidered in one corner with a Napoleonic device, were first in the taste of shoppers. The most attractive devices were a tiny tuft of violets, an Old Guard eagle, or a honey bee. Persons who were lucky enough to possess names in which the letters N or B or J. M. L. flitted appropriately purchased white mouchoirs with these initials and the imperial crown above them. The letters stood for those belonging in the names of the emperor himself or in those of the two wives. Another immediately popular handkerchief bore a tiny embroidered eaglet in one corner with the duke of Reichstadt's cipher beneath.

From the counters where small luxuries and necessities are reft like the proverbial hot cakes, the bargain spirit rises clean up to the ready-made suit department. In this department, because of the ever improving cut and fit, the free lance dressmakers and tailors have felt this spring the cruelest competition. It was a very short time ago that any one, with a good eye for line and color and the quality of goods, could tell a woman dressed from the ready made department all the way down the street, separating her from her specially tailored or coutouriered sister as easily as one distinguished the goat from the sheep. That is the day of the past, however, as is shown by the smart gowns that can now be purchased all ready to wear and undistinguishable in style and fit from those made specially for the wearer.

Two suits that I recently saw were for the morning, and one of them shows how stitching is still most advantageously used in black on a pure rosy-lilac cloth. There is a touch of cream lace at the throat and wrists, and buttons of silver and amethyst are additional points of light and color on skirt and waist. The companion gown to this is a cool smoke-gray and turquoise-blue checked goods. Bands of solid blue decorate the skirt and coat, and the cuffs, collar and coat revers are of blue stitched with gray. These agreeable little costumes are just in line with the general preferences of well-dressed femininity for more color in their spring spring tailor gowns.

So long has gray and gray only ruled as the one light cloth for such costumes that it is a very positive relief to see the cloth-clad women reflecting every color of the flower garden. Bold reds and grassy greens are not used save as the waists worn with passion flower purple, larkspur blue, hellotrope and leaf-green suitings.

If the tailor gowns are cheerful in tone, the light silks, grenadines, transparent woolens and muslins are distinctly reckless and assertive in their color combinations. The Parisian designers have returned to their old love and are draping one transparent and contrasting goods over another, in order to arrive at strange opalescent effects. In this wise it was done in the case of a $300 gown. The foundation was a daring salmon pink taffeta; over this fell a robe of brilliant butter yellow chiffon; over this again dropped the top robe of tan-colored silk batiste and the girdle and coquisite picayune rose made wholly of chiffon. An integral part of every fete champetre gown will be the harmonious parasol of white silk, speckled in embroidered dots of red, blue or green, or sometimes three colors commingled. This is called the bird's egg pattern, and its nearest rival is the sunshade of striped louisine silk lined with a color to match the lining of the owner's gown.

Science never stands still, at least with regard to the the evolution of the corset. The latest achievement of the capable stay-maker is the Charmian, that makes a very special appeal to the woman whose bust and hip measure has never been up to the average, and who has been forced to depend upon the very unreliable hair and cotton pad.

The Charmian, to the casual glance, is just an ordinary graceful, light bound, long-waisted, silk-net stay, and within is lined with a very fine skin of silk rubber, thin as the skin of a child's toy balloon, but very much stronger. At the bottom of the stay in front is an air valve and airtight cap, so that when the corset is to be worn, a tiny pump is used to fill the inner skin of the stay with air. When the corset is laced and hooked into place, the superfluous air slowly squeezes out, leaving only the hollows full. Finally, when the wearer decides on just the fullness of curve desired, she screws the cap on the air valve, and unless by some accident, as a cruel pin poking its meddlesome point through the outer coating of the corset and clean into one of the hollows where the air has settled, there can be no two opinions as to the just and exquisite proportions of her plump but lissom figure.

While these pneumatic stays are a joy forever to the women below weight, there is just as much rejoicing in the adipose tissue ranks over a recent arrival from Paris called La Serpente, that juggles with flesh in the most necromantic arms all the freedom and the lungs all the expansion necessary. In some cases these stays are boned with a bamboo that has as rich an odor as sandal wood, and sometimes they are made of pieces of exquisite old brocade and their hooks down the front are set with old paste, for in the matter of corsets there continue to be many inventions and a lavishment of rich detail that outdoes all previous records.

Women are just now putting money aside to buy themselves fibulas, as are called the new and fascinating pins, which are worn to hold their fichus, bits of drapery and neckties together. So few comparatively of them have yet been seen that it may not be amiss to describe a fibula. Out of gold wire, a scroll similar to large S is made, or, it may perhaps be better described, as similar to the sign of the treble which is placed at the beginning of a bar of music. At its back is a very long and firm pin, which, after it has passed horizontally through the material on which it is worn, comes out again and goes over the bottom part of the scroll before finally hiding its point in the gown. Now the greatest point in favor of this new pin is that after it has been so fastened it cannot be jerked out by an extraneous force. In fact, to get it out at all a little manipulation is necessary. The S, as it may be called for convenience, has to be turned upward so as to unfasten itself from the pin which has passed over it, and not until this is done can the long part be drawn out.

This idea, a most excellent one, is not really new. Long ago the Romans devised fibulas to hold their togas together, slippery, sliding garments which made some such contrivance of importance. In style there is a vast difference in these pins, some of them being very simple and others representing almost a king's ransom. Those made of gold wire without further ornamentation are very pretty and useful, and are to be had for about $3, the lowest round of the ladder. Again they are seen with one semi-precious stone set at the end of the coil. These are hardly more costly, the medium-sized ones averaging about $4 or $5. The truly pretty ones, however, have a little bunch of irregular pearls, turquoises, moon stones or even diamonds dangling from the larger part of the S. Each one of these stones is suspended by a little gold chain, and the whole bunch measures not over an inch and a half long. Many prefer, also, to have these bunches of assorted stones which they themselves collect. It is very noticeable the sparkle they make when worn on a soft evening bodice, or they are equally attractive when attached to some smart, severe gown which needs an orderly, compact look.

At present the school girls are having great times collecting "bunches of luck," as they call the little trifles they group together and hang on their chains or bracelets, and which many still insist upon calling doo-daddles. There has perhaps never been a time when such exquisite charms were to be found, and naturally they tempt the lucre out of their pockets. Miniature gold fishes are seen which are flexible and hardly half an inch long; then there is the ubiquitous pig with the irresistible curl in his tail, and which no good bunch should be without. Among the newer things are tiny envelopes of gold, with an enameled stamp in the corner, and the owner's name engraved on the face. They open in quite the regular way, and have within a little thin card of gold which can be taken out when desired. Should such a little thing be presented as a gift it is customary to have engraved on the card, "From Emily," or "Anne," or whatever the donor's name may be. Occasionally one sees a wonderful little album, a lizard, a hansom cab, in fact, every sort of small trinket. And every bunch of luck should have a heathen god, a gargoyle, or a queer old fellow that looks like Quilp; in short, a monstrosity of some sort.

A STORY TELLING BRACELET.

Trinkets for such bracelets are not costly, being usually made of pressed silver, and so follow in succession on the bracelet as to illustrate some nursery rhyme. The story of "The House That Jack Built" affords an excellent opportunity to be worked out in charms. It is fortunately long and well supplied with interesting characters. At one end the bracelet has hung, first of all, the rat, then the bag of malt, the cat, the dog, the cow with the crumpled horn, the maiden all forlorn, the man all tattered and torn, the priest all shaven and shorn, the cock that crowed in the morn, and last of all Jack and his famous house. A simpler bracelet is made up of the dramatic personae of the old rhyme of the three blind mice, and in which instance even the carving-knife is of importance.

It seems rather pleasant for children to have some meaning attached to their trinkets, and besides, these bracelets, with charms illustrative of some story, seem to tickle their fancy immensely.

DAINTY OUT DOOR GARMENT.

New Three-Quarter Coat---This Is One of the Most Stylish Designs Yet Brought Out This Season and Will Be Very Popular.

This elegant model garment is built of rich taffeta and has a collar and lapels of white moire. These are ornamented with the new cretonne applique. The soft colors of the cretonne leaves and flowers are enriched by a chain stitching of gold thread on all edges. Straps of stitched taffeta border the skirt of the coat, and ornament the cuffs and front. Hat of coarse black satin straw with black velvet bow and large white rose with green leaves. DRESS OF GRAY ALBATROSS.

Afternoon Costume---Pretty Development of the New Full Effect Shown In the Front of the Skirt.

The entire skirt of this beautiful gown is laid in wide pleats giving the new full effect. The blouse bodice has a vest of white mousseline de soie. The front edges have a rich ornamentation of Russian lace, edged with a tinsel effect. This is repeated on the sleeves, which, like the entire blouse, are laid in groups of pleats to correspond with the skirt.

New England Women

Have an Abiding Faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

After years of struggle to attain and merit public confidence, with a firm and steadfast belief that some day others would recognize in us the truth, good faith, and honesty of purpose which we know we possess, what a genuine satisfaction it is to succeed, and to realize the uplifting influence of the merited confidence of a vast army of our fellow beings.

Thus stands the Pinkham name in New England, and all over America, and nowhere is the faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound greater than in New England, its home. Merit, and merit alone, can gain this.

ORGANIC INFLAMMATION.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was troubled very badly with inflammation of the bladder, was sick in bed with it. I had two doctors, but they did me no good. A friend gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me. I have now taken three bottles of it, and I am entirely cured. It is a God-send to any woman, and I would recommend it to any one suffering as I was. I think, if most of the women would take more of your medicine instead of going to the doctors, they would be better off. The Compound has also cured my husband of kidney trouble."

MRS. MABEL GOOKIN,
Box 160. Mechanic Falls, Maine.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

"For two years I suffered from nervous prostration, the result of female weakness. I had leucorrhoea very badly, and at time of menstruation would be obliged to go to bed. Also suffered with headaches, pain across back, and in lower part of abdomen. I was so discouraged. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and concluded to give it a trial. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, and received a very nice letter in return. I began at once the use of her Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and am now feeling splendid. I have no more pain at monthly periods, can do my own work, and have gained ten pounds. I would not be without your Vegetable Compound. It is a splendid medicine. I am very thankful for what it has done for me."—MRS. J. W. J., 76 Carolina Ave., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

PAINFUL PERIODS.

"I cannot help but feel that it is my duty to do something in regard to recommending your wonderful medicine. I must say it is the grandest medicine on earth, and have advised a great many suffering with female troubles to take it. I tell people I wish I could go on the platform and lecture on it.

"My trouble was painful menstruation. The suffering I endured pen cannot describe. I was treated by one of our most prominent physicians here for five months, and found myself getting worse instead of better. At the end of the fifth month he told me he had done all he could for me, and that I had better go to the hospital.

"My sister advised me to try your Vegetable Compound, as it cured her of backache. I did so, and took it faithfully, and am now cured of my trouble, and in perfect health, many thanks to your medicine. I cannot praise it enough, and would recommend it to all who suffer from any female weakness."—MRS. H. S. BALL, 461 Orchard St., New Haven, Conn.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission.
LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure these women—why not you—you cannot tell until you try it. If you are ill, and really want to get well, commence its use at once, and do not let any drug clerk persuade you that he has something of his own which is better, for that is absurd. Ask him to produce the evidence we do.

Doctors and Midwives Recommend

because it is used externally in cases of the delicate situation of expectant mothers. It is a constant relief, robbing childbirth of its terrors. Internal remedies are dangerous. "Mother's Friend" is a blessing in a bottle. There is nothing like it.

"The mother of three children, who suffered greatly in the birth of each, obtained a bottle of 'Mother's Friend' at my drug store before All mothers who have used it agree their labor was shorter and less painful."

Who Owns the Isle of Pines?

There are about a dozen islands in the West Indies, outside of Cuba and Porto Rico, that passed out of the possession of Spain at the conclusion of the Spanish war, and now the question of sovereignty over some of them has come up. Some of the islands are of no importance, while others are of great value and capable of future development. Some of the islands are off the coast of Porto Rico, but the greater number of them are near Cuba. Of the latter the Isle of Pines is by far the most important, its area being almost equal to that of all the other small islands of the group put together. The island is thirty-seven miles off the south coast of Cuba, and virtually consists of two islands, separated by a winding channel. The Isle of Pines is sixty miles from east to west and fifty-five miles from north to south, its area being about 1200 square miles. In almost every way it is a most desirable possession. Its climate is far healthier than that of Cuba, yellow and malarial fevers being almost unknown. This is probably to be accounted for by the fact that a great part of the island is far above the sea level. Almost exactly in its center is a mountain 1600 feet hrigh, known as the Sierrades la Canada. Two other mountains are almost as high, and there are a number of smaller peaks. The island is extremely rich in natural resources. At the bases of the mountains referred to are beds containing marble of exquisite quality, with jasper and rock crystal; there are mines of silver, quicksilver and iron, and there are mahogany trees, including many of the male trees, which produce the class of wood from which furniture used to be made 100 years ago, and which is now becoming very scarce. Then there are cedar and various other woods, besides the immense growth of pines, from which the place takes its name; and the island also produces sulphur, turpentine, pitch and tar, tobacco, tortoise shell and various other comodities. To the present time the Isle of Pines has been a dependensy of the province of Havana, and the Cubans insist that they should exercise future sovereignty over it, the question being one of the points under discussion by the Cuban convention. It is quite likely, however, that the United States will consider that its sheltering wing should cover the little paradise.

Wrecked By Stock Speculation.

The fever of reckless speculation seems to have spread into the money centers and it has led to the wrecking of several banks lately. Trusted officials have been seized with the mania; some within the past few months, while others have longer been tempting the fickle goddess. The treasury officials at Washington regard the present excited and remarkable conditions in Wall street with considerable apprehension, and since four national banks have recently failed by reason of defalcations of their officers, who went down as the result of unlucky speculations, they have watched the banks closer than ever before. Controller Dawes has made frequent changes in the detail of his examiners and transferred the men from one territory to another to make examinations outside of those regularly scheduled. He is keeping close watch on the records and as soon as there are indications that a bank is getting into an unsettled condition he gives an order for a special examination of its books. In most every case of recent national bank failures an investigation has proven that the guilty officers' downfall was due to stock speculations with money belonging to the bank. The newspaper stories of the marvelous increase in the value of stocks, and the fortunes that are being made in Wall street have been too much for more than one cashier. The first of the recent failures was that of the First National bank of Niles, Mich. Next to go under was the Farmers' National bank of Vergennes, Vt., due to defalcations on the part of the cashier. A recent heavy defalcation by the vice president of the Lamars National bank of Lemars, Iowa, served to bring on the failure of that institution, and then the First National bank of Vancouver, Wash., was carried down by the speculations of the president and cashier, who both committed suicide. Temptation to make money is strong, and the best safeguard to any man is a close surveillance. Bank officials are only human, and the handling of great sums of money must offer much temptation. That comparatively few yield to the temptation speaks well for the general honesty and integrity of the men who fill these responsible positions.

DULUTH'S RICH EMPIRE.

How many people are there in Duluth who have a fairly accurate knowledge of the extent and resources of the great territory awaiting settlement that is naturally tributary to this city? It is an empire in size—equal in all respects and superior in some to the rich territory that has poured its wealth into the lap of Chicago and created upon the shores of Lake Michigan the second greatest city of the American continent. It does not require the gift of prophecy to foresee that in the not very distant future this great country to which Duluth is the gateway and for which it is and will be the commercial center will be filled with settlers and developed, with the result that Duluth will be enriched by its trade and brought into the front rank of the great cities of the United States. The work of settlement is already proceeding rapidly, and yet, taking into consideration the vast extent of the territory, it has only begun. There is room for hundreds of thousands of people in this but partially developed territory, and there are those here today who will live to see it covered with prosperous farms, thriving villages and small cities looking toward Duluth as their chief commercial and financial center, to and from which railroads will radiate in all directions through this splendid country.

There is a wonderful tide of immigration into the Northwest this year, and it is pouring into the unoccupied lands of Northern Minnesota. Undoubtedly succeeding years will witness a similar rush of settlers until all the best lands are taken up and placed under cultivation. A few years ago the impression was general that there was hardly an acre of land in St. Louis county suitable for agricultural purposes. Many people today still hold the same erroneous idea. Investigation has shown that most of the land in this county can be utilized for general farming. Settlers have cultivated the land and found it highly productive, and their success has attracted the attention of others. The iron ranges, with their wealth of mineral, form but a comparatively small section of the county, which has an area of 5532 square miles, nearly 600 greater than the total area of the state of Connecticut, and more than two-thirds the area of the whole state of Massachusetts. Adjoining St. Louis county are Lake, Cook and Carlton counties with a total area of nearly 5000 square miles, the two former at present practically a terra incognita; Itasca, with 5575 square miles; Beltrami, with 4680 square miles; Aitkin, with 1869 square miles; Cass, with 2977 square miles, and Roseau with 1692 square miles. This gives a total area of nearly 27,000 square miles in St. Louis and adjoining counties that will be filled up with settlers in the coming years and increase the trade and commerce of Duluth. It is an empire half the size of the state of Illinois.

Much of this land now being opened to settlement was formerly covered with pine, but the lumbermen's ax has removed it and laid bare for the colonizer lands that are fertile and productive and will soon be transformed into prosperous farming communities. The continuance of the lumbering operations will add to the extent of these lands, and in time the whole stretch of territory between Duluth and the Red river will be settled and developed, unless its progress be checked by the "national park and forestry reserve" scheme or some other crank idea that may be forced through congress by designing men, aided by a host of deluded people who know nothing of the rich farming lands and the agricultural possibilities of this country. This is the only dark spot upon the horizon, but if the people of Northern Minnesota carefully guard their own interests and send to congress men who will be true to the welfare of this section of the state, the scheme will never be consummated and the development of Northen Minnesota will not be hindered.

THE CRISIS IN JAPAN.

Although the London managers of Japanese banks assure the world that the failure of a number of banks will cause no trouble, they were small concerns, their suspension calls attention to the financial condition of Japan and causes some apprehension in the financial world. There is more or less disagreement on the subject, believing the empire to be sound while others take the opposite view. The following from the report of the United States consul at Yokohama gives his view of the matter:

"The financial condition of Japan is at present far from encouraging, and her bankers, statesmen and business men are exerting every effort to avert a pending panic. The situation, as analyzed by the shrewdest financiers and statesmen of the empire, shows that the Chinese indemnity secured at the close of the Japan-China war, together with large national loans, led to the exploiting of many public and private undertakings which caused money to be unusually plentiful among the coolie, or laboring, classes. This induced extravagant methods of living and is assigned as a potent factor in the large increase of imports. The amount of indemnity paid by China proved insufficient for the enterprises projected, and many millions were diverted from the customary channels of trade to carry forward these undertakings.

"The large increase in imports was unfortunately accompanied by a falling off in exports during the past year, occasioned by the interruption of the Chinese trade, and a decreased demand for silk and habutai in America and Europe, so that last year the relation of exports to imports stood in the ratio of five to six, and 50,000,000 yen ($24,900,000) passed out of the country to settle Japan's balance of trade. This large outflow of specie led the Bank of Japan to raise its rate of interest, produced a glut of merchandise in the godowns of the importers, and caused a pronounced depreciation of stocks, bonds and securities.

"The scarcity of money for commercial and industrial purposes is all the more keenly felt because of the steady rise in price of all living expenses, which have increased during the last few years over 75 per cent. Foreign capital declines to enter the Japanese market, although tempted by flattering rates of interest. The government's recent effort to float a foreign loan has not proven a success, while school and municipal bonds, based upon safe security, are rendered undesirable to foreigners because of the faulty regulations and conditions attending their issue. The banks have tied up in investments a larger sum than their total paid-up capital, and Minister Watanabe observes that this fact is largely responsible for the present embarrassment felt in business circles. The closeness of the money market, combined with the dullness of trade and violent fluctuations of prices, is causing much alarm among merchants, manufacturers and bankers, and more failures are imminent."

There is another point, that is not touched upon in the consul's review of the situation, and that is the adoption of the single gold standard by Japan a few years ago. Whether the present crisis is in part the outcome of that change is not discussed.

THAT TRADE ALLIANCE.

The opinion is expressed in official circles at Washington that the talk of an international alliance against the United States with the purpose of repressing her export trade seems unlikely to cause serious anxiety if considered in the light of recent commercial history. Frequent announcements have been made during the past few years of combinations or legislation against the United States with reference to our export trade. A few years ago American meats were the subject of legislation in several of the European countries, with the apparent purpose of discriminating either against certain classes of our products or of aiding certain classes of producers in the countries in which the legislation was had. A little later came similar action with reference to American fruits. Still later further legislation with reference to various grades of meat was had, and this was followed by increase of duties in certain European countries against the classes of breadstuffs of which the United States is a large producer and exporter. Our dairy products have also been the subject of more or less attention from Europeans, who had looked askance at oleomargarine, butter and filled cheese. The sugar legislation and laws of the United States have furnished a basis for certain restrictive regulations with reference to certain products of our manufactories, and the war with Spain was looked upon by many as likely to practically destroy the commerce between that country and the United States.

What has been the result of all this commercial friction, commercial hostility, and of these national and international combinations against American commerce? To answer in a word: A steady increase of American exports to the countries in question, and in many cases a decrease of American imports from those countries.

Take the case of Germany, for instance, where restrictive legislation or regulation with reference to certain American products has been frequently agitated and in some cases actually applied. The figures of the treasury department show that our exports to Germany have increased from $83,000,000 in 1893 to $187,000,000 in 1900, while the figures for the eight months ending with February, 1901, show exports to Germany valued at $134,000,000, against $124,000,000 in the corresponding months of last year, and $111,000,000 in the same months of the fiscal year 1899. Meantime imports into the United States from Germany have fallen from $111,000,000 in 1897 to $97,000,000 in 1900, though for the fiscal year 1901 they will probably be slightly in excess of 1900.

In France certain American productions, especially those of agricultural origin, have been the subject of more or less restrictive legislation or regulation; yet our exports to France, which in 1893 were $46,000,000, were in 1900 $83,000,000, and in the eight months ending with February, 1901, are $56,000,000, against $43,000,000 in the corresponding months of 1899. Meantime our imports from France have not materially changed, the imports of 1893 having been $76,000,000 and those of 1900 $73,000,000, while for the eight months ending with February, 1901, they show an increase of a little less than $1,000,000 over the corresponding months of last year.

To Spain our export trade, instead of being destroyed or materially reduced, has increased, and the exports during the present fiscal year seem likely to be greater than in any other year, with possibly a single exception, in our history, having been for the eight months ending with February, 1901, $10,345,880, against $8,565,271 in the corresponding months of 1900, and $6,011,035 in the same months of the fiscal year 1899. Even in the fiscal year 1900 the total exports to Spain from the United States were larger than in any earlier year since 1891.

Even in the case of Russia, whose recent action with reference to certain American products has been already announced, the effect is up to this time scarcely apparent. Our exports to Russia during March of the present year, the first full month following the announcement of the discriminating rates against the United States, were $1,199,683, as against $1,246,621 during March of last year.

A desire to eliminate the competition of Southern cotton mills which is becoming embarrassing to their less favorably situated Northern rivals, is said to be the reason for the proposed cotton mill trust. It will have a capitalization of $500,000,000 and will include every mill manufacturing cotton cloth and all the print works of the country. The industrial development of the South has been wonderful. Twenty years ago, by the census of 1880, there were 180 small cotton mills south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers with a total of 800 spindles. The census of 1900 will show nearly 800 mills with more than 4,000,000 spindles and at least 500,000 spindles more to be added within the next few months in mills now under construction. The most rapid increase in the history of cotton manufacture in the South is now going on. In Georgia alone forty-eight new mills with 283,676 new spindles and 5000 looms, representing an investment of $3,800,000 were put in operation last year. They are all of the latest type, both in construction and equipment, and many of them are run by electricity. During the previous year Georgia built thirty-eight new mills with 278,000 spindles and 4710 looms, which represented an equal amount of capital. More than 75 per cent of the stock in the Georgia mills is owned by local capitalists.

The earnings of the Burlington railroad for 1900 were the largest in the history of the company, which perhaps is one reason for the coming absorption by the Great Northern-Northern Pacific combine. There is of Burlington stock outstanding substantially $110,000,000. Exchanged for bonds at 200 this will create an issue of $220,000,000, the interest on which, at 3 per cent, entails disbursements by the leasing companies of $8,800,000 per annum. If exchanged for 3½ per cent bonds at 225 the collateral trust issue would have amounted to $247,500,000, and the annual intercst payment to $8,662,500. The Burlington earnings available for dividends for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900, were $7,928,761, or nearly $1,000,000 less than the $8,800,000 requirement on the $220,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds.

A waiter at Perry's, New York, testified in court that he made about $100 a week in tips. With women giving Pullman car porters tips of $100,000 by will, and Sherry waiters getting $100 a week, it will soon be impossible for a man worth less than $1,000,000 to secure recognition from waiters and broom whiskers. Tipping is an un-American habit and should be put a stop to by some means or other.

A former friend and disciple of Robert Ingersoll changed his belief before death and to expiate his sins he requested that all of the books by Ingersoll which he owned, should be burned upon his grave. Rather a queer request, but it probably eased the conscience of the dying man.

THE CROWDED STREET.

Let me move slowly through the street,
Filling with an ever-shifting train,
Amid the sounds of steps that beat
The murmuring walks like autumn rain.

How fast the flitting figures come!
The mild, the fierce, the stony face—
Some bright with thoughtless smiles, and some

They pass, to toil, to strife, to rest—
To halls in which the feast is spread—
To chambers where the funeral guest
In silence sits beside the dead.

And some to happy homes repair,
Where children pressing cheek to cheek,
With mute caresses shall declare
The tenderness they cannot speak.

And some, who walk in calmness here,
Shall shudder as they reach the door,
Where one who made their dwelling dear,
Its flower, its light, is seen no more.

Youth, with pale cheek and slender frame,
And dreams of greatness in thine eye!
Go'st thou to build an early name,
Or early in the task to die?

Keen son of trade, with eager brow!
Who is now fluttering in thy snare?
Thy golden fortunes, tower they now,
Or melt the glittering spires in air?

Who of this crowd tonight shall tread
The dance till daylight gleam again?
Who sorrow o'er the untimely dead?
Who writhe in throes of mortal pain?

Some, famine-struck, shall think how long
The cold, dark hours, how slow the light;
And some, who flaunt amid the throng,
Shall hide in dens of shame tonight.

Each where his tasks or pleasures call,
They pass, and heed each other not.
There is Who heeds, Who holds them all
In His large love and boundless thought.

These struggling tides of life, that seem
In wayward, aimless course to tend,
Are eddies of the mighty stream
That rolls to its appointed end.

Justice to Major Harrison.

Indianapolis Journal: A good deal of evidence has been adduced tending to show that the summary removal of Maj. Russell B. Harrison from the volunteer service was, in its circumstances and inferences, an act of injustice to him. Whether this is so or not the decision of President McKinley to reinstate him in his former rank, thus removing any implied blemish on his record, is an act of generosity that does honor to the president.

Chartered Far From Home.

Philadelphia Record: A trading and transportation trust has been organized for Alaska under the protecting shelter of New Jersey's incorporation laws, every large corporation, with one exception, being included in the deal. The economic history of this fallow field of enterprise will be henceforth a record of trust achievement, in which the perfect working of monopoly will be shown without let or hindrance. The trust will have a clear field and all the favors in the frozen Northwest.

Railroad Capitalization.

Portland Oregonian: Ten years ago there were only three railroad companies in the United States with an outstanding stock capital exceeding $100,000,000—the Atchison, the Pennsylvania and the Southern Pacific—and their stock issues did not severally rise far above that figure. Now a dozen railroad companies can be named whose capital stock amounts to $100,000,000 or more and three of them go above the $200,000,000 mark—the Union Pacific, with $296,000,000; the Pennsylvania, with $251,000,000, and the Atchison, with $216,000,000.

The Salt Trust.

Indianapolis News: President White of the salt trust says that the present tariff of $1.60 a ton on salt is sufficient to prevent foreign competition, and naively adds that American salt is now for the first time beginning to seek a foreign market. The average citizen will have difficulty in understanding the necessity of a tariff to protect the home market from foreign competition when our own salt dealers are competing in foreign markets, where they have no protection and where the cost of transportation is added to the cost of production.

A Double Discovery Awaits.

Baltimore Star: The president may find, when he starts on his trip to the Pacific by way of the South, that the latter section is not yet prepared to accept Senator McLaurin as leader or to embrace Republicanism.

Awful to Contemplate.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Thus far we have had one at a time, but suppose, just for instance, that the Marlboroughs, the Manchesters and the Castellanes should break looose simultaneously.

New Trade Opening.

Baltimore American: Unless Pat Sheedy is curbed some other bright gambler will lay aside the faro box to open a clearing house for crime.

A Distinct Feature.

Atlanta Journal: Japan's willingness to be the Mr. Hanna of the Chinese government is one distinct feature of the Oriental situation.

Great Expectations.

Philadelphia Ledger: Secretary Root expects his Filipino soldiers to fight better for the government than they did against it.

DAILY STORY.

BIG JACK'S OUTBREAK.

BY DAVID G. TAYLOR.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

There were those who said that convict 1280 was innocent of the crime which sent him to prison for such a long term of years that there was scarce a hope of his ever being a free man again. They meant that he was technically guilty. He had sought to save a woman from a beating at the hands of her husband, and in the struggle and excitement he had struck a blow which caused the death of the man. It was an accident, in a sense, but it was also manslaughter. "Big Jack" as the convict was sometimes returned to, was like most big men—a child in his gentleness and good nature. He went to prison weeping. He did not complain, but he grieved. He thought of the years and years which must drag away before the prison doors would open to him, and he moved about like a weak old man. The prison officials felt to pity him, but a convict is a convict and all must be treated alike—all who show obedience to the rules. They seized him up as child-like and good-natured, and yet they said to each other as they talked of him: "Look out for Big Jack! He will break loose some day and do some desperate thing."

They thought it would come during the first six months of his term. Then during his second. Then they almost became afraid of him. Men who are slow to anger—who go on grieving, brooding and bearing a mental burden for weeks and months—are devils when the climax comes. Big Jack had the management of the trip hammer in the machine shop. Had they put him in the shoe shop or the tailor shop he would have rebelled at once. His place was beside the biggest piece of machinery in the shops—two pieces of machinery, as it were—"Jack and Trip." Day by day, week by week and month by month the ponderous hammer rose and fell, and its blows shook the very earth for yards around, making the convict smile and look proud.

The guards had an eye on him and kept saying to each other:

"It will come! It is only delayed. When he breaks loose he will kill someone and have to be killed in turn."

Nearly half of the second year had passed and the giant convict had never even sulked, when one day there came into the shop as sightseers a husband, wife and little girl 4 or 5 years old. Children are seldom seen in prison and it is a rare thing that they are taken into the shops in the yards. If anyone in that prison knew that convict 1280 had a daughter—a dark-haired, handsome child, who could only walk alone when the jury pronounced his verdict of "guilty"—he had forgotten the fact. His wife had visited him as often as visitors were allowed, but the child had never been seen within the grim walls. Knowing that her husband had killed a man by accident, the wife could bear to see him wearing the horrible stripes of a convict, but to let the child look upon him—to gaze in wonder at the iron bars—to ask why all those men were there—a thousand times no! And so this was the first child Big Jack had seen since the heavy door shut him in. Father, mother and child came close to him and gazed at the ponderous hammer with wondering eyes. You would have argued that the sight of the child would have softened the convict's heart and brought tears to his eyes, but it did not. It brought a feeling of madness—of desperation—of frenzy. To save a woman from a brutal beating at the hands of a drunken, worthless thing not fit to be classed with men he had struck a blow. A jury had called it murder in the second degree, and he was here in prison on a sentence almost never ending. He had been wronged, and the knowledge of it fired his heart and brought the long-expected outbreak. With a sudden cry which startled everyone in the noisy shop, Big Jack made a spring forward, seized the child in his arms, and there was a shout of defiance on his lips as he held her at arm's length and glared about him. The mother of the child gasped for breath and staggered back to the wall and sunk down. The father stood staring, as if struck dumb, but presently held out his hands in silent supplication. Big Jack glowered and muttered in reply. He was a convict—a childless father. He was dead to his child; she was dead to him. He could not make another father's heart ache and throb as his did, but he would secure revenge.

After muttering he was silent. No one cried out. Guards and convicts were seemingly stupefied. There was the hum of machinery, but not of voices. Convicts turned from forge to anvil and bench and lathe and held their breath. The two shop guards leaned forward in their chairs and looked and looked, but they did not move or cry out.

"What will he do with the child?"

The two men working at the triphammer with Mig Jack had fallen back. He had control of the machinery which worked it. The answer to the question could be read in his eyes. Men had wronged him under cover of the law. He had been deprived of liberty, degraded and disgraced. Death were more merciful than such a sentence as his, and in dying, he would secure revenge. A piece of metal had been left under the hammer. There was heard the sound of "Crash! crash! crash!" as the mass of iron rose and fell at regular intervals—the sound above the monotonous hum of the machinery.

"He will thrust her under the hammer!"

So thought each guard and each convict. So thought the father, whose feet seemed chained to the floor and whose face was whiter than the dead. One of the guards could have touched a button and signaled the engineer to shut off steam, but he did not move a hand. Either guard had a fair mark to shoot at, but their pistols were not lifted. Up and down, up and down went the hammer, but suddenly the belt was thrown over the loose pulley and the mass rested on the anvil. It seemed to those who looked as if they had been looking through a mist—such a mist as rises from the earth of a summer's morning. It seemed to them that this mist thinned out, cleared away before the influence of a rising sun, and by and by they saw the child nestling on Big Jack's hairy breast, one hand smoothing his cheek, and, seeming to come from a long distance off, they heard her childish voice saying:

"No, you wouldn't hurt Nellie—you wouldn't hurt Nellie! What makes you cry? Have you a little girl, too? Won't they let you go home and see your little girl?"

And the convicts advanced step by step, and the guards crept forward, and lo! Big Jack's tears were falling as he hugged the child more tightly and kissed her hair and rosy cheek. There was silence yet—silence as he walked to and fro and kissed and lifted the child till she could clasp her tiny arms about his neck and rest her cheek against his. Not a whisper among the convicts—not a move from father or mother or the guards. By and by Big Jack placed the child in her father's arms, wiped the tears from his eyes on his striped jacket, and with a "God bless the little darling!" and a "Thank ye, sir!" he returned to his work, and the hammer was lifted and held in waiting for the hot iron to be placed on the anvil beneath. The guards motioned for the other convicts to go back to their benches and forges, and a minute later the visitors had gone and work was in full blast. The long-expected outbreak had come and gone.

DUN'S REVIEW

Business Continues Brisk In Spite of Flood Drawbacks.

New York, April 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business continues very brisk for the season in the face of some drawbacks, which at times might cause marked hesitation. Chief of these are the floods in many directions which have interfered with railroad operations and interrupted the distribution of merchandise and the weather all over the East has been adverse to an increase of retail trade. Bank clearings, however, show that, while speculation has been heavy, there must have been a well sustained volume of legitimate business, for the gains are 14.1 per cent over 1900 and 18.9 over 1899 outside New York and 103.0 per cent over 1900 and 84.0 over 1899 at this city. Railroad earnings make similarly encouraging gains. Reports from the interior show special strength in conditions through Missouri, Kansas and Ohio, and the future is full of promise, unless there is misfortune with the crops.

Much unfavorable comment has appeared regarding the advance in steel rails to $28. Yet the change is only in keeping with recent increases in prices of pig iron and billets. Nominal quotations for many products of iron and steel have long been disregarded in contracts calling for early delivery, and list prices are generally moving up to a representative level. On new business or export orders it is not unreasonable to make prices for rails on a parity with other products of this industry. Aside from this one operation there is no new development. Pig iron is more quiet, with little taken for delivery beyond July 1. Domestic business in principal lines of manufacturing steel is so active as to discourage foreign buying, but machinery and specialty mills are exporting freely. It is reported from Pittsburg that mills are not crowded by demand to the extent noticed in 1899, but productive capacity has largely expanded.

After a prolonged period of waiting for definite crop news the cereal markets suddenly awoke to unusual activity. Much of the increased trading and sharp advances in prices resulted from clever manipulation by a single Western speculator who compelled the short contingent to cover May corn contracts at the highest prices of the season. While there was an element of strength in the reports of late planting, slow movement of the old crop held greater influence, as stocks available for delivery were light. Wheat increased sharply, partly in sympathy with corn but there was bad news regarding the German crop and some damage at the West.

Wool is fairly steady. Eastern markets are quiet, with light demand from the mills. There is less disposition to secure raw material in advance of needs, although much faith is expressed regarding the stability of prices. Reports from many correspondents in the chief sheep raising states indicate that a larger clip than last year may be expected and the condition is satisfactory. Growers are slow to make contracts at the present level of prices, but the large percentage of the old crop carried over and heavy stocks at the East give little encouragement to hope for higher prices until demand for manufactured goods show material improvements. Cotton responds slowly to indications of damage on plantations, for the old crop comes into sight freely, and heavy losses in British exports of goods and yarns do not promise a vigorous foreign demand for raw material.

Another decrease is reported in shipments of boots and shoes from New England shops, although there is still a heavier movement than in the same week last year. Factories are less behind with orders, and buyers are inclined to defer new contracts in the hope of securing concessions. As yet, however, quotations are unchanged. Spring trade has been lost through inclement weather and local jobbers no longer expect an average season's business. The same influence has enabled retailers to reduce supplies of rubber footwear carried over from last fall. Leather is barely steady at last week's decline and stocks of light grades are accumulating.

Failures for the week numbered 215 in the United States against 204 last year, and 26 in Canada against 22 last year.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Paul Kreuger, a German gardener, of Chicago, has had his stomach cut out at the hospital of the Illinois Medical college by Dr. B. B. Eads, professor of surgery. This makes the third successful operation of the kind on record. A cancer which was eating up Kreuger's stomach necessitated the operation. Kreuger is making a good recovery.

Word has been received of the suicide of J. B. Hodson, head accountant of the Montana Mining company, operating the famous Drum Lommon mine. The suicide, which was by shooting, occurred at Santa Barbara, Cal. Mr. Hodson had been in poor health. He leaves a wife and children at Marysville, Mont.

Leopold Delleville, who is said to be a Belgian count, was brought back to Chicago from the East to stand trial on a charge of bigamy. Delleville, it is said, has married fifty-seven women. His last matrimonial venture was with Miss Elizabeth Houseman, of Riverdale, Ill., early in April of this year.

Fire Marshal Dennis J. Swenie, one of the best-known firemen in the country, will be retired, and another man, presumably First Assistant Marshal Musham, will be named in his place next week. Marshal Swenie, who has served Chicago for more than fifty years, has prepared his resignation, which he will submit to the mayor at any time.

The striking marine engineers have returned to work on every boat owned by Milwaukee members of the Lake Carriers' association. The boats will start as soon as possible.

The Beaumont oil exchange has posted a statement that the Standard Oil company has purchased the railroad terminals, wharves and shipping facilities at Port Arthur and 90,000 acres of land surrounding that port. The price was not given. Port Arthur is the nearest deep water port to the Beaumont oil field, and by controlling this outlet the Standard Oil company can control every barrel of oil taken from the Beaumont fields.

An anti-clerical demonstration was dispersed by the police at Lisbon Friday. The figure of a Jesuit was burned in effigy by the mob, who meanwhile indulged in anti-Jesuit cries.

CUBAN TEACHERS' VISIT STARTS HEALTH REVIVAL

Paine's Celery Compound Doing Wonderful Work Among Sick.

The visit of hundreds of bright Cuban teachers to the United States last summer has caused a tremendous health-revival in Havana and Santiago.

The American idea "a sound mind in a sound body," is one of the first lessons Cuba and Porto Rico are learning.

But they are learning fast.

Whatever distrust Cubans may have of American politicians, they have confidence in America's greatest remedy, Paine's celery compound.

It has opened the eyes of the people of Havana and Santiago to the possibilities of good health in a way their crude remedies had never let them imagine.

Paine's celery compound is doing a tremendous missionary work this spring among the sick, not only throughout the United States, but wherever the American influence is felt.

The best families in Santiago are taking Paine's celery compound. The common people are looking after their health as never before. American physicians in Havana are ordering the great spring remedy. Its health-giving effect on friends and relatives who first tried Paine's celery compound in the United States has encouraged thousands of despondent, hopeless sufferers at home to use it. The result in all these cases has been the direct cause of the health revival that is now arousing such tremendous enthusiasm.

Santiago, Cuba, January, 1901.

Wells, Richardson Co.

Dear Sirs: I have had the gout in my fingers and hands. My limbs were benumbed and I could hardly stand. I went to several physicians. A druggist advised me to use Paine's celery compound. I began at once to get better, and today I am perfectly well. Naturally I have great faith in Paine's celery compound. Very truly yours,

MRS. BELEN GUERRA.

Everyone in the spring time needs to purify the blod and regulate the nerves. Carry home today—not by and by—a bottle of Paine's celery compound. Cure nervousness, neuralgia and rheumatism this spring. You can now put your health on a sound basis by means of Paine's celery compound.

Such evidences of an unhealthy condition as those constant headaches, melancholy, dyspepsia or constipation rapidly disappear under the cleansing, regulating action of Paine's celery compound.

CONCERT AND BALL.

Commercial Travelers at the Armory on Friday.

The members of Zenith council, No. 40, United Commercial Travelers, are very anxious to take the Duluth City band to the annual gathering of the order at Grand Forks in June, and for the purpose of assisting toward that end has arranged a promenade concert and ball, to be given at the Armory next Friday evening. An effort will be made to make it a very fine event and a conspicuous social feature of the spring season. The following program will be given by the band:

March, "The Admiral" .....Freedeman
Overture, "Orpheus" .. ..Offenbach
Piccolo solo, "Through the Air" ....

THE DRAMA

Lewis Morrison's "Faust" at the Lyceum.

"Watch On The Rhine" At the Lyceum Monday.

Tonight Lewis Morrison's "Faust" will be seen at the Lyceum. For years this great play has been playing to crowded houses, and it does not seem to lose any of the interest which it has for the people. The presentation this year is announced as positively the farewell one, and this will lead its old admirers to again see this great play.

"THE WATCH ON THE RHINE."

Al H. Wilson in "The Watch on the Rhine" is to be the attraction at the Lyceum next Monday night. Mr. Wilson, so well known in all of the larger cities, is said to be a bright young man of undoubted talents, and is gifted with the unusual quality of being able to extract a tear or convulse his auditors with merriment with east and grace. He is also the possessor of a singing voice that for sweetness and purity of tone is second to none, so rich and true is it in quality and timber that the sobriquet of "golden-voiced singer" may be most aptly applied to him.

"The Watch on the Rhine" is from the pen of Sidney R. Ellis, who has written a number of successes, and it is claimed that this is the best play he has ever produced. It tells a heart story with a straightforwardness that is convincing, and woven around this always attractive subject is a plot of diplomatic intrigue in imperial affairs that holds one spellbound with its intensity and interest. Then there is the comedy and mirth-provoking situations. It is really a question if more continuous laughter could be so deftly crowded into the usual space of time and leave room for anything else than that which is in

"Die Wacht Am Rhein."

The scenes are located on the banks of the river Rhine in Germany, and all that famous stream's picturesque surroundings will be faithfully reproduced by a carload of scenery and electrical effects of a very lavish character.

Mr. Wilson's supporting company is unexcelled by any traveling, the names of the leading members alone being a guarantee of merit. For instance, Mark Price, Eva Byron, Fanny Bloodgood, E. E. Hulfish, Alfred H. Hastings, Atlie Warner, Charles McGrath, Maurice Dudley, Louis Maurice and many others.

During the action of the play Mr. Wilson will sing six new songs, each one being a gem of beauty and exquisite melody. They are entitled "Love is All in All," "My Little Fraulein," "The Tea Kettle Song," "In Tyrol," "A Song of Home" and "Bissell English."

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

Tonight this popular East End play house will finish another phenomenal week with the North Bros.' company the attraction. A remarkable success in every way has been their entire engagement. Every night of their stay adds new laurels, and they are now prime favorites at the Sixth Avenue theater.

Much credit is due the enterprising and hard-working young managers, Messrs. Laudergan and McKenny, for they have succeeded in placing this house in great popularity, and today it is the resort of the best element of Duluth's people, and they fully appreciate the endeavors of the energetic managers to present first-class attractions at moderate prices.

The North Bros.' company will remain another week, and next Monday night Miss Goodwin will appear in "East Lynne," a wonderful story in dramatic form. In this piece she will receive the support of the entire company. Perhaps in a greater degree than any similar work this story draws its motive from the living world. The endorsements of Miss Goodwin and the Chapins are very strong. The specialties put on between acts are up-to-date and interesting novelties; the splendid singing of Lee Mitchell, the great male prima donna, and A. N. Barden, baritone, are inducements extraordinary.

THEIR FAVORITE FADS.

Likes and Dislikes of Famous Actor Folk.

Boston, April 24.—From the standpoint of fairness and sound common sense, if one attends a performance of any kind and is satisfied with the entertainment offered, the entire obligation of the performer or of the company is thereby canceled.

Notwithstanding this indisputable fact the great majority of amusement seekers the world over perversely refuse to leave the professional at the stage door, so to speak. They persist in following them even to the questionable limit of intruding upon their private life. What cannot be cured must, alas, be endured, and, making the best of the intrusiveness, a mass of interesting information has been secured, thanks to the courtesy of nearly every professional approached.

Place aux dames, always, so let us begin with charming Annie Russell, as true a specimen of the gentlewoman as ever trod the boards. Miss Russell writes:

"I am glad to be able to reply to your courteous letter. My principal penchant, aside from my vocation, is for collecting beautiful pieces of old furniture, old Spanish and Italian damask and velvets; also carved mirror and picture frames. These hand-wrought things are so full of individuality and charm. The little inequalities in following a set design, the richness of the shadows and high lights in a beautiful piece of hand-carving; the mellowness and harmony of tone which time has given; the originality of shapes—such things I delight in seeing and possessing. In my home I treasure some stately things of the Louis XV period; some charming examples of colonial and Chippendale furniture; simple and fine and quaint; a few pieces of tapestry and Spanish embroideries; some precious hand-carved frames, on which the gold has become so dull and rich that some unappreciative visitor wonders if they don't need regilding! My pictures are modern, and most of my books."

That typical frou-frou from France, Anna Held, confesses to the fad of collecting "all kinds of dogs. I have constantly with me while traveling seven different species of dogs—from a great Dane to the smallest dog in the world, a 16-ounce blue and tan terrier. My collection also contains a Boston bull, and in my kennels in Paris I have as many as eighty dogs on which, during my time to study, I spend much of my time in personally taking care of them. I also have a great fad for the collection of hats, and always have for personal wear at least 150 different styles of hats to wear during each season."

Mrs. Leslie Carter says: "My one idea, outside of acting, is horses," indeed a most human hobby.

Olga Nethersole finds "engrossment in the collection of antique furniture, prints and silver, and I never visit a city without becoming well acquainted with all dealers in antiques located there. It often happens that I am able to acquire some very precious finds in that way. In my home in London my collection of furniture is very antique. Professor Ruskin was once calling upon me, and on bidding me adieu, declared that my house was a 'veritable museum of antiquities.' No matter what may be the prevailing fashion, I always make a point of inventing my own headwear, which, as a rule, is the result of some impetuous thought, and it has often happened that my hurried designs have ultimately become a season's fashion in the world."

Isabel Irving is a book fiend, and petite Edna Wallace Hopper writes:

"Yes, I have a fad, a soul-absorbing desire to play good parts. That's all!" Helen Crosman has a most commendable fancy in the welfare of the youth of America. Most every little urchin in the street knows her and has benefited by her generosity. Newsboys, in particular, are her pets, and should she make sufficient money she would establish dining halls where newsboys could obtain a hearty meal for the asking. Whenever her autograph is requested she asks a fee of 25 cents, which is devoted to a children's charitable institution.

Dainty Cissie Loftus writes: "I would help you with pleasure if I could, but I really don't believe I have a single fad! I love cats. Is that a fad? And I collect autographs. I generally occupy my spare time writing music and short stories (and verses), a good many of which have been published."

Jessie Bartlett Davis very sensibly says: "I love my home, my friends and everything that interests those two. And there, what little 'faddishness' I have ends."

Mary Mannering is very fond of hunting big game, and is also a devotee of duck shooting. Clara Lipman's feminine fancy is for lace handkerchiefs, a few of which in her possession she values at $300 each. Miss Lipman has agents constantly on the watch for something new in the handkerchief line, and already has a mouchoir museum which it would be difficult to duplicate.

Lydia Yeamans confesses that her penchant is for pillows and centerpieces, which she makes during the waits between the scenes of plays in which she appears. These specimens of her handiwork she gives away to her friends. Jennie Yeamans, her sister, has a fancy for picking up stray dogs and sending them to her country place, not to try a new play on them, but to give them a good home. It makes no difference what degree of dog it be, if it is being abused she buys it and sees that it is given proper care, which, she says, costs her but little.

And now comes a coterie of actresses who disavow all fads, beginning with Ida Conquest, who claims, "Perhaps I am the one actress without a fad." Hilda Spong sends a brief note: "I write to thank you for your letter, and especially for the courteous manner in which the request is made; but I regret to say I have no fads or other private predilection in any direction that would interest the public. But I beg to thank you." Jolly May Irwin cordially confesses, "Unfortunately I have no fad, so I will be minus the advertising I would otherwise get through your article."

The sterner sex were quite as ready to reply as their sister professionals, and in rather more generous numbers. E. H. Sothern writes: "I have no fad, or I should be glad to tell you about it. Really, I am so busy attending to my work that I have not had much time to devote to fads. In a general way, I am fond of curios and books, of course, and you are at liberty to write anything to that effect."

James A. Herne says: "I have no fad that I am aware of. I am called a crank, as is every one who is not satisfied with social conditions and works to help change them—better them, he calls it. I have a purpose in life. I am a firm believer in the social science and political economy of Henry George, and am doing my utmost to hasten the day when, as Professor J. Rhodes Buchanan puts it, 'not another acre of this our mother earth will ever again be bought or sold.'"

J. E. Dodson allows that he is a fiend at "whist in all forms, but especially bridge whist," devoting about all of the little spare time he has to this diversion. Coquelin naively admits that "outside of my acting my only penchant is sleeping." Frederic de Belleville makes a most commendable claim to "extreme tidiness in my home and theater life," which perennial Tony Pastor says: "I like to give the best shows and produce the most novelties for the entertainment of my audiences, to encourage performers and generally advance the interest of my profession; to that I have devoted my life, and from that I have received more pleasure than from any other one source."

James K. Hackett shares with his wife in her fondness for hunting already described, and Otis Skinner writes in a wholesome way: "When the work of the season is over outdoor life appeals to me—travel, pedestrianism, fishing, hunting, mountain climbing. But these are glittering generalities; I am not enough of a degenerate to focus my energies in any one direction."

James O'Neill is very droll in his confession: "My fad consists in having no fad. I have never been a 'fad' on the stage, and off the boards I prefer to be natural, both in my likes and dislikes. I have observed that people who either are fads or who cultivate fads, lose sight of the really great and solid values in life in pursuit of the irrelevant side issues. If I could entertain a fad, it would be never to play Monte Cristo."

William H. Thompson is golf mad and au contrairie, William Gillette says: "I do not care particularly about anything." Joe Weber confesses to a collection of coins, while Will MacDonald owns up that "would be a lie to say I am a numismatic, for I don't collect, I distribute. I do, however, claim to be a consistent, patient, and"—here's where the lie creeps in again—"fairly successful angler." Harry Dixey avows, "My fad is trying to be a good actor."

Louis Mann delights in electricity, his home in New York fairly blazing with all sorts of lights, notably in the drawing room, where a huge lion's head emitting all the colors of the rainbow fills the center of the apartment. Perhaps the most unique fad of all is the team of tame ostriches which Henry Jewett drives for pleasure in his Australian home. This last story may seem taller than the ostriches, and is the only one herein not vouched for, and even at that, it was submitted by Mr. Jewett's manager.

E. S. Willard, Nat Goodwin, Denman Thompson, the Rogers brothers and W. H. Crane all deny having any fad.

There is apparently no limit to the list of professional people who not only have fads, but are willing to admit it. And within the scope of a single article there is such an embarrassment of riches that, with only the dramatic profession accounted for, the curtain must be rung down on an unfinished story.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Revival of Temperance Plays Is the Latest.

New York, April 24.—The soul stirring success as a crusader of Mrs. Carrie Nation of Kansas is to have an effect upon the drama, which was unlooked for in the beginning of her smashing career. Now that folks in the West, particularly, and in general all over the country, have had their attention called to the curse of rum, they are to be carried back to childhood days, when the stage threw in a moral with each performance. Joseph Haworth is to go a-starring when the leaves begin to fall, and his play will be the good old "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Manager "Jack" Hamilton declares that never has the fond public seen such a production of this temperance idyll as he purposes treating them to.

The scenery and costumes will be most elaborate, and there will be a barroom interior calculated to move the most hardhearted old toper to tears of regret. As the tour is at present mapped out, it will begin in the West, probably near Topeka, and will then work to the East. Should the venture be as successful as is anticipated, Broadway will be given a view of it.

Frank Martineau and his committee colleagues are hard at work on the new home of the Theatrical Business Men's club. They have secured a handsome four-story brown stone house, at No. 139 West Forty-first street, and about $15,000 will be spent in furnishing it. There will be all the adjuncts of a first-class club, reception parlors, with billiard room, cafe, dining room and sleeping quarters. The members expect to have a notable house-warming about May 1. The membership list has reached 175 and is still growing. The officers for the first year are: President, Joseph Brooks; vice president, Kirke La Shelle; treasurer, Max Hirsch; secretary, Edward Q. Cordner, and board of directors, A. L. Erlanger, William T. Keogh, Marcus R. Mayer, Edward L. Bloom, Frank W. Martineau, Alfred E. Aarons, Frank Murray, John W. Hamilton, Marc Klaw, Samuel Shubert, Meyer Livingston, George A. Kingsbury, Jules Murry, Samuel Harris, William M. Hull and George W. Lederer.

Chamberlyn's "Prima Donna" has been seen and, as the man who wrote the book says, "It's no good," it seems fair to infer that much will have to be done to it before the public will take it into favor. It has been many days, however, since Broadway has seen a new show staged with such elaborateness. Chamberlyn brought his stage manager, McElroy, from the Columbia in Boston to superintend things, and he has worked wonders with the properties. There are several members of the chorus who will never forget McElroy's methods. One scene calls for several dishes of cake. They were provided, and when the stage manager wasn't looking the chorus ate the cakes all up. This happened twice, and McElroy grew wroth. On the opening night the chorus hunted for the cakes, but they were safely locked up. McElroy produced them in time, and when the chorus tried to help themselves later they found that he had glued them altogether, and then the whole bunch to the plate.

Eighth avenue has been enjoying itself to the limit this week with Sadie Martinot in "Sapho." The actress drops into tears every time she thinks of it, and she'll never go there any more. The West Side patrons of the drama failed to take the Daudet show seriously, and regarded is largely as a burlesque. The spiral staircase scene was particularly amusing, and the gallery yelled, "But he'll drop her," "He can't do it," "My, but she's a heavyweight," and "How'd you like to do that in your flat?" until the orchestra was convulsed. So it ran right through, and "Sapho" will never return to the Grand Opera house.

The success of the week has been the revival of "Diplomacy" at the Empire, and the theater has been playing to packed houses ever since the premier. Richman, Faversham, Edwin Stevens, Margaret Anglin and Jessie Millward have made the old-timers forget bygone days by their remarkable acting.

"Lost River," when it takes the road in the autumn, will be under the direction of Jules Murray, who has had charge of Lewis Morrison in "Faust," and has recently been starring Neil Burgess in "The County Fair." Murray has bought the melodrama scenery and printing from Liebler & Co., and maintains that it will be a worthy successor to "Blue Jeans."

William H. Crane will spend two months on the other side of the Atlantic this summer. He will sail early in May, and will return to get some rest at his country place at Cohasset before he resumes "David Harum."

Nina Farrington is busy rehearsing for the new production at the New York and in catching trains to Great Neck, L. I., where she has rented a summer cottage.

It has remained for Edwin Arden to make all ambitious actors envious. He is now supporting Maude Adams in "L'Aiglon," but never since the halcyon days of "Eagle's Nest" and "Raglan's Way" has he forgotten the delights of a star. Frohman wanted him next season, but Arden wanted to star, so they have split the difference in their contract. Arden can have all summer to look around for a proper play and the necessary bookings. Then if he has not been successful he will go back to his old part. It seems hard to figure out how Arden will lose.

Oliver Doud Byron has rushed to the defense of the so-called "mean" actor in the following words: "The other day a group of actors derided a prominent member of the profession because he hailed a car instead of a carriage. Yet how many of them had ever stopped to think that it is just because there are so many 'good fellows' on the stage who let money slip through their fingers that we have to support the Actors' fund? The papers are full of cases where men have drawn large salaries for years, yet wound up without a dollar, and their friends have to take care of them. Byron owns a number of cottages at North Long Branch and knows a thing or two about money.

Like Leslie Stuart, the composer, the librettist, Owen Hall, who is responsible for "Florodora," has made his bow to the United States under a nom de plume In private life he is Jimmy Davis, one of London's Bohemian set, and a very clever writer. He one time devoted himself to newspaper wrok, but found time to run for parliment and get beat en. Since then he has always pointed with pride to the fact that the man who won was Charles Russell, whose abilities later carried him to the bench of the lord chief justice of England. Hall has written the books of "A Gaiety Girl," "An Artist's Model" and "The Geisha," and he has collaborated on several musical comedies not yet known on this side.

From a sanitarium to the stage is the ambition of Mrs. "Jack" Wilmerding, who has spent the past week in persistent visiting of the dramatic agencies. She has been encouraged thereto by her friend, Clara Bloodgood, and has been chaperoned in her calling by Florence Lloyd, also of "The Climbers." Mrs. Wilmerding has taken lessons in acting, and at first was fired by a lofty ambition. Three days later she was anxious for a small part, and now "My lord, the carriage waits," will do.

Julia Marlowe has declared war on the ragtime music, with which it has been the custom of the Criterion orchestra to relieve the souls of the patrons between the installments of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" each evening and two matinees. Her musical taste differed widely from that of the orchestra leader, and she has planted her little foot firmly on his neck. It was not so much that Miss Marlowe's heart bled for the audience as that her own soul was rudely shaken clear to her dressing room. How could she contemplate a love scene of remarkable beauty while her ears were filled with "I Don't Care If You Nebber Come Back?" So she protested in this note: "For the sake of musical decency the entire act selections must be revised. Make a choice from attached list. Cable Mr. Frohman, if necessary." This was addressed to the musical director, who did cable only to hear promptly that what Miss Marlowe wanted she was to have, and at once.

The passing of Theresa Vaughn into an insane asylum was not a surprise to her friends here. She has not visited Broadway for a long time, but those who have seen her in her Chelsea home have brought discouraging reports of her mental condition, and they have no hope of her recovery. She believes that she will speedily be released, and for the present seems to have put away all thought of suicide. It was the fear of this that caused her removal to the asylum.

Elsie De Wolfe will play at Sarah Bernhardt's Paris playhouse this summer. She has been offered this opportunity by the divine Sarah as a tribute to her dramatic excellence and her French scholarship. Only one other American actress has ever attempted to invade Paris and play in French. This was Eleanor Calhoun, who has played the leading role in "Andromache" at the Odeon. Her success, however, was not startling. Miss De Wolfe will return to English in the fall, and begin her tour of this country in Clyde Fitch's play.

Albert Salezza, Mlle. Lucienne Breval, Mrs. Maurice Grau and her daughter, Mlle. Marilly M. Gilbert, and Sig. Mancinelli left these shores this week. Saleza may return, as Manager Grau has offered him an engagement that will be limited strictly to New York. He declares he will not go on the road again in this country. Mlle de Breval expects to remain with the Paris opera house management for several years.

His friends are poking great fun at Dan Daley ever since he was discharged in the police court for appearing in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The court practically decided that Daly was no actor, and was therefore not violating the law. The decision was not expressed in this language, but its intent was the same. I was held that Daly's vocation calls for singing and dancing, and that he was not following it when Inspector Thompson took him in custody. Daly is by no means certain that he has been vindicated. DeWolf Hopper escaped because his dress suit was of a vintage at least ten years back. The court held that this fact could not make it a disguise.

The divorce secured by Mrs. Harry Davenport from her husband, who is now in London, is a sad ending to two happy lives. The Davenports were most devoted until he appeared as Harry Bunsen in "The Belle of New York." They had one child and both idolized it. Before "The Belle" had enjoyed a long run Davenport's devotion to an actress produced widespread comment. His wife was patient and said nothing, however. When Davenport sailed away with Edna May and the rest of the company to capture London his wife and child accompanied him. In the English capital he again met this actress and renewed his devotions. His wife's pleadings were in vain, and she finally returned with the child to America. Now she has set him free, and his speedy marriage is looked for.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Jane Harding's latest play is "Le Vertige," a four-act comedy.

Lillian Green is to play the chief role in "King Dodo," a comic opera by Gustave Luders and Frank Pixley.

Marguerite Sylva has written the libretto of a comic opera in which she will appear next season. Julian Edwards will write the music.

Julia Mackey is the principal boy in "The Sleeping Beauty," the pantomime at Leeds, England.

A bill has been prepared, upon invitation of the Prussian government, to prolong the copyright held by the publishers of Wagner's music until fifty years after the composer's death. His works were to have become public property in 1913, but under the new law they will be held until 1933.

Mrs. William B. White, a society leader and the wife of a millionaire, has become imbued with the idea that she can act and may soon go on the stage. Mrs. White is considered very beautiful and sings.

Rose Coglan will again appear at the head of her own company. This was decided when M. B. Leavitt offered Miss Coghlan sufficient inducements to return to the legitimate stage. Since Leavitt and George W. Lederer closed the deal whereby they come into control of thirty-three theaters throughout Mexico, Yucatan and Cuba, the former has been looking about for suitable attractions to play over his circuit. It is likely that Miss Coghlan and her company will be one of the most important of these. "Diplomacy" will be in her repertoire.

What may be Mme. Modjeska's farewell appearance in America takes place May 4 in Milwaukee, when she will close her tour and sail a few days later for Poland. Until recently she has been forbidden to return to her native land on account of her pronounced political beliefs. Once before the Polish actress was practically banished from her country, but was subsequently permitted to return. Upon her arrival in Poland, however, her political views asserted themselves in accordance with the freedom of speech she had acquired in America, and she was once more rather urgently requested to absent herself. Her greatest ambition is to make one more tour of Europe and then retire from the stage for good. Her European tour at this time seems almost a certainty. She has arranged to dispose of her large California ranch, and with its sale she abandons all American interests.

Chas. Frohman and A. and S. Gatti produced last week at London the comedy, "Sweet and Twenty," by Capt. Basil Hood, author of "Ib and Little Christian" and "The Rose of Persia."

Frohman will produce next season Henry V. Esmond's "The Wilderness," London's most popular play.

Wiliam Harris will put "Tom Moore" into rehearsal next Monday at the Garrick theater. This is the Irish drama written for Andrew Mack by Theodore Burt Sayre, author of "Manon Lescaut."

Jefferson DeAngelis has closed his tour in order to be by the bedside of his son, Thomas DeAngelis. Young DeAngelis is in a precarious condition, and no hopes are entertained of his recovery. Thomas DeAngelis is about 21 years old. He was his father's private secretary, and when the Three-Star Opera company, comprising Lillian Russell, Della Fox and Jefferson DeAngelis was formed he became the treasurer.

Fifteen millionaires backed "Vienna Life," according to Rialto gossip, and each "angel" had his private cherub in the ranks of the chorus or among the women principals. There must have been lively times behind the scenes. The consumption of lobster and champagne at after-theater suppers was appalling. Unfortunately, the public did not take the same interest in the proceedings as these fatherly Wall street brokers assumed. The piece was run at a loss, and the tradesmen and actors who went unpaid have been busy ever since trying to collect their money through the courts. "Vienna Life" was by no means impossible, but artistically it was damned by the selection of a lot of principals who failed to catch the spirit of the comedy of intrigue—performers who were too Anglo-Saxon and heavy in the touch to portray the gay wives and husbands of the Austrian Paris, says "The Lounger" in the Brooklyn Citizen.

Mrs. Langtry's London theater, of which she is owner and manager, was opened last week. Mrs. Langtry admits she drew many of her ideas from American theaters, particularly one in Toledo, Ohio. She has shown excellent judgment in her selection. Many are wondering where she got the money to lavish on such a house and play. Of the play, "A Royal Necklace," little need be said. It is a rehash from the French of the old story of Marie Antoinette's intrigue with Cardinal Rohan. "Never," says the London correspondent of the New York Telegraph, "in spite of her years, for she is old enough to be a grandmother, has she looked so well. Never did society so shower her with applause, and not in her long career has she achieved such popular success as she did last night both as manager of a theater and as an actress. Today the papers ring with the praises of the play, which, by the way, is a tame affair, the actress, who was nothing wonderful, and the new Imperial, which is really by far the most beautiful and comfortable theater in London. Today everybody is showering Mrs. Langtry with congratulations, and it seems certain her present vogue will surpass even that of years ago, when she was the toast of the gay set."

FOUR TEAMS

To Make Up Northwestern Ball League.

Annual Road Race of Duluth Cycle Club.

The Northwestern league was quietly launched at Ashland last Saturday evening without much noise, frivolity, frolic or flowers. The proposed circuit is to include Duluth, Superior, Ashland and Ironwood-Hurley. The circuit, like the original plans of the league, has been cut down to meet actual conditions. With the four teams mentioned there is not the least doubt but that the game would be handsomely patronized and the managers promise to tolerate nothing but good, clean ball. If the managers do tolerate it the public will not, so taking that view of it there is likely to be the best ball here this season that can be put up outside the larger professional organizations.

Some of the managers desire a four-game schedule each week. It is doubtful if that would pay. Three games a week is about as much as the fans of this city seem able to patronize, while a two-game schedule would probably be a greater money getter in the end. In case other games are desired the managers could take in considerable money playing exhibition games.

Major Taylor won his first European race last Sunday afternoon at Roubaix, France. The negro whirlwind fought a field of thirty fast riders in a one-kilometer race. Grogna, one of the greatest of European sprinters, was second, but Taylor won by a safe margin. Taylor is to meet Jacquilin, the world's champion, on May 15.

The Duluth Cycle club is making preparations for the tenth annual road race on Memorial day. It promises to be the best in years and the revival of road racing will undoubtedly bring many of the best men in the Northwest to the tape. Local riders are already in training. The entry blanks can be secured from Wallace Wells.

The Duluth Boat club is looking forward to a big season and a general revival of interest in boating. With plenty of money to back up its intentions, the club is now looking for a suitable site for a club house on Minnesota Point. Should the change be made, as it will in all probability, steps will be taken to put out a couple of good crews to compete in boating events throughout the Northwest.

Game Warden Fullerton is preparing to supply the lakes and streams of Minnesota during the coming season with 100,000,000 wall-eyed pike. A large number of these fish will be placed in Cass lake. Mr. Fullerton has been unusually successful in placing pike in the streams of this state, and they are now very well stocked. The fishermen of Minnesota have taken a sudden liking to the wall-eyed pike, and demands have been made upon the fish warden to stock the smaller streams as well as the larger lakes with them. This he has promised to do if the hatching does not prove a failure.

For the benefit of hunters who annually frequent the game preserves of Minnesota, Game Warden Fullerton calls attention to the changes made in the laws. The law against "pot hunting" is very severe, and the game warden announces that it will be enforced this year and in the future, and in this decision he is backed by the sportsmen of the state, and will have the moral support of real sportsmen everywhere. Residents of the state are made to pay a license fee of 25 cents for a permit to hunt deer, moose or elk, and a fee of $25 is charged non-residents.

A license fee of $25 against citizens of states that have a license law prohibiting citizens of Minnesota from hunting in their respective states is required to hunt any kind of game in this state. Aside from big game, this law is of little practical effect, as a man from a proscribed state in not obliged to register his residence.

* * *

The changes in the open season make the shooting of game lawful between these dates: Snipe, pinnated grouse, sharp-tailed grouse, Sept. 10 to Nov. 1; quail and ruffled grouse, Oct. 1 to Dec. 1; woodcock and upland plover, July 4 to Oct. 31; wild duck of any variety or any variety of wild goose or any aquatic fowl whatever, Sept. 1 to Jan. 1. The sale, exposing for sale or the shipment of any of the foregoing game birds is prohibited at all times under the new law.

* * *

Deer may be shot between Nov. 10 and Nov. 30. Male moose or caribou, Nov. 15 to Nov. 20. Each hunter is permitted to kill three deer and one moose and one caribou.

* * *

The new law which prohibits the carrying of a gun, and makes the presence of a gun and a dog with sportsmen prima facie evidence of "sinister intentions," is regarded by sportsmen as all right, though a few are wondering how they will be able to train their dogs before the hunting season opens. The law was inspired by the "pot hunters," who, under the pretext that they are training their dogs prior to the beginning of the shooting season, frequently, if not regularly every year, make a wholesale slaughter of chickens almost before the birds have grown large enough to leave the nest. There are always those who will violate the law, and it is expected that some examples will be made of violators of this provision of the game law, though it is said to be unconstitutional. The legislature, it is said, cannot successfully legislate against the combination of man, gun and dog without additional proof of the violation of the game laws by killing game out of season. The possession of a gun and a dog, as well as prohibited game, would be convincing to an ordinary jury, but the possession of gun and dog without the game could be no proof, it is said, upon which a conviction could be had. But the object will probably have been accomplished in throwing suspicion upon any hunter who may be seen abroad in the fields accompanied by his dog and carrying a gun. It will be charged against him that he has designs on the early bird, and everybody will constitute himself a special watchman, all of which will be so unpleasant that the actual training of dogs will be postponed until the shooting season begins.

There is something intensely saddening in this emeute in the Fitzsimmons family at Washington last week. It jars all our preconceived notions of the domestic life of this really admirable pair of ornaments to the pugilistic profession. For years we have looked upon Fitzsimmons and his wife as the Mr. and Mrs. Madge Kendal of pugilism. They have been so demonstratively domestic and loving. Their press agents have worked so assiduously in building up this reputation of marital fondness for them that it is a shock to our illusion to find that in the privacy of their joint dressing room they are in the habit of exchanging uppercuts and left hooks with the ferocity of a pair of heavyweight champions.

Fitzsimmons, in fact, has always been differentiated from the common herd of prize fighters solely by reason of his widely advertised domesticity. When other pugilists secured flaming red headlines for themselves by trans-Atlantic elopements with music hall singers, leaving their weeping spouses to the mercy of prying reporters who teased from them all the details of their various ring deals and faked fights, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzsimmons sent for a photographer and had themselves pictured in loving embrace, in order that printed reproductions of the tender scene might bring the lax and unconventional members of the profession to a sense of their shame and disgrace.

Jim Corbett has started a new row among the "pugs." He says he can move in society where any other knight of the padded glove would be barred. "Kid" McCoy comes back with the claim that he can do just as much in the way of splashing about in "glad rags" as can Corbett. John L. Sullivan says neither of them should be allowed in "respectable saloons."

George Dixon was fined $10 at Lawrence, Mass., for giving a boxing exhibition. Bob Fitzsimmons jarred Mrs. Bob's "slats" in a family row behind the scenes of a Washington theater and got off with a large increase in the ticket office receipts the following day.

Tom Sharkey is the only one of the heavyweights who is fitting himself for a campaign. At present the sailor is in Denver preparing for his coming match with Fred Russell, the Colorado giant. Sam Pooler, who was out to Denver with Santry, brings home a new tale regarding Russell. When Joe Choynski fought Russell he was awarded the fight on a foul. It was claimed that the Colorado man picked Joe up and threw him through the ropes. Pooler says that Russell is credited in Denver with a clean knockout, and that Russell landed a punch which lifted Choynski fairly off his feet and set himself outside the ring.

Allowing for the fact that there is some Denver boosting in that report of Russell's prowess, it will be worth the price of admission several times over when Russell and Sharkey come together. One of those realistic locomotive collisions they used to give in Chicago several years ago would probably be a tame affair in comparison. Russell will likely start for Sharkey like a wild bull, and Sharkey, who was never accused of having any lack of aggressiveness, will meet Russell in the middle of the ring. There will be a collision, and somebody will get hurt. For action I think it will be a great fight, provided Russell can last any time at all.

The apprehension is spreading on the Pacific coast that the advent of McGovern means a cluster of boxing disappointments. According to the opinions of enthusiasts in that region, they are about to get the same dose administered to Chicago when McGovern and Gans fought in the Windy City. The impression seems to have taken root that San Franciscans are so eager to see McGovern they will tolerate any kind of a bout the champion may decide to engage in.

Acting on that theory, the McGovern party have selected two extremely easy propositions for the Brooklynite to solve, while Erne is kept in the background to whet the expectations of the fight enthusiasts.

It is not charged that the managers intend to sacrifice the betting public. McGovern is so palpably superior to his opponents that no betting would be possible. What they are after this time is easy gate money, to be won without much exertion and without the chance of hurting their champion's glory. They figure that the San Francisco fight patrons will not protest so long as they can see McGovern, and hence two easy problems have been picked for the slaying—two fighters who have as much right in the same ring with McGovern, as a consumptive would have in a wrestling match with Nouroulah. Moreover, not content with this, the whole scheme has been so arranged that it bears all the earmarks of a deliberate laydown for both the unfortunates who will face McGovern, thus removing any chance of possibly stopping Terry by a casual blow.

Thomas Burns and J. Bullman are two of the highest salaried jockeys in America. Since the exodus to England of most of our best riders Burns and Bullman are considered many pounds superior in skill to the other boys now earning a livelihood in the saddle. Consequently their services are in great demand.

W. C. Whitney has engaged Burns as first jockey for this season. The retaining fee to the lad is $12,000. Bullman will sport the colors of Richard Croker and Senator P. H. McCarren. He will receive $10,000 for his services.

Burns and Bullman will earn, ere the season is over, about $25,000 each. Besides their retaining fees they will receive $25 for each winning mount and $10 for a losing one. Other owners beside W. C. Whitney and Richard Croker have claims on their services, but they are secondary. These other engagements are known as "second calls." Retaining fees are also given for such services, but they are not nearly as large as the first.

Tommy Burns, now that Tod Sloan flits back and forth between England and America, is the Beau Brummel of the American turf. He has a penchant for fine clothes and indulges his taste to the limit. In the course of a year he buys from 50 to 60 suits. They are all cut in the latest fashion. His shoes and boots are in keeping with his wardrobe.

Tommy is vigorous rather than clever in the saddle. He came out of the Southwest, where he made a great name for himself, and up to the present season he has ridden steadily for J. T. Schorr, the Memphis millionaire. Last year he rode 138 winners, 107 seconds and 9 third horses out of 563 mounts.

Bullman is not a "fashion plate." He is essentially a jockey. He is wrapped up in his vocation, and is happy only when he is piloting horses to victory.

Bullman first rode in California. Thence he drifted with a stable of horses to Venezuela, where he was very successful. From there he went back to California, and three years ago made a mark by riding for E. Purser, a Brooklyn horseman.

Last year Bullman rode for Green B. Morris and Sam Hildreth at a big salary. He was suspended for a time because he deliberately fouled a boy with the intention of knocking him over the fence. He has a hasty temper, but as a jockey is perfectly fearless. His record last year was 183 winners, 129 seconds and 101 third horses out of 736 mounts.

"Dis game of paseball," said John Schwab, of Cincinnati, the other day, "vould be the greadest ting vot effer if only dose Irishers could be from dot game rausmitted. It is dose Irish blayert vot makes de droubles. It is dey who fight de bumpire und call bad names de beoples in de standt to. Pud oud de Irishers und dere vould be no more mischief-makings."

And there was great tumult, while seven Irishmen tore up the tables and broke down the walls.

A review of the players in the National and American leagues will show that Irishmen make impatient, scrappy but effective pitchers, with rather less control of the ball than the German slabmen; that they are active but pugilistic catchers, quicker to see the fine points of the daily play than the German, but not as steady on the backstop end of the work; that they are a shade better than the Teutons as infield captains, though actually a bit less certain at ground balls and long flies, and that there is nothing to choose between the races in the outfield.

William A. Brady, the famous promoter of theatrical and athletic events, is to take up cycling again, and sport in consequence is to get a big boom. Mr. Brady has leased the Manhattan Beach track, and with that noted course as his headquarters will probably form a circuit which will include Philadelphia.

Mr. Brady has a plan to give the greatest season of racing in the cycling history of America. The Grand Prix events of Paris, with all the great annual events held throughout Europe, will be repeated on the circuit, as well as elaborated paced races so popular in this country. In the American style of paced events three, four and even five men will start in events of 25 and 50 miles, while open paced races are also to be held.

One of the most sensational, as well as encouraging, bits of news in pugilism recently was the passage of a boxing bill in the Michigan state legislature, introduced by Senator Humphrey, a minister of the gospel, from Alegan county. The bill permits boxing exhibitions if not more than ten rounds, after permission has been secured from the sheriff of the county. There is no limit placed on the amount of purse money for such contests, and the clubs throughout the state will find no trouble in pulling off bouts between professional boxers for purses as large as they may see fit.

Senator Humphrey, who was probably unknown outside of his own state, will at once become the boxers' friend, as he has furnished them with a dainty morsel of satisfaction that will be more than welcome in these days when professional pugilism is at such a low ebb in all parts of America. The action of Senator Humphrey may have a healthful effect on the game and cause a better opinion to be formed by many ministers of this country who have repeatedly attacked boxing as a brutal sport.

The bicycle circuit riding will last from the last week in May to late in the fall. Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Minneapolis, Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver are surely to be included in the grand circuit, and other cities are to be added. Chicago is still on the fence. Chairman Greenburg not yet having decided between the outdoor quarter-mile track of Ravenswood and the indoor track at the Coliseum. All the stars of the track—Cooper, Bald, Kiser and the rest—are to be on the circuit this season, and the trust is going to considerable expense in its plans to advertise its various makes of wheels.

BRONCHITIS

We Know is Hard to Control.

Our Vinol is Making a Wonderful Record in Curing This Dangerous Disease.

CALL AND LET US TELL YOU ABOUT IT.

Here is a letter that has just come to our attention. It will interest people suffering from bronchial troubles. It is from Mr. Geo. W. Brown, of So. Hanover, N. H., and reads as follows:

"I have suffered with bronchial troubles for over a year; tried two doctors and have taken three or four kinds of medicine, none of which did me any good. At times I was so hoarse I could not speak. Then I heard of Vinol. After taking three bottles of it my voice has perfectly returned to me. I can see that in a short time I will be all right. When I began to take it I was very weak, but it has built me up and given me a good appetite."

This is what Vinol always does. This is the way Vinol accomplishes its mission of doing good.

Vinol, as we wish every one to know, owes its power of accomplishing the cures that it effects to the fact that it contains the most wonderful medicinal elements known to science for the cure of all wasting diseases, as well as being in itself a marvelous tonic. These medicinal properties exist and have heretofore been found only in cod-liver oil. Vinol contains these elements. For by a scientific process the necessary curative properties of the cod-liver oil have been separated from the fat and grease which formerly made cod-liver oil preparations so objectionable.

As long as Vinol does not contain any of the vile-smelling oil, and is prepared by combining the sought-after properties with a delicate table wine, it is a most delicious and palatable preparation.

We know of what we speak when we recommend Vinol, and because we do know that Vinol does all we claim for it, we unhesitatingly endorse it, and guarantee at any time to refund the money paid for the remedy if you are not satisfied it will do all we claim for it.

WEAK, WASTING STRICTURED MEN CURED

While You Sleep in 15 Days.

There is no question that you feel like you look; despondent, weak, nervous and despairing. Your sleep is disturbed by unpleasant dreams and you awake tired and with your mind filled with evil forebodings. You know that you are seminally weak, and you also know from sad experience that all of the drugs that you have poured into your stomach have left you worse than they found you.

NOW LISTEN TO ME!

Not one drop of internal medicine that you ever did or will put in your stomach will cure you. Why? Because your ailment is not in your stomach, or liver, or kidneys, but in the urethral canal. It is a local disease, and as such requires local treatment; it can not be reached effectually by internal treatment.

This is the St. James method of preparing treatment:

The medication is compressed into the form of crayons (as above), narrow, smooth and flexible, which slip into the urethral canal without effort, where they dissolve in three hours, which is sufficient time to penetrate, dissolve and dislodge STRICTURE like snow beneath the sun, allay inflammation and reduce enlargement of the PROSTATE GLAND, contracting the SEMINAL DUCTS, FOREVER STOPPING DRAINS and EMISSIONS, curing while you sleep—a direct, positive, common-sense and curative method of LOCAL TREATMENT which reaches the spot and ACTS INSTANTLY.

"Home Treatment" Can Be Used As Successfully By the Patient As By Ourselves.

Space will not permit a complete description of the incomparable St. James Treatment in urethral diseases. Every sufferer from Stricture, and its offspring, Prostatitis and Seminal Weakness, should write to the St. James Association, 71 St. James Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, for their wonderful illustrated work, showing the parts of the human system involved in urethral ailments, which they will send securely wrapped in plain package, prepaid..... FREE.

GRAND RAPIDS.

Grand Rapids, April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is reported that a rich find of iron ore has been made a few miles distant from the old iron mine. As there are several prospecting crews in that vicinity, the report migat have some truth in it. A crew of Great Northern prospectors are in that vicinity, and the find is credited to them. Prospectors on Buckeye and Arcturus mining properties are hard at worw with diamond drills making a thorough exploration of those properties and it has been reported that they have found large quantities of ore, although of a somewhat inferior grade.

Jacob S. Gole, manager of the Hill Lake stock farm, and J. E. Gill, of the firm of J. E. Gill & Co., general merchandise, etc., at Hill City, were in the village the first of the week on their way to Southern Minnesota and Iowa points, for the purpose of securing several hundred head of young stock for that section of the country.

The present state of high water in the Mississippi river at this point will be the cause of considerable delay in the building of the paper and pulp mill. At present all of the important work is under water, but as the flood is now at its highest, it will soon begin to recede, and as soon as possible every man that can be worked to advantage will be put on, and an effort made to complete the building by fall.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia, April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The formal opening of the Hotel Fray last Friday evening was a pronounced success socially and financially, some sixty couple participating. The citizens in general turned out to the affair and made it one to be remembered as a most enjoyable occasion.

M. L. Fay Monday moved a churn drill to his 3-year state lease, described as lot 1, section 6, 58-17, to continue further explorations of the property, and on Thursday struck ore at thirty-six feet. This forty was explored some two years ago by Mr. Fay and a large body of high grade ore was proven. The drilling is now being done on the northwest portion of the land.

Work of sinking a shaft at the Kimberly property was commenced Monday. This property lays north of the Commodore, and is considered one of the coming mines of this section.

Sunday will be the eighty-second anniversary of the grand order of Odd Fellows, and it will be commemorated in this city on that day by the local lodge, attending in a body the morning services at the M. E. church, when the pastor will have special services. The lodge meets in their hall at 10 o'clock and will march to the church at 11.

The Columbia mine in this city has been purchased by the Jones & Laughlin company, the bar iron manufacturers of Pittsburg, the news being given out this week. The Columbia is a new property and was being operated by the Columbia Mining company up to the time of the sale, Capt. Harry Roberts, W. T. Bailey and James Sullivan were the owners of the lease. The fee is owned by A. E. Humphrey. A large quantity of a high grade ore is known to exist on the property, but the company will explore it more thoroughly. Cole & McDonald have two drills at work on the property at present and will place two more in service as soon as possible. The Jones & Laughlin company are the largest manufacturers of bar iron in the country, and they are not in the big trust. The Lake Angeline mine at Ishpeming is operated by this company. It is thought the Columbia will be operated on an extensive basis, thus giving employment to a large number of men. It is reported that the company has also secured three forties lying north and west of the Commodore mine and a state lease covering a forty near Buhl. The lease to the latter property was owned by John T. Jones and Richard Shell. As the proprietors which this company have acquired contain about 20,000,000 tons of ore they will at once become a big factor in iron mining circles on this range.

A FEW FACTS

About the New Catarrh Cure.

The new Catarrh Cure is a new departure in so-called catarrh cures, because it actually cures, and is not simply a temporary relief.

The new Catarrh Cure is not a salve, ointment, powder nor liquid, but a pleasant tasting tablet, containing the best specifics for catarrh in a concentrated, convenient form.

The old style of catarrh salves and ointments are greasy, dirty and inconvenient at the best; the new preparation being in tablet form is always clean and convenient.

The new Catarrh Cure is called Stuart's Catarrh Tbalets, a wholesome combination of blood root, beachwood tar, guaiacol and other antiseptics, and cures by its action upon the blood and mucous membrane, the only rational treatment for catarrhal trouble.

You do not have to draw upon your imagination to discover whether you are getting benefit from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets; improvements and belief are apparent from the first tablet taken.

All druggists sell and recommend them. They cost but 50 cents for full sized packages, and any catarrh sufferer who has wasted time and money on sprays, salves and powders, will appreciate to the full the merit of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

A New Back For an Old One —How It Is Done In Duluth.

Sometimes the back aches with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; sometimes pain shoots across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use plastering or rubbing the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. To exchange a bad back for a new and stronger one, follow the example of this Duluth citien:

Mr. Henry D. Hibke, of 508 Third street, west, employed by the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, says: "I had heavy aching pains in the small of my back, making it difficult for me to stoop or lift anything, I could not rest comfortably at night, and in the morning rose tired and unrested. The kidney secretions were highly colored, distressing and irregular, depositing a dark sediment. I was also troubled with attacks of headache. I attributed the trouble to the jarring of the wagon and to exposure. I was feeling very bad when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, procured them at W. A. Abbett's Drug store, and commenced using them. They helped me from the start, and since finishing the treatment I have not had the slightest trace of my old trouble."

RAILROAD RUMORS

J. J. Hill and Associates Will Soon Control Colorado Roads.

No Confirmation of Their Acquirement of Wisconsin Central.

President of Southern Pacific to Inaugurate Radical Changes.

Denver, April 27.—The Republican today says: James J. Hill and his associates will, by June 1, have control of the Colorado & Southern, Fort Worth & Denver City, and probably the Colorado Midland railroads. A representative of Mr. Hill left Denver for Fort Worth last Tuesday, with Frank Trumbull, president of these three roads. It is said that the new director in the Fort Worth & Denver City road will be a representative of Mr. Hill. From Fort Worth Mr. Trumbull will go to New York, where the details of the combination will be settled.

San Francisco, April 27.—It is stated in railroad circles that President Hays of the Southern Pacific is about to inaugurate a radical change in management of the system. He will form a cabinet of advisers, to be composed of the heads of practically all the principal departments of the roads, with the single exception of the law department. The object of this cabinet arrangement is to centralize the authority and responsibility. President Hays will by this means have a firmer grasp on the details of operation of the vast system, and all orders will be issued directly by him, after consideration by the cabinet. It is understood that the cabinet will have no authority to interfere with the president in any way, but the members will, in reality, be advisers to the president, who will be responsible only to the board of directors.

New York, April 27.—No confirmation of the report that the Wisconsin Central was being acquired by J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, could be had in this city last night. A representative of the largest single interest in the Wisconsin Central said that he had no knowledge of such a purchase, as the transfer books showed no signs of such purchases of stock had been made.

NICE FOR SMALL AFFAIRS.

The inexperienced housewife whose small income obliges her to practice economy, while her position in society, as well as her hospitable inclination, requires her to entertain to a greater or less extent, finds it a rather difficult feat to reconcile two such apparently adverse conditions without a considerable expenditure of money; and she is very glad to know that under proper management all needless expense can be avoided.

Remember that with all people of refinement and good taste it is the dainty novelty and the finer effects of harmonious seasoning and serving that is most appreciated, and will tend most to the success of your entertainments, and not the evidence of expensive luxuries and gross overabundance.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SPRING.

The advent of spring and warmer weather suggests to the mind something quite opposite to the rich, heavy viands that have been agreeable during the winter, and the housekeeper gladly accepts suggestions that will enable her to lunch or dine her guests in a charming manner at a moderate cost and without too great an expenditure of time.

BOUCHEES OF SARDINES.

Bone two or three sardines and pound them to a paste, using a mortar if you have one; season with salt, pepper, a small quantity of grated cheese and a little Chili vinegar. Chop the soft part of a few oysters very fine and add to the mixture. Cut out small round and diamond-shaped cases from stale, close-grained bread, dip into beaten egg and fry in deep fat; fill these cases with above mixture and garnish with the yolks of hard-boiled eggs rubbed through a sieve and half a stuffed olive placed in the center. The bread cases must not be more than an inch and a half or two inches deep.

CHEESE CANAPES.

Cut bread into slices not more than a quarter of an inch thick; trim off the crusts and cut into strips an inch wide and three inches long. Fry these a very light brown in a little oil; sprinkle a little grated cheese over each slice while hot, season with salt and paprika, stand in a hot oven a few minutes to brown the cheese. Garnish with a little finely minced parsley dusted over center or a small shred of anchovy.

CHEESE CUSTARDS.

Beat two eggs until very light and put into a saucepan with four level tablespoonfuls of Parmesan cheese; cook slowly, stirring constantly until thick. Cut slices of bread into rounds with a large biscuit cutter and fry them a very light brown in deep, hot oil. Spread first with a very thin layer of anchovy or sardine paste; then a layer of the cheese custard, and garnish with an olive in center of each.

SHAD ROE CROQUETTES.

For twelve people take two large shad roes and cook in salted water for fifteen minutes, adding a few drops of vinegar to the water. When done, drain and mash rather fine, add two cups of fine bread crumbs, one egg, beaten, salt and pepper to taste and enough melted butter or cream to make the mixture moist enough to form into balls size of walnuts. Dip into beaten egg and dry bread crumbs and fry in hot fat. Serve with cucumber or egg sauce.

DEVILED CRABS.

To a pint of crab meat take a cupful of cream or rich milk, four level tablespoonfuls of butter, a good-sized boiled onion, two raw eggs and seasoning of salt, cayenne and grated nutmeg. Rub the butter and flour together and place in a saucepan over the fire; stir constantly until it bubbles, but do not let it brown. Then add the cream, the onion rubbed through a sieve, seasoning, crab meat and the beaten raw eggs. Cook until quite thick, then turn out to cool. When perfectly cold fill crab shells with the mixture, brush the top with beaten egg and cover with bread crumbs and fry in deep hot fat a few minutes. The above quantity will fill eight or ten shells.

SWEETBREAD CUTLETS.

Blanch one pair of sweetbreads and when cold pick them apart, rejecting all skin and veins. Chop them rather fine; add two tablespoonsfuls of blanched and chopped almonds, half a cup of French peas; season with a little lemon juice, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Rub four tablespoonfuls of flour with two tablespoonfuls of butter and cook in a saucepan without browning; then add one cup of rich milk, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of white pepper. Stir and cook the sauce until rather thick; mix with the sweetbread mixture; turn out to cool, and when thoroughly chilled, form into small cutlets; dip into beaten egg and stale bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with mushroom sauce. This quantity will make enough for eight or ten persons.

SPRING SALAD.

Form small nests of crisp, delicate lettuce leaves. Cut hard-boiled eggs into halves crosswise remove the yolks and trim the whites to represent the petals of a water lily. Arrange these inside the salad nests or cups. Mix a little grated cheese sufficient mayonnaise to fill space inside the egg petals and garnish with the hard-boiled yolks pressed through a sieve and seasoned with salt and paprika.

STRAWBERRY ICE CUPS.

Take a dozen flat champaign glasses, sherbet sups or any small round glass with rather wide top. Fill these with strawberry syrup and pack well with ice and ice, cover closely with a woolen cloth or blanket and let stand about 20 minutes, until the syrup has frozen all around the glasses to a depth of quarter of an inch, not more; then pour out the unfrozen syrup and repack the glasses, and let them stand a few minutes longer until the iced syrup is quite hard. Then turn out the iced cups very carefully and fill them with nut ice cream. Serve quickly.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Carrie G. Moore writes: Would you kindly send me recipes for fruit cake, walnut cake, prune whip, Rebekah pudding and chocolate, Vienna style?

FRUIT CAKE.

To make a large cake or several smaller ones, take one pound of flour, one pound of brown sugar, fourteen ounces of butter, ten eggs, three pounds of raisins, three pounds of currants, one pound of citron, half a pound of lemon and orange peel, a gill of wine, a gill of brandy and gill of milk, one tablespoonful of ground cinnamon, one teaspoonful of cloves and one nutmeg, grated. Cream butter and sugar; beat the eggs to a froth and stir in. Mix the spices with the flour and stir into butter, sugar and eggs; then add the milk, wine and brandy, and last of all the fruit well floured with part of the pound given above. Bake in several loaves in a very moderate oven from three to four hours.

WALNUT CAKE.

Cream two-thirds of a cup of butter with one cup of sugar. Separate three eggs; beat the yolks until creamy, and add to butter and sugar; then add one cup of milk alternating with three cups of flour (reserve enough of the flour for the nuts), add two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cup of nut kernels chopped, and last of all fold in the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Bake in a loaf tin in a moderate oven from forty-five minutes to one hour.

PRUNE WHIP.

Stew three-fourths of a pound of prunes until tender; remove the pits and sweeten the prunes to taste; press through a sieve and when perfectly cold add the whites of four eggs beaten to a stiff froth; stir in lightly until well mixed, turn into a buttered pudding dish or tempered glass ditch and bake in a moderately quick oven for twenty minutes. Serve cold covered with whipped cream.

REBECCA PUDDING.

Put two cups of milk on to scald. Mix quarter of a cup of cornstarch with a pinch of salt and two tablespoonfuls of sugar; moisten with a little cold milk; pour the scalded milk over the cornstarch and sugar, stirring constantly until it thickens. Stir and cook over hot water for fifteen minutes. Add a teaspoonful of vailla and the whites of three eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Turn into a glass dish and serve with orange sauce.

CHOCOLATE VIENNA STYLE.

Cut four ounces of vanilla chocolate into small pieces. Put a quart of milk on to scald in a double boiler; put the chocolate in a saucepan with three tablespoonful of hot water and one tablespoonful of sugar and stir over the fire until smooth and glossy. Stir this mixturo into the milk and whisk with an egg beater for five minutes. Serve at once with a tablespoonful of whipped cream in each cup, pouring the hot chocolate over the cream. If the plain, unsweetened chocolate is used, add three or four tablespoonfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Schlitz

In the Schlitz brewery you will find a plate glass room. In it are cooling pipes, over which the hot beer drips. Above it is an air filter, and no air comes into this room save through that filter.

No germs can reach beer handled with such rare caution. But, after the beer is aged, we filter it, then bottle and seal it, then sterilize every bottle.

We take triple precautions because beer is a saccharine product. Impurities multiply if they get into it. There is no grade between absolute purity and utter impurity.

Every bottle of Schlitz is absolutely pure, and purity is healthfulness. Your physician knows—ask him.

START GIRLS RIGHT

Many beautiful girls become invalids for life, because at the crucial period of puberty they pay no attention to the laws of health. Mothers should protect their daughters' health by giving them necessary information and proper treatment. When the menses come on a girl unawares in her inexperience she is either frightened into convulsions or scared into trying to check the flow. Many girls have checked the flow and it has never started again. And as a result they have grown pale-faced, with "crow tracks" on their cheeks, and dark half-moons under their eyes. A dose of taken every morning after a girl is twelve years old will bring the menses on properly and keep them regular. It will help her to develop into an attractive woman and equip her for the duties of wifehood and motherhood. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

The Hollywood, Asbury Park, N. J., Feb. 3, 1900.

I read your advertisement in regard to Wine of Cardui in the Baltimore American; and it so favorably impressed me that on my visit to Baltimore during the holidays I purchased a bottle of it for my adopted daughter, who was suffering with female troubles. She had been under the doctor's care for some time, and when her periods would come on her suffering was something terrible. I induced her to try it and the first dose brought on her menses. She took it regularly according to the directions, and was greatly relieved. To use her own words, "It saved my life".

ADVANCE IS SHARP

Wheat Is Buoyant and Closes With Stiff Gain.

Strong Cash Demand and Many Reports of Damage.

Cables Are Higher and the Continent Wants Wheat.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 27.—Advances in wheat have been the rule nearly every day of the present week and today saw the week go out with the sharpest bulge of any day and the sentiment very strong. The opening was strong and the market firm from the outset. The reactions were few and moderate and the general tone very bullish. The cables were bullish, closing at an advance of ½d to ⅝d. Continental cables were very strong, the best that have been received in some time and Chicago reported that American wheat is wanted over there and that if the demand holds out it will soon be felt here. All sorts of rumors of crop damage were received from the report that Oklahoma will give only half a crop to the absurd product of a facetious mind that high winds are uncovering grain planted in South Dakota and letting the bugs at it. Chicago wired that reports were coming from Kansas staht Hessian fly eggs had been discovered in some counties and a sensation created thereby. Omaha wired: "Are having hot winds here and if they keep up there will be a bowl." Altogether there is a vigorous effort being made to bull wheat. The cash demand started the upward tendency and now crop damage reports are adding to the strength. The Orange Judd Farmer says: "At a whole, nothing has occurred to change the opinion as to the wheat crop. Texas is a failure, rust added to other ills. Insect damage in Oklahoma is not important but the proximity of rust is significant. The Ohio valley shows improvement, hTe Missouri valley maintains a high position. Part of the California crop is on the danger line from drought but very little permanent damage yet. Two more good rains would mature the crop. Oats seeding is completed except north with an area equal to last year. Crop prospects not favorable. Corn plowing making good progress. No present likelihood of material delay in planting."

Bradstreet's crop report said: "Cold weather has undoubtedly affected planting and germination in some sections but the probable damage to crops is not as great as earlier advices appeared to indicate."

Broomhall cabled: The world's wheat shipments Monday will be around 8,000,000 bus, of which Europe will take about 7,600,000 bus. There will be a good decrease on passage. It is estimated the continent has purchased this last week 5,000,000 bus white wheat, including 3,000,000 bus by Hamburg alone. Inquiry continues.

The wheat visible supply is expected to show a decrease of about 1,250,000 bus Monday. Bradstreet reports exports of wheat and flour for the week at 4,282,000 bus, last year 3,684,000 bus. The exports from July 1 to date were 171,834,000 and in the same period the year previous 161,490,000 bus. Primary receipts of wheat today were 445,328 bus, last year 433,411 bus. Shipments 377,670, last year 312,847.

There was fairly active trading in futures on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ⅜c up at 75c bid, sold at 75-⅛c at 9:32, reacted to 75c at 9:33, sold up to 75⅛c at 10:10, bulged to 75⅜c at 10:20, eased off to 75⅞c at 10:35, recovered to 75⅜c at 10:47 and went up to 76c at 11:45 and closed at those figures, being 1⅜c higher than yesterday. Chicago advanced 1⅝@1⅝c. Cash sales amounted to 6 cars, at the May price for wheat to arrive and ½c under for wheat in store.

There was a lively flurry in May flax this morning and at one time the bid price was 5c above the close of yesterday, being at $1.71 bid. The close was easier at $1.68½. There is talk of a squeeze in May flax that will be very much like the December squeeze. There is evidence that some such deal is contemplated and there it talk of $2 for May flax. Cash and to arrive flax were up 3½c as was May. September advanced ½c.

Corn was quiet, closing with little change in Chicago and ¼c advance in Duluth. Primary receipts were 245,596 bus, last year 121,622 bus. Shipments 331,001 bus, last year 627,128 bus. Bradstreet reported exports for the week at 1,315,000 bus, last year 3,620,000 bus. The report of exports from July 1 to date showed 154,644,000 bus, last year 169,789,000 bus. Chicago said this morning:

"There was a new phase to the cash corn situation yesterday and it had its effect on the futures. There was a sudden increase in the Western offerings of cash from 1,600,000 bus to 1,500,000 bus obtained by the local elevators in their Thursday night's bids. Receiving interests also reported a material increase in the amount of cash corn consigned, a good many of the country men being unwilling now to sell their corn as No. 3 to the elevator interests. Instead of selling on track in the West the countryman is consigning his corn to his commission man in the hope it will go No. 2 and bring the May price rather than the July. This was one side of yesterday's cash corn situation. While there was an increase in the Western offerings the trade was surprised by large shipping sales by Armour, 700,000 bus. This would seem to indicate that while the Western man was not quite as enthusiastically bullish as he had been the Eastern man was catching the fever and willing to resume business after holding off for a fortnight."

Rye was very strong, the close being at an advance of 1¾c. There was no change in the price of oats.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 77½c; to arrive, 78c; May, 78c. No. 1 northern, cash, 75½c; to arrive, 76c; May, 76c; September, 74½c; July, 76⅞c. No. 2 northern, 71½c. No. 3 spring, 67½c. Oats, 27¼@27c. Rye, 52c. Flax, cash, $1.68½; to arrive, $1.68½; May, $1.69½; September, $1.28; September Northwestern, $1.30; October, $1.25. Corn, 43½c; May, 44c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 4; corn, 11; oats, 7; rye, 1; flax, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 48,771; corn, 3926; oats, 4508; flax, 986. Shipments—Wheat, 128,000 afloat; barley, 34.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Strong With Good Spot Demand.

Chicago, April 27.—Wheat was strong the fore part of the session today, benefiting by higher cables and a good spot demand as well as the liberal cash sales yesterday. May opened 1⅛@1¼c higher at 73⅛@73½c and advanced steadily to 74⅛c. Local receipts were 96 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 253 cars against 266 last week and 422 a year ago.

Damage claims from Texas and Oklahoma helped the market later and the trade was the broadest in weeks. May advanced to 74½c and closed 1⅜c higher at 74⅜c.

More liberal country offerings of corn were offset by a good cash demand. Philips bid only when necessary to support the market. May opened ⅛@⅜c lower at 47⅞c to 48c, sold up to 48¾c and reacted to 48c. July opened unchanged at 45⅝@¾c, touched 45¾c, and reacted to 45¾c. Receipts were 174 cars, 2 of contract grade.

The close was steady. May unchanged at 48⅛c and July ⅛@¼c higher at 45⅞c.

Oats were firm on a good cash demand. May opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 26½@⅝c and sold up to 26¾@⅞c and reacted to 26⅜c. Receipts were 242 cars.

Provisions were dull but steady in sympathy with the grain markets. July pork opened unchanged to $14 and sold to $14.65. July lard unchanged at $8.05, selling to $8.07½ and July ribs a shade up at $7.97½@8.00, holding steadyq.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 27.—The bulls in wheat have had plenty of opportunities this week to assert themselves, aided by the cash demand, crop damage and a short interest. The first two factors are still in evidence and can be counted upon, the latter in our judgment, largely eliminated on the advances already scored. The demand for cash wheat has continued to a very noticeable extent, and while a good deal of it has of course been for foreign shipments, a large portion of it has been made by New York people in order to meet a congested condition in which the May option now ins at that point. It must be admitted that damage talk is very conflicting, many sections reporting entirely favorable conditions while others, notably Texas, show very much the reverse. The deterioration, however, so far has not been extenesive enough to warrant any grave fears and the advance already scored just about represents what damage has been done and the inroads made upon American stocks. While we cannot feel enthusiastic on the bull side, we must admit that sentiment has undergone considerable change and that the possibilities allow much better feeling on the part of the bulls. It depends largely upon the conditions governing crop prospects, the character of foreign buying and revival of outside interests in the wheat market as to what the fate of wheat prices will be. There is evidently considerable May holdings still unliquidated and this tempering what bull tendencies there are. Comparatively speaking the prospects for the coming crops are quite brilliant and primary movement indicates supplies adequate to the demand, but with crop uncertainties still unsettler it may be conservative not to sell wheat short, but with the market showing the range it has of late and allowing of an excellent scalping market on both sides, afford the wheat trades opportunies for making money.

There has been no discord in the corn situation to mar the harmony of the bulls, and a strong market has prevailed, good cash demand, which has been lacking for some weeks. It is almost impossible to write anything new on corn, the petition of Phillips has been too well advertised to need any repetition, sufficient to say he is evidently in control and very fortunately for him backed by circumstances in the corn situation which are inherently bullish. Stocks were increasing offerings notwithstanding much higher prices, are no freer cash demand has revived, and while the short interest if not removed, is at least materially lessened the bull merits of corn from a legitimate standpoint, are not helped by that speculative condition. In looking at the May option which is the one creating the most attention at this time it is well to remember that the ousider is somewhat at the mercy of the controllers if he be in that option, and as he is not taken into the confidence of those directly interested it is unwise for him to guess what their actions may be, we have advised from time to time our belief in the wisdom of steering clear of manipulation in corn. July and September offer much safer opportunities for speculation than the May and at this writing contains very bullish possibilities. Sensational bulges in these futures in sympathy with the advances in the May, ordinarily will be temorary and think it unwise to come in on the buying side on bulges, which the present scalper may at any time inspire himself to.

The oat market has shared in the advances with corn and wheat, but its advances have not been merely sympathetic as the situation has assumed quite a bullish aspect and that market possesses merits of its own. Reports seem pretty unanimous that seeding of oats has been delayed to a dangerous point, and that the future of this year's crop is consequently considerable indeed. The discount under corn is about as strong an attraction to the bull side as anything.

TRADING IN STOCKS

Suspended on the New York Exchange Until Monday.

As a Result, Consolidated Exchange Did Rushing Business.

Large Orders to Buy United States Steel Shares.

New York, April 27.—The New York stock exchange having adjourned from last evening to Monday morning, to permit of the removal of its apparatus to temporary quarters in the Produce Exchange building, speculative operations in securities centered in the Consolidated stock exchange. There the trading was on an unprecedented scale for a half holiday, 564,320 shares being negotiated. Not only were the regular customers of the members of the Consolidated exchange out in full force, but there were in addition many speculators who usually trade through the stock exchange. The higher range of London prices stimulated sentiment appreciably and at the opening there were orders to buy 10,000 shares of United States Steel at the London quotations. The transactions in the common and preferred throughout were on an unexpectedly heavy scale and net advances of over a point were scored by both.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, April 27.—The statement of the associated banks for the week ending April 27, shows: Loans $844,444,900, increase $2,367,600; deposits $870,790,500, increase $3,-580,200; circulation $23,314,900, decrease, $139,200; legal tenders $72,299,600, increase $1,261,200; specie $185,157,800, increase $1,-473,600; reserve $259,457,400, increase $2,-735,000; reserve required $242,697,625, increase $897,325; surplus $16,785,775, increase $1,837,675.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 27.—Prime mercantile paper, 4@5 per cent; sterling exchange nominal with actual business in bankers' bills $4.88@4.88¼ for demand and $4.85@4.85¼ for sixty days; posted rates, $4.85½@4.86 and $4.89; commercial bills, $4.84¼@4.84¾. Bar silver, 60½c; Mexican dollars, 48½c.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

London, April 27.—Owing to the approach of the opening of the Buffalo Pan-American exposition Americans were maintained above parity on the stock exchange here today, but there was little business done, owing to the New York stock exchange being closed. Northern Pacific common, Wabash and St. Paul made notable substantial advances. Grand Trunks were strong and in brisk demand. Thirds were buoyant on the improvement in the financial position. Japanese were dull. Copper was steady.

Money was in good demand today. The supplies were not large, although the bulk of the surplus of the loan application was liberated. Discounts were firm, but inactive. Business on the exchange was tolerably cheerful, owing to the growing impression that with the loan out of the way, speculation is likely to revive. Consols were firm. Scotch rails were firm.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 27.—Cotton opened quiet, 1c higher. Quotations during the first hour were insignificant. However, a pessimistic review of the week on views of the Chronicle and better Liverpool cables than expected, induced bit shorts to seek cover soon after the call. Prices were sensitive to this buying inasmuch as offerings were scarce and the bear faction was unaggressive. May advanced to 8.14, July to 8.11 and October to 7.82. Thereafter variations were sluggish and devoid of special significance.

Futures closed quiet and steady. April, 8.10; May, 8.11; June and July, 8.08; August, 7.77; September, 7.40; October, 7.31; November and December, 7.25; January, 7.27.

MIDWAY MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the activity in farm trade was the main feature of the market. Receipts of horses were fair, but comparatively few buyers were in attendance, and the outlet the lightest of the week. There was an improved demand for saddle horses and good family drivers. The arrival of some high bred Kentucky drivers attracted much attention and some inquiries for such horses were already had. Values:

DULUTH REAL ESTATE

George H. Crosby Gives Reasons Why It Is a Good Investment---This Week a Very Good One.

"Is Duluth real estate a good investment?"

This week George H. Crosby, of the firm of George H. Crosby & Co., answers the question, and his paper is a very terse, well-conceived and well-put affirmative answer. He says:

"Is Duluth real estate a good investment? This is the question I am asked to answer, and my answer is, Yes; there is no doubt of it, in my mind, for the following reasons:

"Because Duluth is a growing and prosperous city.

"Because Duluth is at the extreme west end or outlet of the greatest waterway in the world, from a commercial point of view, and it has a harbor that is second to none in the United States and is capacious enough to handle the commerce of the entire world.

"Because the great transcontinental railways are making it possible to use this waterway to an enormous extent.

"Because the United States government has seen the importance of this point and is spending millions of dollars in the improvement of the harbor in order to take care of the immense traffic.

"Because Duluth is one of the largest wheat markets in the world, and from its location, always must be. Within the past few years we are getting immense quantities of coarse grains from Iowa, Nebraska and Western states, which mean more elevators, more wholesale houses, and the employment of thousands of men to handle the increasing business which will naturally accrue on this account.

"Because right at Duluth's door there is the greatest body of iron ore in the world. There is being shipped from this great storehouse of wealth millions of tons of ore each year. There is ore enough already discovered, under present demands, for 100 years to come. Thousands of men are employed in the mining of the same at high wages. They look to Duluth for their supplies. It means the upbuilding of jobbing and manufacturing at this point. It means an increased demand for real estate. It is bound to follow.

"Because we employ thousands of men in the lumber business here, and will for many years to come. A great portion of the northern part of the state, which is tributary to Duluth, is covered with white and Norway pine in immense quantities, which will be brought to Duluth to be manufactured into lumber. Duluth is fast becoming a very important lumber market, and almost all of the Eastern lumber buyers look to this point for their supply, since Michigan and Wisconsin timber has been largely exhausted.

"Because Duluth is only in its swaddling clothes. The foundation for a large city has been laid, and the realization of the same is close at hand.

"Because Duluth is one of the few cities in the West that made great progress from a commercial standpoint during the years of financial depression, when many of her sister cities were at a standstill.

"Because Duluth is fast reaching out to every point of the compass for new fields of business, and is acquiring more and more of them daily.

"Because Duluth supplies the great Middle West and the West with its coal, and will for time immemorial.

"Because the railway systems have been obliged to buy up at this time, for future use, nine-tenths of the water front docks property to handle their present and fast-growing business. They knew from experience when they made these purchases that if they ever wanted to buy, now is the time to purchase. The expenditures for this class of property have reached into the millions of dollars.

"Because you can buy Duluth property at prices that will pay you from 6 to 8 per cent net on the investment. Because all Duluth property is down to the lowest values ever had, and the turn for better prices has just recently set in.

"Because there are hundreds of people looking for homes, both to buy and to rent, and it is almost impossible to supply the demand.

"Because a large percentage of the population of the city of Duluth own their own homes and have the welfare of their city at heart. You can make no mistake in buying inside Duluth real estate.

"Because where you find good schools and churches, and plenty of them, there you will also find a desirable class of people and a good community to live in.

We have been blessed with a large number of very fine, well-equipped school houses, and probably one of the best school systems of any city in the United States. Our churches can be compared favorably with any city of its size throughout the land.

"Because the Duluth climate is superb. Duluth is fast becoming a favorite summer resort. Thousands of people from the East and South visit this point every summer to avoid the heat. They find here balmy breezes from the lake, which give us comfortable days and cool evenings. Taking the Duluth climate as a whole, it is delightful, and it is rapidly becoming known. Each succeeding year will bring an increasing number of tourists, both health and pleasure seekers, and men who are looking for safe and profitable investments.

"Because as the population increases, naturally the result is increasing values.

"These reasons are given off-hand and are thoughts which occur to my mind during busy hours. Many more and a good deal better might be adduced had I time to give the subject due consideration."

Next week Henry Nolte, of the firm of Little & Nolte, will present his views.

* * *

The American Land and Title Register of April has a sound and thoughtful editorial on "The Question of Rents," with The Herald's protest against the increase of rents in Duluth as its text. A quotation of considerable length from one of The Herald's articles on the subject is made, and for its own part the Register says:

"Too high a scale of rents is as disastrous as too low a scale. Complaints come from several Western cities that rents are still advancing, that they have about reached the prohibitive stage and that people are being driven to other cities in consequence. This will be the inevitable result in all such cases. No city is so necessary to the existence of a business or individual that excessive cost of maintenance will be long tolerated. Travel is so easy and cheap and other cities are ready to receive those who are driven from their abode by unreasonable rents or taxation.

The Register includes the following meaty suggestion that it will be well for Duluth to cut out and paste in her hat:

"The best inducements that a city can offer for the location of new factories will be found in its natural advantages and in an honest, economical administration of public affairs. An efficient fire department, good police protection, low taxation, small indebtedness and a good water supply, are some of the important features of municipal ...e that will have most weight in attracting the better class of industries. The manufacturer who locates in a city because he has investigated the conditions existing and found them satisfactory, is worth a score of those who have been bought."

* * *

This week has been another good one in real estate circles. The demand for Duluth property holds up well, and it seems to be increasing steadily. An excellent week's business is just passed, and there are enough deals left over unsettled to make good weeks for some time to come.

* * *

Stryker, Manley & Buck have sold the four houses on Second street, just west of Second avenue west on the lower side of the street, for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, to Sally D. Thomas, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., for $10,500. The property is located on lot 36, West Second street, Duluth proper, First division.

Through the same firm Fanny Mondscnine purchased for $2800 one of the Wells row, on Sixth avenue west. The one numbered 126 Sixth avenue west was sold. A number of other deals are pending with the same firm.

* * *

T. G. Vaughn has sold the west half of lot 12, West First street, Duluth proper, First division, for $3300 to Ellen Horgan.

* * *

J. D. Howard & Co. report the sale of two houses, one in Lakeside and one in the West End, and other deals under way. "Things never looked better than they do right now," said Whitney Wall, the real estate man of the firm.

* * *

Duluth led the van in its March real estate transfers, showing the greatest increase over last year than any city of the country. Its transfers for March footed up 6,434,552 as against 1,163,739 last year, an increase of 453 per cent. Sioux City, Iowa, came next with an increase of 150 per cent, but many cities showed decreases. Duluth's large figures were helped out by a couple of railroad deals, but her regular transfers were large and numerous.

* * *

The announcement by Panton & White during the week that within a few weeks work would be begun on the addition of three more floors to the Glass block store is another mileposst in the history of this enterprising and hightly successful firm. A number of new departments will be added to the store, making it one of the most complete in the West.

* * *

The sash and door mill so long operated by George Lautenschlager, deceased, has been purchased by Oulette & Baxter, both well known sash and door men around the head of the lakes. Mr. Oulette was for years connected with the Scott & Holston Lumber company and the E. Holston company mills, and is one of the best posted mill men in the country. Charles Baxter has just severed connection with the Scott-Graff Lumber company, with which firm he had been connected a number of years as superintendent and buyer, and his many friends wish him and Mr. Oulette success in their new venture.

* * *

Plans are being prepared by Palmer, Hall & Hunt, architects, for a 3-story brick and stone building on Michigan street and Third avenue west, for W. M. Prindle & Co., to be occupied by Thompson & Dunlop and the American Heating company.

The transfers for the week are as follows:

REAL ESTATE, OIL AND COPPER STOCKS.

AROUSE THE EAST.

BY J. F. LANG.

Gradually, but in a very slow measure is the East becoming educated to the commercial importance of the California oil industry. No doubt there is an explanation for this which may have various phases. I might allude to only one. The general public has little opportunity of learning the facts pertaining to this subject, except through the press. And it is a fact that in the East and middle East very little, scarcely anything, appears, except the advertisements of oil companies offering the sale of stock in California oil companies. And from these advertisements the public is gradually awakening to the fact that California has entered upon a second phenomenal discovery in the resources of the state, which bids fair to eclipse the gold excitement of '49.

It is oil. It is oil territory from the southeast to the northwest end of this great commonwealth, embracing a territory of 42,000 square miles.

If it is such a good thing, I have been asked, why do you people need to come East to enlist capital? Why isn't the opportunity grasped by California?

People in the East don't know, how should they know if they don't see the California papers, that there are invested today in the California oil industry $166,000,000? How could the great majority know that the enterprise has grown to its present stupendous magnitude within eighteen months?

Without going into minute details, it is noteworthy that in far-away England they know practically more about the really gigantic California oil industry than do the people of Chicago. English capital has not been slow getting a strong foothold in the oil fields on the Pacific slope, and quite recently so.

There is a safeguard thrown about this new enterprise, if the investor of capital but know it, that protects the average man from a repetition of the real estate boom and fruit land inflation methods of some years ago in California, that makes the present enterprise practically safe so far as getting a fair run for your money is concerned, if one will but exercise caution and judgment.

Of the opportunity for making money in California oil stock and in California oil land there can be no doubt. Within eighteen months scores, yet, hundreds of people, have grown wealthy on small investments, and the same opportunity remains for others.

The demand for oil, whether for fuel or other purposes, in California will long exceed the supply.

Get into a company well located, rightly organized and prudently managed, and your chances for rich returns partake of very little hazard.

Droughts or storms may destroy a farmer's crops; he takes a risk. Disease may thin out the herds of the cattle he is depending upon for money. Everybody takes a certain risk in commercial life. The failures in the California oil industry to date are less than 5 per cent.

It is well worth the time of the Eastern man with money, who desires to increase his store, to inform himself upon the subject upon which I write. It is worth the while of the man who has money to invest, be the amount great or small, to "take a flyer" in California oil stock.—From "Bonds and Mortgages," April, 1901.

Zenith Oil Company.

Incorporated under the laws of West Virginia.

Capital Stock $2,000,000.

Shares—Par value $1.00. Non-Assessable. No Personal Liability.

THE OFFICERS OF THE COMPANY:

JOSEPH. B KEHL, President, JOSEPH SELLWOOD, Vice President. GEO. H. CLAYPOOL, Secretary, BENJAMIN E. WELLS, Treasurer.

DIRECTORS:

JOHN B. KEHL, Vice President First National Bank, Chippewa Falls, Wis.
GEORGE M. SMITH, Gen. Agt. C., St. P. M. & O. Ry. Co.
GEORGE H. CLAYPOOL, Secretary Zenith Oil Co.
JOSEPH SELLWOOD, Gen. Supt. American Mining Co.
WILLIAM O. PEALER, Attorney at Law.
BENJAMIN E. WELLS, Treasurer Zenith Oil Co.
THOMAS GIBSON, Grain Commission, Duluth Board of Trade.

What Is the Zenith Oil Company?

It is a corporation organized to develop and operate oil lands in the Coalinga Oil District, Fresno County, California. It is incorporated under the laws of the State of West Virginia, is capitalized at two million dollars, divided into two million shares of the par value of $1.00 each. No stock liability. No assessments.

The three important requisites for the successful and profitable development of an oil property are (1) properly located lands, (2) sufficient capital to develop them, and (3) honest and experienced management. The Zenith Oil company has the first and third and has issued 150,000 shares of stock at 12½ cents for the purpose of obtaining the second.

Title and Description of Property.

The lands of the company consist of 1324.32 acres, not leases—only three transfers from the government patent, and free from all encumbrances. The fact that the company has a free unincumbered and absolute title to these lands should not be underestimated. Probably nine-tenths of the oil companies now offering stock to the public are operating simply on leases, which are limited in time and subject to forfeiture. Such companies pay to the fee owners large royalties, ranging in these oil fields to from one-eighth to one-third of the gross oil product, the lessee companies paying all the expenses and taking all the risks.

This company will drill its own wells and get the benefit of all the product, but it is in position, if it so desires, to make leases of portions of its lands and receive royalties from the essee companies.

Location.

By reference to the map of the California State Mining Bureau it will appear that the properties lie about three miles west of the town of Coalinga, about one mile from the railroad, and at such an elevation that gravity will flow the oil to the railroad. Water has already been found on the properties and a well has been sunk ready for immediate use in drilling the oil wells.

The out-croppings of the oil-sand, the oil seepage, the gas, and the various wells which exhibited every indication as far as they went of profitable producing wells, leave the investor little to be desired short of an absolute guaranty.

Report.

On February 20, 1901, Captain J. A. McClurg, Sr., who has probably superintended the drilling of as many wells as any other man in the Coalinga District, made the following report on the property owned by the Zenith Oil Co.:

"Coalinga, Cal., Feb. 20, 1901.

GEORGE M. SMITH, Esq.
Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sir—The writer is familiar with the lands in the oil field and particularly the sections that you have mentioned, viz: Section 35-21-14 and sections 1 and 2 in 20-14, all contiguous. There are upon these lands in many places out-croppings of oil-sand and seepages of petroleum and gas. Three prospecting wells have been drilled, all of which penetrated the oil-sand, No. 1 at a depth of 70 feet, No. 2 at a depth of 256 feet, No. 3 at a depth of 312 feet. These wells, it is estimated, will pump from two to five barrels per day each. They are drilled solely for the purpose of locating the oil sand, and as such were a complete success, proving beyond a doubt the sand was in place, and that by going ahead of it far enough to get it at a depth of 800 to 1000 feet, good wells are assured. The writer has been operating in this field for five years and has no hesitancy in saying that these lands will prove to be as rich in oil as any in the state. Yours truly,

J. W. McCLURG, Sr."

This was the condition of the properties at the time the organization of this company was begun and the negotiations for the various properties now owned by it were completed. Practical oil men were satisfied with it. All the original investments were made on such representations and reliance was placed in the conditions then existing to d evelop the properties into a dividend-paying proposition.

We have every faith in our proposition and candidly believe that stock bought in this company at its present low price will prove a profitable investment.

In every move that we have made we have treated the people, whom we were trying to interest in our property, frankly and sincerely. We have never concealed anything, having nothing to conceal. But we want to hurry the good work of stock selling along for the reasons given; and if work goes on as we expect, we hope to have our wells down within ninety days.

ACTIVE DEALING

Many Duluthians Investing In Stock of Oil Companies.

California Oil Country Is Being Boomed By Many Duluthians.

Market Interest In Copper Stock Lands Also.

The past week has witnessed considerable activity in stocks, and the local brokers have been having a steady demand. Particularly has the demand been noticed in oil and copper stocks, and some good sales have been made to Duluthian investors. Activity in the stock of oil lands in the Coalinga district of California is reported by the Zenith Oil company, in Fresno county, Cal. This company has excellently located properties and is under an efficient management. Its stock is said to be selling well.

Marcus W. Bates, who is handling King Philip and Occidental Oil company stocks, is also having a good sale in the stock of these California properties.

Glowing reports are being brought back of the money to be made in California oil by nearly every Duluthian that has been out to the coast, and it is reported that certain lumbermen are doing better with oil than with their lumber business.

Another oil region that is receiving considerable attention at the present time is the Flat Lick oil country of Kentucky. The Blue Grass Oil company, organized by West Superior and Duluth business men, is steadily gaining prestige in the stock market and M. C. French, who floated the company, is having a good sale of stock of another company with leases in the same territory.

There has been marked interest in the copper stocks of the various companies represented in this city, and in many cases the prediction has proved true that copper stock would go up before it would go down. The St. Croix Consolidated company has been selling at an advance from 15 to 20 cents for several days past and A. C. Volk reports an increasing sale at the latter price. Other good sales have been reported this week in Pacific coast stock.

PLAGUE CAUSES RIOT.

Lahore, Punjab, April 27.—A serious riot has occured near Sailkote, due to the plague inspection of women. The mob overpowered the police and it became necessary to summon a force of cavalry from Sailkote. The soldiers restored order without trouble.

Fashionable Furnishings

Here is the only real first-class Furnishing Store in the city, because the stocks are kept complete all the time. Scarcely a day that new goods are not received. We're skimming the New York markets every week, keeping this really a new store all the time. We're always from two weeks to a month ahead of all others with the new fashions—and all the time quality is never neglected—nor prices exaggerated.

Negligee Shirts Here you'll find the biggest and best assortment in town. We have all kinds that are good and stylish and in so many different patterns that to describe them would be impossible. Scotch Cheviot, Scotch Madras, French Percale and Silk are the best materials. We bought only a few skirts of each pattern, for a man doesn't want to see the same kind of shirt he is wearing ten times in a square's walk. Prices ---------- $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50

Summer Underwear We have all kinds that are good—all reliable makes in union suits and separate garments. Have sizes to fit a man properly—for there is nothing so uncomfortable in warm weather as ill-fitting underwear—50c, $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2 to $5.00 are the prices.

Spring Neckwear for men, two very strong new lines---------- 25c and 50c

New half Hose, new Suspenders, new Gloves, new Collars, new Jewelry, new Handkerchiefs.

Store open tonight till 9 o'clock.

OUT OF JAIL.

Mrs. Nation Released on Own Recognizance to Attend Funeral.

Wichita, Kas., April 29.—It is said the cases in this county against Mrs. Carrie Nation for the alleged destruction of saloon property will be dropped. She was permitted to leave jail here yesterday, on her own recognizance, to attend the funeral of her brother at Louisburg, Kas., after having spent a week in jail, with three other women, awaiting trial which was to have come up next week. Now it is generally believed the cases will be dropped.

ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Contestants In Coming Event at Iowa City.

Iowa City, Iowa, April 29.—The contest of the Northern Oratorical league will be held here the evening of May 3. The contestants will be: Otto Brackett, university of Iowa; Bertrand G. Nelson, university of Chicago; Carroll L. Sigrey, university of Michigan; T. R. Schall, university of Minnesota; Hosse Enwall, Northern university; Clraance Merle Woodruff, Oberlin college; Miss Louise L. Loeb, university of Wisconsin. The judges will be Hon. Frank Smollett, Columbus, Ohio; President James H. Baker, university of Colorado; Hon. Alston W. Dana, Topeka, Kan.; President R. R. Jesse, Missouri university; Professor Edward H. Cushing, Yankton college, and Hon. Bartlett Tripp, Yankton, S. D.

A PRUSSIAN FIRE.

Berlin, April 29.—A fire in Spremberg, Prussia, today, destroyed the cloth factories of Bergumann and Pretsch, H. Puechel and Starik and Mittel. Two persons perished in the flames. The loss is placed at several million marks.

FOR MILNER.

Arrangements Being Made For a Big Reception In London.

New York, April 29.—Arrangements are quietly in progress for a reception to Sir Alfred Milner in London, says the Tribune's correspondent. The high commissioner for South Africa has been asked if he would accept an invitation to a public banquet, but he has not yet been heard from on that point. It is, however, quite possible that Sir Alfred Milner will not consent. He would have to get Mr. Chamberlain's permission before accepting such invitation, as a public banquet would imply a pronouncement upon the policy of the British government in South Africa, and it may be doubted whether the colonial secretary would deem it opportune for Sir Alfred Milner to make an important speech in this country on the South African question until the storm and stress of the financial phase of the war have passed away.

PUGS EXONERATED.

Jury Says Smith's Death Was Accidental.

London, April 29.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the death of Billy Smith, the pugilist, who was fatally injured April 22, at the National Sporting club in a bout with Jack Roberts, today rendered a verdict of accidental death.

GOLD GOING ABROAD.

New York, April 29.—Kuhn, Loeb & Co., will ship $250,000 gold to Germany tomorrow. Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. will ship $1,500,000 to the same destination.

LIFE LOST

By Fire In Department Store at Pittsburg.

Panic Took Place Among the Shoppers.

Pittsburg, April 29.—Fire at the corner of Carson and Seventeenth streets, South Side, today cost one life, a property loss estimated at $225,000, consumed over a dozen buildings and rendered a score of families homeless. The flames were discovered in the basement of the 4-story department store of George E. Lorsch & Bro. and in a very short time the entire building was burning furiously. It was in ruins within thirty minutes.

A panic ensued among the customers and employes, which resulted in what seemed at first a well-founded report that eight persons had perished. This was happily found to be untrue after the fire had been controlled, the only fatality being the burning to death of Mrs. Kate Donley's 2½-year-old child. When the fire broke out Mrs. Donley and her child were on the fourth floor of the Lorsch building. In her haste to escape the mother fell on the stairway and was rendered unconscious. In the excitement the child was burned to death.

A shower of burning timbers were thrown from the Lorsch building, carrying destruction in all directions. E. & A. Ernwein's clothing store on the opposite side of the street was the first to catch, but was not entirely destroyed. The grocery of P. McGrath, next door to Lorsch, was entirely consumed, followed quickly by the drug store of J. P. Stenger and several other buildings between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets. The confectionery store of John Nelson was the next to succumb, and in quick succession followed the store of Mrs. McIntosh the fruit stand of Samuel Morini, the produce store of Frank W. Elsman and four dwellings adjoining. A double brick dwelling, owned by Mrs. Miller, was badly damaged, and a number of smaller residences on Sixteenth street were made either in whole or in part wrecks.

The losers are: Lorsch & Bro., $50,000; Stenger, $25,000; offices in Stenger building, $35,000; Nelson, $15,000; McGrath, 250,000; Ernwein, $20,000, and Donohue, $10,000. The losses are pretty well covered by insurance.

MORGAN'S FINE HAND

Now Apparent In the Formation of a Big Trans-Atlantic Shipping Trust---One Important English Line Already Secured.

London, April 29.—The first step in the direction of the consolidation of the biggest trans-Atlantic shipping interests has been accomplished by the purchase by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. of the Leyland line of steamers. A deposit on the purchase money has been paid.

The officials of the Leyland line, in confirming the sale, told a reporter of the Associated Press that an official statement will be issued from the head office of the line, at Liverpool, tomorrow. It is understood that the shareholders will receive £14 10s for each £10 share. The line whose fleets will thus pass into the control of Americans, is one of Great Britain's shipping institutions, far exceeding the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation company in tonnage and importance.

When some months ago it was suggested that the line was likely to pass into the hands of the Atlantic Transport people, much comment followed in regard to the effect it would have on other British lines, as it was generally felt in shipping circles that any such wide reaching shipping amalgamation, in close touch with American railroads, would have serious consequences for lines outside the combination.

PRO-SPANISH FEELING

Representatives From South American Countries Bring Reliquary to Queen Regent and Are Most Enthusiastically Received.

Madrid, April 29.—The mayor of Buenos Ayres and the Argentine delegation, which came here to present the queen regent with a beautiful reliquary, have been accorded an enthusiastic welcome. They are being dined and feted. This is interpreted by the Spanish press as a sign of political reapproachment. The Heraldo recounts a number of Argentine measures testifying to the revived pro-Spanish feeling.

The Epoca expresses itself as gratified at the better understanding between the two countries and says:

"Spain is an American nation, not only historically, but by present influence, because there are 40,000,000 of Spanish-speaking Americans, while Spanish emigration will keep alive in the American republics love for the old country and strengthen the existing ties."

FRAUDS AT MANILLA

Maj. West Wanted to See the Goods Before Assuming Charge and Then the Frauds Were Discovered.

Washington, April 29.—Copies of Manilla papers, a month old, have been received at the war department, containing stories of the discoveries of irregularities in the matter of commissary stores. It appears from these accounts that Maj. West, who was sent to Manilla to be depot commissary, would not accept charge of the depot until the stores either were shown up on invoice or accounted for. This led to investigation, and some of the enlisted men and civilians employed about the commissary store houses were arrested. Then the Manilla police made the rounds of the city and found quite a large amount of commissary supplies in different places. Much of this could be accounted for by the sale of savings on rations, but this saving, it appears, could not be disposed of to general buyers, for an order in force in the Philippines directs the return to the commissary department of stores of savings, which would be paid for at the rate of cost to the government. This would be a much less profit than could be obtained by dealing with merchants and contractors. The papers received here simply enlarge upon the cable reports.

DIFFICULT TASK.

Germans Had Trouble In Reaching Shan Si.

Berlin, April 29.—Dispatches from Pekin show that the Germans had a difficult task in carrying the passes leading into Shan Si province. The only approaches were steep mountain tracks, and the Chinese held commanding positions from which they rolled huge rocks down the mountain sides on the advansing Germans. Besides many old guns, eighteen quick-firers were captured. The German losses were one officer and seven men killed and four officers and thirty-five men wounded.

FIRE STILL BURNS.

Latrobe, Pa., April 29.—Fire at the Dorothy coal and coke plant of the American Steel and Wire company, which started last night, is still burning. It was feared that six men were entombed in the mine, but it is known now that all escaped. The mine will be flooded today. The loss to the plant will reach about $150,000, fully insured.

BLAZE AT MAUTOMA.

Business Section of Wisconsin Town Burned.

Milwaukee, April 29.—A special to the Evening Wisconsin from Berlin, Wis., says:

The business portion of Wautoma, the county seat of Waushara county, twenty miles west of here, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $50,000. The Lincoln hotel and the Argus are among the buildings burned. Several people are rendered homeless.

FIGHT OF TEN YEARS

Made to Prevent Hanging of Charles W. Nordstrom.

Convicted at Seattle of Murder of Man Named Mason.

Case Has Been Appealed to Supreme Court Several Times.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the fourth time former Representative James Hamilton Lewis, of Seattle, Wash., has appeared in the supreme court earnestly endeavoring to prevent the hanging of Charles W. Nordstrom. It will be recalled that about ten years ago Nordstrom was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged. Since then, owing to the energy of his counsel, James Hamilton Lewis, the execution has been delayed.

Nordstrom was convicted of the murder of a man named Mason, it being alleged that he fired the fatal shot through a window after quarreling about some property. The sentence was affirmed by the supreme court of Washington state. Mr. Lewis, who has been retained indirectly by the Swedish government, took up the case and argued that the convicted man had been compelled against his will to try on a pair of boots which fitted tracks which led to the window through which it was alleged he shot Mason, and thus he was forced to contribute testimony against himself, which Mr. Lewis held to be a violation of the federal constitution.

He moved a rehearing, but the Washington supreme court overruled the motion. An appeal was taken to the United States supreme court, but this court also decided against the appellant. He then asked for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the return of the jury was "guilty as charged," and as the presentment was "murder of the first, second, third and fourth degrees" his client could not be held for more than the lowest degree, namely, the fourth. After an adverse decision by the state supreme court, he took an appeal to the federal supreme court and that body decided it was a matter for the state courts to decide.

Mr. Lewis then represented that the whole proceedings were illegal on the ground that Nordstrom was a Swedish citizen and under the "most favored nation" clause in the treaty with Sweden he was entitled to an indictment by a grand jury, but he had been tried on a presentment by the district attorney. On this plea he obtained a stay of execution, but after carrying the case to the federal supreme court again the court held that, while it was a question which the Swedish government might raise, it was not within the province of a subject or his counsel to raise it. Nothing was to be gained by having the government intervere, as Nordstrom was given all the privileges of a citizen of the state of Washington so that plea was abandoned.

Mr. Lewis then argued that the man had become insane during his imprisonment and could not be hanged. The judge sent several physicians to see Nordstrom and they reported he was sane. Tired with the long delay, the judge directed that he be hanged in ten days. Mr. Lewis then jumped on a train and hurried to Narragansett pier, where he found Supreme Court Justice McKenna, a guest of Justice White, and from him obtained another stay of execution. He now held that under the New York code, which has been adopted by Washington, Nordstrom was entitled to have his sanity examined by a jury, and that such an examination had not been made. The supreme court of Washington state decided against him and this question has again been appealed to the United States supreme court. While the question of sanity was being argued, Mr. Lewis went into the federal circuit court and moved that the defendant be discharged on the ground that the whole proceeding was illegal, as he had been refused a review by the state supreme court. The circuit court deciding adversely, he took another appeal to the supreme court.

The government is anxious to have both appeals heard at once in order to finish this case, which promises to drag along until the defendant dies of old age, but Mr. Lewis hopes to have one appeal heard at a time, so that if the first is overruled he may fall back upon the second, thus prolonging his client's life. It is also claimed that Mason was killed by his own gun, which presumably stood in the corner of the room.

The nearest approach to this remarkable case is that of a man named Hopt, of Utah, whose case was before the United States supreme court three times and occupied six years. Hopt was finally hanged. J. S. VAN ANTWERP.

PARASITIC.

The Disease on Flax Similar to Smut on Wheat.

Fargo, N. D., April 29.—Flax growers in the Northwest have been alarmed over the diseased condition of the crop for a year or two, and as a result of investigations, Professor H. L. Bolley of the North Dakota agriculturall college has discovered that the flax plant is afflicted with a fungus or parasitic growth, similar to smut on wheat. The worst feature is the positive proof that the fungus remains in the soil for years and is known to have reappeared after the land had been cropped in wheat two years.

Investigations are now in progress to discover some method of treating the soil to eradicate the growth, or to treat the grain as wheat is treated for smut with formaldehyde.

Professor Bolley is one of the best authorities in the West on treatment of wheat for smut, and was the discoverer of scab on potatoes and the methods of prevention.

HIS LAST ACT.

Washington, April 29.—One of the last acts of the president before leaving the White House, on his tour to the Pacific coast, was the signing of the commission of Mr. Pruden, one of his assistant secretaries, as a major and paymaster.

START MADE

President Begins Trip Across Continent.

Washington, April 29.—The train which is to carry President and Mrs. McKinley and their party on their long excursion across the continent and back made its start today precisely on schedule time, over the Southern road. Before 10 a. m. may people had congregated about the station, and when the president and Mrs. McKinley arrived, as they did, about 10:20, the building was thronged and many persons were congregated on the outside.

There was a cheer as the president's immediate party drove up to the station, and a general demonstration of affectionate regard as the head of the nation and his wife made their way through the crowd to the train. Mrs. McKinley leaned upon the arm of Dr. Rixey, and both she and the president smiled in response to the greetings which met them at every step. They were accompanied to the train by numerous friends and by many persons distinguished in the affairs of the nation.

The party included Secretary Gage, Secretary Root, Senator Hanna, Justice McKenna, Gen. Miles, Gen. Corbin, Gen. Sternberg, Secretary White of the American embassy in London, Commissioner of Pensions Evans, Comptroller Dawes, Gen. Bates, Assistant Postmaster General Shellenberger, Congressman Livingston and many ladies of the cabinet circles.

Mrs. McKinley found the drawing room of the private coach which she and the president are to occupy, beautifully decorated with roses and other flowers. She spoke gratefully of the thoughtful care of her friends and seating herself beside a window, facing the crowd, continued to smile and bow to acquaintances until the train moved out.

The president took his position on the rear platform of the Olympia beside Secretary Hitchcock, hat in hand, a brilliant carnation in his button hole and a smile upon his face.

Just as the minute hand of the big clock in the station touched the 10:30 point the train started upon its 10,000-mile journey. The crowd cheered enthusiastically and waved a good-bye. The demonstration was continued until the train left the environs of Washington.

ITALIAN DESPERADOES

United States Made the Dumping Ground of the Cast-Offs of the Prisons and Pauper Houses of Italy.

New York, April 29.—The Herald says: Italy is making of the United States a dumping ground for her criminals and paupers. This factor has been forcibly brought to the attention of the local authorities by the arrival in this port of three Italian brigands, whose depredations made them a scourge to the province in which they were reared. Despairing of being relieved in a regular manner, the merchants upon whom they had preyed, made up a liberal purse with which the three were sent to this country, landing with money enough in their pockets to pass unquestioned. The three desperadoes finding themselves unchecked are now in Kansas City. Warning has been sent by Police Commissioner Murphy to the Kansas City police, who now have the Italians under strict surveillance.

Commissioner Murphy is convinced that this is no isolated case. "Italian criminals," said the commissioner, "are pouring into New York on every ship that brings immigrants. The popular belief that our law bars out criminals and paupers is a mistaken unbelief. It may be that the Italian government has had no part in the scheme, but it is still true that the United States is being made a dumping ground, receiving the cast-offs from Italian prisons and pauper houses."

MANY BOER PRISONERS

Seventeen Hundred Arrive at Hamilton, Bermuda, and Will Be Sent to Darrell's Island as Soon as Ready.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Thursday, April 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—There is considerable excitement here over the arrival of 1700 Boer prisoners. The British government has leased Darrell's island, one of the largest islands, in the sound and within a quarter of a mile of Warwick shore for one year, with the option of relinquishing it on a month's notice. Tuckers island has also been inspected, but up to April 24 no definite settlement had been made in regard to it.

The army officials are, as usual, very reticent and nothing can be learned from them on the subject, but, as the blacksmiths of the town have been sounded as to their ability to construct several hundred yards of wire fence, very strong, close, high and with spike points, and as the plans which one or two have seen are said to be the outline of one of the islands, very little doubt is entertained as to the object in view by the government. It is claimed that had the island not been wanted for the prisoners but for several hundred British laborers, who are going out to build the new swing bridge to connect the dockyard with the mainland, no such iron fencing would have been inquired about and the negotiations for Darrell's island would have been made by the naval authorities, whereas everything is being done by army officials.

Bermudians are not feeling very comfortable over the matter. The island is still garrisoned by the colored regiment, the First West India, and their behavior is by no means calculated to inspire the confidence of the people they are supposed to guard. It is hoped that a strong force of soldiers will be sent with the Boers or matters, it is feared, may be as uncomfortable as they were recently at St. Helena.

SHAMROCK II AGROUND

The Challenger Rests on a Mud Bank For a While But Is Floated Off Apparently Uninjured.

Glasgow, April 29.—It transpires that the Shamrock II grounded in a mud bank near Dumbarton while proceeding seaward on Saturday. Her crew were transferred to a tug and, thus lightened, the Shamrock floated after being ashore three-quarters of an hour. It is believed she is not injured.

Glasgow, April 29.—In the opinion of those responsible for sailing Shamrock II in the races for America's cup, the five weeks available for preparation and trials are considered quite little enough time for the work. Every effort, therefore, will be made to hurry things forward. Within an hour after she was handed over by the manager of the Dennys she started for the Solent, in tow of the Erin and there is still hope that she will be ready for her first spin under canvas by Thursday. If this should be found impossible, she will not hoist sail until Saturday, Capt. Jameson and Capt. Sycamore being agreed that though they are not superstitious there is no sufficient reason for "tempting Providence by starting her on her racing career on Friday.

Thomas Ratsy, the sailmaker, has all the canvas in readiness for her arrival and he has been advised to have all hands waiting for her Monday morning. As she was towed down the Clyde she was the subject of general comment. Her extraordinarily low freeboard was much criticized, in view of the necessity of making an Atlantic passage, and her telescopic topmast was condemned by practical yachtmen, who held that, if at any time it should become desirable to extend or lower the topmast, the mainmast would certainly have bent enough to jam it. Nevertheless, Shamrock II was pronounced the likeliest challenger ever sent across.

SHOT HIS SISTER.

Insane Farmer Commits Murder Near McGregor, Ia.

St. Paul, April 29.—A Prairie Du Chien, Wis., special says: Max Heck, who runs his father's near McGregor, Iowa, shot and almost instantly killed his sister, Mrs. Ellsworth, at the breakfast table. It is thought he was temporarily insane. He was arrested.

BIG DULUTH WINS.

Shut Out the West Duluth Juniors.

The Big Duluth baseball team opened its season yesterday afternoon at Oneota Park with a clean, fast game, defeating the West Duluth Juniors, 7 to 0. Despite the cold, raw weather, the game was full of clever work and sensational plays. The clothing house representatives are, apparently, much stronger than last year, though the team is practically the same. Lovell pitched an exceptionally good game, allowing but two hits.

The West Duluth Juniors also put up a fast game and but for costly errors at critical moments would have held the score down to about three runs. But seven hits were made off Young. The score by innings was as follows:

Batteries—Lovell and Girard; Young and Roinson.

Next Sunday the Big Duluth team will play at Cloquet. The team in that town is said to be very fast.

MINING A SAFE BUSINESS.

Words of Wisdom Regarding Mining Speculation.

A leading mining jojurnal says: "While it is not in our province to deal with moral questions, yet a little discussion on some topics outside of mining now and then most anywhere is a good thing. The man who has a little more money than he needs for current expenses, as well as the man with a large surplus, or a fortune, should avoid that morbid condition of the mind which is the constant nightmare of the gambler. The latter is looking for large gains at the turn of the wheel or the flip of the card, and the man with a surplus of funds contemplating an entrance into the mining field is likely to get into the same frame of mind if he does not curb his susceptibility in that direction. All speculation is liable to draw one into this condition unless a man has a pretty level head. Mining is, of course, sometimes a speculation, but where the proper investigation has been made which every individual should make, if not of the feasibility of the proposition placed before him, at least of the character of the promoters asking his financial support. When either has been looked into and found to be reliable, a venture in mining becomes as safe as any other business on earth. But no kind of business is infallible, and mining ventures are no exception to the rule. There is no question but that the business of obtaining mineral wealth has a smaller number of failures when conservatively managed than any other, but beware of that morbid frame of mind that often leads to ruin. Go at the work the same as you would any other line and success will crown your efforts."

Apropos of the above, it is stated that the Beatrice group of mines advertised in today's Herald, is no speculation. This group of mines is well developed, and from all accounts of them, are certain to be large dividend payers very soon. The plant is ready for immediate operation, and it will not surprise the promoters if it is paying dividends before the end of the present season. The quality of the ores is so high, and the cost of production so small, it would seem as if there can be no failure in this result. M. W. Bates, who has made a careful and exhaustive examination of these properties, has had much experience in matters of this nature, and is enthusiastic about these mines.

The names of the men who are already interested in them is a sufficient guarantee of their fath in them, and their recommendation should carry great weight with investors.

The first series of the stock is selling very fast, Mr. Bates thinks it will be all subscribed within ten days.

PIERCE CASE.

Application For a New Trial Is Being Heard.

The hearing on the application of Dr. Thomas J. Pierce for a new trial was to have come up in district court this afternoon. It was to be heard before Judge Ensign, and J. B. Richards was to argue it on behalf of the defendant, and County Attorney McClintock on the part of the state. The motion for a new trial is based on three grounds, as follows: That the verdict was not justified by the evidence; that there were errors in law occurring at the trial, and that new evidence has been discovered that could not have been had by the exercise of due diligence at the time of the trial.

It was expected that the arguments would last most of the afternoon, at least, and that the court would take the matter under advisement at the conclusion of the arguments.

NOW FOR A FIGHT

Contest Between the Vitrified Brick and Asphalt Champions.

The Petition For Asphalt to Go to the Council.

Brick Advocates Are Largely Increased In Number.

And now for the Superior street paving fight! Petitions of rival interests representing vitrified brick and sheet asphalt to be the best and least expensive paving for the street, will keep the council busy for a time. The asphalt petition will probably go to the council this evening. The local representative of the Barber Asphalt company said that it would, unless something should come up at the last moment to prevent it. The vitrified brick petition was sent in last Monday night and is now in the hands of the board of public works. The board has been so busily engaged with other matters that it has not examined into the petition or verified it.

To a certain extent the vitrified brick interests seem to have the most confidence. Whitney Wall, who has been chief marshal of the vitrified brick campaign, did not stop with the 2400 feet of property represented last week, but this morning showed up at the city hall with 3240 feet, making about 800 feet additional. He has the names of practically all of the local owners of Superior street property between Eighth avenue west and Second avenue east, and says that when it comes to a decision by the council, that will weigh rather heavily in the balance.

With the council rests the deciding power between the two petitions and it is pretty generally known that a majority of the aldermen do not favor vitrified brick to any great extent. Then on the other hand the street can be paved with brick at an expense of $60,000, while the asphalt will, according to an estimate of the former city engineer, cost about $80,000. The council may be limited in a choice by the cash balance in the permanent improvement revolving fund. After the Michigan street paving is taken out there will be less than $80,000 in that fund.

The argument that the sheet asphalt interests are making is that if the brick pavement is put down with a guarantee it will cost 25 per cent more than is now figured on, while the asphalt figures cover a 10-year guarantee. This they claim makes the cheaper of the two pavings in the long run.

A number of property owners are afraid that if the two interests carry the fight to any great extent there will be no new paving on Superior street this year. Many that did not favor vitrified brick as a paving regret the second petition for asphalt through fear of such a contingency. They would rather see the street paved with almost anything than go through the summer in its present deplorable condition.

The work of paving Michigan street began this morning when a force of men was set to work, making all sewer connections up to the sidewalk. There are twenty-nine lots on Michigan street, between Eighth avenue west and Lake avenue, which have no sewer or water connections. The first step in the paving is to supply these connections so it will not be necessary to take up the new paving later on.

Michigan street will be paved with Kettle River sandstone at a cost of $24,006, of which practically $19,000 will be taken from the permanent improvement revolving fund. Watterworth & Fee have the contract.

WILL NOT STRIKE.

Miners Now Out Not to Be Supported.

St. Etienne, France, April 29.—There is a strong probability that the proposition to inaugurate a strike in all the coal basins in support of the miners on strike at Moncteau les Mines was defeated by the vote of the miners taken yesterday under the direction of the Miners' Federation. A majority of the 165,000 miners abstained from voting. The vote as canvassed showed 26,000 in favor and 15,000 against striking.

CONGER EN ROUTE.

Left Ogden For the East Monday Morning.

Ogden, Utah, April 29.—United States Minister Conger and party left Ogden at 8:20 a. m. for the East, accompanied by John N. Baldwin, attorney general of the Union Pacific; Ernest Hart, John T. Stewart and Donald McRae, of the reception committee, all of Council Bluffs.

IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Movements of British Generals In the Field.

London, April 29.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, April 29, says:

"Gen. Blood has discovered at Rossenkal, South African republic, government documents and a large number of bank notes. Byng has had a fight with Boers on the Basutoland border, south of Wepener, and killed five. Grenfell, in addition to the captures reported, got 38,500 rounds of small arms ammunition. At Lydenburg twenty Boers have surrendered."

NAVAL PORT AT MAATSUMAI.

Berlin, April 29.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Cologne Gazette says it is announced from Tokio that the harbor of Matsumai, capital of the island of Yesso, opposite Vladivostock, is being transformed into a naval port. The work is being carried out with all speed and is already almost completed.

MAY WEATHER.

Data of Weather Bureau For the Month.

May, the month of flowers, is usually a pretty decently behaved period in Duluth, according to the customary compilation from the records of the weather bureau for the past thirty years, showing what sort of weather the month has on the average. The mean or normal temperature is 48 degrees, and the warmest May was that of 1896, which had an average of 53 degrees. The coldest May was that of 1888, with an average of 42 degrees, so the variation is not very great. The highest temperature reached on a May day was 88 degrees May 9, 1896, and the lowest was 25 degrees May 1, 1888. The average date of the last killing frost of the spring is May 5.

There is usually a good deal of moisture. The average for the month is 3.68 inches, and the month averages 12 days with .01 of an inch or more. The greatest precipitation was 7.99 inches in 1879, and the least was last year, when there was only .62 of an inch. The greatest amount of precipitation in any twenty-four consecutive hours was 3.27 inches May 1 and 2, 1877. The average number of clear days is 9; partly cloudy days, 12; and cloudy days, 10. The prevailing winds are from the northeast, and the highest velocity of the wind was sixty miles from the northeast May 22, 1877.

BURLINGTON DIVIDEND.

One of Two Dollars Per Share Declared.

Boston, April 29.—The directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad today declared a dividend of $2 per share for the four months ending July 1, payable June 15.

The official circles of the Burlington admitted that the dividend was announced at this time in anticipation of the pending transaction whereby the Burlington road is so be taken by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads. It was explained that the new bonds are to date from July 15, as that has been the regular dividend day for several years. The amount of the dividend, $2 per share, is 50 cents higher than the previous dividend, and brings the aggregate up to $7 per share for the year.

VIRGINIA FIRE CASE

To Come Up at May Term of the District Court.

Robert H. Harris Will Be Tried For Grand Larceny.

List of Grand and Petit Jurors For May Term.

Wednesday morning the May term of district court will open, beginning with the calling of the calendar at 10 o'clock and the charging of the grand jury at 11 o'clock. The civil calendar starts out with 100 cases, besides some tax cases of more or less importance, and the criminal calendar shows up nearly twenty cases for the consideration of the grand jury, besides the cases against Robert H. Harris, continued from last term.

The term promises to be rather an important one if the leading matters for hearing do not go over the term. In the civil calendar there are several cases against the Moon & Kerr Lumber company, in which people who lost goods and furniture in the Virginia fire of June 7, 1900, are seeking to hold the lumber company responsible for the fire, claiming that it originated at the mill because of defective waste burners. The company will claim, on the other hand, that the fire at the mill was a separate one from the fire that burned the city. It is claimed that the fire did such great damage in the city proper started from a butcher shop, kept by Ole Halvorson, one of the plaintiffs, and that it came from a kettle of lard that boiled over and caught fire while the butcher was out looking at the mill fire. J. L. Washburn and W. D. Bailey are the attorneys for the plaintiffs, and John G. Williams is the attorney for the company. The cases were started several months ago, but have been continued twice to await the return of one of the members of the lumber company who has been South for his health.

The jurors for the May term have been served with notices of their selection as parts of the "bulwark of our liberties," and their names are as follows:

Grand jurors—Charles B. Oswald, John Olson, Robert Hamp, N. C. Clark, A. M. Miller, Jr., Henry S. Swift, Horace Brown, William H. Hoyt, Frank A. Noble, W. H. Stultz, Henry G. Mooney, Andrew Larson, Louis Hammel, Ransom E. Moore, John D. Ellis, William C. Wright, of Duluth; J. C. Brown, of Soudan; Edward Hogstad, of Fond du Lac; Otto Erickson, Lakewood; W. H. Congdon, Jr., of Tower; John Cowling, of Ely; Dougall McEachin, of Hibbing.

Big Meetings at Bethel.

Large audiences greeted Mrs. Amanda Smith, the colored revivalist, at the Bethel yesterday, both morning and evening. The Michigan street fire and the cutting off of the electric lights just at the commencement of the evening service were not sufficient to keep away the people, as the lecture room and the gallery were both filled. The sermon and songs were listened to with rapt attention. Mrs. Smith will speak and sing tonight.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

AT WEST DULUTH

A party of West Duluth people, comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Foucault, Miss Kate Peretson, C. Foucault and one other couple, that left Saturday night for a camping expedition over Sunday, on Spirit Island, reached their homes in West Duluth last night after a very rough experience, suffering bitterly from exposure in the cold and wet weather of yesterday. The party went out in two row boats and took with them a tent. It was so warm on Saturday that no trouble was anticipated, but the sudden change of weather upset all their plans. The rain dampened the wood so that no fire could be started, the wind came up so strong that it was impossible to get off the island. One boat was pounded to pieces on some logs, and a weary day was spent in watching and hoping that the wind would go down. Not until last night did this happen, and there are several West Duluth people that declare that they have had enough of camping for the present.

ALL MILLS RUNNING.

Every mill along the bay front, from the interstate bridge to West Duluth, was in operation this morning, the Lesure and Hubbard & Vincent mill starting up this morning. The last named mill has a contract to saw some of the Gilbert logs. The effect of the starting up of these industries is already being felt in the business circles of West Duluth and the merchants are much encouraged.

RACE CALLED OFF.

Owing to the inclement weather yesterday, the proposed horse race between the horses of Louis Foucault and Barney Nellis, which was to have occurred in Grand avenue for $10 aside, was not pulled off. Mr. Nelils has had his horse in training and would not risk putting it out in the cold wind. It is likely that the event will occur next Sunday.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

C. A. Mandelert, proprietor of the Headquarters grocery, at the corner of Fifty-second avenue west and Ramsey street, left today after a short visit for Thief River Falls, Minn. He expects to return to his home in Chippewa Falls very soon.

Rev. Father Feehely returned this morning from New Duluth, where he held services.

O. J. Simons has returned from a business trip to the Twin Cities.

Thomas Forrest, John Winness, P. Doyle and a few others this morning were shipping a large number of horses out to Jamestown, N. D., where they have taken sub-contracts on the railroad construction recently awarded P. O'Donnell, of Duluth.

The first meeting of the season was held last night in Gilley's hall by the members of 'Longshoremen's union, No. 12. The ten members present took action ratifying the agreement between its delegates and the officers of the Lumber Carriers' association for the 50-cent scale the coming season instead of the 60-cent per hour wage that was paid last year. The engineers' strike cannot be settled any too soon to please the 'longshoremen.

The special meeting of the Republican club was held on Saturday night, and business was transacted that has been accumulating for some weeks.

Miss Anna Wright has recovered from injuries deceived last week, in falling, and has resumed her position at the telephone exchange office.

A fire in the tenement row owned by Dr. Burnside called out the fire department Saturday afternoon. The damage was slight.

IN MICHIGAN.

Forest Fires Are Doing Damage on Upper Peninsula.

Houghton—Forest fires are raging at a number of upper peninsula points and unless there is a drenching rain soon, great damage will be done and many hamlets and villages endangered. The whole north country is very dry, less than a quarter of an inch of rain having fallen during the month.

L. T. Buckman, of Houghton, who has been employed as head lineman for this district by the Western Union Telegraph company, has resigned his position and left yesterday morning on his way to California, having fallen heir to a vineyard and fruit farm there left him by an uncle.

While excavating for the foundation for a house in East Houghton the workmen struck at a depth of five feet a coffin containing the corpse of a woman. The find was made about 100 feet southeast of the school house and about twenty south of the road. No rough box was found and the coffin was zinc-lined. The glass was broken and the face exposed. Later the coffin was opened and the body of a woman that was in a fair state of preservation, considering the time, was brought to view. The authorities were notified and the remains will be reinterred today. The oldest inhabitant of East Houghton cannot recollect the time the body was buried there. The discovery created considerable curious interest.

Iron Muntain—John Johnston was run over by an ore car at the Hamilton mine. He was working on a high trestle when he was caught by the car. He was doubled under the car and both legs and an arm were cut off.

Menominee—Thomas Virgo has taken a contract to get out several thousand cords of pulpwood this summer for the Menominee Paper company. Camps have been started near Summit, Mich., and a crew of sixty men will be employed.

The Menominee River Driving club is planning for big racing meets to be held in Menominee and Marinette for which prices aggregating $1500 will be awarded. The races in Marinette will be held during the street fair week, about July 4, and there will be two days of racing.

Negaunee — Bernard Garbilino and Frank Demans, aged 17 and 15 years respectively, were arrested here for stealing knives, revolvers, etc., to the value of $100 from J. H. Sawbridge, the pioneer hardware man. Garbilino, who has served two terms inthe house of correction, was bound over to the circuit court. Demans was let off on the promise of good behavior.

The best cigar made in Duluth is the Tom Reed. Ask for it.

C J. Stewart, undertaker, 226 West First street, successor to J. W. Stewart.

The funeral of the late Frank Bridgeman, proprietor of the Boston restaurant, will take place at 2:30 tomorrow from his residence, 420 Third avenue east.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Murdo S. Mackenzie, of 1117 East Sixth street.

Marriage licenses have been issued to John A. Broman and Annie Larson, and to Melvin Loree and Nellie Lowry.

The will of August Beck, of Hermantown, leaving everything to Andrew Gulbranson, has been filed in the probate court. The foreign will of Eliza Dayton, of New Brunswick, N. J., was also filed there.

Emma Nelson has begun suit for divorce in district court from August W. Nelson, on the ground of desertion. They were married in Duluth, where both still live, Aug. 28, 1889, and both are 36 years of age. Mrs. Nelson charges that her husband has deserted her, and that the desertion has existed for more than one year. William L. Windom is the attorney.

Articles of incorporation of the Iron Land company were filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds by Thomas A. Merritt, Byron G. Segog and A. E. McManus, all of Duluth. The company is formed to do a general mining and manufacturing business. The capital stock is $100,000, divided into 10,000 shares of $10 each.

David McFarland, driver for Hose Company No. 1, was discharged this afternoon by Chief Black upon returning from the Imperial Spice company fire. McFarland was charged with being drunk while on duty at the fire.

The board of public works examined a petition for a sanitary sewer on East Superior street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues, this morning. They found the petition defective as the signers did not make the necessary affidavits required by the charter.

An order was filed in the United States court today issued by Judge Lochren, which permits the receivers of the Commercial Light and Power company to enter into a contract with the city for the lighting contract.

SECOND FIRE

Michigan Street Has Another Bad One.

Spice Mill and Mattress Factory Visited.

The Michigan street wholesale district was visited by another big fire at noon today. The Imperial Coffee and Spice Mill company and the Minnesota Bedding company were burned out with a loss that will probably reach $20,000.

The fire started a few minutes after 12 o'clock on the third floor of the Minnesota Bedding company's factory. On this floor was stored bales of excelsior, sea moss, hair, shavings and other highly inflamable material used in the construction of mattresses. Like the fire at the Zenith Paper company's establishment last evening, the flames burst out within a moment or two of discovery.

William Craig and Officer Fred Grandmaison were walking over the Lake avenue viaduct when they noticed smoke issuing from under the roof of the building. Mr. Craig ran to a telephone to give the alarm and Officer Grandmaison hurried to the fire box at Lake avenue and Superior street, where he turned in the alarm. Both were back on the viaduct within a few minutes, and the little columns of smoke had given way to a mass of flame which shot right up through the roof for a moment and was then eclipsed in smoke.

Employes of both concerns had very narrow escapes from suffocation, so dense was the smoke. J. B. Brown, president of the Imperial Coffee and Spice company, was sitting at his desk when the fire broke out. He scarcely had time to throw the books in the safe and get out of the building.

The building in which the fire occurred is located at No. 12-14 West Michigan street. It is owned by the Bunnel estate and valued at $12,000 and insured for $8000. The east half was occupied by the Imperial Coffee and Spice Mill company and the western half by the bedding concern, of which I. Helstein is manager.

Beyond the fact that the fire started in the inflammable bedding material on the third floor of the mattress factory, nothing is known as to its origin. The bedding made more smoke than flame and within fifteen minutes after the fire started the smoke was so dense over the business district that it was impossible to see the sun. At 12:30 Superior street had the same appearance that it would on a very foggy morning, except the smoke was more irritating to the eyes and nostrils.

The firemen had scarcely recovered from their hard work at last night's fire, but the response to the alarm was prompt and the department held the flames to the two upper floors, though the contents of the first floor and basement were damaged nearly as much by water as the contents of the upper floors was damaged by fire. The only flames that appeared on the outside during the fire broke out through the rear windows at 12:40 o'clock and the firemen got three streams into the building from the railroad yards.

Breaking out at the noon hour, the fire drew a crowd of 4000 or 5000 people. About half this number watched it from the Lake avenue viaduct while others dodged engines down in the railroad yards and broken hose on Michigan street. There were numerous ducklings. The police department stationed officers around the fire to keep the crowd away from the danger of falling walls and wires.

After the fire had been burning for over an hour one of the firemen discovered a half-drowned kitten on the second floor. He picked it up and received a bite on the hand. He threw it out the window and another fireman, fearing that it would be injured by the fall on the sidewalk, reached out and caught the frightened animal. He, too, received a bite and several scratches. The cat did all the personal damage, as none of the other firemen or any of the spectators were injured in any way.

The insurance on the stock, machinery and fixtures of the Imperial Coffee and Spice Mill company amounted to $10,500. The stock carried amounted to about $9000 and the machinery and fixtures to about $5000. The insurance is as follows:

Western Assurance	$ 500
Providence of Washington	500
Firemen's	1,000
National	500
St. Paul Fire and Marine	1,000
National of Ireland	500
Scottish Union and National	500
American Central	2,000
Home	1,500
Western	1,500
Erie	500
National Union	500
Total	$10,500

The insurance on the stock of the Minnesota Bedding company amounted to $3000 and the stock, machinery and fixtures of the company are estimated at about $8000 in value. The insurance is placed as follows:

Mercantile	$1,500
Consolidated Fire and Marine	1,000
Agricultural	500
Citizens	500

The insurance on the building is placed as follows:

New England Underwriters of Concord	$1,000
Millers and Manufacturers	3,000
Teutonia	2,000

WILL RESUME AT ONCE.

Zenith Paper Company Takes Temporary Quarters.

The directors of the Zenith Paper company met this morning and decided to resume business immediately and to lose no time whatever in so doing. The company will probably engage in business on even a larger scale than ever before. The building formerly occupied by B. Heller at 102 and 104 West Michigan street, will be occupied temporarily, and it is very probable that as soon as the old building is rebuilt the company will take quarters therein once more.

IN FAVOR OF HUGHES.

Topeka, Kan., April 29.—Judge Hazen in the district court today decided the mandamus proceedings in the Parker-Hughes mayoralty contest case, in favor of Parker, the Democratic candidate. Hughes asked for a rehearing.

OHIO FALLING FAST.

Cincinnati, April 29.—Ohio river has fallen to fifteen-seven feet, a total fall of 2:7 feet since Saturday afternoon. By tomorrow morning the obstructions to traffic, caused by the flood, will be removed.

EASTMAN.

Chief of Police Corroborates Statements Concerning Revolver.

Cambridge, Mass., April 29.—Chief of Police Cloyes was the first witness called upon today to testify in the trial of Charles R. Eastman, charged with the murder of Richard H. Grogan, Jr. His evidence related to the statement made by Eastman after the shooting of Grogan, and did not differ materially from the testimony of others who have been examined on this point. Chief Cloyes identified the bullet taken from Grogan's body, at the autopsy. Police Inspector Murray also testified regarding Eastman's statement, and identified the bullet that killed Grogan.

Under cross examination, he said that he had great difficulty in firing the pistol which Eastman said he had in his hand when it went off accidentally and shot Grogan. There was considerable trouble with the cylinder, witness said, which at times would not revolve. This statement corroborated the claim made by Eastman that the cylinders of the revolver worked with difficulty.

SEEM IN FAVOR.

President May Get His LL.D at Harvard.

Boston, April 29.—At a meeting of the board of overseers of Harvard university held here today, the question of granting the degree of doctor of laws to President William McKinley was taken up informally and the sentiment expressed was unanimous in favor of the step. The matter will come up for formal action at a meeting of the overseers just before commencement in June, according to the usual custom.

REPLY WANTED.

Machinists Send Ultimatum to Illinois Central.

Chicago, April 29.—The conference committee of the International Association of Machinists today sent an ultimatum to the Illinois Central railroad, demanding an immediate reply to the schedule of demands presented last week. If the reply is not made before tomorrow it is considered probable the machinists will break off negotiations.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS

For Fast Time at the Kentucky Derby.

Louisville, April 29.—At Churchill Downs, the track over which the Kentucky derby will be run this afternoon, is lightning fast and the general belief among turfmen is that a new record will be made by the winner.

Indications point to the largest attendance in the history of the stake.

NO COMMOTION

Was Caused By Failure of Westerly Bank.

Westerly, R. I., April 29.—The closing of the Mechanics Savings bank, notice of which was given yesterday, did not create any visible commotion in financial circles here today. Withdrawals from other banks during the forenoon were apparently no more numerous than usual. It is expected the officers of the Mechanics' Savings bank will be authorized by the supreme court to affect the desired liquidation Application for such authorization will be made at Providence during the day.

Providence, April 29.—The supreme court today issued an order restraining the officers of the Westerly Savings' bank from carrying on business and from receiving or paying out deposits until after a hearing May 15 on the petition for leave to go into liquidation

CHECKED.

Pennsylvania Railroad Shuts Off George Gould's Plan.

New York, April 29.—The Evening Post says: George Gould's plans for reaching Pittsburg by connecting the Wabash with the Wheeling & Lake Erie and by building an entirely new line from Wheeling & Lake Erie's terminus near the Ohio river, into Pittsburg, are likely to be entirely revised, as the result of the aggressive position taken by the Pennsylvania railroad.

Ever since it became definitely known that Mr. Gould was planning to reach Pittsburg and secure the immense tonnage of that district for the Wabash, the Pennsylvania railroad officers have been actively at work to prevent the building of the road, if possible. President Cassat and Mr. Gould have held conferences on the subject and while no definite understand has probably been reached at the present time, it may be stated that the Wabash will not reach Pittsburg as an aggressively competitive element.

The Pennsylvania, to protect that territory from new competition, was prepared to take aggressive measures, and Mr. Gould was quick to realize the harm that might be done his Western roads by Pennsylvania opposition. The Wabash, however, will secure its lien to Pittsburg, through an arrangement with the Pennsylvania, which will obviate the building of a strictly competitive line in the interest of the Wabash and confine any building of new road by Mr. Gould to connections between the Wabash and Wheeling to Lake Erie. No new road will be built east of the Ohio river. The Gould line will get into Pittsburg over the Baltimore & Ohio, or perhaps from Steubenville when a new bridge now planned is completed over the Pan Handle line.

JACK THE RIPPER.

Caught Once More By Ludwigshafen Detectives.

Ludwigshafen (Baden), April 29.—The notorious "Jack the Ripper," who has assaulted and mutilated eighteen women, has been caught here red-handed by two detectives attired as women.

A dispatch from Berlin, March 26, said that the Bavarian police had captured the man who for several months previous had been terrorizing Ludwigshafen by a succession of outrages such as were committed in the White Chapel district of London years ago by a man who was termed "Jack the Ripper." The man then taken into custody was a butcher named Damian, but he was subsequently released.

REED SUED.

Des Moines, April 29.—George A. Reed, a lieutenant of the Fifty-first Iowa regiment, acting commissary at the Presidio in 1898 and 1899, has been made defendant in a suit for $22,442, for which, it is alleged, he failed to render a satisfactory accounting. The action was instituted by Lewis Miles, attorney for the Southern district of Iowa and is based on the report of F. E. Rittman, auditor of the war department. It is alleged supplies valued at $211,177 passed through Reed's hands.

The Police Court.

Cornelius McInarine, who claims to have walked all the way from Ireland, was fined $5 in police court this afternoon for vagrancy. He was probably the dirtiest prisoner ever arraigned in the court, and that is saying a good deal. When arrested McInarine said that he had not taken a bath since he left Ireland. He looked the part.

The following women forfeited bail by not appearing in court to answer charges of disorderly conduct: Deli Smith, Ada Nichols, Mary Peterson, Lizzie Wainwright, Cissey Carnell, Trilby Hicks and Jennis Shields.

WAR REVENUE RECEIPTS.

Washington, April 29.—Up to March 31, 1901, the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, has produced $289,504,447.

Fourteen Million Dollars in Gold

HAVE BEEN TAKEN FROM THE MINES AT MURPHY'S CAMP, CALAVERAS COUNTY, CAL.

NEAR MURPHY'S CAMP is a group of mines known as the Beatrice Group, consisting of three full mining claims, a well bullt and complete ten stamp gold mill, and mill site, and forty acres of land along the San Domingo creek. The foundation in place for five more stamps. The mill has been idle for some time, owing to a dissention among the owners, but is in excellent condition and ready for immediate operation. The ores assay and mill over $25.00 per ton of rock, and can be mined and milled for not exceeding $5.00 a ton, leaving a net profit of $20.00 per ton. The capacity of the mill is twenty-five tons per day, our engineer estimates that it will be easy to earn at least $5,000 per month net, with the present equipment, and says $10,000 per month is possible with the fifteen stamps. A syndicate of twenty Duluth rnen have taken an option on this group of mines, and will organize a stock company with a capital of $1,000,000 in shares of $1.00 each, par value. Eight hundred thousand shares will be placed in the treasury of the company to be sold as the necessities of the corporation require. It is proposed to sell one hundred and fifty thousand shares, in three series of fifty thousand each. ANXIOUS FOR WORK

Range Towns Want to See Engineers' Strike Settled.

That Will Mean Active Work In the Mines.

At Present Operations Are Being Held In Check.

Nearly every visitor in the city from the range says that the people in the mining districts are very anxious to see a settlement of the marine engineers' troubles so that the ore boats may soon begin to run. The effect of the strike is being felt to a large extent, for in former years where there was at this time of the season a renewal of the activity in mining circles after the winter period, it is now pretty quiet and but little work is being done, and what is worse, nobody knows when there will be a change in the situation.

Two whalebacks have been towed to Ashland to load and make room at the ore dock for the small quantity that is being shipped to that point daily. At the opening of the spring season the Missabe dock at the West End and the Eastern Minnesota dock at Allouez bay were practically empty, with the exception of about fifteen carloads of ore that were hauled on the Missabe dock and left in the cars all winter. The Missabe road has been hauling a little ore from the mines and holding the cars at Proctorknott, while the Eastern Minnesota road has had four trains of ore a day to the docks at Allouez bay. The Allouez bay ore docks have a capacity of 115,000 tons and it is said on good authority that the railroad company can continue hauling ore for at least ten days more before it will be crowded for space. Even if the boats commence to run by the time the ore docks are filled up, it will be impossible to empty them for some time. The Eastern docks could accommodate eight ore boats at the same time and a boat could be loaded every four hours, but it is entirely out of the question to suppose that there would be enough boats here to rush out ore in this manner. As soon as the ore boats commence to run there will be a big demand from all the docks for carriers and the probabilities are that not one of the docks will unload at a very raid rate. As it is, the Eastern Minnesota ore officials are said to be in a guessing mood.

The masters of several of the Northern Steamship company's freight boats tied up at the West Superior docks, have arrived, but it is not known when the boats will be able to get out. Merchandise from the West and South has been collecting at the Eastern's docks, for transshipment down the lake and there is at present a rather congested condition at the dock. It is estimated that there is from 1200 to 1500 tons of merchandise on the docks with more arriving.

Sixth Avenue Theater.

"East Lynne," the great humanic drama, which appeals to both the serious and the humorous sides of the average person's nature, will be presented at the Sixth Avenue theater this evening by North Bros. company. In the leading part, Miss Virginia Goodwin is seen to excellent advantage, and her support will include the entire strong company that will give verity to the great diversity of characters promised by the cast. The dramatic power and human sympathy are nowhere more evident than in "East Lynne." The specialty artists have arranged some pleasant surprises for this week, commencing tonight.

A NERVY WOMAN.

Goes After a Burglar and Wounds Him.

Indianapolis, April 29.—While Mrs. L. W. Louis was standing in front of her dresser changing her toilet after a shopping expedition, with the servants dismissed for the afternoon and other members of the family temporarily absent, a burglar stepped into the room, having made his way through the basement. While he was still staring at her, Mrs. Louis grabbed a revolver from the dresser and she pursued him downstairs and through the halls, taking two shots at him as he scaled a rear fence. The fellow limped as he continued to run, making his escape.

NEW YORK MOVING SLOWLY.

New York, April 29.—The Atlantic transport line steamer Minnehaha which arrived today from London reports that on last Thursday at 9:30 in the evening in latitude 42:55, longtitude 44:50, she passed the Abertcan liner New York from Southampton and Cherbourg, for New York, going at reduced speed. Capt. Robinson, of the Minnehaha, said that the New York was steaming at the rate of fourteen knots, and should arrive here about noon tomorrow.

RECENT CHANGES

Result of Redistricting of the Commissioner Districts.

Boundaries of Each of the Present Seven.

The Old Fourth Is Divided Into Three Districts.

A description of the new county commissioners' districts, under the late redistricting of the county, has never been made public, though the new districts have been described in general terms. In order that people may know in just what district they reside, and what commissioner they must look to for representation, the boundaries of the districts will be given.

The first district, of which E. M. Patterson is commissioner, is composed of the Third, Fourth and Fifth wards of the city of Duluth, as heretofore.

The second district, of which Fred W. Kugler is commissioner, is composed of the First and Second wards of Duluth, the towns of Rice Lake, Duluth and Gnesen, and the unorganized towns below the town line, between 54 and 55, and east of the range line between ranges 14 and 15.

The third district, of which Ole A. Berg is commissioner, is composed of the Sixth and Seventh wards of the city of Duluth.

The fourth district, of which E. Morcom is commissioner, is composed of all the territory north of the line between towns 60 and 61, and east of the line, between ranges 18 and 19, including only the Vermilion range.

The fifth district, of which Charles Kauppi is commissioner, is composed of the Eighth ward of the city of Duluth, and all territory west of the line between ranges 13 and 15, and south of the line between towns 55 and 54. This includes Proctorknott, Midway, Hermann, Canosia, Grand Lake, Solway, Industrial, New Independence, Culver, Alborn, Floodwood, Kelsey and the unorganized territory.

The sixth district, of which Neil McInnes is commissioner, begins at the eastern boundary of the county, and runs west along the line between 54 and 55 to the line between 15 and 16, north along that line to the line between 56 and 57, west along that line to the line between 17 and 18, and then east to the eastern boundary again. This includes the towns of Mesaba, St. Louis, Biwabik, Missabe Mountain and Fayal, and the eastern Mesaba range.

The Seventh district, of which R. F. Berdie is commissioner, is composed of all the territory west of the sixth district, north of the fifth district, that is not included in the fourth and sixth districts.

THE DAKOTAS.

Government Examiners Are Very Particular About Horses.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Fort Meade—It is proving to be a much more difficult matter to get the necessary number of horses for the new regiment of cavalry at this fort than was expected. Up to the present only fourteen head have been accepted out of 428. The two contractors have until May 20 to fill their contracts. It is likely that an extension of time will have to be given. At Sturgis there is an English representative who is buying up the horses that have been rejected by the United States inspectors. The requirements of the English are much below those of this government, very few animals being refused. Even mares are taken. Recruiting for the new regiment is going on rapidly.

Deadwood—Lee Shepherd is being tried for entering the house of W. J. Shekell, at Piuma. It will be a difficult matter to prove that Shepherd broke in for any bad intent. He had invited a daughter of Shekell to go to a party, but the parents refused to let her go. The bold suitor then procured a ladder and setting it against the window of the chamber entered and coaxed his sweetheart to go with him. The irate father is intending to put Shepherd through a course of law.

Chamberlain—Sheriff C. D. Miller, of Brule county arrested a young man named Frank O'Keefe, residing south of town, charged with having stolen a horse from Dent Church, a neighbor. The horse was found at the home of an uncle of O'Keefe in Minnesota. The uncle says he bought the animal from young O'Keefe for $30—a horse worth fully $100. O'Keefe was held for trial in $500 bail, which he has so far failed to secure.

Tyndall—During a terrific gale the postoffice building and the store of William Metzgar burned to the ground. The whole town was threatened by the fire, but it was stopped at the 2-story stone store of Joseph Kiehlbauch.

John Vaneltine, an old citizen, aged about 70 years, was found dead in a pool of water beside the road a short distance from his home. It is supposed that he committed suicide. He was an old soldier, lived alone and had no relatives in this vicinity.

Hot Springs—Special Agent Greene, representing the interior department, has closed Wind Cave until such time as some one is named to take possession of the property for the government, it having been decided to make it a public reserve. It is expected some one will be assigned to take possession of the cave at once, as the season is just opening to tourists and thousands will visit it within a few months. Congressman Martin has written the interior department of the importance of having the cave opened. It is probable the charges for visiting the cave will now be greatly reduced and many improvements made.

Mitchell—Freeman Moulton, a student of Dakota university, died after a sickness of two weeks with stomach trouble. He had a touch of infectious disease which is going over the state, but was thoroughly over it before his death. It was thought best not to send his remains by train to his home near Canton, but to take them overland. A strict quarantine of people who have had the disease and of those who have it now is enforced and the trouble will be stamped out within ten days. No case is at all serious.

Lee Baldock, a clerk in Ferris' drug store, was nearly killed Saturday afternoon while charging a tank for the soda water fountain. He filled the tank with gas and had just turned away from it when it exploded. The bottom of the tank was blown out and the top part was blown to the ceiling. When the tank came down it struck him on the shoulder, inflicting a painful injury.

Evarts—M. A. Daniels, engineer for the Milwaukee road, has just returned from a trip across the reervation. He was accompanied by Indian Agent Hatch and Col. T. G. Orr. They speak in glowing terms of the country and have specimens of coal, limestone and other minerals. Part of the country lons very rough and is covered with a cedar growth. Water in abundance was found all the way, which will be a great thing for the stockmen. The road will only have to build one dam—about 60 miles out. Beaver creek was found and the little animals from which it was named appear to be plentiful.

Centerville—The general store of Amundson & Peterson and the adjoining hardware store of J. C. Berglund were burglarized Friday night. The thieves entered the front doors and smashing the cash register in each store and breaking off the combination lock to the large in Amundson & Peterson's. The cash register contained less than $15 in change, which the thieves took, together with a lot of silverware from Burglund's. They left a kit of tools near the safe and undoubtedly became frightened before finishing the job. The safe contained several hundred dollars, but the firm cannot open it. The job is supposed to be the work of a gang that has been operating in this section for some time.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mayville—At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon the thermometer registered 84 degrees above zero. Yet Mayville was in the throes of a blizzard. There was not a cloud in the sky, but the sun shone dimly, as though it were in eclipse. A dust storm was raging and had been on for thirty-six hours, with no sign of abating. These storms are frequent in the spring before the wheat gets up. Every foot of land in this great valley is cultivated. There are at this time thousands of square miles of black soil that the sarrow and the seeder have reduced to powder. A high wind springs up, and there is a blizzard in which dust takes the place of snow. When these storms come up, work in the fields must stop. The work on the big Grandin farms was stopped yesterday afternoon. The men cannot stand the dust, and the breathing of it would soon ruin the teams. There is danger that the wheat already sown will be blown out of the ground. Storms like this will be of frequent occurrence till the wheat gets high enough to prevent the raising of the dust.

Wahpeton—The Western Surety and Adjustment company, of this city, has just completed the purchase of 12,420 acres which were all the remaining Northern Pacific holdings in this county. This deal places about all the cheap lands in Richland county in the hands of resident owners, and is the biggest made in this county in wild lands for some time.

Steele—The elevator at Tappen, this county, and two freight cars, were burned during a high wind. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is about $10,000.

OIL! OIL!

Before investing in oil stocks, investigate those of the King Phillip and Occidental Oil Companies offered for sale by Marcus W. Bates, 4 Exchange Building, Duluth. These companies own over two thousand acres of oil lands situated in the now famous Sunset, Midway, McKitrick and Tremblor districts of Kern County, California, and right in the midst of flowing and producing wells. The lands of these companies have all been selected with great care, and are the best in the districts named. The King Phillip has one well nearly completed with such a showing for oil as assures its success. The Occidental has one well now producing, and are drilling on several others and expect them to be producing oil withing sixty days from them. The stock is going very fast and I am offering for a short time only—

Occidental stock at 20 Cts. per share.

These stocks are nearer a paying basis than any others offered on this market. Don't make any mistake; get the best. Call and talk with the agent about these remarkable properties before buying oil stocks.

DEAD WHEN FOUND.

Man Stripped of Clothes and Placed In Alley.

Frankfort, Ky., April 29.—The testimony before the coroner's jury developed the fact that the death of Dick Suter, whose nude body was found in Catfish alley, was caused by fatty degeneration of the heart. A few moments before his death he was carried out of a saloon apparently stuidly drunk, but probably dead then, and placed in the alley. Howard Masters confessed that he took Suter's clothing off after he had been put in the alley. Masters boasted of the good joke he had played on Suter in taking his clothes. Masters is in jail.

Marion Kooke, manager for T. M. Thomson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1658 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, says: "During the late severe weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased to acknowledge its merits." For sale at Boyce's drug store.

A HOT FIRE

Zenith Paper Company Is Burned Out.

Loss Is Total But Fully Insured.

A fire of mysterious source destroyed the store of the Zenith Paper and Stationery company last evening. Within a minute after the discovery of the fire, windows on the second floor were blown out and the flames shot clear over Michigan street, setting fire to window shades in the office of the United States Express company, and even burning poles on the opposite side of the street.

The burned building is located at 110-112 West Michigan street. The damage is $55,000 and well covered by insurance. The fire was discovered simultaneously by several different people. Employes of the United States Express company saw a flickering light on the second floor, in the rear of the building, about 7:30, and before they could get out of their chairs the flames puffed out across the street. George Mallott, a Northern Pacific switchman, saw a fire in the basement from the railroad yards, and had Engineer Bradfelt open the whistle of a switch engine to give the alarm. Capt. Walter Lloyd saw the flames burst through the second story windows, and he turned in the alarm from the corner of Second avenue west and Superior street. The fire department made an unusually quick run, but by the time the fire was reached the building resembled the interior of a furnace. At frequent intervals there was a rumbling sound, followed by a series of sputtering fire balls of paper, which shot in all directions. The telephone poles were burning briskly when the department arrived, and several other buildings were endangered.

Chief Black was able to get eight streams of water on the fire within a few minutes, but it is very doubtful if the block could have been saved had not the door fallen in, carrying the fire to one heap in the center of the building, where the fire fighting forces concentrated their efforts. Every fireman and every bit of apparatus in the city, with the exception of the West Duluth and Lakeside companies, was pressed into service.

The building contained a very large stock of paper and stationery supplies, valued at $35,000. Under ordinary circumstances the contents of the building would have made a very dangerous fire, but with the high wind everything seemed to be afire in a moment or two.

There seemed to be an almost explosive tendency to the fire at times, but Frank Leslie, manager of the Zenith Paper company, says that he is positive that there were no explosives in the building. He also confirmed the statement that there had not been a fire in the building for several days.

The fire and water damaged the walls of the Paine & Nixon building, on the east, and the Benetean building, on the west. The Duluth Paper and Stationery company had about $7000 worth of stock stored in the Paine-Nixon building, which was slightly damaged by water. This building would undoubtedly have burned but for the falling of the floors, which enabled the fire department to get close to the burning building and concentrate the eight streams.

There was some excitement in the Harrison building, two doors west of the Zenith Paper company. This building was occupied by colored people, many of whom made a wild dash for the street when they heard of the fire. Some furniture was moved from the apartments of R. H. Pendleton and M. G. Johnson, who kept a sort of lodging house on the second and third floors of the Harrison building.

Within a few moments after the fire burst through the building, the Commercial Light and Power company turned off the electric current in the endangered district, eliminating any possible danger from live wires.

The building occupied by the Zenith Paper and Stationary company was the property of C. E. Diekerman, of St. Paul. It is a three-story brick, built in 1888, and valued at $20,000. The flames left nothing but the walls, and they will probably have to be pulled down at once. The loss on the building is fully covered by insurance, while the $35,000 worth of contents is insured up to within several thousand dollars of the valuation.

The fire was witnessed by many thousand people. It was discovered just as people were going to church, and that helped to swell the crowd that usually gathers at a fire. Owing to the intensity of the heat the crowd kept at a safe distance. The heat thrown out by this fire was something tremendous. It cracked heavy plate glass windows on the opposite side of Michigan street as far as 100 feet away.

Manager Leslie of the Zenith Paper company said this morning that when stock was taken a couple of months ago the amount on hand was about $35,000. The stock was about the same now, if anything larger. On it there is insurance amounting to $34,500. Of this amount $800 is on furniture and fixtures. The insurance is placed in the agencies of Davidson & McRae, Graves-Manley, J. A. Stephenson & Co., R. B. Knox, Cooley & Underhill, George H. Crosby, J. D. Howard & Co., Mendenhall & Hoopes, W. M. Prindle & Co., Moore & Stark and O. H. Clarke & Co., By companies it is as follows:

German American	$ 1,000
London & Lancashire	1,500
Liverpool, London & Globe	1,000

Total	$34,500

The insurance on the building amounts to $7000, of this sum $2000 being in the Home and $5000 in the Aetna. The loss is estimated at about $10,000.

The losses on the adjoining properties are small and are practically all covered by insurance.

The Zenith Paper company has taken temporary quarters in the building at the corner of Michigan street and First avenue west formerly occupied by the B. Heller Liquor company.

G. G. Dickerman, whose father owns the burned building, says that it will be built up again at once. The side walls are all right, and the front and rear walls are apparently in condition to be used.

SIMPLY WIND.

Old Story Is Once More Revived In Superior.

From West Superior sources come the old story that the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railroad company is very likely, in the near future, to remove its shops from Marquette to West Superior. The latest version is to the effect that General Manager Fitch has been offered a site in West Superior, and in the same breath a South Shore official is said to have given out the impression that something along the line of a movement of the South Shore interests to the head of the lakes is probable. D. W. Powell, of the well-known firm of contractors, Powell & Mitchell, of Marquette, who was in the city on a business trip on Saturday, says that he never heard of anything of the kind proposed except in West Superior. He says there is no reason to believe that in Marquette a single person has any idea that a move of the kind is contemplated. A South Shore official, who was asked the other day the authenticity of such a rumor, remarked: "You may rest assured that neither Duluth or Superior will ever get the South Shore shops."

AMUSEMENTS.

MORRISON'S "FAUST."

Lewis Morrison's "Faust," without Mr. Morrison, is dozing out an honored and successful old age, and it made its appearance at the Lyceum Saturday night, where a fair-sized audience heard it. How many times this makes that "Faust" has been here, and the people have seen the horors of the Brocken and the insinuating graces of Mephistopheles, it would be difficult to say, but so long as people can be found that have not seen it, or having seen it, are willing to see it again, it will probably keep coming. The play was well put on Saturday night, Erroll Dunbar making an excellent devil, and Miss Genevieve Kane an equally capable Marquerite. The other members of the company were good.

"THE WATCH ON THE RHINE."

Tonight Al H. Wilson will be seen at the Lyceum in "The Watch on the Rhine." Mr. Wilson is termed by competent critics "The Golden Voiced Singer;" has youth, physical grace, humor, agility, a knowledge of the way to speak lines effectively, and a singing voice that would carry his impersonations, even were he less generously equipped in other directions. He sings ballads with rare feeling, and his voice has that sympathetic quality that is above, beyond and wholly out of the reach of art, being nature's own inestimable and most rare gift. Mr. Wilson introduces those tender, touching and true songs so dear to every mother, wife and sweetheart, the most noted being a beautiful tribute to Cupid, entitled "Love is All in All," and a charmingly sweet lullaby, "The Tea Kettle Song." The cast ranks as one of the best on the stage, among whom are noted: Mark Price, Frances Whitehouse, John P. Walker, Eva Byron, Alfred Hastings, Fanny Bloodgood and little Cora Quintan.

Young Sonmambulist.

The family of George E. Burke, of 917 East First street, were startled Saturday night by the very mysterious disappearance of their 9-year-old daughter, Stella. For three hours she was missing, and parents, neighbors and policemen searched for her unavailingly. Early Sunday morning, however, she was found wandering about a mile from her home, asleep, but safe and unhurt. She had fallen asleep on a lounge, and when the family went to bed she was aroused and told to go to her room. Instead of doing that she arose, still asleep, and marched outdoors, spending the next few hours wandering about in a state of somnambulism.

THE BOYS BRIGADE.

A Uniform Has Been Decided Upon.

The Boys' brigade, the West End organization, which is designed to train the youths of that end of the city in ways that are beneficial and to keep them out of mischief and off the streets, is developing at a rate that is beyond the expectation of all who have become interested in its success. A uniform has been adopted, and within six weeks most of the boys are expected to have them. The suits are to be of blue serge, with the usual military, square cut, single breasted, high collar coat, trimmings on trousers and coat of white braid and cap to match. The boys are proud of them, and will present a very manly appearance.

The drills for this week will be as follows: Company A, Tuesday and Friday, at 4:15 o'clock; Company B, Wednesday, at 4:15 o'clock. Bible classes as usual.

Beside the drill and classe the brigade has social features for the entertainment of the members. Last Friday evening there was a fine social at the Second Presbyterian church. supper was served and there was a musical program.

THE SACRED CONCERT.

High School Musical Society's Annual Event.

The annual sacred concert of the Duluth High School Musical society was given yesterday afternoon. It has come to be generally understood that on the Sunday when this event takes place there will be unpleasant weather and yesterday did not break the rule. The concert was well attended, however, and was delightful in every way.

The first part consisted of compositions by Professor Custance and there were anthems and solos. C. D. Shepard sang a fine number "God of Our Fathers." Roy Prytz gave a pleasing baritone solo with chorus accompaniment "O Saving Victim." Three anthems were sung and in these solos were taken by J. W. Anderson, C. D. Shepard, Miss Ella Mason and Miss Alice Cooley.

In the second part Miss Willcuts gave two fine cello numbers, Miss Rena Smith and Miss Alice Cooley gave a duet accompanied by S. Paul's church choir, and Miss Rena Smith sang a fine solo number "The Choir Invisible."

There were remarks by Professor Denfeld and a reading by Principal Smith.

PANTON & WHITE THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE DULUTH, MINN.

Department store goods are not "cheap" goods---always!

THERE is an impression abroad in the land that everything a department store sells has a tinge of cheapness or trashiness about it. Because some department stores handle this class of goods is no reason why it should include every department store, any more than because there are some quack doctors, that every doctor is a quack. It will be news to many Duluthians to know that in our respective lines we carry finer goods than it is possible to procure from any exclusive dealer in this city. Our finger has kept touching the pulse of your wants, and we find that there is a constantly increasing demand for the better grades of all kinds of merchandise. With the idea of interesting many people who are not yet aware of the fact that we make a specialty of high grade goods, for this week we have prepared gorgeous displays of the finer goods, exhibiting them in such pr ofusion as to be certain to stir your pride in our store and make you a firmer friend.

Let us remind you in this connection that there is always this advantage in buying of us: Selling such quantities of all classes of worthy merchandise from the cheapest to the best, confining ourselves to no one particular line, we are in a position to save you from 25% to 35% in prices, and this we are doing. We cordially invite you to inspect our line of fine goods which will be prominently displayed in our store this week.

Exquisite, rare garments from the suit room

THIS is pre-eminently Duluth's most fashionable suit department. Our suits rival in excellence, beauty, styles and superior designing those shown in the swell shops of the great metropolis. Many of the most particular dressers of our city, who have formerly been averse to buying ready made garments, are now firm friends of our suit department; reasons for this lie in the fact that the most expert skill of America is employed in designing and making our garments. We choose them with care and deliberation. Assortments are so large that it is impossible not to get suited. Our garments reveal the highest skill of the dressmakers' art at about a half to a third saving over made-to-your-order frocks. They are superb in fit, finish and style. Furthermore we have our own force of expert tailors who make all alterations here in our building. We assure you that the prices herewith given will really give you a very poor idea of how exquisite these garments are. Cold type does small justice to their real merit.

Bear in mind that the descriptions given herewith are not "cribbed" from Gimbel Bros., of Philadelphia, or Wanamaker, or anybody else. These descriptions are bona fide, and taken from the garments in our store, and we have the garments to show for everything we speak about. It is impossible in the limited amount of space to give a detailed description of every suit we have. There are myriads of lovely Bolero Suits, Russian Blouse Suits, Postilion Suits and all kinds of suits in the most fashionable and newest effects. Each suit having an individuality of its own. The skirts of these suits are made with the new flare over a separate drop skirt of excellent quality of silk. A LONG FAST.

Henry Cordes of Beatrice, Neb., Will Fast Forty Days.

Omaha, Neb., April 29.—By mandate of the Creator, as he says, Henry Cordes, of Beatrice, Neb., is fasting forty days, and the case is attracting interest all over Nebraska.

Cordes claims to have received a message from God on Good Friday to fast forty days. For twenty-two days now he has not had a morsel of food and has drunk very sparingly of water. He weighed 160 pounds at the time he began the fast and has already shuffled off thirty pounds. He expects that before the forty days expire he will weigh about ninety pounds.

Henry Cordes is about 25 years of age, and came to Nebraska thirteen years ago, working on a farm until last winter, when he moved to Beatrice. For two or three days at various times this eccentric man has gone without food, and little attention has been paid to him.

This time his landlord at Ellerbeck & Smith's restaurant became alarmed, and informed the police that Cordes had fasted twenty-two days and he was afraid he might die on his hands. His friends in the Methodist church were also notified, but their persuasions have so far had no effect on the man.

Cordes spends most of his time in his room, but is frequently seen walking about town. He has always borne the reputation of being level-headed and even precocious, though somewhat erratic. Those who know him best believe that he will complete the forty days' fast or die in the attempt, and he so expressed himself to a reporter, adding:

"I am in the hands of the Lord, and will abide by His will. It is for the purpose of purifying the spirit," said Cordes. "The mortification of the flesh is an old doctrine mentioned in the Bible. We indulge the flesh too much nowadays. Luxurious habits are a cure to the world. The Lord has asked a sacrifice of me and I must perform it."

Suffrage Problem In the South.

Four Southern states—Mississippi, Louisiana, North Carolina and South Carolina — have amended their constitutions in the past ten years so as to disfranchise illiterate voters. On May 21 the Alabama constitutional convention will meet in Montgomery to frame a new constitution. The declared purpose of the convention is to deal with the suffrage problem, and Alabama will doubtless follow the example of other Southern states and deprive illiterates of the right to vote. The Virginia constitutional convention will meet in June. In the Old Dominion the disfranchisement of the illiterate vote has long been a burning question. The convention, will, however, have other important matters to deal with. The present constitution was adopted in reconstruction days. The Virginians hope to frame a new instrument which will enable them to have a more economical state government. Many reforms have been proposed, some of which are undoubtedly needed. One proposition is to apportion the school fun in such a manner that the negroes will receive for school purposes only such sums as they pay in taxes. The late John E. Masey, one of the ablest and shrewdest politicians in the state, was an advocate of this plan, and was elected a delegate to the constitutional convention largely because of the aggressive position he had taken. The most conservative Democrats in the state are opposed to the cutting down of the appropriation for negro schools. Senator Daniel has recently written an open letter declaring that the movement is ill-advised and should not be encouraged. With Virginia and Alabama added to the list of Southern states which have already excluded illiterates from the suffrage, the negro problem in the South will no longer be menacing as it has been in the past. The Boston Herald and other New England newspapers assert that the "indifference" of the Republican party to the disfranchisement of negroes in the South will not continue. On the other hand these newspapers frankly admit that any attempt to upset the laws enacted by Southern legislatures, or to reduce Southern representation in congress, would make the South "more solid than ever," and defeat the plans which have been made to establish a "lily white" Republican party in the South.

Relations With Other American Republics.

Some peculiar ideas regarding the forthcoming congress of American republics to be held in the City of Mexico, are presented by the Baltimore Sun. It states that the congress revives interest in the project launched by the late James G. Blaine for the purpose of establishing "most favored nations" relations among the countries of the Western hemisphere. In its incipiency the movement was generally encouraged by the South American republics for a time and it looked as if a commercial wall running the whole length of the coast lines was among the probabilities. But heavy emigration from Europe, and particularly Germany, to lands below the equator interrupted this happy anticipation since the stream of foreigners carried with it a pronounced trade instinct and a disposition to open communication with the countries whence it started. This was greatly facilitated by the tradesmen of the fatherland who were equally eager to find markets beyond seas. So with ready customers and ready sellers there was little difficulty in weakening the foundations for the proposed commercial wall. At the time this agency was at work the Spanish war began, and while the South American countries had ceased their allegiance to the mother country and professed friendliness toward the United States, there still remained the ties of blood, and a more or less imposing anti-United States sentiment developed. The sincerity of our motives toward Cuba was questioned, and in many quarters no concealment was made of the fear that by acquiring the "Pearl of the Antilles" the United States would be given a foothold for aggressions further south. So these two elements have stood in the way of the serene and speedy fulfillment of Mr. Blaine's idea. The question of inter-republican arbitration will come up as of yore, but there is not in South America the fertile ground for the cultivation of remedies for either external or internal difficulties. It appears to be a part of the South American temperament either to seek trouble with a neighbor or foster internal strife under the leadership of a would-be dictator. But if arbitration were actually possible and the United States could successfully lay down the plan for the bloodless settlement of future controversies, it would be a long step in the direction of inviting respect and winning commercial advantages on the broad gauge of reciprocity. It is to be hoped that the congress, which will assemble in October next, will develop a spirit of international harmony and mark the beginning of the wane of the perennial Latin-American revolution and border quarrels. This accomplished, the fruits of its labors will long be remembered by the better class of people in those eruptive republics.

REAL ESTATE ACTIVITY.

The numerous transactions in Duluth real estate, as recorded in The Herald during the past week, present a most encouraging showing. It is a healthy sign—a certain indication of the prosperous business conditions that exist in this city as well as throughout the country, and of the firm faith which investors have in the future of the city. Duluth real estate is regarded as one of the best paying investments that can be found in the United States today, and it is not surprising that keen investors are alert in picking up bargains here.

A notable feature of recent transactions was that many of them involved the purchase of improved property and of lots for residence purposes, indicating that the investments are largely by home-builders. The fact is that there are hundreds of people now looking for homes, both to buy and to rent, and realty dealers say that it is almost impossible to supply the demand. As a result of this state of affairs, the present summer will witness a very large amount of building in the residence portions of the city.

It is worthy of special note that the activity in Duluth real estate which is now going on has nothing of the boom quality about it. It is in response to the demand growing out of a solid, substantial and steady improvement in all lines of business. It is the natural result of the city's growth commercially and in population.

The advantage offered by Duluth in every field of commercial enterprise and in its desirability as a good place to live in by reason of its beautiful, healthy climate, its fine educational facilities and its social attractiveness have become widely advertised, and men of means, thrift and industry are coming to the future metropolis of the great Northwest to make it their home and share in its progress and prosperity. During the years of depression throughout the country, when other cities stood still or retrograded, Duluth made a steady advance—proof of its strength and solidity—and now that the sun of prosperity is shining, the feeling is general that the upbuilding of Duluth will be more rapid and substantial than during any previous period in its remarkable history.

COMPARISON OF BOOMS.

The remarkable activity in the stock markets and the wonderful advance that has taken place in stocks of all kinds, some that have never paid a dividend being now quoted above par on Wall street, have naturally caused the student of stock market movements to search for a parallel of current conditions. It has been found necessary to go back twenty years to find a boom that is at all similar to the present one. On the theory that there is a 20-year period of commercial, financial and speculative "swing," the contrast of 1901 with 1881 becomes natural. There was a panic in 1873 and another in 1893. There was a great expansion in industry, finance and speculation in 1879-81, and there has been another in 1899-1901. While it is impossible to lay down a hard and fast rule as to cycles of activity and depression, yet coincidences are suggestive and the similarity between some phases of the present movement and that of a score of years ago is striking. The average of twenty-five of the most prominent stocks in Wall street at the opening of 1879 was $48. At the opening of 1899 the average of twenty-five stocks was $93. They were not the same stocks in all cases, for many of the prominent specialties of twenty years since have disappeared through consolidation, etc., but thirteen or fourteen of the 1879 stocks are included in the current computations, so the comparisons of movements of averages in the two eras, while by no means exact, at the same time possess value as indices of the general state of things represented in stock market movements. With a clear understanding that no attempt is made to force striking parallelisms that do not exist, or to strain logic and figures to make out a case, a glance at the movement of the stock market averages may be interesting and even suggestive.

Starting at an average of 48 in January, 1879, the twenty-five leading stocks of that time rose to 85¾ at the end of the year; in 1899 the twenty-five leading stocks now prominent started at an average of 93 and closed at 97⅝. In 1880 there was a lively political campaign; likewise another in 1900. Both were of great importance; in the one the tariff was the issue, in the other the money question. The average of leading stocks declined 17¾ from the previous year's high point to 68 in May, 1880, under political unsettlement; in 1900 it declined 15, to 92¼ in June. From the date of Gen. Hancock's remark about the tariff being a local issue, the assurance of Garfield's election caused steady stock market advance; the average rose continuously, from 68 in May, 1880, to 111 in the spring of 1881, or 43. From the low point last June to date in 1901 the average rose from 92¼ to 133¼ yesterday, or 41. The closeness of the 1901 and 1881 movements is a coincidence, largely, as the same stocks are not used as the basis of computation, yet it is quite suggestive. From the May, 1881, high point the average fell to 88, a decline of 23 during the last six months of 1881. What it will do in the last six months of 1901 remains to be seen. It seems hardly possible that the present abnormally high prices can long be maintained, especially in view of the many watered stocks that have been shoved up to high figures by the clever manipulation of the trust-promoters. The balloon must descend some time.

WHERE CANADA LEADS.

A recently published statistical statement shows that in one branch of export trade Canada leads the United States, but one explanation of this unusual circumstance may be found in the fact that the population of this country is so much greater that that of Canada that we have more mouths to feed, in comparison, and consequently there is a very large consumption of butter, cheese and eggs at home.

During the fiscal year ended June 30 last the exports of butter, cheese and eggs from Canada exceeded in value the exports of like products from the United States by over $17,000,000. Canada exported in round numbers 25,250,000 pounds of butter, valued at $5,122,156; nearly $20,000,000; and 10,888,000 dozen eggs, valued at $1,458,000; total, $26,426,382. The figures for the United States were: Butter, 18,262,238 pounds, value, $3,142,378; cheese, 48,375,862, value, $4,939,255; eggs, 5,910,162, value, $982,421; total, $9,063,054.

The exports of these products from Canada reached the highest figures eved attained, while those from the United States show a decline from the figures of some former years. In 1899 we exported cheese amounting to over $8,500,000, but the volume steadily declined till 1896, when it was only a little over $3,000,000. In 1890 our butter exports amounted to $4,187,489, but ran down in 1895 to less than $1,000,000, rose again to nearly $4,500,000 in 1897, and since have declined. Canada's gain over the United States in the aggregate value of these products has been steady for the past four years: In 1897 Canadian exports exceeded ours by $9,172,319, in 1898 by $13,392,671, in 1899 by $15,472,519, and in 1900 by $17,372,328.

Postmaster General Smith, himself a successful newspaper man, is giving attention to a serious abuse of second class mail privileges—an abuse which he thinks, should be corrected without further delay. A class of publications, passing as weekly or monthly papers, has sprung into existence, and are taking advantage of the privileges of second class mail matter, on false pretense. They are really premium-giving concerns. By giving premiums or cash prizes in guessing competitions, they are able to build up a large circulation, and their profits come from the resulting advertising. These publications have no news value or literary merit, yet they derive benefit from a law which was primarily intended to promote the circulation of news and the popular taste for literature. The third assistant postmaster general has addressed a circular letter to about 400 publishers of newspapers and magazines, in which he asks this question: Will a departmental rule be regarded as injurious to legitimate newspapers and periodicals which will stop absolutely all premium inducements, direct or indirect, and of whatever character for subscriptions? The postoffice department estimates the loss of revenue by the government carrying publications not intended to be included in second class matter at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 annually, an amount sufficient to cover the deficiency in the department more than twice over.

The Pan-American exposition at Buffalo will open on Wednesday of this week without ceremony of any kind. The formalities which are to mark the formal opening will take place on May 20 in connection with the ceremonies of dedication. The postponement of the ceremonial intended to signalize the opening of the gates is the result of an unexampled storm which has set back the preparations for the housewarming, but will not delay the exposition proper. The show is the thing, and the show is there, and it will be open to all on the first day of May.

The Eveleth Star says: "The Duluth Evening Herald has been printing some very pyrotechnic things on mining taxes the last two or three weeks. There is another side to the present one-sided discussion." If there is another side to this question, if the Eveleth organ of the steel trust can present any reason why the iron corporations should not bear their proper share of the burden of taxation, The Herald would like to hear it.

London is to have a model town. Two hundred and fifty acres of land on the northern side of the city have been purchased, on which the town is to be built at public expense. Broad streets, parks, fine public buildings, dwelling houses constructed after the most approved sanitary and hygienic fashion, and all modern aids to comfort, convenience and even luxury will be prominent features. It is expected to cost over $10,000,000.

Referring to the numerously signed protest by Harvard men against the university conferring the degree of LL.D. on President McKinley, the Boston Globe remarks that if the degree of LL.D were never conferred on men who are not wholly fit for it there wouldn't be half so many LL.D.'s in the country as there are now.

The swearing parrot has been removed from the New York zoo as a corruption of public morality. Would it not also be a good idea to remove the swearing toughs from the street corners?

In 1881 the United States government sold postage stamps to the value of $34,843,503. It now sells stamps to thrice that value every year. Half of the increase has come within the seven years since 1894, when the sales were $70,223,910. Apparently the usefulness of the postoffice is only just coming to be appreciated.

The Topeka State Journal suggests that now, that rivers have so little to do with the welfare and growth of cities sites for new towns should be selected out of range of floods.

Gen. Joe Wheeler has been telling the New York laboring men how to succeed in life. No doubt he pointed out that one way to rise in life is to climb a tree.

IN THE SPRING.

In the spring young man's glances lightly turns to thoughts of hose.
As the maiden, briefly skirted, o'er the crossing briskly goes;
In the spring the bustling housewife with the powers of dirt doth cope;
In the spring the man talks dreadful as he slips on hidden soap.

WHY PEOPLE GO TO CHURCH

Some go to church because, forsooth,
It was a habit formed in youth.

Some go because they like to hear
The preacher rake their neighbors dear.

Some go to show their dress, and stare
At what the other people wear.

Some because they are afraid
To not do so might injure trade.

Some go because they thing it squares
The week day shady sin affairs.

Some go to take a quiet snooze
While sitting in the restful pews,

Lulled by a soporific talk
As gentle as a cradle's rock.

Some go, but under protest, who
Have wifeys who compel them to.

Some go but solely to admire
The singing of a high-priced choir.

Some go because they really fear
The temperature beyond the bier—

Imagine that the church's brand
Will pass them to the Promised Land.

Some young men go because the fair
Young girls they're sweet on will be there.

Some go, they really do not know
Just why; they simply dress and go.

On Easter, that great day of clothes,
We know why everybody goes.

And yet among the chaff we find
Much golden grain of human kind.

Good Christian men and women, who
To holy things are ever true;

Bright flow'rs that spring from sinful sod,
Who really go to worship God.

But O! the millions on this ball
Of earth who never go at all!

DAILY STORY.

The Conquest of Bridget

BY T. L. D.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller.)

To the rancour of politics was added the bitterness of love, and love is very full of bitterness, when unavailing.

Now, why people persist in drinking alcohol in the face of the startling statistics issued concerning the fluid is past finding out, but many do, and afterward make boast of it. In Readville there are those who insisted that their weaker brethren should not indulge in the deadly dram, and not believing in hatches restored to the ballot-box.

So it happened that they chose out Timothy Storm as their standard bearer, and held rallies at which the degradation of rum was convincingly set forth, and many arguments advanced which, being tersely put, ran thus: "That a man was a fool to drink, and that moreover—he should not!"

It must be confessed that the arguments of the waterites were the better, but strong drink, but strong drink has powerful charms, and the local politicians fastened to what they confessed the winning side

Now, the way that love came to be mingled in all this whisky and water was as follows:

Barbara Arnold was so delicately beautiful that she gave one the idea of fragility, but actually her slenderness was strong, while her beauty was of the highest class, showing most when plainly dressed, and, indeed, seemed more the result of gentle breeding than from any accidental perfection of curve or coloring. When John Andrews accepted the nomination for mayor of Readville, it was with full knowledge of the fact that his rival in love was his political opponent, but although he had now no hope of the girl, he felt confident that he would conquer at the polls

There was money on the liquor side, while the prohibitionists were nearly penniless, and Storm had a keen suspicion that the boodly of the liquor would carry the day.

"You see, my dear," he said to Barbara, on the eve of the election, "man is made of dust, and dust is very thirsty material.

"But water would lay that same dust," the girl said, smilingly, while he answered:

"So it will, but not so effectively. In fact," he continued, frowning and studying the carpet pattern with unobserving eyes, "it is the money; they have much of it and we have none, and if we had we would not use it. Ah!" he sighed, "if there was only some way to shame the venal voters we would stand a good chance, for many of the better class will vote our ticket, because they prefer the cleaner side of politics, an' the other side is very black."

The girl came close to him, putting her small hands on either side of the bent head: "Don't worry, Tim, dear," she murmured; "Perhaps that something will happen to keep the men from selling their votes."

"I hope so," he answered her, and presently departed, for the polls opened at 6 a. m., and tomorrow was to be a very busy day for him.

It was daybreak, but the streets were already filling, and presently the bosses of Readville discovered that a new element was working in the body politic of that town. The drowsy election judges were hurrying toward the voting booths, while the ward men were giving quick, sharp orders to the press of executives:

"You know your men," they said; "line them up at once and so tire out the other vote. Be accurate and hurry!" and this group of businesslike men augured ill for the undisciplined hosts of the waterites.

Yet there was a strange hindrance to the usual tactics of the wardmen, for many of the voters were already at the polls, in place of waiting for advice, with something else on the side, and this curious state of affairs alarmed the politicians.

Presently a covered coach, holding about thirty men, drove up to the polls, and on the seat of each sat a daintily-gowned and wide-awake young woman At the most notorious voting place in the city

"It is I, Bridget," she said.

Barbara Arnold arrived, exquisitely dressed and with a certain tightening of the full under lip, and a curous rigidness of expression which things betokened an expression not easily turned aside. On reaching the ground the girl went to the end of the long vehicle.

"Remember," she said in her clear, tense voice, this is not a question of whisky and water. If Timothy Storm is elected, a man may drink what he will, but liquor dealers will be taxed heavily, and your taxes will be so much the lighter;" and to each man she said this, and at each of the thirty polling places in the city an earnest-faced girl of the highest type said the same words to every man as he alighted.

The great majority of voters came in the coaches, for they naturally preferred riding, and when the liquor men attempted to hire what was left of these things they found Barbara Arnold had hired every available horse and rig in Readville, and those she did not use stayed in the stables.

Now, the poll where Barbara was stationed, was in the worst part of the city, and strange to relate the poorer the people, the more saloons they can support; so here they averaged a saloon to every five dwellings. Here the ring men made their final stand, and there, indeed, the fight grew venomously bitter.

Andrews, himself, stood at the corner of the street, surrounded by his marshals, while at the prescribed limits of the polls men stood with rolls of money, stretching their fingers to the utmost Presently Barbara discovered that the work done by her was being discounted before the men had voted, so with a last shudder of repulsion, she passed inside the line beyond which only the judges and the challengers could go, besides the men voting.

Instantly the liquor men protested. "It is against the law, sergeant." Andrews insisted; but the girl produced a copy of the election laws. "It runs this way, sergeant," she said, while the white-haired officer removed his hat as she spoke to him.

The girl looked at him, letting her wonderful eyes linger on the man's broad, red face, for this little courtesy on his part pleased her. "Thank you," she said softly, so that only the sergeant comprehended what she meant,

"'No voter, having voted, shall approach any time to within 50 feet of the ballot-box, and shall so approach only to vote, and must retire as soon as voted. The officer at each booth shall enforce this rule and regulation.'" She paused and looked at Andrews, as if she had never seen him before. "I am not a voter, and this law forbids no woman to come to the polls," and she left them and went up to the railing.

"Remember" was all she said, and the rough-handed, uncouth laborers grinned in return for her smile and slashed the liquor ticket to death.

But Andrews was shrewd, and could make a move as quickly as any general on battlefield. So presently the boots of the increasing crowd heralded the approach of Bridget Flanigan. Now, Bridget washed clothes for a living, and drank copiously for the joy she found in it, and this was Andrews' final move, and he thought it would save the day.

A man with a strained, white face came swiftly to Barbara. It was Timothy Storm. "Come away," he said to the girl; "I have been hunting you all morning. Did you not know that I would prefer not to receive one vote rather than have you here?"

She smiled at him, putting her hand upon his proffered arm. "Yes, I know, Tim, but I am here now, and moreover, I purpose to remain."

Here the sergeant, prompted by the vigilant Andrews, approached them. "I am sorry," he said to Storm, "but you know the law; you must come away," and pushed by Barbara and urged by the officer, Storm retreated to the boundary line.

Just then Bridget literally rolled into view. "Where is she," the woman demanded; where is the foine loidy?"

Barbara gave a little cry of pleasure and went to her. "It is I, Bridget," she said; "do you not remember. It was when Johnnie died," and the girl was referring to the deathbed of Bridget's passionately loved and only baby.

The woman opened her drink-sodden eyes. "Johnnie! who dares soy Johnnie to me?" then recognizing Barbara, she uttered a stentorian wail:

"Oh! wirra! wirra! an' 'tis my loidy, and who is forninst yez is against me," and so with the slender fingers of the girl in the coarsened hand, they faced the voters, who amazed at the girl's victory, laughed at the cursing Andrews, who withdrew hopelessly, for he knew that Bridget Flanigan could vote more men in the Seventh than any politician.

So by 9 that night it was announced that Timothy Storm was next mayor of Readville; but strange to say, the clause prohibiting the sales of liquor ran so far behind the leader of the ticket that it was defeated.

Barbara was wretchedly weary, but her maid had put on her a wonderful gown of the Empire sort, and her beauty made man's heart leap.

"You have won," he murmured, bending to kiss her finger tips.

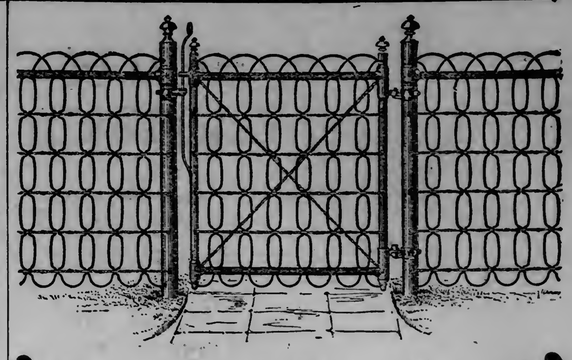
"Yes," she answered softly; "we have—that is, I and little Johnnie."

BIG DAY ON 'CHANGE.

New York Press: The world will never know how many shares of stock were bought and sold on the New York stock exchange last Friday. Not only were the tickers overwhelmed, but a good many brokers make it their custom never to report transactions. There is no rule or regulation requiring such report. Some of these brokers are among the most active on the floor. Therefore, if the tape actually recorded 2,226,000 shares we are safe in setting down 2,500,000 as the total day's business, which eclipses all known records.

The commission on the purchase and sale of 100 shares of stock is $25. Of course, there can be no sale without its corresponding purchase, therefore it is erroneous to say, as all do say, that the "sales" of Friday were 2,500,000 shares. The sales and purchases together were 2,500,000 shares; that is, the transactions amounted to 2,500,000, on which the one-eighth commission was paid. The one-quarter was paid on 1,250,000 shares. Now, the ligitimate wages of the members of the stock exchange who bought and sold these shares on Friday were $312,500. As there are 1100 members, the commission of each would average $284. Assuming that there are 250 stock exchange days in the year the annual income of a broker, if all days were like Friday, would be $71,000. That of all the brokers together would be $78,100,000.

It is said that $85,000 has been offered for a seat on the exchange, and some people say "Whoo-ee!" I have just shown you that the average income of the broker is $71,000 a year under the existing boom, and that is $6000 more than the price of a seat. He wins out his seat in less than a year. The price of all the seats is $71,500,000 and their earning capacity is $78,100,000. If a man could be satisfied with 10 per cent on an investment a seat on the New York exchange would be worth over $700,000, basing everything on Friday's business. One hundred thousand dollars for a seat is dirt cheap. The broker has many allied sources of income. And there are bond transactions; I have not mentioned them. Neither have I deducted the expenses of conducting the exchange, which are not a bagatelle.



Ornamental Wire Fence!

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to portray the beauties of this fencing by a cut. It is necessary for one to see it in order to form an idea of its real beauty, durability and strength. A fence like the above combines the good qualities of all other known fencing and besides possesses advantages that no other fencing does. It is the handsomest, the strongest and absolutely the most durable fencing on the market. This fence is made of Bessemer steel wire. By means of its superior construction it overcomes the greatest objection to all other wire picket fencing the liability of having the tops bent over and thus marring the beauty of the fence. The bottom and top of the pickets are so curved to give the fence a handsome and finished appearance and there is no rough and ragged edges to either catch or tear dresses or clothing or any person in passing. This fence will never sag, buckle or get loose.

Campaign Against Filth.

Collier's Weekly: April has always been feared in Havana and our gulf ports because it was the beginning of the yellow fever season. This year, the first year in the history of Havana, April has come and without it the fever. This immunity is due entirely to the efficient sanitary regulations of the military authorities of Havana, reinforced by the magnificent work of the marine hospital service, which has been brought to such a state of marked perfection under the direction of its present chief, Surgeon General Wyman. Yellow fever flourishes where there is filth. Disregard of the most ordinary sanitary precautions and neglect of the common rules of cleanliness will, in certain climates sow the seeds of yellow fever. Plenty of fresh air, an abundance of clean water, a liberal supply of soap freely used and the prompt removal of all decaying matter are the only remedies. These the American authorities have used. They have taught the Cubans to keep themselves and their city clean, with the gratifying result that yellow fever has been practically banished from Cuba.

Nelson Dewey School Is Badly Defeated By Duluth.

Last Saturday afternoon at Oneota prak the High School baseball team defeated the Nelson-Dewey High School team of old Superior by a score of 25 to 2. The feature of the game was the pitching of Al Cummings for Duluth, he fanning out twenty-four men. The Superiorites were completely unable to hit him and during the game he gave only ten scattering hits. Potter's catching was good and all the men played well on the Duluth team. David Paddock umpired the game. The score was as follows:

ECZEMA

Eczema sets the skin on fire. The acid poisons in he blood are forced out through the pores of the skin, ausing intense redness, burning and itching. So terrible s the itching at times, especially when the body is overeated, that the almost distracted sufferer feels that he ould tear the skin to pieces, and that he must scratch or o crazy. He knows from experience that this only akes matters worse, but, made desperate by the terrible urning and itching, he is for the time being indifferent to after effects. There re several forms of Eczema, the moist, or weeping kind, that comes in little pusules which discharge a watery, sticky fluid, which dries and peels off in bran-like cales. So profuse is the discharge at times that large scabs or crusts form, which re both painful and troublesome, and not easily removed. Red, disfiguring bumps nd sores are symptoms of Eczema. The dry form usually attacks the head, hands and feet; the skin, becoming hard and rough, often cracking open and bleeding, and attended with much itching. Eczema depends upon a poisoned condition of the blood, and local applications, while soothing and cooling, and may to some extent relieve the inflammation and itching, cannot be considered cures, because external remedies do not reach constitutional or blood diseases. Salves, ointments, powders, lotions and soaps do more harm than good, by smearing over and sealing up the pores of the skin, thus forcing the poison back into the blood. S. S. S. antidotes and neutralizes the acid poisons and drives out of the circulation all impurities and humors, and the pure, rich blood that is carried to the diseased skin quickly allays the inflammation, opens the clogged up pores, and the skin becomes soft, smooth and ready to perform its proper functions. To be rid of Eczema you must first purify and build up the blood, and nothing so surely and effectually does this as S. S. S., the only guaranteed purely vegetable blood purifier. Send for our book on blood and skin diseases, and write our physicians for any information or advice you may desire. Medical advice and book free.

Mr. L. Marno, Escondido, San Diego County, Cal., writes: "My body broke out with a rash or eruption which in spite of all efforts to oure oontinued to get worse. The itching, especially at night, was simply terrible; it would almost disappear at times, only to return worse than ever. I had tried many highly recommended preparations without benefit, and hearing of S. S. S. determined to give it a fair trial, and was inexpressibly delighted when a few bottles cured me entirely, removing every blemish and pimple from my body. I shall not fail to recommend S. S. S. whenever an opportunity occurs.

FAMILY OF DEADBEATS

Lived a Year In Luxury Without Spending a Cent.

Two Hundred Wrathy Merchants In Philadelphia Swindled.

No Person Ever Saw One of Them Spend a Penny.

Philadelphia, April 29.—Without a dollar in the world, without a friend on earth and wholly without influence, references or security, Mrs. J. W. MacCarton lived magnificently, dressed handsomely and educated her five children on "nothing a year." No such story has been written since Thackeray gave the world "Becky Sharp." Two hundred worthy merchants are crying for a chance to identify Mrs. MacCarton, and as many more smile a sickly smile and say: "We do not know the lady."

Scores of costly plants piled in two rooms in the magnificent house No. 129 South Eighteenth street are the only valuable mementoes left Philadelphia to recall the presence of the MacCarton family, whose history for the last two years staggers belief. The windows of the now unoccupied rooms look out upon exclusive Rittenhouse square.

Mrs. MacCarton is of the type of a portly, prosperous matron, the eldest daughter is in appearance a model of what a beautiful 20-year-old heiress to millions should be, the son a cringingly polite boy of 18, the younger girls all pretty and proud. Backed by a residence in the very best neighborhood in the city, "Millionaires Square," it is perhaps small wonder that their flight reveals unpaid bills amounting to fully $75,000, while, when the full truth is known, that amount may be doubled.

For days at a time these people actually starved. Then their wits would provide a banquet costing oftentimes $100, and upon the dainties thus secured on promises they would feast for a week. The children always had a carriage at their dispesal. Florists fell over one another in order to keep the rooms of the family supplied with the choicest blossoms.

This peculiar family has lived in many parts of the city, but there is a long interval in their existence about which nothing seems to be known within the last ten days, however, their life has been one of acute misery. They have been watched night and day by tradespeople of the humbler sort. The boy has been stopped in the street and forced to give up his overcoat.

In taking up their extraordinary history a period of only a little more than a year ago will be the starting point. At that time an imposing mansion at No. 2001 North Broad street, the very heart of "Get-rich-quick-and-questionably" district, was rented by the mother, who gave her name as Mrs. J. W. McBride. Her appearance and that of her eldest daughter, introduced as Miss Lillye, convinced the agent that their story of having just come from New Orleans was true, and he waived the question of prepayment, especially as Mrs. McBride agreed to sign a lease for two years.

Within a few days the delivery wagons of all the big department stores began stopping in front of the house. At the end of a week the residence of the McBrides was the best furnished in the neighborhood. There were rugs worth a fortune from Goldberg & Co., J. H. Bazaz and Donald, bric-a-brac and bits of antique furniture worth thousands, and more art furnishings came from the fashionable shop of Woodville & Marko.

Mrs. McBride then visited the business place of Craig & Evans, and was graciously pleased with several fine paintings, costing an aggregate of $4750.

"Send them up at once," she said, and the men who went to hang the paintings made such a glowing report of the magnificence of the house and furnishings that when Mrs. McBride called again a few days later the firm was only too glad to fill her order for some water colors and etchings worth $1200 more.

While this was going on Miss Lillye and two of her younger sisters dropped in at Stern's, Sixteenth and Pine streets, and secured a few gowns.

"We shan't get anything elaborate until father returns," they volunteered.

Coal dealers, butchers, bakers and grocers poured their merchandise into the beautiful house of the charming McBrides.

At the end of the month the postman carried a heavy mail composed of bills to the house. Every missive was promptly answered by a cheery little note written upon delicate paper. The letters were all in one vein.

"Mrs. McBride regretted the necessity, etc., and when her income check arrived," etc.

Another month passed in this delightful manner. True, some people, wondering why the McBrides did not employ at least one servant, and some of the tradespeople became too busy to supply orders, but their places were easily filled. The new moon brought another array of bills, most of them beginning with "To acc't already rendered." All were again responded to with another polite note.

Many months elapsed before the house fell into a state of siege. The landlord created a crisis by putting a restraint upon the furniture. The crash followed.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

To recover their belongings drapers and furnishers had to pay the overdue rent, and then a wild scramble ensued. Everything portable was carried off by one or another of the hundreds of claimants, and a small sized riot took place in aristocratic Rittenhouse square, directly under the tower of old Trinity and across the way from the residence of A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Thomas Dolan, the traction magnate, and a dozen other millionaires. Then a hoard of men invaded the premises, rolled up the rugs, packed up the dishes and furniture and left the house bare.

After the last wagon rumbled away the McBrides (MacCartons) disappeared.

It was while things were in this condition that Miss Lillye began her mysterious visits to hotels in search of some one to write her letters. A chambermaid at the Aldine was pressed into service as secretary, and at the Rittenhouse the beautiful girl dazzled J. R. Jones, one of the colored employes, into aiding her queer correspondence. Jones tells his story as follows:

"One, a pretty girl, came into the hotel parlor where I was at work. She was dressed out of sight, but her right hand was tied up. She asked me if I would write a letter for her, as she had the rheumatism in her hand. I did as she wished, and she led me to get all the answer when it came and keep it until she called again.

"A few days later she came and I gave her the reply. She read it and then handed it to me. She asked me to keep it, as she was afraid to carry it about, and did not wish it destroyed. I agreed, and she had me write another letter to get all the answers locked up. She never tipped me a cent.

"No, I won't tell you what was in the letters. They were to men, and that's all I will say. The name she signed was Lillye MacCarton and I knew her as Miss MacCarton."

They were dependent for existence upon what they could get sent on credit to their rooms. So, when grocers and bakers became shy, they sent for a caterer to serve a dinner or luncheon for ten persons in the Clark's rooms. He would be notified that no waiters were needed as the house domestics would look after the service.

So the caterer, depending upon the excellence of the neighborhood, would provide a feast. One man, short in the business, actually borrowed $100 in order to provide a striking display for his supposed wealthy customer.

The scene when the banquet table had been laid, the caterer's men had departed and the hungry children made their rush, can be left to the imagination.

To raise a little ready money Mabel Clark and her sister Bessie would sell rare flowers in and around Rittenhouse square, and to purchasers they would pretend that they were doing it for fun to aid a charity in connection with Holy Trinity church. These flowers were stripped from the table decorations furnished by the caterers. Modistes to the number of thirty-four are in line with bills ranging from $100 to $1800. Not one of the several hundred people involved can recall ever having seen any member of the MacCarton family spend a penny—they even bought newspapers of the boy on the corner on credit.

INSULAR AFFAIRS

Explanation of Apparent Loss In Our Trade With Cuba.

Instead of Decrease There Were Large Gains Over 1899.

Position of United States With Reference to Other Countries.

Washington, April 29.—In a recent statement given to the press by the division of insular affairs of the war department, a considerable loss was indicated in the trade of Cuba with the United States for the first eight months of 1900 as compared with the same period of 1899. It is now explained by the division of insular affairs, that in the statement above referred to the value of gold and silver coin and bullion was included in the total value of commerce between Cuba and the United States. Eliminating the coin shipments it is ascertained that instead of there being a decrease in the value of imports into Cuba from the United States, there is an increase of $1,222,205 for the first eight months of 1900 over the same period of 1899. Comparison with the importation of merchandise into Cuba from the United Kingdom for the same period shows an increase in favor of 1900 of 38.5 per cent and from Germany of 75.3 per cent. These per cents look formidable, but it is said at the war department the amounts of increase are not so very large when they are considered in relation with the totals of importation or in relation with the United States figures. These English and German figures are expected to continue to rise until the United Kingdom and Germany secure their proportionate shares of trade in Cuba, that is, in proportion to their shares in other tropical countries. As the tariff regulations operate upon all countries alike, exports from Germany, France, Spain, and the United Kingdom to Cuba will depend upon business methods. It is stated that while there may have been an impulse of sentiment at the close of the war on the part of the Cuban importers to buy from the country that had just secured to them their liberty, there is no evidence of it to be found in the subsequent statistics. There are isolated cases of Cuban merchants who tried to substitute American products for Spanish on sentimental grounds, but that their efforts proved very successful cannot be shown. One extensive dealer in footwear tried to introduce American shoes, but his ustomers preferred the Spanish last even though it was coupled with inferior leather and poorer workmanship, and during the last six months of 1900 Spain furnished $620,096 worth of shoes and the United States $169,768 worth. Unless the form of the American shoes can be made to suit the Cuban taste and custom, the American shoe manufacturer, it is stated, cannot expect to dominate the Cuban shoe trade.

The same is true of cotton goods. It costs no more to bring a cargo from Barcelona than from New York, and the Cubans, like the Mexicans, have come to prefer the goods of European make and the European manufacturers, through long application, have come to know what these people prefer and make the goods expressly for that market. The cotton statistics of the United States present one peculiar fact, namely, the large importation into Cuba during the first eight months of 1899 and the subsequent falling off during the same period of 1900. There was imported from the United States in 1899, cotton goods to the value of $990,310, and in 1900 to the value of $279,860. The division of insular affairs explains this on the theory that importers expected to secure under valuation if they bought in the United States, but have discovered that under our regime all goods are valued on merit.

An analysis of the statistics of the cotton trade of the United States and the United Kingdom with Spanish-American countries and Cuba discloses the following facts:

First, that the United States is selling more than its proportionate share of cotton to Cuba.

Second, that the United States is a very modest competitor of the United Kingdom in cotton, and last, that the United Kingdom made extraordinary importations of cotton into Cuba during the first eight months of 1900. Cuba imported in round numbers $3,500,000 worth of cotton goods in the 1899 period and $3,800,000 in the 1900 period, an increase of $300,000. The United Kingdom secured an increase of $800,000 more, of which $700,000 was taken from the United States and the rest from Spain. The latter fell back $220,000 worth. Germany and France each gained some. The comparative proportions are said to be indicative of our relation to the trade of the world in cotton fabrics.

The United States sells a great deal of raw cotton, but comparatively very little of the manufactured. During the aforesaid eight months of 1900 the United States sold $147,818,686 worth of raw cotton and only $15,263,167 worth of manufactured. Of the latter amount, Cuba secured nearly 2 per cent or three or four times as much as Mexico, Brazil or the other South American countries.

The apparent loss in the exportations from Cuba to the United States during the 1900 period as compared with the 1899 period, as shown by the figures in the press statement hereinbefore mentioned, is accounted for by the division as follows:

The explanation will be found in the item of tobacco, especially in that of cigars. The greater part of the tobacco shipped to Europe goes by way of New York, and during the first nine months of 1899, when heavy shipments were made, the reports to the division of insular affairs did not disclose the ultimate destination of this commodity. It is not possible now to determine the exact amounts that should be credited to the United States, and to the rest of them, Europe almost exclusively, but judging the exportations of 1899 by those of 1900, it is reasonable to assume that at least $7,000,000 worth of tobacco, chiefly cigars, destined for Europe, more particularly Germany and the United Kingdom, were credited to the United States. The statement issued by the division in conclusion says that it therefore appears that instead of there being a loss in the export trade of Cuba to the United States, the same is not being maintained, but is increasing.

MME. YALE'S HAIR TONIC

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

It affords me great pleasure to call the attention of the public to Mme. Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic, which is the first and only remedy known to chemistry which positively turns gray hair back to the original color without dye. It has gone on record that Mme. M. Yale—wonderful woman chemist—has made this most valuable of all chemical discoveries. Mme. Yale personally indorses its action and gives the public her solemn guaranty that it has been tested in every conceivable way and has proved itself to be the ONLY Hair Specific. It STOPS HAIR FALLING immediately and creates a luxurious growth. Contains no injurious ingredient. Physicians and chemists invited to analyze it. It is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary, it makes the hair soft, youthful fluffy and keeps it in curl. For gentlemen and ladies, entirely gray and with bald heads, it is especially recommended.

A SCIENTIFIC MEDICINE.

Dear Madame Yale:—I wish to say a few words in regard to your Excelsior Hair Tonic and Hair Cleanser. I have used both with the best possible results. My hair had been falling out for some time. I had used various remedies with little or no avail. Finally my attention was called to your Excelsior Hair Tonic. I purchased a bottle and began using it. The result was beyond my expectations; after the second application my hair had ceased to fall out, and as I continued my hair seemed to have more life and vigor, and was having begun to come in. After using the second bottle I was surprised to see that my hair was no longer tinged with gray but had returned to its natural color.

Your Excelsior Hair Tonic is certainly a scientific medicine and I believe the only one that treats the hair as a sick member and feeds and nourishes it until it is restored to its natural and normal state of health. I cheerfully recommend it to any one who is in need of a Hair Tonic or Restorer, as I have the utmost confidence in the efficacy of all your remedies. Respectfully,

MRS. C. L. BROWN,
51 Harper Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Madame Yale's Hair Tonic is sold throughout the world at $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured only by Madame Yale, 189 Michigan avenue, Chicago.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, April 12th, 1901.

On receiving and filing the petition of Amelia O'Laughlin, temporarily a resident of the county of Douglas, Wisconsin, representing among other things, that James O'Laughlin, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 13th day of February, A. D. 1901, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to her granted;

It is ordered, That said petition be heard before said court on the seventh day of May, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m. at the probate office in the court house in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, That notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper, printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 12th day of April, A. D. 1901.

By the Court,

A HEAVY DECLINE

Wheat Started Out Easier and Became Further Depressed.

Decline at Liverpool Cause of Opening Weakness.

The Visible Supply and Amount on Passage Show Decrease.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 29.—The wheat market started out easy and lower this morning, the main cause of the weakness being the decline of ⅛@¼d at Liverpool. There was a further decline on liquidation. The visible supply showed a decrease of 1,516,000 bus, and there was a decrease of 3,392,000 bus in the amount on ocean passage. The world's shipments last week were 7,794,000 bus. Private cables reported warm rains in Germany and greatly improving the condition of crops. There was a marked decrease in the demand from the continent for wheat and the general cash demand was slack. New York reporting only 13 loads taken during the day. A Hamburg cable said that there would be no increase in the wheat duties this fall. There was liberal selling of wheat at Chicago and many who had been arrayed on the bull side last week were sellers. Primary receipts of wheat were 654,000 bus, against 513,043 bus. Shipments 414,543 bus. The visible supply showed a decrease of 1,516,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and corn were 797,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 282 cars, against 324 last week and 551 last year. Chicago receipts, 75 cars, 1 of contract grade.

Trading was active on the Duluth board. May wheat opened ⅛c off at 75¼c, sold at 75½@⅝c at 9:40 and then declined steadily to 74⅝c at 12:30, sold at 74¾c at 1 o'clock and closed at 74¼c, a decline of 1¾c. Chicago declined 1⅞c for the May option and 1⅜c for the July option. Minneapolis was off 1⅝c.

Cash sales were 35,000 bus at the May price for wheat to arrive and ½c under for wheat in store.

May flax was a wild today, selling up to $1.78 and closing 7c up at ....½. Cash and to arrive flax was 5c up. Corn was off ½c in the Duluth market and unchanged in Chicago. There was less interest in the corn market than for several days. Primary receipts were 518,599 bus, last year 369,559 bus. Shipments, 414,543 bus, last year 654,289 bus. The visible supply decreased 2,025,000 bus.

Rye was up ¼c and oats was unchanged in price.

Closing prices were as follows:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

An Easier Feeling In Wheat at Opening.

Chicago, April 29.—Lower cables caused an easier feeling in wheat during the first part of today's session. May opened ⅜@¾c lower at 73¾@74c and eased off to 73½c on liquidation. World's shipments last week were 7,794,000 bus. Local receipts were 75 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 282 cars compared with 324 last week and 551 a year ago. Wheat and flour on ocean passage showed a decrease of 3,392,000 bus. The visible decreased 1,516,000 bus.

Under continued liquidation May later declined to 72¾@73c and closed weak 1¾@⅞c lower at 72½@⅝c.

In the corn pit trade was principally in July. July opened unchanged to ¼c lower, at 45⅞c to 45¾c, and under local offerings declined to 45⅝@½c. May opened ¼@⅜c lower at 47¾c to 47¾c, but Phillips came to its support and a rally to 48¼c followed. Receipts were 179 cars, 9 of contract grade, their liberality being the main cause of the opening easiness.

July corn eased later with wheat and closed ⅜c down at 45½c. May unchanged at 48¼c.

Oats were strong on continued reports of late seeding formed the bases of strength. Receipts were 278 cars. July opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 26¼@⅜c, and sold to 26¼c but recovered. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 26⅞c to 27@¼c.

Provisions were dull and easier under the influence of liberal hog receipts and lower prices at the yards. July pork opened 7½@10c lower at $14.57½@14.60 and sold to $14.57½. July lard opened 5@7½c lower at $8.00; and July ribs 5c lower at $7.90@7.92½.

Close, wheat, April, 72½c; May, 72¼@⅝c; July, 73¼@⅜c. Corn, April, 48¼c; May, 48¾c; June, 45¼c; July, 45¾c. Oats, April, 26⅝c; May, 26⅝c; July, 26c. Pork, April, $14.47½; May, $14.47½; July, $14.67½. SUBJECT TO TAXATION.

Court Decides That "Calls" Must Be Taxed.

Washington, April 29.—The United States supreme court today decided in the case brought by ex-Congressman Stephen V. White, of Brooklyn, that a "call" as the word is used in the stock exchange is an agreement to sell and therefore subject to taxation at the rate of 2 cents per $100 under the war revenue law.

PUBLIC NUISANCES.

Women Recite a Few To the Mayor.

The women of the Saturday club have addressed a letter to Mayor Hugo in which there is contained some very pertinent queries and suggestions regarding certain public nuisances. The letter follows:

Hon. T. W. Hugo,

Mayor of City of Duluth.

Sir: The women of the Saturday club in their desire to assist you in improving and beautifying the city of Duluth, would like to ask you a few questions and offer a few suggestions.

One notices on walking on our business streets, our thoroughfares, that at any hour of the day, the storekeepers will, at their own pleasure, clean their windows and sweep their sidewalks.

Is there no ordinance limiting the time for such work?

One also notices that the storekeepers, with a laudable aim to neatness of their own building, will sweep all their papers, etc., into the street. Is there no ordinance obliging them to take care of their own rubbish?

Throughout the city in pretty wooded spots, and on bare and vacant lots the ash carts and rubbish carts dump their contents. Is there no ordinance obliging them to empty their carts in certain places?

Your honor, we respectfully submit these questions to you, and entreat you if there are ordinances to abate these nuisances and blemishes in the good looks of our city that you, in virtue of your office, will see that they are enforced.

The entire community will thank you, with the women of the Saturday club.

E. M. BARNARD,
Corresponding Secretary.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Speculation In Union Pacific Heavy and Highly Sensational.

United States Steel Stocks Were In Large Demand.

Closing Was Furiously Active at Recessions From the Best.

New York, April 29.—As a result of the trading on Saturday and this morning in London, prices of Americans were advanced from 1 to 4½ points and the price level here at the opening today confirmed these advances. United States Steel stocks were in large demand, 20,000 shares of the common selling at 49½ to 50¼, compared with 48¼ on Friday and 7000 shares of the preferred selling at 98 to 99, compared with 96¾ on Friday. The latter ran off almost immediately to 97¾. Of the railroad stocks Union Pacific, St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Rock Island, Reading and Baltimore & Ohio were in especially heavy demand and showed advances over Friday of 1¾ to 2¾. Anaconda jumped 2½ and Amalgamated Copper 1¾ and Colorado Fuel was up 4¾. Gains of a point were spattered quite liberally through the list. Colorado Southern opened at 16½ to 18 on sales of 18,000 shares compared with 13½ on Friday. The first preferred jumped 2¾, but the second preferred dropped a point, but was a notable exception to the general upward tendency.

Trading became uneven, but continued very animated and broader. Room traders offered special stocks to take profits on last week's purchases and the outside demand kept others steady, or improved them, and especially Northern Pacific, which rose 4 points on 112¾. Stocks most affected by the selling included the grangers, Baltimore & Ohio, and the copper stocks. Erie, common, met support and wiped out its earlier loss, and New York Central advanced 2¼. Union Pacific was rushed up to 111⅜ near 11 o'clock, which strengthened all other railroads. The largest dealings were in Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and United States Steel, in all of which blocks of 1000 to 5000 shares were recorded in constant succession. The market presented a very irregular appearance during all of the first hour, but the undertone was firm in sympathy with the strength of the leaders.

New points of strength cropped out which were utilized to cover sales of the grangers and a few other stocks. Speculation was rather nervous, prices rising and falling alternately, but tending lower for some of the leaders. Illinois Central, St. Louis & San Francisco, second preferred, People's Gas and the Copper stocks rose strongly from 1½ to 3 points. The reaction ran from 1 to 1⅝ in some of the prominent railroad stocks. The gold exports had a rather chilling effect on speculative sentiment, but the market hardened again before midday. Union Pacific rising to 112½, and other stocks to the top. Bonds were quiet and irregular. Union Pacific convertible 2s were largely dealt in and rose 2 points.

The speculation in Union Pacific became highly sensational after 2 p. m. The volume of dealings and the rapidity of the advances in the stock were at a greater rate than during the record transactions last week. There were long strings of transactions in 1000 to 6000 shares recorded on the tape which carried the price up to 120, an extreme rise of 12¼ points. The preferred rose an extreme 6¾. The rest of the market was inclined to go off, as the furious movement in Union Pacific caused uneasiness, but the persistance with which it was bought, kept bringing it up from reactions. Southern Pacific came into the movement rising to 57½ and Northern Pacific was marked up to 116. United States Steel touched 52 and the preferred, 98. The general market receded in spite of those phenomenal movements, and the profit-taking affected the leaders. Union Pacific fell back 2⅜, and prices generally fell 1 to 2 points from the best. The leaders rallied again, but none of them went higher than before except Northern Pacific, which touched 119½. The closing was furiously active and irregular at recessions from the best.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 29.—Cotton opened steady 1 to 3 points higher, on foreign buying and covering by shorts but soon became heavy on the withdrawal of outside support. As against favorable Liverpool cables were heavy port receipts, splendid weather reports and friendly crop news. The feature of the cables was the large sales, some 10,000 bales, said to be the result of fear among spinners of manipulation in the summer months on this side. Japan was reported to be a large buyer of India cotton, it being cheaper than the American staple.

IN SESSION.

Annual Meeting of the Duluth Log Salvage Association.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Log Salvage association is being held this afternoon at the office of the secretary, G. A. Potter, in the Providence building. At the meeting the work of the association for the past year will be reviewed and the officers elected for the ensuing year. It is also likely that the association will map out the course it intends to pursue the coming season toward those persons appropriating logs found on the lake and bay shore belonging to members of the association. Last season more activity was taken by the association for the protection of its membership along these lines than ever before, and Secretary Potter secured evidence against a large number of people, some living in the city, that was the cause to their settling on a basis most satisfactory to the association. It is understood that the plans this year embody just as strict an observance of the law for the protection of the loggers, and the association will even attempt to cover other regions within its jurisdiction that have not been watched so carefully as they will be this year.

Another large block of Northern Minnesota pine logs is to go to the mills of Minneapolis and Stillwater to be sawed. The Northern Pacific company has just closed a contract with the Backus-Brooks Lumber company, of Minneapolis, and some Iowa parties, to deliver in the neighborhood of 30,000,000 feet of logs over its line, the logs going down through Bemidji. It is understood that these logs are included in a big deal put through some time ago by the Backus-Brooks people for about 100,000,000 feet of standing pine in the region north of Bemidji, and which inside of the next few years will be opened up to the head of the lakes operations.

The contract provides for a shipment of one train load daily from May 1 to Sept. 1, each train to be made up of forty-five cars. It is estimated that about 270,000 feet will be shipped daily. The logs are to be converted into lumber at Minneapolis and Stillwater, while some will be floated down the Mississippi. While this is a big hauling contract that would attract little interest were it to come to head of the lake, as compared with some of those big contracts recently closed and others that are now pending, yet in the cities of Minneapolis and Stillwater the proposition is regarded as a pretty large one. It is an indication of the efforts being put forth to pull Northern Minnesota pine logs into the southern part of the state for sawing, where pine is scarce or is entirely cut, and is another of the examples showing the loss to head of the lake interests in logs going around the mills here and in a district where it would be expected that the logs would be turned into lumber.

Railroad hauling of logs has been attended with good success this past season and the handling of millions of feet of logs in this manner is proving very satisfactory to the lumber concerns. The success attending the practice is said to go along way with some loggers in demonstrating that it is the more speedy and economical way of logging and in time give promise of revolutionizing logging operations and do away with a great deal of the trouble and uncertainty of stream driving and rafting.

COFFINS.

Workmen Find Two on East Third Street.

Last Saturday afternoon while some workmen were digging the cellar for a house at 1222 East Third street, on the lower side of the street, one of the men unearthed a wooden box at a depth of about four feet which, on examination, turned out to contain a small coffin. The workman left his find without opening it, but later in the evening it was opened and found to contain several pieces of a peculiar woody substance, easily broken. Several small pieces of cloth were also found, but nothing resembling a skeleton of a child, which it is presumed that the coffin originally contained. The coffin itself is one yard long and ten inches wide at the widest part. It was in a very fair state of preservation, although a good deal of frost had gathered upon the outside.

Another coffin, larger than the first, was discovered this afternoon by the same men, who immediately covered it up and left it. The field seems to abound in these gruesome relics, and the holes from which bodies have been since removed are all through the place. Even now there are four slight mounds, which resemble graves, and it is possible that there are still some eternal sleepers under the sod.

Many years ago the ground north of Fourth street, at that point, was utilized as a cemetery, and the bodies removed from below Third street to the then new location, but this in turn was abandoned and the cemetery removed a second time to its present location.

Ferry Service On.

The ferry service between Duluth and Superior was resumed this morning for the first time since the ice closed up the bay in early winter. The Independent ferry, Capt. Majo, manager, is handling the business and has four boats on the bay, all of which have been painted and refitted during the winter. As usual, the boats touch at the Lake avenue dock, the city dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west and the city dock in Tower bay slip, West Superior.

GOULD LUCKY.

Made Five Million Dollars In the Last Four Years.

Washington, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—If recent information received in Washington from New York can be relied upon, George J. Gould has made $5,000,000 in Wall street in the last four years.

He has made half of it since President McKinley was elected the last time—$2,000,000 a month. Leaving out the fractions, Mr. Gould's earning capacity, when working for himself, is $7 every time the clock ticks in working hours. President McKinley works nearly a year to earn what Mr. Gould makes in three hours of an afternoon. But that is not half the story—he has doubled the entire Gould fortune. Jay Gould left some $70,000,000 to his five children. Today the combined Gould fortunes are worth more than $140,000,000. It is all due to the magical touch of George. So that really he has earned $35,000,000 since last November, or "at the rate of $50,000 every hour the stock market was open.

This amazing fortune is greater than any other man in Wall street has made, with the exception of John D. Rockefeller, and perhaps E. H. Harriman. What startles Wall street most is the fact that Mr. Gould has made this astonishing fortune without the least suspicion of trickery. He has done it by merely buying—buying the stocks in his own roads. He has failed to make any sensational "scoops," of the kind that pools in sugar, for instance, are wont to make. It has been a steady climb upward from bottom prices to top prices. Hundreds of speculators who believed Mr. Gould would do as he did bought freely when he began buying and have realized handsome fortunes. So that it is estimated that he has made as much for others as for the Gould estate.

CABLE FLASHES.

The London Daily Chronicle says it learns that Dr Ludwig Mond has discovered a method of producing illuminating coal gas at 2 pence per 1000 feet, which will effect a revolution b, cheapening electric power, and also as bearing upon the prohibition of open-hearth steel.

While the first train from Pekin to Tien Tsin was traversing the bridge between Lo-Fa and Yang-Tsun it was derailed through the collapse of a culvert. Eleven Chinese were killed and forty Chinese and twenty Americans injured. One of the Americans cannot recover.

All the employes of the omnibus and street car lines in Barcelona went on strike Sunday.

The officials at Calcutta engaged in combatting the bubonic plague were assaulted by natives while disinfecting. Several arrests were made.

During the last forty-eight hours sixteen fresh cases of the bubonic plague have been officially reported at Cape Town. Eight of these are Europeans. Since the outbreak of the disease there have been 319 cases, of which 217 have proved fatal.

Lord Kitchener continues the process of wearing down the Boers, who, however, are very active in the Kroonstad district, where they recently derailed two trains and also captured, after a severe fight, twenty-five men of the Prince of Wales' Light Horse, whom they stripped of their horses and accoutrements and then liberated.

Describing the reverential respect shown for the bodies of the executed members of the Tsung Li Yamen, when a procession a mile long passed through the settlement, the Shangnai correspondent of the Times says: "It supplies a significant comment on Sir Robert Hart's description of the Pekin conspiracy as a national anti-foreign rising."

OBJECT TO SALE.

Stockholders In Port Arthur Land Call Halt.

Kansas City, April 29.—Foreign stockholders of the Port Arthur Land company have interposed an objection to the sale of 28,000 acres of land at Port Arthur, Texas, negotiated last week, according to local officials of that company. Negotiations for the sale of the land which lies around Port Arthur and between that city and Beaumont were practically consummated in Kansas City last week for a sum said to have been $250 an acre. The prospective buyer was W. J. McKie, of Corsicana, Texas, said to be the legal representative in Texas of the Standard Oil company. The property is in the hands of E. L. Martin, Arthur E. Stillwell and J. McD. Trimble, of this city, former owners of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railway, as trustees. These officials assert that they have full power to dispose of the property.

Mr. Martin confirmed the sale of an undivided half interest in the land, but said: "Someone seems to have wired some of the foreign stockholders that we were about to give away a good thing. They notified us not to deliver the deeds until they had further information on the subject. In the meantime, however, the deeds had been sent to Corsicana, but we telegraphed the bank to hold them until further notice."

LAAGER TAKEN.

British Surprise and Capture Boers at Klipdam.

London, April 29.—Lord Kitchener reports to the war office from Pretoria, under date of April 28, as follows:

Kitchener's fighting scouts, under Grenfell, have surprised and captured Van Rensburg laager, at Klipdam, north of Pietersburg. Seven Boers were killed and thirty-seven taken prisoners. Eight thousand rounds of ammunition and all the wagons, carts, oxen, horses and mules were captured. Our only casualty was one wounded.

The other columns report three killed, fifty-eight taken prisoners, fifty-seven surrendered and one quick firer captured.

Arrangements For Opening Pan-American on Sunday.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 29.—The question of whether the gates of the Pan-American grounds are to be open on Sundays was finally settled by the board of directors. Their decision is a compromise. The gates are to be open from 1 p. m. until 11 p. m., but the Midway and all amusement features will be closed during the twenty-four hours from Saturday night until Monday morning.

INQUIRY IN HAWAII

Made By An Agent of the Agricultural Department.

Exhaustive Review of the Resources of the Islands.

The Creation of An Experiment Station Is Recommended.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The appropriation act, approved May 25, 1900, for the department of agriculture, provided for the establishment of an agricultural experiment station in the Hawaiian islands, as well as in Porto Rico, and our other colonial possessions. In regard to the work done by the department of agriculture along this line, a bulletin just issued by this department gives the public some interesting information concerning the resources and capabilities of those islands situated beyond our Western coast, 8100 miles southwest of San Francisco.

In the past these islands were isolated from the centers of civilization, but in recent years, with the development of commerce between the Occident and the Orient, they have become directly in the line of travel and form a halfway house or coaling station for steamers bound from San Francisco or Vancouver to Australia, and from the same ports to China and Japan, and from the Isthmus of Panama to the same countries. Since the purchase of the Philippines by this country they have become also the resting as well as the coaling station between these islands and the United States.

As the agent making investigations, the department of agriculture was fortunate in securing the services of Dr. W. C. Stubbs, director of the Louisiana agricultural experiment stations. Dr. Stubbs, who visited the islands in July and August of the past year, is thoroughly familiar with experiment stations, and in his capacity as director of the three experiment stations in Louisiana has familiarized himself with the agriculture of tropical and semi-tropical regions throughout the world.

In the report of Dr. Stubbs, an exhaustive review is given of the agriculture of the islands and its many branches. Owing to the unusually favorable conditions, sugar growing is not only the leading agricultural occupation, but is the principal industry of the islands. At present this industry is in a very prosperous condition, but other agricultural industries are either not well developed or are not in profitable condition. Coffee growing is diminishing, and the other large agricultural crop, rice, is not grown on up-to-date principles. Stock raising is conducted to some extent, but there is need of improved stock and better pasturage. Dairying as an adjunct to agriculture is almost unknown and dairy products exceedingly expensive. Mr. Stubbs states that parts of the islands have been denuded of their forests to the great detriment of the country, and these areas should be reforested. In many parts of the islands, especially at or near the coast, on the western or leeward sides of the islands, irrigation must be practiced to successfully produce good crops. Much of this is done by pumping from artesian wells, and there is evidence to show the methods practiced are extremely wasteful. Little has been done in the islands in the way of vegetable and fruit growing for market purposes, except with bananas and pineapple. The little that has been done in the islands shows that almost every kind of fruit and vegetable may be grown somewhere upon the islands. For supplying this class of produce, California and other parts of the Pacific coast are now drawn upon.

The report shows that there is a great necessity for the establishment of an experiment station in the islands, in order that the problems of diversified agriculture may give attention. No necessity exists for immediate consideration of the sugar industry, as there is already established a well-equipped station, maintained by the Sugar Planters' association. This station is devoted to the study of manifold problems that arise in cane growing and sugar manufacture.

The instructions given to Dr. Stubbs by the department of agriculture required an investigation into the feasibility and desirability of uniting the proposed government station with some institution already established. The two institutions that commended themselves were the experiment station of the Sugar Planters' association and the Kamehameha Training school. Conferences were held with the governing boards of these institutions, but no practical means for combination with either were found. It is, therefore, recommended that an independent experimen station be established, adjoining the city of Honolulu, and experiments be begun in diversified agriculture. A cordial spirit of co-operation for the establishment of a station was shown to Dr. Stubbs by officials and residents of Hawaii, and it is believed that much benefit will accrue from the scientific study of the problems there presented for investigation.

For the immediate use of the station, in order to provide fences, buildings, live stock, etc., a sum of about $17,000 is considered as necessary. This may be provided by congress, or in case that is not considered feasible, by the Hawaiian government, as is done in other territories. After the station is established, and the urgent necessities provided for, it will require for its maintenance a sum equal to that annually provided by congress for the experimen stations in other states and territories. This annual appropriation for the maintenance of experiment stations amounts to $15,000, which sum has been recommended to the secretary of agriculture by Director A. C. True, of the office of experiment stations, for the fiscal year of 1902.

* * *

It is stated by government officials in this city that one of the most interesting of the government exhibits at the Buffalo exposition, and which is expected to be sent to Charleston later, will be that from the navy department, which has been prepared under the direction of Col. B. F. Peters, the chief clerk, who is the department's representative on the general board.

His idea has been to give a comprehensive presentation of the navy's development from the frigate Constitution to the battleships of the Pennsylvania and Maryland class, as well as the marvelous progress in ordnance, which is illustrated by the old smooth bore and the modern high power rifled gun. The exhibits have been prepared with a view to showing the laymen unfamiliar with the material of the navy every step taken in the development of the ship. The models of the new vessels, perfect in every detail, are all now at Buffalo, and there are besides a working model tank, in which models of proposed ships are tested, the relics of the department, captured battle flags and some of the smaller guns taken in late wars.

Probably one of the most interesting and instructive features consists of a great eight by 20-foot map of the world, on which will be designated in large, legible letters the names and location of the principal maritime ports of the world and of the United States navy yards and stations at home and abroad.

This map is drawn upon white canvas. Various divisions of land and water are appropriately colored and the exposed surface treated to several coats of transparent varnish, the whole being mounted on linoleum to prevent the canvas from bucking. Thus prepared the map will be placed on what might be designated a billiard table, enlarged twofold in length and breadth and especially designed for the purpose. The map will cover the globe from the sixtieth parallel north to the sixtieth parallel south, and upon it will be placed 302 miniature lead models, each representing a battleship, cruiser, monitor, gunboat, torpedo boat, submarine boat, sailing vessel, collier or tug of the United States navy, in commission in ordinary, under repairs or under construction. The models of cruising vessels will be painted white, the torpedo boats green, the colliers and sailing vessels lack and the tugs and yard boats orange. The largest of the models is not more than one and a half inches in length.

The position of each model upon the map will show the location each day of the corresponding vessel of the navy. Each model will fly a pennant with its name printed on it in bold type. The display of a tiny flag on the model will signify that the corresponding vessel of the navy is in commission for service, and when no flag is displayed it will signify that the vessel is laid up in ordinary, under repairs or under construction.

This exhibit will be a twentieth century kindergarten lesson, descriptive of the navy as it is today, and to those persons who have not had an opportunity to visit our various navy yards or to see our maneuvered fleet a glance at it will probably give a more accurate idea of the composition of our navy than could be had in any other way.

Chief Constructor Bowles has arranged to send, as a part of the exhibit of his bureau, a considerable number of models of vessels of war. Among these will be the models of the New York, Brooklyn, Oregon, Indiana, Texas, Olympia, Baltimore, Atlanta and Petrel.

There will also be in this portion of the exhibit models of the ill-fated Maine and of her namesake, the new battleship Maine, as well as models of some of the earlier vessels of the service, so that the growth of the new navy may be readily followed by taking up the models in their historical sequence.

For the most part these reproductions of our vessels are about one-forty-eighth of the size of the vessels which they represent, and their details are complete in all respects; in fact, are exact reproductions of our fighting vessels.

Most of the special classes of vessels are also represented among the models, for among them will be found types of nearly all of the torpedo vessels which have been constructed for the navy and of the once-much-talked-of dynamite vessel Vesuvius. A well executed and finely finished model of the submarine vessel Holland will be a part of the exhibit, which, in view of the results, will be not the least interesting of the whole.

There will also be models and plans of the details entering intl the construction of our modern fighting machines, and among these a model of the "Hichborn turret" (which has been especially well executed), will, doubtless, excite the attention and admiration of visitors to the naval section, as will also many of the full size fittings, such as self-illuminating buoys, etc., which will be found a part of this section.

TWO RESCUED.

Miners Imprisoned In Rosebud Are Reached.

Aurora, Mo., April 29.—Life, light and air broke in at 2 a. m. on the five miners who have been entombed in the Rosebud mine since Friday last. Two were rescued alive, one was found dead, and the other two are supposed to be lifeless. Grant Shard was mangled by falling rocks and earth and undoubtedly died instantly. Faint taps on the iron rails announce that two others were still alive. They are William Shane and George Feaster.

A large stone boulder had Feaster pinioned by the foot, in which position he had remained for a day. He was so firmly wedged that it seemed as if a supporting timber would have to be removed to let him out. This would have precipitated the roof on all, and could not be considered. Enough of the timber was chipped off, however, to save him, but the work of saving him was tedious and risky, as the drift was just large enough for one man to work in lying on his side and clawing the dirt back to another and then another in a chain until the whole string had been passed.

At 10:30 p. m. the rescuers were near William Shane, who was pinioned by the feet with a dead man underneath him. He was scarcely able to talk. His arm is broken, and it is feared that he may lose his mind. He was removed after an imprisonment of sixty-one hours.

The other two men are probably dead.

Five thousand persons were about the shaft all day and night.

CALLAHAN INNOCENT

Jury's Verdict "Not Guilty" In the Cudahy Kidnaping Case.

The Judge Was Much Disappointed In the Decision.

Doubtful If Suspect Is Tried on the Other Charges.

Omaha, Neb., April 29.—James Callahan was declared not guilty yesterday of any complicity in the kidnaping of Edward Cudahy, Jr. Shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning the jury signified to Judge Baker through a bailiff that it was ready to report, having been out since 8:30 o'clock Saturday night. A small audience of fifty attorneys and interested parties had heard the news and were waiting when the twelve men filed in. The foreman announced that the verdict was not guilty.

The judge had evidently been expecting another verdict and was openly disappointed.

"It is impossible for me to understand," he said, "how twelve intelligent men could have agreed upon such a verdict after listening to the testimony. The defendant could not have chosen more wisely if he had been selecting his own representatives, and the community could not have made a more unfortunate selection. This jury is discharged without the compliments of the court."

Callahan's attorneys were not present, and the defendant expressed a desire to thank the jurors in his own behalf. This the court refused to permit. He said the jury did not deserve any thanks. Two other counts still exist against Callahan and he was at once rearrested under these. There is doubt, however, whether the state will bring the cases to trial. Chief of Police Donahue announces that the $5000 offered for the apprehension of Patrick Crowe will be withdrawn. He says it is one thing to arrest the culprit and another to convict him.

The reward of $50,000 offered jointly by the city and Edward Cudahy, however, will still remain in force.

As far as could be ascertained from the jurymen, there was at no time any serious difference as to their opinion of Callahan's innocence. Three were inclined to favor a verdict of guilty, but were soon convinced by their colleagues that a reasonable doubt existed.

AT CASS LAKE

Dr. E. M. Wilcox Has Been Appointed as County Physician.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of county commissioners has appointed Dr. E. M. Wilcox as county physician. In addition to this other duties, he will hereafter attend to all smallpox cases which are county charges. There have been a number of cases of the disease during the past winter, and the board thought that the practice which had been in vogue of securing a physician for each case entailed too much expense, hence the appointment of Dr. Wilcox.

Jerome Compo, a carriage rider at the Glenmont sawmill, was married Saturday evening to Miss Lena Larson, a well known young lady of Cass Lake. The ceremony was performed at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Compo. Rev. F. N. Smith, formerly of Minneapolis, performed the ceremony. A wedding supper was served, of which a number of the immediate friends of the newly-married couple partook.

Gen. C. C. Andrews, state fire warden, accompanied by Attorney Halbert and Photographer Hoxsie, of St. Paul, returned home yesterday morning after spending several days in the vicinity of Cass Lake. While here Mr. Andrews and his staff photographer visited several of the landings where "dead and down" logs have been deposited, and took views of the out of the contractors. Mr. Andrews stated that he wished to personally ascertain whether the contractors had been cutting green timber. The residents of Cass Lake being opposed to the national park project, the general was not given a warm reception on the occasion of his visit here.

The order recently issued by President Cardle relative to the closing of saloons has been strictly observed so far. On Sunday all of the twenty-two saloons in the village were closed, both front and back doors being tightly locked.

The local lodges of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs on Friday evening gave a party and banquet in commemoration of the eighty-second anniversary of the founding of Odd Fellowship.

Omega Oil

Great Is Oil! Did you ever think what an important thing oil is in this world? It is the oil in paint that prevents decay of woodwork. It is the oil the bootblack puts on your shoes that preserves the leather. It is oil that keeps iron and steel from rusting. It is oil that makes machinery run easily and smoothly.

But the greatest oil of all is Omega Oil, the popular green-colored liniment that everybody is talking about. It keeps the human body from decaying and getting rusty. It softens, relaxes, soothes and preserves the flesh of old people. It lubricates stiff joints, and makes them work easily and smoothly. And the little Swiss green herb in Omega Oil is the most amazing thing for stopping pains and aches that ever grew out of Old Mother Earth. If you have a place on your body that hurts, you are mighty foolish if you don't rub that place with Omega Oil, and get cured right away. It is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for.

Tell your druggist you must have Omega Oil and nothing else. He will give it to you or get it for you. The Omega Chemical Co., 257 Broadway, New York, will mail you a bottle, prepaid, anywhere in the United States for 50c. in cash, money order or stamps. 782

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

James Douglass Reid, known to telegraphers throughout the country as "the father of the telegraph," died Sunday afternoon at his residence in New York. He had been ill for many weeks.

Carefully compiled statistics show that the gold production of the Cripple Creek district up to the close of the present month makes a grand total of over $100,000,000. Gold was first discovered in this camp in 1889.

The sealing steamer Kite, for whose safety some fear had been felt, reached St. Johns, Sunday, with 10,000 seals, almost a full load. During the early part of the season she steamed through immense herds of seals, but the ice was too broken to allow the crew to hunt them.

The loss as a result of the Guerney refrigerator factory fire in Fond du Lac, Wis., is $150,000, partially covered by insurance. The entire building was destroyed and Israel Raymond, the watchman, lost his life, being burned. His body is still in the ruins.

While trying to escape arrest for snatching a woman's purse, Richard Donahue, a notorious pickpocket, was shot and instantly killed in Chicago Sunday by Policeman Gardilier. Donahue was accompanied by three companions, but the latter managed to escape. The four thieves had been working in a crowd of several hundred people who were watching a fire.

At a country dance three miles south of Gilman, the three Morris brothers, Walter, James and Philip, from Gilman, Ill., were shot. Walter died. The other two will recover, though James was seriously wounded. The shooting followed a fight between the brothers and three or four other guests at the dance. George Morrison did the shooting. He gave himself up to the sheriff and claims he fired in self-defense.

Three men were suffocated to death and three others seriously injured by a fire in a rag shop at 2553 La Salle street, Chicago, last night. The upper story of the building was used as a sleeping room by twenty Italian laborers. Fourteen of the men escaped unhurt, but the other six were overcome by the smoke while asleep. The injured men will recover.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Five Persons Lose Lives In Incendiary Fire.

Houston, Texas, April 29.—In a fire which destroyed a livery stable and three rsidences Sunday morning, five persons were burned to death and several others were injured. The dead:

JOB COPPING, a florist, his wife and three children.

A negro has been arrested on the charge of having started the fire to get revenge on his employer for having discharged him. In the ruins were found the bodies of the victims, among them being an infant which had been born to Mrs. Copping during the progress of the fire.

IS UPHELD BY WIFE

Mrs. Herron Scores the Critics of Her Former Husband.

Friend of Woman Who Weaned Away Husband's Love.

Determined Fight Made By the Critics of Herron.

Columbia, S. C., April 29.—Mrs. Herron, who recently secured a divorce from her husband, Rev. Dr. George G. Herron, of Grinnell, Iowa, is now domiciled at Tyrone, N. C., at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains, a town that harbors celebrities from every quarter of the globe. Mrs. Herron was approached in regard to her recent divorce suit, which has been given much publicity in New York, on account of the refusal of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis to appear Monday night as one of the speakers at a dinner given by the "Get Together" club of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Herron flatly refused to say anything in regard to the facts of her divorce suit. She firmly denied an answer to every question regarding that matter, but talked more freely concerning Dr. Hillis' refusal and the protest against Dr. Herron which has been sent out from Grinnell, his former home. She said she was grateful to Dr. Hillis for his well-meant effort in her behalf, but professed to be ignorant of any reason why she needed defense. As to Dr. Hillis' refusal, she pronounced it "silly."

"It is nonsense," she said, "for those people to refuse to sit down to a dinner in Dr. Herron's honor. If they approve his views they should have no objection to dining with him. One fact in his private life should have no effect on the value of his views. Dr. Hillis, several months ago, expressed hearty approval of a speech of Dr. Herron's, and Dr. Herron's views have not changed since then. If it was right to approve Dr. Herron then it is right now."

Mrs. Herron's attention was called to the statement of Professor Parker, of the university of Iowa, in which he scored Dr. Herron pretty severely. Mrs. Herron said: "Professor Parker is a venerable old man who means well, and I appreciate his efforts in my behalf, but I think his objection to Dr. Herron is more on account of his politics."

When asked if she knew the signers of the Grinnell protest she replied that she knew "some of them in trade." It was evident that Mrs. Herron is in sympathy with Dr. Herron's views as to socialism. When Mrs. Herron was asked if Miss Rand, the wealthy friend and patron of Dr. Herron, were the cause of the divorce, she refused a reply, but said that for eight years Miss Rand had been as intimate in their home as if she were a sister of herself or Dr. Herron. As to a prospective marriage between Dr. Herron and Miss Rand, she said that is their affair. "If," she said, "the marriage takes place the public can draw its own conclusion and if it does not, why, the same is true."

Continuing Mrs. Herron declared that neither Dr. Herron nor Miss Rand had a better friend in the world than herself. She expressed no resentment or hostility toward her former husband or Miss Rand. Returning to the statement of the Grinnell citizens, Mrs. Herron remarked that it was rather late in the day for these people to be saying anything, for they have known for several years all that they know now. They should have spoken out before, she said, but instead of doing that they had waited until she made the matter public. She would say nothing about the divorce, except that it became necessary for Dr. Herron and herself to separate and she had applied for a legal decree which Dr. Herron did not resist.

Mrs. Herron is a woman of ordinary appearance. With her mother and four children she is stopping at a select boarding house in fashionable Tyron, and expects to remain there some time. A sister of Mrs. Herron denied in positive terms that the divorced wife had received $100,000 or $50,000 from Miss Rand. She also declared her sister and Dr. Herron entertained the same religious views.

FIGHT BY CRITICS.

New York, April 29.—The fight between the friends of Professor George D. Herron and his critics has grown to be one of the most bitter and determined on record in this city against any man in public life.

It has already drawn many prominent men into the vortex of denunciation against Professor Herron.

Clergymen, among them some who were formerly his warmest supporters, have turned from him with words of contempt. Supreme Court Justice Gaynor, who was to have presided at the Get-Together club's dinner to be tendered to Professor Herron tonight, and who withdrew his consent; the dinner itself has been abandoned, and Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong, who preached the installation sermon when Professor Herron became a Congregational minister, comes out with this statement:

"If all the facts in the case were known Professor Herron and his female accomplice would not be tolerated in any self-respecting society for an hour."

Professor Herron's Iowan townsmen also condemn him. Professor L. F. Parker, of Iowa college, at Grinnell, says:

"It is nonsense," she said, "for those people to refuse to sit down to a dinner in Dr. Herron's honor. If they approve his views they should have no objection to dining with him. One fact in his private life should have no effect on the value of his views. Dr. Hillis, several months ago, expressed hearty approval of a speech of Dr. Herron's, and Dr. Herron's views have not changed since then. If it was right to approve Dr. Herron then it is right now."

Mrs. Herron's attention was called to the statement of Professor Parker, of the university of Iowa, in which he scored Dr. Herron pretty severely. Mrs. Herron said: "Professor Parker is a venerable old man who means well, and I appreciate his efforts in my behalf, but I think his objection to Dr. Herron is more on account of his politics."

When asked if she knew the signers of the Grinnell protest she replied that she knew "some of them in trade." It was evident that Mrs. Herron is in sympathy with Dr. Herron's views as to socialism. A COTTON RIVAL.

The Japanese Make Immense Purchase of Bombay.

Tacoma, April 29.—The steamship Copack brings news that the shipments of raw cotton from the United States to the Orient will be greatly affected by immense purchases of Bombay cotton, just made by the Cotton Spinners' union, embracing the largest cotton manufacturers of Japan. Their agents have bought 250,000 bales to be shipped within the next few months. Of this quantity the Nippon Yuzen Kaisha will carry 100,000 bales at 12 rupees a ton. Many manufacturers intend to mix Bombay with American cotton, while others will use the former exclusively. It is laid down in Japan cheaper than American cotton.

TO AVOID CLASH.

Chinese Are Doing Their Best at All Points.

Washington, April 29.—The Chinese minister today stated that all information reaching him shows that the imperial authorities are doing their utmost to avoid a clash between the Chinese forces and those under foreign command. This applies not only to the province of Pechili, but also to Manchuria and to the Yang Tse region, as, according to a recent report, an uprising of Boxers is being planned for the coming summer.

The thanks which Li Hung Chang has given to Mr. Rockhill for the course of the United States in the indemnity negotiations is in line with similar thanks which Minister Wu has expressed to Secretary Hay, the Chinese authorities having taken occasion several times to keep the total of indemnity down to a sum which China could reasonably meet.

FIERCELY CONTESTED

Manilla, April 30.—The trial of Capt. Jas. C. Reed, ex-depot commissary at Manilla, charged with soliciting and receiving bribes and with other official misconduct, which began here yesterday, was continued today and was fiercely contested.

Thomas Hafrries, bookkeeper of the firm of Robinson & Macondray, testified that Mr. Robinson paid Capt. Reed $881. The firm's books contained entries to that effect. Fred Macondray testified that he arranged to give Capt. Reed 10 per cent commission on the sales of vegetables furnished to transports. Before testifying, Barry Baldwin, formerly United States marshal for California, and now manager of the Macondray company, shipping merchants, made a statement to the court. He said that attempts had been made to intimidate him, and he asked for the protection of the court. He had an affidavit prepared which he offered to the court, but the latter declined to receive it and returned it to Mr. Baldwin unread. Mr. Baldwin testified to having a $200,000 beef contract. Capt. Reed came to his office and claimed there was slight shortages in the beef deliveries on account of which Mr. Baldwin gave Capt. Reed $345.

Adjt. Gen. Garlington testified that Capt. Reed said Maj. Davis was short 14,500 pounds of beef. He admitted receiving money from Mr. Baldwin, but said the sum he received would be applied to the beef shortage.

ARE SCARED

Cudahy Kidnapers Want to Fix Matters Up.

Offer to Return $21,000 of Ransom Money.

Omaha, April 30.—An unknown person, purporting to be an agent of the kidnapers, has made a proposition to Edward A. Cudahy, to return $21,000 of the money paid for the ransom of his son, who was abducted Dec. 18 last. It demanded in return a withdrawal of the $25,000 reward and a cessation of the search that is being prosecuted, together with an abandonment of the determination to punish the criminals.

This proposition came in a letter from Elgin, Ill., and Mr. Cudahy is convinced of its authenticity. He went to Chicago recently because of it, being summoned there by his brother in response to overtures that had been made. Mr. Cudahy refused to consider the proposition and declares his unchanged resolve to prosecute to the end the search for the men who stole his his boy.

"I received a letter about ten days ago," said Mr. Cudahy. "It was dated Elgin. It was brief and recited that the chief kidnaper had communicated with the writer and was getting uneasy. It set forth that the chase by the detectives was getting uncomfortably close, and asked if I would withdraw the offer now outstanding and let up on the effort to find the criminals and have $21,000 of the $25,000 returned to me.

"It seems that the writer got somewhat in a hurry, for as soon as he mailed the letter he must have slipped right over to Chicago, where he called on my brother, Michael, the same day, which was two weeks ago today. He asked my brother whether I would consider a proposition of that kind. My brother told him that he did not know anything about it, but would ask me to come over to Chicago and talk the matter over, although he did not believe that I would consider it.

"That afternoon I received a telegram from my brother, asking me if I could come over, and I replied that I would be over there in the morning. I left here on the afternoon train and on reaching there learned what had transpired there. I arrived home on Thursday and the letter from Elgin was here awaiting me. The letter was signed and gave directions how a reply should be addressed to reach the writer at Elgin.

"So far as the offer is concerned it has been rejected. I refused absolutely and unqualifiedly to consider it and am determined to prosecute this search as vigorously as I know how. That is what we started out to do, and I feel as if I would follow those men to the ends of the earth.

"I realize that this means $46,000 to me and said sum is certainly an object to any man, no matter what may be his means. As I feel about the matter I would spend my last thousand dollars rather than compromise with the criminals. I am desirous of having them punished for what they have done and to deter any other daring gang from compelling other parents to undergo what we have undergone."

AN AMERICAN OUTLET

London, April 30.—The semi-annual meeting of shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railroad company today was largely attended. The directors' representations showing decreases in the receipts and an increase in the expenses were accepted without criticism. The president, Charles Rivers-Wilson, said the Buffalo exhibition ought to bring largely increased traffic and recommended that the shareholders visit it. He dilated on the advantages which accrued to the Grand Trunk railroad by the new arrangement, allowing it to enter the Union depot at Buffalo.

Referring to the company's intention to spend $400,000 at Portland, Me., for the construction of a new grain elevator. Sir Charles said the feeling in Canada over the patronage of an American port was quite unjustifiable, as Montreal's facilities for shipping and storing grain were extremely inadequate. Sentiment must not be allowed to interfere with business. But he was glad to say Montreal contemplated making considerable improvements. Portland, however, was the natural outlet of the line. The retiring directors were re-elected.

MURDER IS CONFESSED

Dr. J. L. Gartrell, Aged Seventy, and His Son Admit the Killing of a Colorado Miner In Oklahoma.

Kansas City, April 30.—Dr. J. L. Gartrell, 70 years old, today confessed to Chief of Police Hayes that he killed D. B. Donegan, a Colorado miner, whose body was found yesterday in Mulberry creek between Amoret and Nihart, Mo. The confession was in writing. W. P. Gartrell, the doctor's son, confessed to the committing of the crime and to having helped dispose of the body. The men were arrested last night after Dr. Gartrell demanded the proceeds from the sale of Donegan's team and wagon. The younger Gartrell was the first to confess.

Donegan left Colorado for Kansas City, March 15 and was driving overland to Oklahoma when he met the Gartrells. The case has attracted much attention, owing to the similarity with the disappearance of Gilbert Gates, many years ago, and the recent trial and acquittal of the octogenerian, Alex Jester, who was charged with killing Gates. Dr. Gartrell fought in the Confederate army under Gen Price and up to a short time ago was an inmate of the Confederate Soldiers' home at Hillsville, Mo. It appears the Gartrells intended buying a newspaper in Victoria, Texas.

WITHDRAW.

Germans Are Retiring From Position Leaving Garrison Behind.

Berlin, April 30.—It is stated by officials here that the main German expeditionary force in China is now withdrawing to its former position, leaving a garrison at the pass at the Great Wall.

The non-participation of the French in the battle was not due to orders received to orders received from Paris, but to their failure to arrive in time.

Further expeditions are not projected, and will only be undertaken should the Chinese make them necessary.

In official circles it is believed that Gen. Liu acted upon his own initiative, or perhaps at the suggestion of some anti-foreign mandarin, officials not believing that the Chinese government ordered Gen. Liu to resist the Germans, since such action is plainly against the government's interests.

BIG MEETING.

Of Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress Expected.

Cripple Creek, April 30.—Indications are that the meeting of the Trans-Mississippi commercial congress, to be held in June will be the largest in the history of the organization. An attendance of 1500 delegates is expected.

Among the prominent men who have signified their intention to be present are ex-Senator Thurston and William J. Bryan, of Nebraska; Governor Sayers, of Texas, and Joseph Smith, of Utah, head of the Mormon council.

APOLOGIZE.

Chinese Tender Regrets to Returning French Consul.

Paris, April 30.—The foreign office has received a dispatch from Meng Tse announcing the arrival there of M. Francois, the French consul, on his return to his post. M. Francois says that, according to the demands of the French government, he was met by Chinese troops ten kilometers from Meng Tse, who tendered him honors and high mandarins proffered the official apologies and regrets of the Chinese government for the events of last June.

The French consular party under M. Francois, consul at Yun Nan Fu, was attacked June 10 on leaving Yun Nan Fu and was forced to return to the town. All the baggage was rifled, and the buildings were burned. M. Francois gathered his countrymen at his residence and defended the place with rifles. The Francois party was allowed to start for Tonquin, June 24, under the protection of the vinceroy of Yn Nan.

WIDOWS GET PENSIONS.

Washington, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Widows' pensions of $8 per month have been granted to Mary J. Crosland, of Little Falls, and Mary Henry, of Freeport, Minn.

FOUND INDICTMENTS.

St. Louis, April 30.—The Globe-Democrat today says: The April grand jury, which has been in session since the first of the month, made a partial report yesterday, reporting, it is said, seventeen indictments against Democrats, charging them with fraudulent voting and repeating. The names of the indicted persons have not been given out officially.

ONE GRAND OVATION

Presidential Party Most Warmly Welcomed at Every Stop.

Many People Remained Up Late at Night to See Special.

Elaborate Plans of Reception Made at Various Cities.

Stevenson, Ala., April 30.—President McKinley and party arrived here at 7:10 o'clock this morning, on schedule time. At almost every station passed during the night crowds of people who had remained up to see the special, cheered as it sped by.

Denver, April 30.—Various Colorado committees will meet President McKinley and party at the state line.

At Glenwood Springs the president will be entertained by the millionaire mine owner, Thomas Walsh, who has arranged for a magnificent reception to be given in the hotel Colorado. The reception will be unique and will be made memorable by souvenirs worked in gold.

Next to the reception in Denver, that in Glenwood Springs is planned to be the largest given the president in Colorado.

Huntsville, Ala., April 30.—Scenes attending the passage of the presidential train along the route today, was a repetition of those of yesterday. Crowds at every station cheered and waved to the passing train and every farm house and cross roads had its group of eager watchers.

At Huntsville, a stop of ten minutes was made. Apparently the entire population of the town turned out to welcome the president. A big cotton mill is located here, and hundreds of the employes were at the station. A band was playing as the train drew up to the station.

The president was introduced by Judge Richardson, Gen. Joseph Wheeler's successor in congress. The president responded as follows:

"I greatly appreciate, and return to all of you my thanks for this welcome so warmly and so generously bestowed. If I have been in any sense the instrument in the hands of the people to bring together the North and South, it is the highest distinction that I covet. I am glad to see the boys in gray uniting in giving the reception. Once foes, now friends forever—(great applause)—once with hostile arms in their hands, now with affection in their hearts, one for another, and both united in love and loyalty for the flag and for the land we love. We are not a military people, we are not dedicated to arms. We love peace, and the United States never goes to war except for peace, and only where it can have it no other way. We have never gone to war for conquest, for exploitation or for territory, but always for liberty and humanity, and in our recent war with Spain, the people of the whole United States as one man marched with the flag for the honor of the nation to relieve the oppressed people in Cuba.

"The United States has never acquired a foot of territory that has not been forever dedicated to liberty. I feel almost like apologizing for having taken from you Gen. Wheeler—(great applause)—but my compensation is found in the fact that you have elected a distinguished successor to represent you." (Great applause).

Secretary Hitchcock, who was born in Mobile, was called upon. The secretary was plainly touched as he referred to his early days in Alabama and the tender memories which clustered about his native state. Mrs. McKinley was also called to the platform and fairly deluged with roses and wild flowers.

Memphis, April. 30.—This city will extend a fitting welcome to President McKinley and party, who will arrive by the Southern railroad at 4:30 p. m. A committee of citizens left during the morning for Corinth, Miss., where they will meet the presidential party and escort them to the city. At the depot the visitors will be received by the city officials and a military company of confederate veterans, acting as guard of honor. They will be escorted to Court square, where addresses of welcome will be made by Governor McMillin and Mayor Williams. President McKinley will respond.

A reception will be given during the afternoon at the Nineteenth Century club. This evening, a banquet will be given the male members of the party, while the ladies are being entertained by representative Memphis women. President McKinley and party will then return to the train and leave early in the morning for Vicksburg and New Orleans.

Decatur, Ala., April 30.—All the steam whistles screamed a greeting at Decatur, the home of Gen. Joseph Wheeler, as the president's train entered the city and the fellow townsmen of the redoubtable old veteran gave the executive a particularly enthusiastic reception. The train passed under two big American flags, hung above the track.

COLLAPSED

Philippine Rebellion Practically Over.

Leading Filipino Generals Surrendered.

Minn. Hist'l Society

Washington, April 30.—Two important cablegrams were received today at the war department from Gen. MacArthur, at Manilla. In the opinion of the officials the news contained in them marks the almost complete collapse of organized rebellion in the islands. The cablegrams are as follows:

"Gen. Tinio surrendered with his command today at Sinait. He will deliver all men and guns in his command as soon as they can be gathered together. This completely pacifies the first department, Northern Luzon, for many months the worst in Luzon.

"Col. Ciprano Callao and Col. Gregorio Latibac Malyars, surrendered to Col. Jacob Kline, at Lipa, on April 28, with twenty-three officers, 108 men and eighty-six rifles."

Tinio is said here to have been with Alejandrino, one of the highest officers in the insurrectionary force. He was in command in Northern Luzon during the famous chase after Commander Gilmore.

Malvars, one of the colonels who surrendered to Kline, was also one of the best known Filipino leaders. He was Lawton's most formidable foe and commanded the insurrectos at the fight at Sapote river, the most serious battle fought in the islands. He has confined his operations to Southern Luzon, which never has been completely subjugated, and Lipa, where the surrender occurred, has long been one of the principal insurgent arsenals.

It is said at the war department by officers recently back from the Philippines, that there now remains in the field in Luzon only one chief whom they are particularly desirous of catching, namely, Caliles, the head hunter. This man has violated every rule of warfare, and it is not expected that he will be taken alive.

Later, the following cablegram, dated today, at Manilla, was received from Gen. MacArthur, announcing several other important surrenders in the Philippines:

"Juan and Blas Villamor, leaders, Abra, surrendered, Bangued, April 27; now engaged assembling scattered commands, delivered arms. Aglipay, ex priest, leader, Ilocos, Norte province, Luzon, surrendered at Laoag, April 28."

Manilla, April 30, 6:20 p. m.—Gen. Tinio, the Filipino leader in the Abra province, has surrendered. Gen. Tinio, with his entire command, surrendered April 20 to Capt. Crug (Craig?) at Sinait, province of South Ilocos.

Manilla, April 30, 3 p. m.—The report that Gen. Alexandrino has surrendered is confirmed. He was looked upon as the possible successor of Aguinaldo. Padre Aglipay, the excommunicated Filipino priest, who preached the doctrine of a holy war against the United States, has also surrendered.

Aguinaldo has been subpoenaed as a witness in a Mando Ducat murder case pending in Taytay, province of Morong. Capt. John B. McDonald, with twenty-one men of the Third cavalry, recently attacked sixty insurgent riflemen and forty Bolomen in the mountains of Abra province. The insurgents were defeated. Capt. McDonald was wounded in the lungs and a private was killed.

THE STEAMSHIP DEAL

The Details of the Sale of the Leyland Line of Ocean Steamers to the Syndicate Headed By J. P. Morgan.

London, April 30.—A circular was issued this morning by Chairman Ellerman, of the Leyland line, in which the shareholders are informed that he has entered into a provisional contract with J. Pierpont Morgan for the sale of his entire holdings of ordinary shares in the seamship line, namely, 71,000 shares at £14 10s per share for each £10 share and that Morgan agrees to purchase on similar terms all ordinary shares offered before May 26. Holders of a great majority of the ordinary shares have, according to the circular intimated to Mr. Ellerman that they will avail themselves of the offer of Mr. Morgan and the effect will be that purchasers will become owners of practically all the ordinary shares of the American corporation at a cost of upwards of £1,750,000 sterling. Mr. Ellerman binds himself not to engage either directly or indirectly in the North Atlantic trade either with the United Kingdom or the continent, except, between Antwerp and Montreal, for a term of fourteen years, on condition that the purchasers sell him the Mediterranean, Portugal and Montreal fleets and the business connected therewith at an agreed on price. Mr. Ellerman adds that he proposes to retain his entire holding in preference shares, amounting to over £180,000 sterling and his co-directors will retain in all their preference holdings, amounting to £120,000 sterling. Mr. Ellerman also offers to buy any preference shares at par and their accrued interest. A circular issued by the secretary of the Leyland line accompanies Mr. Ellerman's circular. It explains that the directors, including Ellerman, hold £886,688 sterling out of £1,200,000 sterling ordinary share capital and £314,800 sterling out of £1,415,000 sterling preference capital. Several of the directors intend to vote in support of Mr. Ellerman's arrangement at all the meetings called in connection therewith.

The secretary adds: "It is anticipated that practically all the ordinary shareholders will accept the offer and the effect will be that the Morgans will hold £1,200,000 sterling ordinaries at a cost of over £1,750,000 sterling."

A meeting of the shareholders has been called for May 7.

LOST ONE PROPELLER

American Liner New York Arrives After a Slow Passage Due to Accident When Two Days Out.

New York, April 30.—The American line steamer New York, which sailed from Southampton on April 20, reached her pier today, after a very slow passage. On Monday, April 22, at 7:30 a. m., when only thirty-eight hours out from Cherbourg, the port propeller tail end shaft was carried away. The steamer proceeded under her starboard engine at the rate of about fourteen knots an hour. There was no excitement among the passengers when the accident occurred, many of them not even being aware of the loss of the propeller until informed of it by the ship's officers. During the whole voyage made the weather was bad. The New York brought 86 saloon, 176 second cabin and 550 steerage passengers. Among the saloon passengers was Count Stanislaus Colacicchi, who brings the red hat to Cardinal Martinelli.

CREW SAVED.

New York, April 30.—The Panama Railroad Steamship company's steamer City of Washington, which arrived here today from Colon had on board the crew of eight men of the schooner Emma C. Knowles, which was discovered off Barnegat one day last week on her beam ends and abandoned. The crew were picked up by the steamer Allianca, of the same line, bound from New York for Colon, on April 23, after the steamer had been in collision with the steamer. The Allianca transferred them to the City of Washington April 26. he Knowles was bound from Charleston to Fall River, and it was feared that her crew had all been lost. She was towed to Philadelphia.

MUSICAL CLUBS.

National Convention Opens Tuesday at Cleveland.

Cleveland, April 30.—The second biennial convention of the National Federation of Musical Clubs opened here today with a large attendance. Mrs. J. H. Webster, of this city, first vice president of the federation, delivered the address of welcome, and Mrs. E. F. Uhl responded, after which the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. A notable feature of the schedule sessions of the convention will be the concerts to be given by the Fortnightly club, the Philarmonic String quartet, the Pittsburg orchestra, and several notable soloists, including Mme. Schumann Heink, contralto; Mme. Bloomfield Zeisler, pianist; Mrs. S. C. Ford, soprano, and Sol Marcosson, violinist.

FIERCELY CONTESTED

Manilla, April 30.—The trial of Capt. Jas. C. Reed, ex-depot commissary at Manilla, charged with soliciting and receiving bribes and with other official misconduct, which began here yesterday, was continued today and was fiercely contested.

Thomas Hafrries, bookkeeper of the firm of Robinson & Macondray, testified that Mr. Robinson paid Capt. Reed $881. The firm's books contained entries to that effect. Fred Macondray testified that he arranged to give Capt. Reed 10 per cent commission on the sales of vegetables furnished to transports. Before testifying, Barry Baldwin, formerly United States marshal for California, and now manager of the Macondray company, shipping merchants, made a statement to the court. He said that attempts had been made to intimidate him, and he asked for the protection of the court. He had an affidavit prepared which he offered to the court, but the latter declined to receive it and returned it to Mr. Baldwin unread. Mr. Baldwin testified to having a $200,000 beef contract. Capt. Reed came to his office and claimed there was slight shortages in the beef deliveries on account of which Mr. Baldwin gave Capt. Reed $345.

Adjt. Gen. Garlington testified that Capt. Reed said Maj. Davis was short 14,500 pounds of beef. He admitted receiving money from Mr. Baldwin, but said the sum he received would be applied to the beef shortage.

ARE SCARED

Cudahy Kidnapers Want to Fix Matters Up.

Offer to Return $21,000 of Ransom Money.

Omaha, April 30.—An unknown person, purporting to be an agent of the kidnapers, has made a proposition to Edward A. Cudahy, to return $21,000 of the money paid for the ransom of his son, who was abducted Dec. 18 last. It demanded in return a withdrawal of the $25,000 reward and a cessation of the search that is being prosecuted, together with an abandonment of the determination to punish the criminals.

This proposition came in a letter from Elgin, Ill., and Mr. Cudahy is convinced of its authenticity. He went to Chicago recently because of it, being summoned there by his brother in response to overtures that had been made. Mr. Cudahy refused to consider the proposition and declares his unchanged resolve to prosecute to the end the search for the men who stole his his boy.

"I received a letter about ten days ago," said Mr. Cudahy. "It was dated Elgin. It was brief and recited that the chief kidnaper had communicated with the writer and was getting uneasy. It set forth that the chase by the detectives was getting uncomfortably close, and asked if I would withdraw the offer now outstanding and let up on the effort to find the criminals and have $21,000 of the $25,000 returned to me.

"It seems that the writer got somewhat in a hurry, for as soon as he mailed the letter he must have slipped right over to Chicago, where he called on my brother, Michael, the same day, which was two weeks ago today. He asked my brother whether I would consider a proposition of that kind. My brother told him that he did not know anything about it, but would ask me to come over to Chicago and talk the matter over, although he did not believe that I would consider it.

"That afternoon I received a telegram from my brother, asking me if I could come over, and I replied that I would be over there in the morning. I left here on the afternoon train and on reaching there learned what had transpired there. I arrived home on Thursday and the letter from Elgin was here awaiting me. The letter was signed and gave directions how a reply should be addressed to reach the writer at Elgin.

"So far as the offed is concerned it has been rejected. I refused absolutely and unqualifiedly to consider it and am determined to prosecute this search as vigorously as I know how. That is what we started out to do, and I feel as if I would follow those men to the ends of the earth.

"I realize that this means $46,000 to me and said sum is certainly an object to any man, no matter what may be his means. As I feel about the matter I would spend my last thousand dollars rather than compromise with the criminals. I am desirous of having them punished for what they have done and to deter any other daring gang from compelling other parents to undergo what we have undergone."

AN AMERICAN OUTLET

London, April 30.—The semi-annual meeting of shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railroad company today was largely attended. The directors' representations showing decreases in the receipts and an increase in the expenses were accepted without criticism. The president, Charles Rivers-Wilson, said the Buffalo exhibition ought to bring largely increased traffic and recommended that the shareholders visit it. He dilated on the advantages which accrued to the Grand Trunk railroad by the new arrangement, allowing it to enter the Union depot at Buffalo.

Referring to the company's intention to spend $400,000 at Portland, Me., for the construction of a new grain elevator. Sir Charles said the feeling in Canada over the patronage of an American port was quite unjustifiable, as Montreal's facilities for shipping and storing grain were extremely inadequate. Sentiment must not be allowed to interfere with business. But he was glad to say Montreal contemplated making considerable improvements. Portland, however, was the natural outlet of the line. The retiring directors were re-elected.

MURDER IS CONFESSED

Dr. J. L. Gartrell, Aged Seventy, and His Son Admit the Killing of a Colorado Miner In Oklahoma.

Kansas City, April 30.—Dr. J. L. Gartrell, 70 years old, today confessed to Chief of Police Hayes that he killed D. B. Donegan, a Colorado miner, whose body was found yesterday in Mulberry creek between Amoret and Nihart, Mo. The confession was in writing. W. P. Gartrell, the doctor's son, confessed to the committing of the crime and to having helped dispose of the body. The men were arrested last night after Dr. Gartrell demanded the proceeds from the sale of Donegan's team and wagon. The younger Gartrell was the first to confess.

Donegan left Colorado for Kansas City, March 15 and was driving overland to Oklahoma when he met the Gartrells. The case has attracted much attention, owing to the similarity with the disappearance of Gilbert Gates, many years ago, and the recent trial and acquittal of the octogenerian, Alex Jester, who was charged with killing Gates. Dr. Gartrell fought in the Confederate army under Gen. Price and up to a short time ago was an inmate of the Confederate Soldiers' home at Hillsville, Mo. It appears the Gartrells intended buying a newspaper in Victoria, Texas.

WITHDRAW.

Germans Are Retiring From Position Leaving Garrison Behind.

Berlin, April 30.—It is stated by officials here that the main German expeditionary force in China is now withdrawing to its former position, leaving a garrison at the pass at the Great Wall.

The non-participation of the French in the battle was not due to orders received to orders received from Paris, but to their failure to arrive in time.

Further expeditions are not projected, and will only be undertaken should the Chinese make them necessary.

In official circles it is believed that Gen. Liu acted upon his own initiative, or perhaps at the suggestion of some anti-foreign mandarin, officials not believing that the Chinese government ordered Gen. Liu to resist the Germans, since such action is plainly against the government's interests.

BIG MEETING.

Of Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress Expected.

Cripple Creek, April 30.—Indications are that the meeting of the Trans-Mississippi commercial congress, to be held in June will be the largest in the history of the organization. An attendance of 1500 delegates is expected.

Among the prominent men who have signified their intention to be present are ex-Senator Thurston and William J. Bryan, of Nebraska; Governor Sayers, of Texas, and Joseph Smith, of Utah, head of the Mormon council.

APOLOGIZE.

Chinese Tender Regrets to Returning French Consul.

Paris, April 30.—The foreign office has received a dispatch from Meng Tse announcing the arrival there of M. Francois, the French consul, on his return to his post. M. Francois says that, according to the demands of the French government, he was met by Chinese troops ten kilometers from Meng Tse, who tendered him honors and high mandarins proffered the the official apologies and regrets of the Chinese government for the events of last June.

The French consular party under M. Francois, consul at Yun Nan Fu, was attacked June 10 on leaving Yun Nan Fu and was forced to return to the town. All the baggage was rifled, and the buildings were burned. M. Francois gathered his countrymen at his residence and defended the place with rifles. The Francois party was allowed to start for Tonquin, June 24, under the protection of the vinceroy of Yn Nan.

FOUND INDICTMENTS.

St. Louis, April 30.—The Globe-Democrat today says: The April grand jury, which has been in session since the first of the month, made a partial report yesterday, reporting, it is said, seventeen indictments against Democrats, charging them with fraudulent voting and repeating. The names of the indicted persons have not been given out officially.

ONE GRAND OVATION

Presidential Party Most Warmly Welcomed at Every Stop.

Many People Remained Up Late at Night to See Special.

Stevenson, Ala., April 30.—President McKinley and party arrived here at 7:10 o'clock this morning, on schedule time. At almost every station passed during the night crowds of people who had remained up to see the special, cheered as it sped by.

Denver, April 30.—Various Colorado committees will meet President McKinley and party at the state line.

At Glenwood Springs the president will be entertained by the millionaire mine owner, Thomas Walsh, who has arranged for a magnificent reception to be given in the hotel Colorado. The reception will be unique and will be made memorable by souvenirs worked in gold.

Several of the directors intend to vote in support of Mr. Ellerman's arrangement at all the meetings called in connection therewith.

The secretary adds: "It is anticipated that practically all the ordinary shareholders will accept the offer and the effect will be that the Morgans will hold £1,200,000 sterling ordinaries at a cost of over £1,750,000 sterling."

A meeting of the shareholders has been called for May 7.

LOST ONE PROPELLER

American Liner New York Arrives After a Slow Passage Due to Accident When Two Days Out.

New York, April 30.—The American line steamer New York, which sailed from Southampton on April 20, reached her pier today, after a very slow passage. On Monday, April 22, at 7:30 a. m., when only thirty-eight hours out from Cherbourg, the port propeller tail end shaft was carried away. The steamer proceeded under her starboard engine at the rate of about fourteen knots an hour. There was no excitement among the passengers when the accident occurred, many of them not even being aware of the loss of the propeller until informed of it by the ship's officers. During the whole voyage made the weather was bad. The New York brought 86 saloon, 176 second cabin and 550 steerage passengers. Among the saloon passengers was Count Stanislaus Colaicchi, who brings the red hat to Cardinal Martinelli.

CREW SAVED.

New York, April 30.—The Panama Railroad Steamship company's steamer City of Washington, which arrived here today from Colon had on board the crew of eight men of the schooner Emma C. Knowles, which was discovered off Barnegat one day last week on her beam ends and abandoned. The crew were picked up by the steamer Alliance, of the same line, bound from New York for Colon, on April 23, after the steamer had been in collision with the steamer. The Alliance transferred them to the City of Washington April 26. The Knowles was bound from Charleston to Fall River, and it was feared that her crew had all been lost. She was towed to Philadelphia.

MUSICAL CLUBS.

National Convention Opens Tuesday at Cleveland.

Cleveland, April 30.—The second biennial convention of the National Federation of Musical Clubs opened here today with a large attendance. Mrs. J. H. Webster, of this city, first vice president of the federation, delivered the address of welcome, and Mrs. E. F. Uhl responded, after which the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. A notable feature of the schedule sessions of the convention will be the concerts to be given by the Fortnightly club, the Philarmonic String quartet, the Pittsburg orchestra, and several notable soloists, including Mme. Schumann Heink, contralto; Mme. Bloomfield Zeisler, pianist; Mrs. S. C. Ford, soprano, and Sol Marcosson, violinist.

AT WEST DULUTH

The West Duluth Republican club held another meeting last evening and decided to hold its much-talked of banquet in the Great Eastern hall, on the evening of May 25. When Governor Van Sant was in the city a few days ago he accepted an invitation to attend the banquet, and suggested that the date given might be the most convenient. He has been written since to see if he will be here on that date, but no answer has yet been received. The committee believes, however, that the governor will fulfill expectations and will go ahead with arrangements. Senator Clapp and Congressman Page Morris have signified their willingness to be present unless something unforseen prevents. Both of these gentlemen and the governor will deliver addresses. Mayor Hugo will also participate in the program. The following is the committee in charge of arrangements: C. W. Nitterauer, Otto Gifvert, Alderman L. A. Barnes, City Assessor Thomas Olafson and Justice of the Peace Robert C. Stone.

TO OPEN RALEIGH STREET.

A movement is on foot for the opening of Raleigh, or Second street, in West Duluth, through from Central avenue eastward to Fifteenth avenue. A communication, signed by a number of the residents on Raleigh street, petitioning for this extention, was presented at the council last evening. The reason set forth for the extension is that the men working at the mills, which are nearly in line of the proposed route, have to walk about four blocks out of their way to reach the scene of their work. Business men that live on the street have signed the petition, because they believe their trade is injured by the abrupt ending of the street at Central avenue. The peptition was referred to the board of public works. If the street were extended it would cut through the yards, inclosing the old car works, and would pass between the dry house and the main plant. The extension would necessarily be about five blocks, and the greater part of the distance would be through a swamp.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Somebody set fire to an old shack on Central avenue, near Main street, last evening and the fire department was called out. The building has not been occupied for about two years. The damage was nominal.

The council has ordered new walks on the following streets in West Duluth: North side of Grand avenue, from a point 48 feet west of Fifty-fifth to Fifty-eighth, Fifty-eighth to Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth to Fifty-ninth; south side of Grand avenue, from Fifty-ninth, 760 feet west; from Fifty-seventh to Fifty-ninth; both sides of Main street, from Fifty-fifth to Fifty-ninth; north side of Raleigh street, from a point 25 feet east of Fifty-sixth to Sixtieth.

The West Duluth branch of the W. C. T. U. will hold its next meeting at the Congregational church on Thursday afternoon. The topic for discussion is "Religious Training in the Home." Rev. John Wilson, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, will give a talk on the subject, followed by a general discussion.

The ladies of the Asbury M. E. church will entertain tomorrow afternoon, from 2:30 to 5 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Judd Potter, 221 Fifty-third avenue west.

S. A. Brabant left on Sunday to resume his work at the sawmill of the Red Cliff Lumber company. He was accompanied to the station by a number of friends and given a good send-off. Mr. Brabant will not return until July 4.

While engaged in a friendly scuffle last evening, John Wangen, who drives the delivery wagon for O. T. Strand, slipped and broke his leg.

Axel Bergren, formerly with Wieland & Wade, has accepted a pposition with the De Long Hardware company, of West Superior.

Mrs. S. Hendrickson will leave tomorrow for a three months' visit in Sweden.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Green, of Proctorknott.

P. F. Smith, of Bridgeport, Wis., is the guest of West Duluth friends.

Mrs. J. A. Kline and sister, Miss Margaret Johnson, left yesterday for Madison, where they will visit their mother.

Mrs. Andrew Thompson, who has been sick for some time, was taken last evening to her parents' home in Missouri. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. C. J. Crann, her husband and daughter, Miss Birdie.

Miss Mary Stafford has returned to the Phillips hotel.

The Senate club will have a business meeting tonight.

There was a large crowd of West Duluthians at the K. of P. band concert at the Armory last evening. The affair was quite a success, the music being fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonne, of Gaylord, Wis., are visiting the family of Charles Kort for a few days. Mr. Bonne resided in West Duluth about nine years ago, when he was in the real estate business.

Ransom Tupper, of St. Joseph, Mo., was among the guests at the banquet given last evening by Palestine lodge, A. F. & A. M.

Magner Will Investigate.

The municipal employment bureau commissioners held a meeting in the Providence building last night and discussed plan for the opening of the city's free labor agency.

Prfesident W. E. Magner, announced at the meeting that a business trip would take him to Seattle within the next week or so, and while out there he would make a thorough investigation of the workings of the Seattle bureau, which is acknowledged to be the best in the United States. The other two commissioners decided to go ahead with plans for the bureau's organization, but will take no definite steps till Mr. Magner returns.

TO CONSIDER.

Judge Ensign Takes the Pierce Motion Under Advisement.

The motion for a new trial in the case of Dr. Thomas J. Pierce, convicted of abortion at the last term of district court, was taken under advisement by Judge Ensign this morning. The arguments began yesterday afternoon and they were still in progress when court adjourned at 5 o'clock. County Attorney McClintock appeared for the state and J. B. Richards and M. H. McMahon appeared for the defendant.

The motion was based on three grounds. It was claimed that the verdict was not justified by the evidence, and that there were errors in law occurring at the trial. The third ground was that there was newly discovered evidence that could not have been found by due search at the time of the trial. The new evidence shown by the affidavits was in the nature of impeaching testimony, offsetting the evidence of the complaining witness to the effect that during the three months in which her visit to Dr. Pierce's office she had worked only in one place and carned money from that source only. Affidavits were submitted showing that a part of the time the girl worked at another place and was paid wages for doing so.

As some considerable review of the evidence and the law will be necessary in determining the case, and there is a general term of court coming on, it is not likely that a decision will be forthcoming at a very early date.

Gets No Discharge.

Judge Lochren has declined to grant the application of Robert Buckman to be discharged from bankruptcy. Buckman was the proprietor of a small clothing store on West Superior street, which failed some months ago. His creditors objected to his discharge on the ground of irregularities in his schedules, and the result is the refusal of Judge Lochren to relieve him from his liabilities.

NIHILISTS.

Extensive Plot Discovered and Six Hundred Arrests Made.

Berlin, April 30.—The Lokal Anzeiger prints a dispatch from Breslau, which says:

"An extensive nihlistic plot has been discovered in Russia and Poland. Six hundred arrests were made today, of which number 200 were transported by special train to the Warsaw citadel. The towns of Sosnovice, Sielce and Dombrowa have been occupied by two companies of Cossacks. Secret correspondence was discovered at Sielce by which the plot was revealed."

AGAINST ELSTON.

Decision In the Cass Lake Hotel Case.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the case of the Cass Land company against Ed Elston, bankrupt, for possession involving title to the Elston hotel, before Justice Cummings today, the latter decided that the defendaut must give up possession of the property because he had only a lease and not a contract. The Cass Land company will, within a few days, reopen the hotel under new management.

BRINGS A SUIT

Mrs. Hattie Sheehan Institutes a Sensational Damage Suit.

Claims Her Husband's Affections Have Been Alienated.

Defendant a Well Known Resident of St. Croix District.

Is a Duluth man's affection only worth $25,000? A Minneapolis woman claims that is all, but Duluth men who were approached with the question today were unanimous in the assertion that it is a slanderously low estimate. However, the Minneapolis woman will endeavor to prove that local masculine yearings in a matrimonial way are only about as valuable as Consolidated stock, in the district court in the very near future.

She has brought a $25,000 damage suit against Marion A. Scarborough, of 233 St. Croix avenue, for allenating the affections of her husband, Tim Sheehan. Marion A. Scarborough is known in this city as Belle Stanley, while Mr. Sheehan is a well known plumber.

The suit was started by Mrs. Hattie Sheehan in Minneapolis yesterday and will be brought before the district court of St. Louis county on a change of venue. In the complaint, Mrs. Sheehan swears that she valued her husband's love at $25,000. She says that they were married in West Superior some years ago, and lived happily until Mr. Sheehan met the pulchritudinous Marion A. Scarborough. The complaint then alleges that the defendant captured her husband's affections so completely that he "deliberately went to pieces" and allowed his plumbing business to go to ruin.

SENIOR CLASS PLAYS.

To Present Two By John Kendrick Bangs.

During the year the high school has given a number of excellent entertainments to which the public has been admitted free of charge and all of them have had a most liberal patronage from the point of view of attendance, but a very slight pecuniary gain has been the result. Still those taking part have given their services freely and the participants have doubtless derived as much benefit from them as have their audiences derived pleasure. As an example, the annual sacred concert which was given last Sunday in the assembly hall of the high school was of such a nature that had it been given by almost any other society in the city a good sized audience could have been secured with an admission of seventy-five cents or a dollar. The other entertainments given during the year have been of a like nature. The senior class has prepared an entertainment consisting of two comedies from the gifted pen of John Kendrick Bangs, which it will present at the high school next Friday evening, it is hoped, before as large an audience as the free entertainments have had. "The Bicyclers" and "A Proposal Under Difficulties" are without doubt two bright, amusing plays and the present senior class has from its entrance into the high school shown an abundance of dramatic ability which, when supported by hard work, will undoubtedly make the affair a success. The money received from the sale of tickets will be used to defray some of the expenses necessitated by the publication of the high school annual, the "Zenith," and the remainder will go towards different branches in the high school.

The Federal Court.

The May term of the United States court will open in this city in the federal building two weeks from today. The outlook at the present time is that the district court calendar will be a large one, there being a good many criminal cases, and that the circuit court calendar will be light.

Answer Is Filed.

An answer has been filed in district court in the case of the insolvent estate of N. P. Clarke & Co. against the estate of Clara C. McClure, a sister of the Clarkes. The suit was brought to set aside some transfers of property by the Clarkes to Mrs. McClure, the claim being made that they were made to defraud the creditors. This is denied, the defense claiming that the transfers were legitimate and without any intent to evade the insolvency proceedings or to give a preference to any creditor.

"Wonderland," 1901.

The 1901 "Wonderland," the annual publication of the Northern Pacific system, will be out tomorrow, and as usual it will be a very interesting and handsome publication, this year's issue being the best so far in every respect. The features cover a variety of absorbing topics, such as "The Custer Battlefield," and a number of attractively written articles descriptive of the great Northwest. Primarily issued as an advertisement for the Northern Pacific system, the publication has gone far beyond that, and it is a handsomely printed and illustrated book, full of iterest to everybody, and its articles are of great historical interest.

THE DAKOTAS.

Sioux Falls Selects Library Site After Long Wrangle.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The city council, after having had the matter under consideration for several months, has finally decided upon a site for the public labrary to be erected in this city by Andrew Carnegie. The steel king donated the sum of $25,000 for the purpose. It was very difficult for the council to make a selection. Several sites have been under consideration, each of which had strong supporters. The site selected cost $4250, and it is on the corner of Tenth street and Dakota avenue, near the business residence center of the city.

George Wells, of Clear Lake, this county, who last week pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing grain from a neighbor and who was to have been sentenced Monday, attempted to commit suicide in the jail by hanging himself with a towel. He was cut down by the jailer and is now on the verge of nervous prostration.

Pierre—The body of Nick Biewer was found floating in the river about fifteen miles below this city. Biewer went through the ice about six weeks ago in an attempt to cross the river and the body was found six miles below the place where he went in.

Hot Springs—Col. Arthur Linn, who has been commandant of the Soldiers' home for the past four years, took his departure Sunday for his home in Canton. His successor, Col. Lucas, is expected this week. There will not be any change among subordinate officers until the July meeting of the board. There are several applicants for the positions.

Bath—A bounty on gophers, which has been paid by the county commissioners for several years, is popular with the juvenile portion of the population and also with some of the older people. There are two varieties of gophers, the large, or "flicker-tail," which does a great deal of damage to grain by pulling down the stem and eating the heads, a single specimen often destroying several square rods in a patch, and the small, or striped, which do very little damage. This year the bounty is 2 cents per tail for both kinds, the time in which it is paid being limited to the first of May.

Mitchell—The smallpox scare is rapidly dying out in this city. Every case has been put under a strict quarantine and will be kept there until there is no possible danger of contagion. More restrictive measures have been adopted in the city school, and while the situation is not deemed sufficiently dangerous to close the schools sentirely, the board has adopted regulations that will keep out all children who are known to have been exposed in the remotest manner. None of the cases is at all serious and no deaths have resulted.

Huron—J. A. Bromaghin has invented a machine for shocking grain. The invention is attached to a self-binder and shocks the grain as rapidly as the machine cuts and binds it.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The action of Maj. Cushing, the proprietor of an employment agency here, against Louis Hotop, for $2500 damages, was dismissed by Judge Pollock. Cushing bought the agency from Hotop on condition that the latter would not re-engage in the business. Later Hotop began to act as manager for another agency, and injunction papers were asked for and later the damage suit started. The court held the contract was void.

Ellendale—After an investigation by State's Attorney Cady, the case against Mrs. Charles Brucker for the killing of her husband was dismissed. Mrs. Brucker is making an effort to collect the $2000 insurance held in the Woodmen by her late husband. Her attorney, J. M. Austin, received word by 'phone from the Kulm camp that the draft for the amount would be turned over to her, and she left for Kulm.

Jamestown—That the shirt waist will be popular in Jamestown and other towns of the state is shown by the fact that already the garment is being worn. At a ball given by young people of Jamestown, several gentlemen appeared in shirt waists. The innovation created some surprise, but the young men say this will be are correct costume for balls for the summer season

Lisbon—John Eckstrom, of Seldon, who was convicted of keeping a blind pig and sentenced to prison for 100 days and to pay a fine of $250 and costs, has been released after serving 242 days.

Medora—Three tramps named McDonald, Paisley and Harris broke into Roselle's restaurant, at Sentinel Butte, and stole cigars and liquors. Judge Winchester sentenced them to four years each in the penitentiary. Louis Arnett was acquitted.

Grand Forks—Ex-County Auditor J. W. Scott has defied the officers of the law and attempted to prevent a quarantine being established against his farm at Gilby.

A peculiar condition of affairs exists as regards the care of feeble-minded persons. The county board of insanity adjudged Miss Nellie Alway insane and ordered her committed to the asylum at Jamestown. Superintendent Moore refused to accept her as a charge, stating that she was properly a subject for a home for the feeble-minded. There is no institution for feeble-minded people in the state.

MARRIED IN LONDON.

Nuptials of Bayard Cutting and Lady Cuffe.

London, April 30.—W. Bayard Cutting, Jr., secretary of the United States embassy here, and Lady Sybil Cuffe, daughter of the earl of Desart, were married today at All Saints' church, this city. The wedding was a comparatively quiet affair. The bride was dressed in ivory satin, with a court train, and Brussels lace and wore pearl and diamond ornaments. Two pages in watteau costumes of pale blue satin acted as train bearers. There were eight bridesmaids. Joseph H. Choate, United States ambassador, and the other members of the embassy, were among the few guests present outside of the families of the bride and bridegroom. Subsequently there was a reception at the residence of the bride's parents.

INSURANCE PAID.

Companies Pay $400,000 on Rio Loss.

San Francisco, April 30.—All the insurance on the cargo of the wrecked steamer Rio Janeiro, amounting to $400,000, has been paid. It is not known how much insurance was carried on the vessel. The collector at Honolulu sent over by the Rio $30,000 in treasures not insured. The company also carried many thousands in its safe on which there was no insurance. The most valuable portion of the cargo was raw silk. The loss of the Rio was the climax of a series of heavy marine losses here and in London. As a result the local agencies of all the foreign marine companies have received notice to cut down the size of lines which they carry.

READY TO FIGHT.

McGovern and Gardner Meet Tuesday Evening.

San Francisco, April 30.—Terry McGovern and Oscar Gardner quit training yesterday for their glove contest, which will take place at the Mechanics' Pavilion this evening. Both will do a little road work today so as to keep down to the required weight—124 pounds—at 3 p. m. today. Harry Corbett will referee the fight. Both men have been pronounced physically sound by a physician, after a careful examination. McGovern and Gardner met at a photograph gallery in ring costume, and each expressed himself as pleased with the other's condition. There has not been much betting on the event, but the pool rooms offer 3 to 10 on McGovern.

McGovern has agreed to referee the fight between Neill and Trimble, at Bakersfield, on Thursday night, and previous to the contest will spar with Danny Dougerty.

The Ladies of Welcome Hive 37, L. O. T. M., will give a Card Party Wednesday Evening, May 1st, At Columbia Hall. Refreshments served. Tickets 25c.

Copper is Safe!

There are some investments that have a "string tied to them," so to speak, either the weather, or the crop, or the markets, or a dozen other things enter in and a great big "IF" looms up before the investor.

But a Copper Mine goes along and does business year after year if there is copper there.

We can prove that ours has.

Reports from the most expert mining men in the country all show that our lands have as good prospects as the richest Michigan copper mines had in the early days of their development. For a short time longer we offer a limited number of shares

ASSESSORS.

They Will Start Out on Their Hunt Tomorrow.

Early tomorrow morning a force of deputy assessors will set out from the city hall with the determination to ask every owner of personal property about thirty personal questions. Among other things they will ask you if you have any melodeons, baby carriages, diamonds, steamboats, billiard tables, agricultural implements, sample rooms, or dogs under 6 months of age.

The deputies will ask each property owner to give the valuation of everything taxable in his possession, and the returns will then be made to the office of the city assessor. If the valuations are found to be too low, the assessor will raise them at the owner's expense, and will give notice of his action. In case the owner objects to this raise, he can take the matter before the board of equalization, which will meet June 24 and remain in session until the Friday before the first Monday in July. With the board of equalization and not the assessor is the proper place to file all objections to this personal property assessment.

The men who will make this assessment are: W. J. Wallace, G. V. Quilliard, E. F. Chalk, O. J. Klippen, Fred T. Little, Siegfried Levy, Henry Nelson, J. F. Wier, C. A. Young and John Williams.

LONDON SPORTS.

A Batch of Races Run at Newmarket.

London, April 30.—Richard Croker's Eileen Violet, ridden by Lester Reiff, ran third in the all-aged selling plate at Newmarket today. The race was won by Octoron Girl. Danny Maher, the American jockey, rode Lord Harewood's Night Shade, winner of the visitors' plate welter handicap, and Lester Reiff had the mount on W. G. Stevens' Branksome, which finished third in the same race, the second horse being Lord Dunraven's Sea Fog. Lester Reiff also rode the winner, J. B. Joel's Lordship, in the first spring 2-year-old stakes. Maher piloted Pierre Lorillard's All Il, which was second, Satyr coming in third. J. R. Keene's colt Lottie Hampton, with Maher up, won a maiden 2-year-old race at five furlongs.

Cook and Graham.

The newly appointed board of poor commissioners held its initial meeting this afternoon in the Manhattan building. At a late hour the board had not decided on any important changes. It it probable that A. P. Cook, the former superintendent of the poor, will be made clerk of the board and Dr. Robert Graham will probably be re-elected county physician.

AN UPPER SERVICE

Water Board Has Plans Which Provide For It.

Improvements Ordered Subject to Approval of Council.

Will Supply Normal School With Water and Gas.

The water and light service of the city may be extended to Woodland and the hill district above Fifth street within a year. Important extensions and improvements costing $15,000 have been ordered by the board of water and light commissioners, subject to the approval of the council. This is really the initiative in the construction of an "upper system" which will supply Woodland, Glen Avon, Hunters' Park, and all that portion of the city above Fifth street and east of the point of rocks at Thirteenth avenue west.

The plan of the board at present is to furnish the new state Normal school with an adequate supply of water and gas. It is proposed to establish a pumping station at the old reservoir, Sixteenth avenue east and Sixth street. A ten-inch water main would then be put in, running down Sixteenth avenue east to Fifth street, over Fifth to Woodland avenue and out Woodland avenue to Allen street in Clover Hill addition. This would bring the water supply directly in the rear of the new Normal school and considerably above it. At the end of the water main a 25,000 gallon tank would be put in which would preclude the necessity of pumping from the new station more than once a week. This would give a pressure of 100 feet at the Normal school and in case of fire, this could be increased to 232 feet by direct pumping. The proposed extension does not require a ten-inch main, but it is to be put in with a view of extending to Woodland in the very near future. At present the extension would increase the receipts of the department $1120 a year, of which the Normal board would pay $500, and certain property owners guarantee to pay $425 for ten years, if the extension is made.

The water and light department is now in its new quarters, corner of Third avenue west and First street. The store rooms and offices have been well arranged and besides having the department more room than in the old offices in the Torrey building, the offices throughout are very handsomely finished and furnished.

NOT AN EGG THROWN.

Big Crowd Listened to Herron at Brooklyn.

New York, April 30.—Under the introduction of Bolton Hall, George D. Herron, from whom so many people have fled during the past week, lectured in Brooklyn Sunday evening at the Park theater. The audience was a big one.

Two policemen stood at the entrance to the theater and scrutinized everybody who entered, and there were detectives about the doors. A change had been made also in the theater. Last week only the chairman one of Mr. Herron's assistants, sat upon the stage. Sunday evening the stage was full of chairs, which were occupied by men and women who were invited to sit there. One of the lecturer's admirers and a regular attendant in the audience observed that the managers had evidently called upon some of Herron's friends to sit around him to stave off the possible throwing of eggs.

One of the lecturer's assistants, in calling for the collection, seemed to have some such apprehension, for he bespoke for Mr. Herron a "quiet hearing." Here he raised his eyes to the galleries, making his request upon the ground that Mr. Herron, having spoken every night in the week but one here and Boston, had come back physically very weak. When the lecturer came to speak, however, his voice sounded like the same old voice of a week ago. No eggs were thrown. There was not even the slight interruption of last Sunday.

Mr. Herron found it very easy to say things. Some of the things he said are these:

"The greatest makers of socialism today are the monoplists." This was applauded.

"Man is constantly making the universe over."

"We must stop talking of nature as of something outside of man."

"There is no established order in nature beyond the human will. The old fates and furies and fears of the unknown were transferred to theology by the priests, who held the keys of heaven and hell (laughter) and then translated into so-called economical ways, which it is said hold man down."

"Jesus distinctly regarded the wealthy and priestly and governing as belonging to a robber class."

"TRAIN LOST."

Corinth, Miss., April 30.—Between Decatur and Tuscumbia, the presidential train was stopped to permit the party to be photographed. The operators at Decatur and Tuscumbia had not been notified of the intended stop, and when the train did not appear at Tumscumbia on time he flashed the news along the line: "President's train lost." The report even reached the home office in Washington. For several minutes the wires hummed with messages, and for a time the officials became alarmed, when the train appeared at Tuscumbia and the operator reported its arrival.

ASPHALT OUT OF IT

Loss of Signers For Asphalt Leaves Brick Alone.

Owners of 400 Feet Transfer to Brick Petition.

Asphalt Agents Have Left the Field In Disgust.

Fluctuating sentiment once more places vitried brick in a decisive lead over all other paving materials proposed for Superior street.

Asphalt was put out of the running late yesterday afternoon. Persons representing 400 feet of Superior street property, that had originally petitioned for asphalt, withdrew their names and transferred it to the vitrified brick petition. As a result the asphalt interests have withdrawn their forces.

Mr. Cox, the agent for the Barber Asphalt company, left for the South this afternoon. When the council meets tomorrow evening, in special session to consider Superior street paving, there will be but one petition—that for vitrified brick.

The knock-out blow to asphalt will probably stagger many besides those directly interested. Up to the time the 400 feet were withdrawn yesterday afternoon, it was confidently predicted that asphalt would win the fight. Many of the citizens would prefer it to vitrified brick, though these citizens don't seem to own much property on the street to be paved.

The council tomorrow will take up the paving question in earnest at its special session. The aldermen will go over the question of vitrified brick, and in case brick is not favored by the council the other materials will be given another trial.

As nearly as can be ascertained the fluctuation of sentiment in favor of vitrified brick has also struck the council, for at the meeting last evening there were more friendly expressions for vitrified brick than there has been at any time for any material proposed for Superior street.

DEFENDED BY A DOG.

Lost Child Protected From Fierce Wolves.

Topeka, Kans., April 30.—George Findlay, a well known Republican politician and candidate for United States internal revenue collector for Kansas, has returned from a trip through the Indian territory, and he vouches for the following story of the devotion to his little mistress of a dog owned by Jim Hay, a quarterblood Quapaw Indian.

Hay's 4-year-old Nellie wandered into the woods near his place last week and became lost. She was accompanied by her dog, a gigantic yellow staghound. After wandering a mile and a half from home she became tired and fell asleep.

Her father was searching for her at midnight, when he heard the baying of the hound out in the woods. He found his daughter with the big hound standing guard close to her, and in the underbrush near her were the bodies of two big gray wolves. The child was unable to give a very intelligent account of what had happened, but she said she was awakened by hearing Nero fighting with the wolves. The hound is badly scratched and cut.

TERMS OF TRANSFER

Burlington Officials Issue Circular to Stockholders of Road.

An Amplification of the Facts Previously Made Known.

Bonds to Be Joint Obligation of Purchasing Roads.

Boston, April 30.—An official circular issued by the directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, making announcement of details of the offer of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies to purchase the capital stock of the Burlington road, was mailed to the stockholders today. The circular is an amplification of facts previously made known concerning the deal. Besides the offer to purchase the Burlington stock on the basis of $200 in bonds for $100 in stock, the circular says that the bonds are to be the joint obligation of the Northern Pacific company and of the Great Northern company.

Such stockholders as desire a part payment of cash will receive $160 in bonds and $40 in cash.

As previously stated, the bonds are to bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum from July 1, 1901, and are to mature July 1, 1921, but are to be redeemable at the option of the two Northern companies at 105 per cent and accrued interest, July 1, 1906, or on any coupon day thereafter. The purchasing companies reserve the right to pay off part without paying the whole of the bonds; the number of the bonds to be paid will be designated by lot.

The bonds are to be coupon $1000 bonds, and registered certificates of the denomination of $1000 or of $5000 or of some multiple of $5000.

A GUINEA PIG.

An Ornamental One at That, Says Burns of Macartney.

London, April 30.—In the house of commons today John Burns and J. Kier Hardie, labor leaders, were called to order by the speaker, the former for stigmatizing Mr. Macartney, M. P., as an ornamental guinea pig, because he had accepted a directorship in the London & Northwestern Railroad company, after having been appointed financial secretary to the admiralty. The incident occurred during a discussion of a private bill conferring additional powers on the London & Northwestern company, which measure the house rejected 210 to 202, a number of government members voting no. Mr. Macartney voted for the bill, and several members severely criticised him for so doing, Mr. Kier Hardie saying it was time for the house to adopt a higher standard of purity, and asserting that there was a strong feeling in the country that the house was becoming more and more corrupt financially. The speaker warned Mr. Kier Hardie that he must not be disrespectful to the house. Mr. Kier Hardie retorted that the working people regarded the house as an annex of the stock exchange. A motion to disallow the vote of Mr. Macartney was defeated, 268 to 205.

THE KNOWLES WRECK.

Crew Tells of the Collision With Alliance.

New York, April 30.—The crew of the schooner Emma Knowles say that on the night of April 23, near Barnegat light, the steamer Allianca ran into the schooner, striking her on the starboard side and cutting an immense hole in her. There was a dense fog at the time. The schooner a few minutes before the accident happend, was in sight of the light on the beach and she was just entering the fog when the steamer emerged from it and struck her. Capt. Rogers of the schooner ran forward with a light to examine the extent of the damage. The crew meantime got a boat overboard and threw their effects into it. The schooner took water rapidly and settled considerably, and the crew abandoned the wreck and went on board the steamer.

UNION PACIFIC.

Belief That Vanderbilt Has Secured Control.

New York, April 30.—The Evening Post today says: Control of the Union Pacific railroad has undoubtedly passed in the recent extraordinary active market for thes hares. Even Union Pacific interests today admitted that the buying could be explained on no other theory than that an effort had been made to get control of the property. It was declared that control had not yet actually passed, but it was admitted that in the net few days it might be developed that new interests had secured enough of the shares to place them in control of the property.

In addition the Post says that "Wall street has held very generally to the theory that the Union Pacific has been acquired by W. K. Vanderbilt."

AT DECATUR.

Presentation to Mrs. McKinley and Speech By President.

This journal is purinted on the same press that prints the Ladies' Home Journal. The contents for May are as follows:

Decatur, pril 30.—One of the pretty incidents of the stop of the presidential party here was the presentation on behalf of the ladies of Decatur of a loving cup and a basket of trout to Mrs. McKinley by Andrew and Miss Mary Frye, two of her old school friends at Canton. Col. R. H. Adams, as the personal representative of Governor Sumford, who is ill, boarded the train here to escort the president to the Mississippi state line. The president gracefully but briefly thanked the crowd for its welcome. He characterized Alabama "One of the most patriotic and most American states of the union."

President McKinley spoke as follows:

"The attention of the people of the South and the warmth of their welcome has been so constant since we started from Washington, that words seem poor indeed to express our gratitude and appreciation. We have just cause to be proud of our country. It belongs to us all. We know no North, no South, no East, no West, but we are all Americans. No Solid South and no Solid North, save when solid for the flag and the Union. I have been glad to note as I have traveled through this section of our beloved country the great progress and prosperity everywhere evidenced.

"This country has been signally blessed. We have everything. God has been good to us. He has given to us a heritage which awaits our development, which we must not neglect, and it is our duty to preserve this land to liberty forever and forever.

"I am sure you will be very glad to meet the secretary of state and other members of the cabinet who are accompanying me on this journey, and I have the pleasure of presenting to you Mr. Hay, whose name has been so conspicuously associated with the open door in China for your products." (Applause.)

AGREEMENT REACHED.

Boston, April 30.—An official statement issued by the Mexican Central railroad today, says that an agreement has been reached between the present officials of the road and the New York interests claiming to hold the controlling interests, whereby but one ticket would be voted upon at tomorrow's annual meeting in this city.

"BOSS" AND BIBLE.

According to a Pittsburg paper the late Senator C. L. Magee, of that city, while living at the Hotel Stratford here, was once visited by a Pittsburg clergyman, who said to him, "I want you to accept a present from me." "What is it?" querled the senator. "A copy of the Scriptures," replied the minister. "Well, nobody could refuse that; but don't you spend too much money on it."

A few days later there reached the senator's room a beautiful Oxford Bible, gilt-lettered "Christopher Lyman Magee." Kept awake after midnight by excruciating suffering, he read the first six Psalms as far as the verse: "I am weary with my groaning; all the night make I my bed to swim; I water my couch with tears. . . . The Lord hath heard my supplication."

Often he would tell visiting politicians and friends how these words immediately soothed him into peace and slumber.

The minister called again and, supposing the senator would be a little sensitive about having the time talked of, remarked that nobody knew about the matter. "Know of it!" exclaimed Mr. Magee. "Why, I told fifty right here in this room.

Just then Justice Brown of the supreme court, entered, and the senator slapped him on the shoulder and said: "Brownie, this is Rev. Dr. ——, who have me the Bible I've been telling about."

DESTINY'S CALL.

Gen. Funston was at the Occidental hotel in San Francisco when the message was handed him requesting him to return to the Philippines, that the war department desired his further services, says the New York Commercial Advertiser.

"What'll you do?" inquired a newspaper man present.

"That's it. What ought I to do?" said Funston turning to Chancellor F. H. Snow and Professor V. L. Kellogg. They were lifelong friends.

"It's for you to decide, Fred," they replied.

"I'll telephone my wife," said Funston. Ten minutes later Funston said to the newspaper man:

"You can say that I accept. I am turning down a good many fine offers, but if I am needed I'll go back. And then you know, I may get a chance to catch Aguilinaldo. It's been my ambition to lay my hand on that yellow boy." And thus it was settled.

Strike of Grave Character.

It is said to be the earnest wish of the managers of the Holy Cross cemetery in Philadelphia, that those who contemplate being buried there, would postpone dying for a few days until the strike of the grave diggers is settled. Such a strike is the latest thing in the labor troubles of Pennsylvania. Thirteen grave diggers and two teamsters have struck and are firm in their demands. One of the grave digers was discharged for alleged neglect of duty. Although the men have no organization, yet the others seemed to think that the discharge was unjust, and refused to work the next day. They have been getting $1.50 a day for ten hours' work, and thought this as good a time as any to demand more pay. So they made a demand for $10 a week. This was refused. Six old men, who are generally employed in the receiving vault and in other light work, were set to digging graves. They were too slow, however, to keep up with the demand, being able to dig one grave in two days, while an ordinary grave digger can finish two in a day. Consequently the bodies brought to the cemetery for burial are being placed in the receiving vault, which is fast filling up. If it were not for the serious side of the matter and the pain which might be caused to bereaved friends, the whole affair would be extremely ludicrous. From a distance it would seem that the management lacked tact or ability, or such a thing would never be permitted.

Sheldon and His Christian Daily.

Although the experiment of Rev. Charles M. Sheldon in editing a daily newspaper in Kansas on what he considered a strictly Christlike plan is now somewhat ancient history, it is again brought to the front by the first statement published by him regarding the results of his undertaking. His statement appears in the Christian Endeavor World. He says that the article in his paper concerning the India famine, which was criticized as not being up-to-date, was the result of bringing direct financial aid for the object in the interest of which the articles were prepared. Replying to the criticism that his paper did not contain the news of the day, and that it was only a religious daily, Mr. Sheldon claims that all items of real news in the world, with one or two important exceptions, were published; that it was a most remarkable week in the history of human happenings for an actual dearth of human events, as a careful study of other papers will show; that what news there was was condemned purposely and printed without large headings and therefore some people thought there was no news in the paper; and that the paper did not depart from its local conditions. In conclusion, Mr. Sheldon says: "I have said this much at length, because one of the most important contentions for a Christian daily would necessarily be the contention that it print the news of the world. A failure to do this would be fatal to the success of such a paper, and it could have no right to the name of Christian newspaper. There is room in America today for a Christian daily paper, which we do not yet possess. That it will be evolved in the course of no very long time I most firmly believe; the signs of the times point toward it; the public demand for it is growing with great rapidity, as the old century has gone its way and the new century has come in." It would be interesting to learn where Mr. Sheldon has discovered this growing public demand.

THE STEEL TRUST AND DULUTH.

The stocks of the United States Steel corporation had a boom on the New York exchange yesterday. The advance was undoubtedly due in large measure to the financial statement of the trust at the end of the first complete month in its corporate history. The trust earned during March the sum of $8,000,000 above the interest on the bonds and depreciation charges. This is thought to indicate a yearly earning capacity of $110,000,000, as March is not the best month of the year in the iron and steel business. This is the net surplus after providing for the interest on the bonds, depreciation of plant and all fixed charges, and therefore would permit a dividend of 10 per cent being paid on the whole capital stock, preferred and common. There is a report that the dividend will be 7 per cent on the preferred and 5 per cent on the common—equal to an average of 6 per cent, the other 4 per cent being set aside as a surplus.

A corporation that is earning 10 per cent net yearly on its capital stock of $1,100,000,000 should not be averse to paying taxes based on a just valuation of its property. Yet, as The Herald has shown by unimpeachable facts and figures, the iron lands of the trust in St. Louis county are assessed at only $5,600,000, whereas they should be taxed on a valuation of at least $75,000,000. As matters now stand the other taxpayers in this county are bearing unjust burdens of taxation, while the steel trust escapes paying its proper share of the taxes, as a result of which in part the trust is able to present a statement showing net earnings of 10 per cent on its billion dollar capital. The whole fabric of the steel trust's prosperity rests upon its possession of the rich iron properties on the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges. Without these extensive high-grade deposits of ore, the steel trust would in a short time be compelled to quit business, because it is well known that the deposits of Bessemer ore on the other ranges are well nigh exhausted. In view of these facts, it would seem to be good business policy on the part of the trust to cultivate the friendship of the people of Minnesota, especially the residents of St. Louis county. This could be done in two ways—by assenting to an increase in the assessed valuation of its iron properties, and by establishing iron and steel industries here. There is a large section of the West that could be supplied with iron and steel manufactures from Duluth more economically than from any other point, while it has been proven that the materials used in the manufacture of steel can be assembled here more cheaply than elsewhere. Furthermore, the trust could here utilize the large quantities of lean ores that it is not now considered profitable to ship to Lake Erie. Perhaps the able business men at the head of the trust will see the advisability of gaining the friendship of Duluth by establishing the steel industry here on a large scale.

WORLD'S NATIONAL DEBTS.

The recent announcement of a new British loan of $300,000,000 lends interest to a statement just issued by the treasury department regarding the national debts of the world. This statement shows in brief that the national debts of the world aggregated more than $30,000,000,000 at the close of the nineteenth century, or ten times as much as in the closing years of the eighteenth century. In 1793, at the beginning of the Napoleonic wars, the national debts of the world amounted to approximately $2,500,000,000; in 1900 they were, according to the best information obtainable, $31,000,000,000. In general terms it may be said that the world's national indebtedness in 1900 aggregated ten times what it did at the beginning of the nineteenth century. Meantime population has increased 150 per cent, and gold and silver, which form the basis of the money with which debt payments are made, 300 per cent, though the proportion of the existing gold and silver which is turned into coin is now much greater than at the beginning of the nineteenth century, while the utilization of the various forms of credit as currency may have increased the world's circulating medium quite in proportion to the increase in its national debts.

Whether national wealth has increased as rapidly as national indebtedness is equally difficult to determine, since official estimates of national wealth were made at the beginning of the century in the case of only a few nations. The wealth of the United Kingdom, France, Spain and the United States in 1800 is estimated at $20,244,640,000, while Mulhall, in 1895, estimated their wealth at $195,759,829,000, or practically ten times that at the beginning of the century. The debts of these four nations in 1793 aggregated but $1,630,279,000, and in 1900 were $11,764,000,000, or seven times as much as in 1793. If the rate of growth in wealth which has characterized the four nations, whose growth during the century may be also properly applied to the world at large, it may be said that the growth of national wealth has about kept pace with that of national indebtedness, since national wealth, in the cases where it can be measured, is today ten times as great as at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and the national indebtedness, where it can be measured, is today about ten times what it was at the beginning of the century.

This enormous increase in national indebtedness is chiefly the result of wars, standing armies, and works of public utility. To this may be added a tendency in many cases to create an annual deficit by expenditures exceeding revenues made in deference to popular demand, which deficits ultimately take the form of funded or bonded indebtedness. But the bulk of these enormous debts is from war and war preparations and the construction of public, such as railways, canals, harbors and the improvement of waterways. Of the railways of the world, whose total cost has been estimated at $30,000,000,000, about one-third are owned by national governments, indicating that approximately one-third of the increase in indebtedness has been applied to works of this character. But the fact that great wars have compelled the nations engaged in them to instantly make enormous additions to their funded indebtedness clearly identifies this as the principal factor in the great increase in national indebtedness which has characterized the history of national finances in the nineteenth century. In 1748 the debt of England was £76,000,000, while the "seven years' war" brought it in 1763 to about £133,000,000. The years of peace intervening between that date and the beginning of the American war somewhat reduced the debt, but at the termination of the war with the American colonies in 1784 the debt of England was £273,000,000. A reduction followed during the ten years of peace, but the twenty-one years of war from 1794 to 1815 left the total debt at £902,000,000, the highest point which it has ever reached. The thirty-nine years of peace which followed reduced it to £800,000,000, but the Crimean war, which lasted two years, again increased it to £834,000,000, while the South African war at the close of the century recorded another increase of £30,000,000 of funded indebtedness, besides a considerable increase by exchequer bonds, to which may still be added the recent loan of £60,000,000 just announced.

Turning to France, the evidence of increased indebtedness by war is equally apparent. Her national debts at the beginning of the second empire are estimated by Baxter at £245,000,000, and by the expenses of the Crimean, Italian, Chinese, Cochin-China, Mexican and German wars, had, according to the same authority, reached £550,000,000 by 1871, while the issuance of securities amounting to 2,277,000,000 francs in 1871 testifies to the cost of her war with Germany.

In our own history the increase of the interest-bearing debt from $657,000,000 in 1860 to $2,381,000,000 in 1865, and from $847,000,000 in 1898 to $1,046,000,000 in 1899, further evidences the relation of war to the growth of national indebtedness. The relation of war, with its ever-increasing cost, to national indebtedness is further shown by a study of the detailed debt statements of the world at various periods during the century. From 1793 to 1848 national debts only increased from $2,433,000,000 to $8,419,000,000. The latter half of the century, however, has experienced great and costly wars, the Crimean, the civil war in the United States, the Franco-Prussian, the war between China and Japan, and those of the closing years of the century—and accompanying this period the national debts have grown from $8,419,000,000 in 1848 to $31,500,000,000 in 1901.

Since the stubborn resistance made by Gen. Cassius Clay the other day to the entry of officers of the law to his home to secure some furniture that belonged to his daughter, his grandson, the attorney who had charge of the suit of recovery, has changed his methods and has decided to let the general keep the goods, but will make him pay for them. An attachment for the sum of $1200 has been placed on the general's funds in the bank, and by a clever ruse the papers were served on Gen. Clay by a local constable. He awaited the proper moment and sneaked up to the house, put the papers under the door, gave the alarm and the moment he heard the general ring for his trusty retainers and start for the door with his rifle in his hands, ran away rapidly without holding a consultation with the owner of the Clay estates. He saw that the defendant had the papers, however. Those who know the general best say that they would not be surprised to see him come to town with his armed retainers and investigate the latest move to take away from him his hoarded wealth.

Commenting on the placing of consols in the United States, the Liverpool Post is quoted as saying: "It is an event of immense financial an economical significance. It shows that the balance of indebtedness is being changed. The United States is becoming Great Britain's creditor and the change of relationship will necessarily have a direct effect on trade. If London's pre-eminence as the financial center of the world is lost and New York shares the position with London, the new situation will be decidedly less favorable than the old to British financial and commercial supremacy."

A Maine judge has rendered a decision that medicines composed of 23 per cent of alcohol cannot be legally sold in that state. It will seriously affect a large number of patent medicines that are composed largely of wines and also of straight alcohol. Some of the good brothers who have been absorbing a sufficient amount of alcohol which they considered necessary to their well-being, through the medium of medicines, will be in a quandry as to what means to use in the future to secure the necessary "tonic."

Krupps, the German gun makers, are again hot after the sultan to secure payment of that little bill he owes them for the armament of a few battleships and sundry other little things. It is no use to worry about the sultan. He is proof against entreaty, and as a matter of fact is without funds to pay the bills if he wanted to. The Krupps should rest assured that the sultan had much rather owe them the bill than to cheat them out of it.

It is said that it is a matter of some difficulty to really decide just what progress was made with the Cuban delegation, in convincing the members that they want the Platt amendment. It is said that one day they were very much in favor of it and the next their views were changed by some arguments advanced by the other side. If there is any virtue in hot air, enough has been pumped into them to make them believe most anything.

A pretty girl, 19 years old, who worked in a silk-weaving fractory in New York, killed herself the other day for no other reason than that she did not want to live to be an old maid. At 19 such a fear is rather premature. She should have waited a few years; and then—but she could not understand this—there are worse fates for millions of women than to become "old maids."

Senator Depew says that the growth of Socialism is due to rich snobs who try to become reformers. It is due in a still greater degree, says the Portland Telegram, to such eaters of the fruit of others' toil, like Depew, who, because they are "fixed" all right never acknowledge the necessity for reform in anything, nor the justice of any man's complaint.

The Topeka State Journal suggests that the marriage ceremony might be amended when rich girls marry impecunious noblemen, so as to read "love, honor, obey and pay his debts."

"Love letters are written in moments of temporary insanity" says Max O'Rell. And the temporary insanity becomes permanent in many cases.

And now it is claimed by somebody that the original Garden of Eden was in Illinois. Further proof that Adam was the original Sucker.

A Missouri woman has a foot twenty-six inches long. She would be able to secure a firm footing in Chicago society.

And now several score of pragraphers will remark that these are moving times.

TWO OF A KIND.

You might search the world's ends,
But you'd find no such friends
As Father O'Shea and Father McCrea.

Very caustic in wit
Was Father O'Shea,
But as droll every bit
Was Father McCrea.
And, Oh! such a volley of fun they were pokin',
The one at the other, as good as a play.
With ready replies an' their innocent jokin',
When Father O'Shea met with Father McCrea

Now, on a March Sunday it came for to pass
Good Father McCrea
Preached a very fine sermon and then after mass
Met Father O'Shea.

"'Twas a very appropriate sermon for Lent
You delivered this minute,
For the season of fasting 'twas very well meant—
I could find no meat in it!"
Said Father O'Shea.

Then as quick as the laughter that gleamed in his eye,
Good Father McCrea
Raised a hand disapprovin' and made his reply
To Father O'Shea.
"Faith, I'll have to be working a miracle next
To comply with your wishes,
Dare you ask me for meat, my dear sir, when the text
Was the 'loaves and the fishes?'"
Said Father McCrea.

Very caustic in wit
Was Father O'Shea,
But as droll every bit
Was Father McCrea.
Though you'd search the world's ends,
You would find no such friends
As Father O'Shea an' Father McCrea.

TO VISIT BUFFALO.

Diplomatic Corps Will Attend on June 11.

Washington, April 29.—Plans are being made for a trip by members of the diplomatic corps to Buffalo on June 11 to visit the Pan-American exposition. The presidential party will arrive at Buffalo about June 12 and the plans are to have the diplomats leave Washington in time to be present when the president and members of his cabinet are at Buffalo. The plans are being made through Lord Pauncefote, the dean of the corps.

WILL NOT BE OPENED.

Information on the Chippewa Land Situation.

Washington, April 29.—"I am receiving many inquiries," said Congressman F. M. Eddy yesterday, "concerning the rumored opening of a portion of the Chippewa Indian reservation in Minnesota.

"There will be no lands on that reservation thrown open to settlement this year, no matter whether Secretary Hitchcock is for or against the proposition. The power and the authority to open the lands rests with congress alone. There is a proposition in the last Indian appropriation bill which provides that the secretary of the interior may make negotiations with certain tribes of Indians for the relinquishment of their unallotted lands to the government, such cession to be subject to ratification by congress.

"I secured the insertion of that amendment," said Mr. Eddy modestly, "and the best that we can expect is to have a special agent sent out to negotiate during the summer and see what he can do. I believe that such an agent will be sent out, but inasmuch as false impressions seem to obtain in Minnesota concerning these unallotted lands I wish to state the situation clearly and just as it is."

MISS BURROUGHS MARRIED.

Was a Case of Love at First Sight.

New York, April 30.—Marie Burroughs, the actress, was married Saturday to Robert Barclay MacPherson, the New York manager for Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago. The wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Morris, where Miss Burroughs has made her home for some time.

George Morris said that Miss Burroughs and Mr. MacPherson were introduced to each other at his home a short time ago and it seemed a case of love at first sight.

DAILY STORY.

MR. COBB, DETECTIVE

BY JOSEPH BAUGHER.

(Copyright, 1901, William R. Miller).

Mr. Cobb sat in his plainly furnished room, made inviting by an open wood fire, whose glow was reflected congenially on his good-natured face. On his table was a letter saying that a Mr. Bond would call upon him, upon a most important business matter, about 9 o'clock. He had not the slightest idea who Mr. Bond was, his business, nor anything about him; which was odd, for Mr. Cobb was a detective, and he usually managed to deduct from letters something about their writers.

The bell rang, and the servant brought in a card.

"Show him up," said the detective.

A tall, well-dressed man of 30 walked in with an air of supercilious superiority.

"Is your name Cobb?" he asked bluntly.

"This is my crib," was the retort.

The visitor flushed.

"That went home," said Mr. Cobb to himself, as he offered a chair.

"Be seated, Mr. ——," he said to his visitor.

"Bond," declared the visitor.

"Of course, I might have known," said Mr. Cobb, smilingly, as he looked at the card; and then he asked the visitor to make known his business.

"I," began the visitor, "am a member of the firm of Tasso & Co., of this city. About two months ago we sent by express $50,000, in $1000 notes, to our correspondents, Steck & Co., of Kansas City. The notes were counted, enclosed and sealed by our cashier, in the presence of our president and myself at our office, and again resealed at the office of the express company, in the presence of the manager of the express company and myself. I had taken the passage to the express office myself, where it was sealed with wax and stamped with one of the office dies, and a thin wire was stitched across it. Now, while the sum was $50,000, in order to save the express charges we took a receipt for half that amount. I must explain to you, confidentially, that the express company that transported the money had just secured our business from their rivals, the competing express company, and it was one of the conditions of the agreement under which we gave them our business that we should be favored in ways like this—in other words, that they would shut their eyes to such irregularities as the shipping of a large amount of money under an amount ostensibly smaller. We do a great deal of business, and they gain in the long run; and so the $50,000 was forwarded, manifested for $25,000.

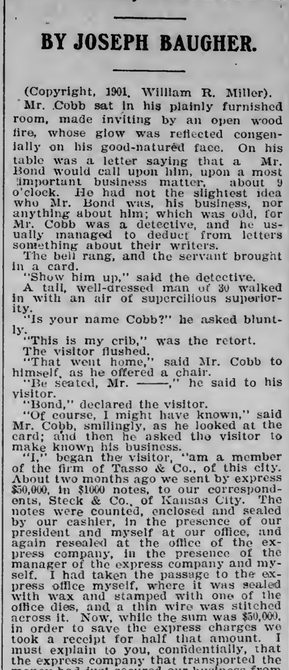
"H'm!" said Mr. Cobb.

"Of course, we advised our Western correspondents of the facts in the matter. They received the package in due time, and it was opened by their cashier, in the presence of the president and directors, who happened to be holding a meeting at the time. Upon counting the money they found that there were but $25,000 in it."

"H'm," said Mr. Cobb.

"This agreed with our receipts and the manifest, but not, as you have seen, with the advices to the consignees."

"The package must have somehow, somewhere, been changed," said Mr. Bond. "It must have been done in a hurry, and there ought to be some clue somewhere by which you could detect the man who did it. The money was in the envelope when the manager of the express company sealed it. The conclusion would be that it was changed in his presence; but I myself was the man who delivered it to the express company."



"I Think, Mr. Bond," said Cobb, Pleasantly, "That Your Scarfpin Would Prove a Very Good Corkscrew."

"H'm!" said Mr. Cobb.

"We have employed the best talent," continued Mr. Bond, "with no results, so now we have determined to——"

"To try the lesser lights?" said Mr. Cobb, pleasantly.

Mr. Bond colored, as he asked Mr. Cobb if he would try to unravel the tangle.

"Oh, yes! I'll take the job."

"Then come around to our office tomorrow, and we will make arrangements regarding fees and advances for expenses."

Mr. Cobb bowed his head in assent.

"Well, you know all we know. Is there anything you want to ask me?"

"No."

"I will then say 'goodnight.'"

"Good night."

The detective escorted Mr. Bond to the door.

Cobb waited until he was sure his caller was out of sight, and, then, putting on his top-coat, he hurried to the telegraph office and wired to his private correspondent in Kansas City for the original envelope in which the money had arrived, and found, three hours later, to his delight, that it was that night on its way to him. Then he went to bed.

The next morning he went to the bank, but beyond arranging for a few details as to his fee and expenses he said little and asked no questions.

Two days after he was in possession of the express envelope, with the three seals, which were, as has been said, still intact. He compared with several that he had obtained the one he had sent for, and could find no difference in the wax seals, save that they all varied a little as to the depth of the impressions the dies had made, but he found that while the perforations made by the wires in the packages he had gathered were uniform and small enough to have been made by a needle, the holes in the one addressed to Steck & Co. were two sizes larger.

"Looks like they were made with a bodkin, or, most likely, with a——"

"Now, what could have made those peculiar holes for the wires?" said Mr. Cobb to himself, examining the envelope through a magnifying glass.

"A corkscrew the size of a darning-needle."

"The seal and the wire are all right. It's easy enough to use the dies, and to get the wire——"

He got up and paced the floor.

"This is a 'sockdolager,'" he went on. "Well," he said, "I will chuck one little 'bluff' before I do; and if that fails, I'm a 'goner!'"

The following morning he called at the bank and asked to see the three members of the firm privately. He was shown into the president's office.

"Gentlemen," he began, quietly, "I have no suspicions, I have no clue. I have decided to abandon the case."

The three partners expressed their regrets and offered to settle with him according to their agreement.

"Before I relinquish it," Mr. Cobb said, "I want—I would like to ask a favor, for the thing can not be done without the concurrence of all of you, if you agree."

"If there is anything we can do to unravel this case we will gladly do it," said the president.

His companions bowed in acquiesence.

"Then, gentlemen will each of you kindly write your name on these pieces of paper?" said the detective, handing them each a small slip.

After they had wonderingly done so, the slips were handed to the detective. If there was a guilty man in the trio, he could not tell.

"Now," gentlemen," he said "I want you also to lend me your scarf pins."

"Pardon me a moment," he said, as he took them. He turned his back and went to a desk. With the pins he made holes most carefully in the slips, perforating each one with the pin of the man who had written his name on it. It was a little theatrical, but Mr. Cobb liked that sort of thing, and he felt so hopeless of the success of his experiment that he thought he would get as much out of it as he could. He returned the pins, and, going back to the desk, he gathered the slips and placed them on the express envelope that had contained the money, and then laid them all on the desk before the waiting bankers.

"Gentlemen," Cobb said, with a triumphant look, "under those slips I have placed an envelope with small perforations, corresponding as far as possible with the holes I have made with your pins. The pin that made the holes on one of those slips is the same that punctured that express envelope. You will need a magnifying glass. I will leave you mine."

"I think, Mr. Bond," said Cobb, pleasantly, "that your scarf-pin would prove a very good corkscrew. If a man was in a hurry. It's steel, I noticed."

The next day Mr. Cobb received a check and his magnifying glass—that was all.

AWFUL DEED.

Believed Father Drowned Four Children and Then Himself.

St. Paul, April 30.—The police authorities believe that William Rosenfield has thrown his four children, ranging in age from 2 and a half to 7 years, into the Mississippi river from the Marshall avenue bridge, and then leaped in after them. All are supposed to have drowned. None of the bodies have yet been recovered, but according to police report, evidence is at hand that the crime was committed.

Rosenfield has been separated from his wife, who had taken three of the children and gone to Minneapolis to live with her sister. On Wednesday last, Rosenfield secured a horse and buggy and taking with him the 7-year-old child who still resided with him, drove to Minneapolis. He drove to the house where his wife was staying, and while she was at the sickbed of her sister the husband secured the three younger children and drove off with them. Before leaving the house, he is said to have told one of the inmates that "the next time they saw him or the children, they would be wearing crape."

Thursday morning an officer of the Prior avenue station found the horse, still hitched to the buggy, wandering about in the vicinity of the Marshall avenue bridge. In the buggy was a dog which had been the pet of the children, but no trace of the occupants has been found.

The theory of the officers, which they claim is substantiated by evidence they have, is that Rosenfield drove to the center of the bridge, which is about 200 feet above the river, threw the children into the water and then leaped in after them.

GETS THE LICENSE

Stir Among Aldermen Over Granting One to a Woman.

Saloon Is on Bowery---Granted By a Narrow Margin.

Building of Sidewalks Is Ordered---Barn Moving Stopped.

The council last night:

Granted a woman the right to conduct a saloon on the Bowery with the understanding that she wouldn't do it.

Amended the saloon patrol limit ordinance in order to include a Twentieth avenue west saloon.

Ordered the construction of sidewalks throughout the city, where walks had been condemned.

Ordered the committee on city property to take charge of skeletons exhumed on East Third street.

Received and confirmed the appointments of four poundmasters and three deputy health inspectors.

Authorized the department of public works to let contracts for the sprinkling of London road.

Received a communication to the effect that it would cost $14,482 to macadamize West Michigan street.

Women desiring complete emancipation and equality with man, will be much cheered and sustained by a perusal of last night's council proceedings. Ripe aldermanic thought was tremendously agitated over the question of whether or not a woman should be allowed to have a Bowery saloon license. The cause of equality was triumphant by a narrow margin.

This debate began when the committee on police and license recommended the application of Mrs. Matilda Tremblay for a boozerium at 702 West Superior street. President Cromwell showed an unpoetic spirit and took the floor against the license. He said:

"The granting of a liquor license in the name of a woman is contrary to the best sentiment of all respectable and law abiding citizens. I have been informed, since entering this chamber, that the business of this saloon would not be conducted by the woman, but by her husband, he not desiring to have the license appear in his name. In that case we would be granting the license with the express intention that the licensee should not conduct it, and I do not think that is good public policy. Who are we to hold responsible for any trouble that may occur in this saloon? It would be almost impossible to bring about the conviction of a woman, and this council should stand flat-footed against having a woman run any saloon. There is not a city in the United States where it would be considered decent for a woman to run a saloon. I reiterate, that it is not good public policy, and it is especially lacking in commendation, in that particular locality. When we grant a woman a license to run a saloon on the Bowery, we grant a license to run a dive, and I wish to enter a protest against the granting of a license to any such place."

Alderman Neff explained that Alderman Cromwell had just voted for four liquor licenses which were not to be conducted by the licensee, to which the alderman from the Third replied that he would not have done so had he known it.

The license was granted by a vote of 8 to 5 but before the vote was announced Alderman Neff changed his vote making it 7 to 6.

The patrol limit ordinance, passed last week, was reconsidered on motion of Alderman Schaffer of the Sixth ward. Alderman Barnes asked Mr. Schaffer what reason he had for reconsidering such an important ordinance. He replied that in fixing the patrol limits restricting the sale of intoxicating fluids, the council had inadvertently omitted Alderman Olson's milk depot. Later, however, Mr. Schaffer explained that in passing the ordinance, the council had legislated Charles Sellman, 32 Twentieth avenue west, out of the saloon business. Mr. Schaffer said that he had been there for four years and was perfectly reliable. The limits in the First district were then changed so as to include Mr. Sellman's place.

This action of the council is not likely to meet with the approval of a large number of citizens in that part of town. The saloon is close to one of the largest West End churches and the church people have been circulating a petition for the saloon's removal.

The committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks received a long list of sidewalk improvements from the board of public works covering an expenditure of nerly $5,000 and the council ordered the construction of all plank walks but laid up a block or so of cement walk. The walks thus ordered will not be built by the city for a period of thirty days. The property owners are given that length of time to build for themselves where the department of public works has condemned sidewalk. If at the expiration of thirty days the property owners fail to build, the city will do the work under the supervision of the department of public works and assess the property benefited.

The contract awarded to Watterworth & Fee for the paving of South Fifth avenue west was approved. This contract calls for sandstone paving from Commerce street to the dock at a cost of $7582.

The contract awarded by the department of public works to Engle & Hawkinson, for the construction of a sanitary sewer in Gladstone street at Lakeside, was also approved by the council. The sewer will cost $592.

There was a brief skirmish over a motion to rescind a resolution passed last week, giving R. S. Lerch permission to move his big livery barn from near the corner of First street and Third avenue west to First street and Second avenue west. The owners of property in the vicinity of the proposed new location had been notified to prepare for a raise in insurance rates if the barn should be moved. They petitioned the council to prevent it and the aldermen ordered the moving stopped until an impartial hearing could be given the case by the committee on fire department.

Health Commissioner Robinson officially notified the council of the finding of human skeletons last Saturday afternoon on Third street between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east, where excavations were being made on what was formerly a burial ground. The health commissioner urged that the city take proper steps to care for the bones. President Cromwell referred the communication to the committee on city property.

Mayor Hugo announced the appointment of three poundmasters, as follows: Ignatius Golez, for the Second district; Amos Daniels, for the Third district; Aaron Olson, for the Fourth, and David Doyle, for the Fifth.

Health Commissioner Robinson notified the council of the appointment of William Lanzelow, as meat inspector and J. C. Wessenberg and P. H. Oswald, as additional health inspectors.

By unanimous vote the aldermen decided that Saturday afternoons should be a holiday for all city officers and employes between June 1 and Sept. 1.

The department of public works reported a plan for sprinkling London road, dividing it into two districts to be known as the Eighth and Ninth. The Eighth district embraces that part of the driveway from Eighth avenue east to Twenty-third avenue east and the Ninth from Fortieth avenue east to Sixtieth avenue east. The department said that it was not considered practical to sprinkle the road between Twenty-third and Fortieth avenues on account of the great expense. The council authorized the department to let the contracts for the sprinkling of the Eighth and Ninth districts.

The department of public works also reported that it would cost $14,482 to macadamize Mesaba avenue and Michigan street from Eighth avenue west to Thirteenth avenue west. The board recommended that only part of the street be macadamized.

DROWNED.

First Fatality of the Season of Navigation Occurs.

Martin Olson, a scowman, employed by E. T. Williams & Sons, was drowned in the lake a mile and a half from the ship canal yesterday. He was 36 years of age, unmarried, had been in the employ of the company for three years, and has a sister, Mrs. John Iverson, living in West Superior. He came to Duluth from Mobile four years ago, and had followed the sea prior to that time. The scow on which Olson worked had been dumped, and the men were putting things to rights before returning to the harbor. Olson lost his balance and fell into the lake, where there was a heavy sea running. Nels Johnson, the other scowman, could find nothing to throw to Olsen, but the latter swam well for a time, and told Johnson to call for the tug Eliza Williams, which was some distance away. He sank, however, before the tug reached him. The life saving crew made an effort to find his body, but it was unsuccessful.

AMUSEMENTS.

"THE WATCH ON THE RHINE."

"The Watch on the Rhine," which is something of a combination of the J. K. Emmet, Chauncey Olcott and Lincoln J. Carter styles of play, was given before a fairly large audience at the Lyceum last night, with Al H. Wilson in the leading role. The melodramatic qualities of the play are pronounced, and withal it is well conceived and interesting. Mr. Wilson has been seen here before, but not in exactly the same sort of character. His former appearances here have been in the Yale extravaganzas, like "The Evil Eye," in which he took eccentric German parts. He is not ill-suited to his new line of romantic German dialect with vocal accompaniment. He appears as Metz Strobel, an attache of the German legation at Washington, and he is the hero of the melodramatic situations. His acting is good, and his singing is better. The songs are pleasing, and the singer's voice is well suited to them.

Mr. Wilson is surrounded by a fairly good company, included in which is another old acquaintance, Miss Affie Warner, who was known here as a dancer in comic opera. She did surprisingly good work in a legitimate role. Eva Byron as Margaret Von Menger was excellent.

"THE VILLAGE PARSON."

"The Village Parson" will be presented at the Lyceum Friday evening. The piece comes highly endorsed. Care and skill has been exercised in the construction of the plot, and the author has done his work well. The play deals with the affections of the heart and holds the closest attention from the audience. The company is claimed to be fully equal in the respective roles, the management having exercised good judgment in selecting the players. The production will present a series of superb stage pictures, with effects that are new, startling and realistic.

Deserts Grand Opera.

Col. W. A. Thompson, whose opera company, the Boston Lyrics, appeared here recently, has deserted grand opera, or rather grand opera has deserted him, for the Italian stars, Collamarini, Russo and Alessandrin, have quit. The parting took place at the Pike theater in Cincinnati last Tuesday evening, and it was sudden. The report was that they were behind three weeks in their pay, but the Dramatic Mirror says they had a grievance against the management and refused to appear and that their services were dispensed w th the next day. It also announces that for the future comic opera will be presented, and that "The Fencing Master" and "Wang" will be the operas given. Collamarini and the others have gone to San Francisco and from there will probably journey to their Mexican home.

NOT ALL TRUE

Facts Somewhat Wanting In a Minneapolis Times Story.

The Minneapolis Times of Sunday contained an article from Duluth which was deemed worthy of a conspicuous place, with a two-column black head on the front page, and which told of the sudden rise to fortune of many Duluthians through the possession of Consolidated stock. There may have been more or less truth in the article, but one of the statements is rather amusing.

This relates an incident of one West Duluthian, name not given, who had some Mountain Iron Mining company stock and knew nothing of its value. He supposed, according to the story, that it was one of the worthless stocks, and had papered a room in his house with his certificates in order to have ever before him a reminder of the ease with which he became a victim to the mining stock craze. When the rise in Consolidated advance came, he went to the wall and read over his certificates, and there, staring him in the face, was wealth in the form of shares in the Mountain Iron company. He steamed them, turned them in, and now has a better opinion of men who invest in mining stocks.

A very interesting story for the gullible reader, although for the discriminating one it has a very "faky" sound. One of the chief troubles with the story is that inquiry at the office of the Consolidated Iron mines discloses the fact that eleven Mountain Iron stock was turned in and exchanged for Consolidated long ago. There is not a share outstanding, and has not been for a long time.

The story says, too, that Mountain Iron stock is convertible into Consolidated on a basis which makes one share worth seven shares of Consolidated. That statement would not be true even were Mountain Iron stock outstanding, unless John Rockefeller wished to pay that price for it. It seems to be the impression of the great majority of people that any man who holds stock in the constituent companies of the Consolidated can turn it in now or at any time on the basis fixed for exchange when the Consolidated was first formed. This is not true. The Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines is a corporation which owns a majority of stock in a number of mining companies. At the time of its formation and the taking over of the control of the companies a basis of value was fixed upon which stock in each company would be exchanged. After a year, or some such time, those who had not come in with their stock found that it would be taken or not as the Consolidated saw fit to do. The reason for this course was plain. Some of the companies taken in proved to have very valuable properties. Others were found to be practically worthless, or at least far below the first estimate in value. The result was that the Consolidated did not care to buy the stock of those who would not come in when the consolidation was formed. For some years the holders of stock not exchanged have been dependent upon the wish of Mr. Rockefeller as to what they got for it. For instance, stock in the Great Western Mining company can be sold for $10 a share, but cannot be exchanged on the old basis.

And so the Times' story, while a readable and interesting one, lacked somewhat in what is generally considered an essential element—truth.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.

Series to Be Held This Week.

Arrangements are made for temperance meetings this week to be addressed by Rev. T. K. Thorvilson, of Eau Claire. He will arrive from Superior tomorrow and will speak in the evening at the First Norwegian Lutheran church on Third street and First avenue east; Thursday evening at the Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Wadena streets, in West Duluth, and Friday evening at the first Swedish Baptist church on Nineteenth avenue west and First street. He represents the Wisconsin Total Abstinence association, and is one of its speakers. He has been in Duluth once before and favorably impressed all those that heard him. He is also a fine violinist and plays at his meetings, making them doubly enjoyable.

TO SLIDE THEM IN

Two New Steamers to Be Launched This Week.

Flagg Goes In Today and Hanna on Saturday.

Launchings Are Both Public---Crews For Northern Boats.

One of the steel steamers, the G. A. Flagg, that has been built at the Superior shipbuilding yards during the past winter, was to be launched at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The launching was to be public and the gates of the yard were opened early in the afternoon. The companion ship, the Randolph S. Warren, will probably be launched Saturday afternoon. The two boats are steel freighters and have been constructed for the D. R. Hanna line of steamers, of Cleveland. The new boats are each 336 feet over all, with a 42-foot beam and 26½ feet over all, with a 42-foot beam and 26½ feet depth. They have triple expansion engines with an indicated horse power of 1300. The boats will be used in the ore trade.

The launching of the Flagg today and the Warren Saturday will be features entirely different from any other launchings that have taken place at the shipyards in that the steamers have been practically completed as they stand on the ways and will go into the water about ready to steam up and go after loads of ore. The smokestack, spars, etc., are all in place. This work is usually done after the hull is launched, but owing to a delay in getting the boilers completed it was decided not to lose any time, but finish trimming up the boats as they stood. The boats have been painted, the staging knocked away and it was expected that the initiatory dip would take place without a hitch. A large number of Duluthians are planning on being present at the launching.

As soon as the steamer Flagg is off the ways, work will be commenced immediately on the boat to be built for Milwaukee owners. This boat will be 414 feet over all and an effort will be made to have it ready for launching early next fall.

Yesterday twenty-five men, making up the crews of the Northern Steamship company's boats tied up at the Eastern Minnesota dock in West Superior, arrived from the East to man the boats. There is little doubt but that the new men do not belong to the union as the company took the precaution of providing for police protection when they arrived from the East. This precaution, however, was unnecessary as there was no sign of any trouble. It is taken from this that the Northern Steamship freighters will be among the first to leave the harbor. The merchandise docks are crowded with freight and the situation was getting serious. Eastern Minnesota company officials said the other day there was an injustice to the steamship company in the position that it was placed, that the company was willing to pay the scale asked by the engineers, but it would not agree to the demand of the engineers that it withdraw from the Lake Carriers' association.

WILL APPEAR.

Tax Commission Will Find Interested People In Duluth.

The coming of the tax commission to this city May 14 and 15 will give the first good opportunity that has been offered for the citizens who believe that the gross earnings taxes received by the state should be apportioned among the counties in which the property is located to expound their belief where it will do some good. Preparations will undoubtedly be made to do this to the best advantage, and it is very improbable that the open sessions of the commission will be as quiet here as they were in the Twin Cities, where they kept open house for several days without anyone appearing to offer suggestions.

"There should be no delay," said a business man yesterday afternoon," about making preparations to lay this matter before the commission. Several speakers who are thoroughly familiar with the plan should be chosen to talk to the members of the commission about it, and if it is properly done I believe there is an excellent chance of getting the scheme embodied in the tax code that the commission is to prepare. The attendance at the meetings should be large, and as many as possible should speak in favor of the plan."

The commissioners are all from cities that would be interested in the apportionment. The only possible opposition to the plan would come from the farming districts which are profiting unjustly by the present system wherein the state keeps the entire tax, and which would have to pay for the benefits that would accrue to the cities. Each of the commissioners lives in a city that would benefit from the change, and arguments to them would be easier, therefore, than to farmers who would be likely to lose by it.

"I feel as though I ought to exert myself to make thoroughly known your wonderful Mull's Pioneer Cure. I had kidney and bladder trouble to a dangerous degree. GAME LAWS.

A Concise Statement From Executive Agent Fullerton.

There has been so much inquiry as to the provisions of the new state game law that a Duluth man recently wrote to S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, asking for a synopsis of the law and received in answer a concise statement of its features which is given herewith for hunters and fishermen to cut out and paste in their hats:

BIRDS.

Quail and ruffed grouse, Oct. 1 to Dec. 1.

Woodcock and upland plover, July 4 to Oct. 21.

Wild duck of any variety or any variety of wild goose, brant or any aquatic fowl whatever, Sept. 1 to Jan. 1.

The sale, exposure for sale or the shipment by common or private carrier, of any of the above named birds is prohibited and made unlawful.

DEER.

Deer, Nov. 10 to Nov. 30.

Male moose or male caribou, Nov. 15 to Nov. 20.

Each hunter is allowed to kill three deer, one moose and one caribou.

The sale or shipment by common or private carrier is made unlawful.

FISH.

Any variety of trout, April 15 to Sept. 1.

Any variety of bass, June 1 to March 1.

The sale of bass and brook trout is made unlawful.

All other food fish inhabiting the lakes and streams of Minnesota, May 1 to March 1.

A license fee of 25 cents is required for residents and $25 of non-residents for the privilege of hunting deer, moose or elk.

A license fee of $25 is required of all residents of states that have a license law prohibiting citizens of the state of Minnesota from hunting in their respective states, to permit them to hunt any kind of game in Minnesota.

FEDERAL GRAND JURORS.

Those Who Will Serve at Duluth.

The jurors who will serve on the May United States grand jury have been selected. The jury will convene in Duluth on May 14. The jurors are:

L. P. Lindberg, Rosendale; P. J. Stadler, Stillwater; C. R. Henton, St. Paul; John J. Brennan, St. Paul; John B. Quinn, Jr., Waverly; J. D. Moore, Maple Lake; M. A. Cummings, St. Paul; Martin Brennan, Rochester; G. C. Knoche, Minneapolis; James J. Kennedy, St. Paul; William Steffen, Caledonia; Finley Gray, Redwood Falls; William J. Ellis, Buffalo; E. W. Clark, Minneapolis; Albert Oertel, St. Paul; James S. Tripp, Minneapolis; Frank E. Wright, Montevideo; O. F. Trace, Sauk Rapids; L. S. Saterlie, Hagan; Leslie J. Pickit, Lincoln; Henry Dreher, Mankato; George Reid, Mankato; Elmer E. Adams, Fergus Falls.

HAD THE NATION SPIRIT.

But It Took Whisky to Generate It.

Passengers on a late car on the interstate line late last evening report a little excitement on Connor's Point during the evening, caused by a Connor's Point young man, that started out to emulate the example of Mrs. Carrie Nation. His preparation for the event differed entirely from that of the redoubtable Kansan, however, for he first screwed his enthusiasm up to the top notch though a liberal use of firewater, then procured a slab from a neighboring lumber pile and went after a saloon about midway of the main street of the point. He commenced on the front windows, which were completely demolished, then on the back windows, but this was as far as he got as the police gathered him in.

WETMORE'S GELATINE.

Granulated or shredded; 10 cents at all grocers.

Died In Canada.

W. H. Norton, who a number of years ago was a resident of Duluth, died April 15 at Olds, in Alberta, Northwest territory, Canada. He had not been well for a fortnight previous, but the day before he died was feeling better, and his death was very sudden. It was found at an inquest to be due to a ruptured blood vessel in his lungs. He was buried at Olds.

The Clergue Scheme.

The May number of the World's Work contains an interesting article by Dwight E. Woodbridge, of this city, on the vast development work at the Sault and the Michipicoten iron range, of which Francis H. Clergue, of Philadelphia, is the head. It is well written, and describes in detail the immense plans that are under way there.

New Tug Arrives.

The tug Maxwell, from Pentwater, Mich., arrived in Duluth yesterday, and she was the first vessel of any sort to reach this port after passing through the Sault canal. The tug was bought last winter by Whitney Bros., of Superior, and was brought up to take up her work for Whitney Bros. Capt. Coburn reports that he had no difficulty in getting through St. Mary's river.

RATE WAR.

Reduces Transportation Charges to Alaskan Points.

Seattle, April 30.—Further reductions are announced in Alaskan freight and passenger rates as the result of the steamship rate war now on. First-class tickets to Lynn canal are now quoted at $10 and second-class at $5. A week ago the rates were $25 and $16. Corresponding reductions in freight rates are also reported.

MARKET IS LOWER

Wheat Started Out at a Decline But Became Steady.

Lower Cables Were the Chief Cause of Weakness.

Selling of Long Lines Met By a Fair Demand.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 30.—The wheat market started out with lower prices this morning, the result of declining cables and liquidation of long lines. A fair demand met the selling and the market became steady at the decline. Wheat at Liverpool closed 1/6@1¼d lower. There was a flurry among the shorts towards the close, and prices were marked up from the low point. May wheat closed here ¼c lower than yesterday. At Chicago, May closed ¼c off and July ½c off. May closed ½@¾c down at Minneapolis.

The foreign demand for wheat is believed to have been pretty well satisfied for the present. Chicago wired that the continental demand seemed to be filled. St. Louis, however, wired that there was some demand there from the continent. Primary receipts of wheat were 391,378 bus, last year holiday. Shipments, 590,394 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 346,000 bus. Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 3,300,000 bus in the world's visible.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. May wheat opened 3¢ off at 73½c sold at 73⅝c at 9:33, declined to 73⅜c at 9:50, reacted to 73⅝-½c at 10:10, fell off to 73¼c at 10:15, recovered to 73½c at 10:54, sold down to 73⅜c at 11:10, advanced again to 73¾c at 12:01 and bulged to 74⅛c at 1 o'clock. It closed at 7¢, a decline of ¾c from yesterday. Cash sales amounted to 4000 bus, at the May price for wheat to arrive, and ½c under for wheat in store, finally dropping off ⅝c. Cash, to arrive and May flax declined 3c each. September flax rose ¼c, and September Northwestern fell off ⅜c. Cash and May corn each declined ¼c. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, 75¾c; to arrive, 76c; May, 76c; September, 73c. No. 1 northern, cash, 73⅝c; to arrive, 74c; May, 74c; September, 72c; July, 75¾c. No. 2 northern, 69½c. No. 3 spring, 67¼c. Oats, 27¾-27c. Rye, 52c. Flax, cash, $1.73½; to arrive $1.73¾; May, $1.73½; September, $1.29¾; September, Northwestern, $1.29¼; October, $1.25. Corn, 42⅝c; May, 43⅜c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 33; corn, 8; oats, 6; rye, 2; flax, 7. Receipts, wheat, 27,560; corn, 2807; oats, 7491; rye, 4185. Shipments—Wheat, 10,267; flax, 11,125.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat and Corn Both on Decline.

Chicago, April 30.—Wheat felt the influence of lower cables and liquidation here today. July opened ⅝@½c lower, at 72⅞c to 72½c, and May ⅝@⅝c lower, at 71⅞c to 71½c. A fair demand steadied prices at the decline. Local receipts were 98 cars none of contract grade while Minneapolis and Duluth reported 183 cars against last week and 356 a year ago.

Wheat rallied during the afternoon on cash demand and July rose to 73½c and May to 73⅝c. Under profit-taking and covering by shorts, July closed ¼@⅜c lower at 73¼@¾c and May ⅜c lower at 73¼c.

Corn opened easy on good weather, lower cables and in sympathy with the weakness in wheat. May opened ⅝@⅜c lower, at 43½c to 43⅝c, advanced to 43c and reacted to 43⅝c. July opened ¼@⅜c, sold at 41⅝@41¾c sold to 45c and reacted to 41⅝@¾c. Phillips sold actively but local operators succeeded in checking the decline. Receipts were 282 cars, 2 of contract grade.

Corn later rallied with wheat and closed firm, July at 45¾c and May at 46¼c.

Oats opened easy with wheat and corn. May started ¼c lower at 26½c, but with a renewal of the demand quickly sold to 26¾c. July opened ¼c lower, at 25⅞@26c, and under buying by commission houses sold to 26@½c, and then settled to 25¾c. Receipts were 360 cars.

Provisions opened quiet, but ruled steady on light hog receipts and a fair cash demand. July pork opened 2½c lower at $14.65 and sold to $14.70. July lard opened a shade lower at $7.95@7.97½, and July ribs, 2½c down, at $7.90, recovering to $7.92@7.95.

WEARE'S REPORT.

Chicago, April 30.—The wheat market early lost from ¾@⅞c, the decline being brought about by lower cables. ¾@1½d at Liverpool, 25 centimes at Paris and 12½ at Antwerp. These inspired a good deal of liquidation by longs and on top of the inevitable May liquidation was a constant bear factor. The selling side, however, became over-popular, and in efforts to get back short sales the early loss was very easily recovered in the last hour. The world's visible decreased 3,300,000 bus. Very high maximum temperature was reported in the West, 80 to 90 degrees. Duluth reported 150,000 bus sold to go to Germany. Local sales here were 60,000 bus and twelve loads at New York. Clearances 346,000 bus. The May-July difference widened to ⅞c. The market is demonstrating its scalping quality and, taken on that basis, wheat speculation at the present time is a good proposition.

The corn market has been steady. Phillips supporting. Shipping sales were around 700,000 bus and 18 loads at New York. Receipts were 282 cars with 170 estimated. Clearances were light, only 167,000 bus. Contract stocks increased 331,000 bus. The corn trade is evidently awaiting for something to turn up to produce some radical change. It is evident that the congestion in the May situation is considerably relieved and the dangers of a "squeeze" reduced. An improvement in Western offerings is somewhat offset by the improvement in the cash demand, but a continued growth of corn offerings must in the end have a bearish effect, and we would wait for breaks before buying corn.

The oat market has been firm, changing over orders having the bulk of the trade. July was at a discount of about ⅝@⅞c. The receipts were 360 cars, with 170 estimated. Clearances 155,000 bus. Contract stocks increased 289,000 bus. Local sales 150,000 bus, with 100,000 bus at New York. Bradstreet's increased 1,317,000 bus.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the market the past week was characterized dull. Stock was plenty of all grades, with excellent quality, but buyers were too light in attendance to warrant a satisfactory outlet. Buying by local men constituted the bulk of business transacted. The best demand was on team horses for use in the Twin Cities. Mules moved better than the preceding week at comparatively low prices:

TO INVESTIGATE.

Washington, April 30.—The navy department has decided to take steps immediately to ascertain the facts as to the connection of Lieut. Townley with the army scandals in Manilla, developed by his testimony before the court-martial yesterday. Admiral Remey being absent from the station, an order will go forward to Admiral Kempff, directing a report, and probably a court of inquiry, immediately.

CANADIAN INDIANS.

They Have Increased Very Little In Numbers.

Ottawa, Ont., April 30.—The annual report of the Canadian Northwest Mounted police for the past year, as just issued, gives an insight into the extent, importance and variety of the duties which that body of men perform in the territories. Although the force had been reduced to 568, and much crippled by the number of officers who had gone with Canada's contingent to South Africa, is was rapidly reorganized and continued to exercise control of the vast, sparsely settled districts of the new territories. During the year it dealt with 1351 cases of crime and misdemeanor and secured 936 convictions, or about 71 per cent.

The behavior of the Indians has been very good, and there was no truth in the rumor, during the early months of the South African war, that the tribes in the far West contemplated a rising. The Indian population, all over the Dominion, were earnestly loyal to this country although their population is not extensive.

The Indians only increased by twenty-nine souls, in 1900, over the number in the year previous. The total Indian population of Canada is now estimated to be 99,000. They do not multiply in Canada, as do the white races, regardless of immigration of the latter. But the French-Canadian section of the white population, for instance, has received no accessions to its number by immigration, during the past century, yet it has largely increased. It is impossible to say just how many Indians there were at the beginning of the last century, in the provinces and territories now included in the Dominion, but it is quite probable that they largely exceeded the French-Canadians in number. Now, however, the former number less than a hundred thousand sols, while there are probably nearly two millions of French-Canadians in this country, besides fully a million more have emigrated to the United States. The governments of Canada have long endeavored to make farmers of the Indians, but with small success.

Over 250 men of the Northwest Mounted police are stationed in the Yukon, and the remainder are distributed throughout 2000 miles of territory extending from Manitoba to Fort Chipewayan. Though eighteen officers and 150 men were taken from the force for South Africa, and 161 time-expired men left during the year, the addition of sufficient recruits brought the force up to a fair strength. There was a general absence of serious crime throughout the territories during the year.

TWO BANKRUPTS.

Utia, N. Y., April 30.—Walter S. Phillips and Robert E. Casey, of Rouse's Point, have filed petitions in bankruptcy. The debts of Phillips amount to $122,136; those of Casey to $115,404. There are no assets. Banks at Troy and Champlain are the principal creditors.

"GOES TO THE SPOT"

There is food that feeds the lungs and wind-pipes; it feeds the whole body; but the lung part more than the rest of the body.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

You think it not food but a medicine. Both. There is more lung food, in an ounce of it, than in a pound of porterhouse steak; and "it goes to the spot." What else does "medicine" mean?

It "goes to the spot."

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

BIG BOOM IN STOCKS

Trading on Enormous Scale and Prices Advanced Rapidly.

One Million Shares Traded In During the First Hour.

Buying Orders So Numerous Brokers Could Not Fill Them.

New York, April 30.—A resistless tide of buying orders was poured into the stock market this morning, marking an additional stage in the progress of the speculative craze which seems to have seized upon the American people, and prices were swept upward throughout the list. Practically every important railroad stock opened wide—that is, the demand was so large and the buying orders were in the hands of so many brokers, that widely different prices were made simultaneously for the same stock. The confusion and excitement were so great that the brokers were practically oblivious of everything but what was occurring between the two immediate parties to the transactions. Thousand share blocks seemed to be the normal unit of business, and they ran up from that to 5000 and 6000 shares. The first recorded transaction in United States steel, which were practically simultaneously with the fall of the chairman's gavel, were of 50,000 shares, the pprice ranging from 53 to 55, compared with 51⅝ last night. Sales of Union Pacific were 30,000 shares, of United States Steel preferred 25,000 shares, of Southern Pacific 12,800 shares, and of a long list of railroad stocks from 1000 to 5000 shares. The opening advances in the majority of important stocks were from 1 to 2 points. Atchison showed exceptional strength, with a gain of 3⅜. Northern Pacific, which made such a buoyant close last night, was the victim of an eager desire to take profits on the part of speculators, who bought yesterday in a wild spirit of recklessness. With offerings of 4000 shares, the highest price at the opening was 117 and ranged downward to 115, compared with 115 for last night's close.

After this violent congestion at the opening of the dealings continued on an enormous scale and the price movement was violently erratic. Quotations were in a state of fluctation, momentarily being up and again melting away under the ebb and flow of the enormous demand and heavy realizing. One example will serve as a fair illustration of the dimensions of the market. Shortly after the opening the following transactions were recorded in sequence in the United States Steel: 4000 shares at 54¼, 3000 at 54½, 1500 at 54⅝, 6000 at 54¾, 3000 at 55, 5000 at 54¾, 1000 at 54⅞, 2000 at 54¾, 4000 at 54½, 1000 at 54⅝, 4000 at 54½, 2000 at 54⅝, 3000 at 54¼, 1000 at 54½, 2000 at 54. Here was a total of 42,500 shares which changed hands as fast as bids could be made and offers accepted. Equally sensational strings of quotations were turned out in other stocks. Such a spurt in prices, following such a period of heavy speculative buying as that of yesterday and last week, is certain to meet large selling from experienced operators, who know the instability of prices after such a volatile outburst. Consequently the prices made during the first fifteen minutes were generally the highest. But the price movement was erratic and confused to the highest degree. Prices fell back in some cases by wide lapses, and in only a few stocks was the recession by slow degrees and under a steady pressure. There were equally sudden rebounds, and the whole market fluctuated widely within a range of from 1 to 2 points below the best. In not a few important stocks the relapse carried prices to below last night. But the belated execution of the vast accumulation of buying orders, which brokers found it impossible to get in the early rush and crush, served as a strong sustaining force and kept bringing prices up again.

By the end of the first hour the greatest strength began to shift to other points, Union Pacific and the grangers, trunk lines and Pacifics receding somewhat, while the Southwesterns, led by Texas & Pacific and Atchison, began to assume greater prominence in the trading. There was no news to account for the extraordinary demand so far as authentic developments go regarding the properties whose stock was most affected, but the conviction seemed to be general in speculative circles that a determined competition for control among different groups of capitalists and alliances of railroad systems was going on. The large buying was commonly believed to represent efforts to secure control of some of the great systems by a brilliant stroke in the open market.

The dealings in the first hour were far in excess of any single hour's business in the history of the market, the sales running up to over 1,000,000 shares. For the second hour the trade fell, but left the two hours' business still a record of sales of 1,584,600 shares.

In the afternoon the market took on more the appearance it has shown during the recent speculation. Stocks here and there shot up occasionally, while active profit taking continued in the general list, which was held below the best prices in that way. The Atchisons forged to the front on very heavy dealings at advances of 6¼ for the common and 5¼ for the preferred. New York Central touched 164½ and Pennsylvania, the Louisvilles, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and a number of minor railroads showed strength for a time and then fell back. The market renewed some of its earlier animation with these movements, but not the buoyancy of the opening. The irregularity continued to the close.

New York, April 30.—Extraordinary transactions were recorded in the opening dealings in stocks and sensational gains were shown all through the list. First sales numbered 30,000 for Union Pacific, 25,000 each for United States Steel, common and preferred, 10,000 for Southern Pacific and from 1000 to 5000 shares for many other stocks among the trunk lines, grangers, Pacifics, Southwesterns and Southern railroad groups. The opening quotations of Union Pacific were 115½ to 120, compared with 113¾ last night. Northern Pacific broke badly on sale of 4000 shares, which carried it down to 117 and 115, compared with 119 last night, United States Steel, preferred, spreading from 100 to 101, compared with 99 last night, and the common sold at 53 to 54, compared with 51⅜ last night. In the last named stock there were subsequent purchases of a long string of blocks of from 1000 to 6000 shares which carried the price up to 55. The preferred meanwhile broke to 99⅞ from the opening high level. Union Pacific also fell back to 118. There were gains of from 1 to 2 points, scattered all through the list of leading railroad stocks and prominent specialties. Atchison was run up 3¼ on enormous dealings. The fluctuations became wild after the opening under the enormous volume of transactions, heavy selling to realize meeting the advances.

Prices in a number of cases made additional substantial gains in the ten minutes following the opening bulge, but the exceptional extent of the rise induced enormous realizations and stocks dipped temporarily from 1 to 2 points with St. Paul, Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville, Atchison, Amalgamated Copper and United States Steel issues leading. There were frequent irregular rallies and speculations were widely variable at 11 o'clock with prices averaging below the best. Northern Pacific touched up to 117½ and Texas & Pacific was forced up to 5c.

The market became quieter during the second hour. The general tendency was towards lower prices, owing to the working off of some of the accumulated buying orders. Union Pacific fell back to 117, Northern Pacific to above the lowest, and St. Paul to 172. Atchisons became buoyant in face of the reactionary tendency, the common rising 6¼ and preferred 3¼. There were advances of 6 in Great Northern, preferred, 5⅝ in International Power. There was some hardening of prices elsewhere in sympathy. Bonds were active and irregular.

During the noon hour Atchison pfd extended its gain to 5¼, Missouri Pacific rose 5¼, Louisville & Nashville, 2½; C. & A., 5; the preferred, 3¼; St. Louis & St. Francisco, 1¾; the second preferred, 2, and New York Central, 3⅛. The Toledo, St. Louis & Western stocks showed strength and Southern Pacific rose to the highest. United States Steel pfd rose above 101. Prices generall did not recover to the best. Baltimore & Ohio fell 2⅜ below yesterday. The market lost most of its animation.

The movement in New York Central led an advance in the Eastern Railroads, including the coalers and junior Vanderbilts. Pennsylvania rose 5⅝; Erie, 1¼, and others from ½ to 1 points. The failure of these gains to hold brought a heavy selling movement, which caused a relapse of 3⅜ in Atchison, 2⅞c in Pennsylvania, 2¾ in Great Northern pfd, and from 1 to 2 in most of the active stocks. Northern Pacific was carried down to 114⅝. The closing was very feverish under the influence of selling.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 30.—Cotton opened steady 2 to 7 points lower. The decline was more a sympathetic response to weakness in Liverpool than the result of speculative pressure from the bear side. In fact, on the decline the sellers of yesterday were eager profit takers around the opening and for a long time after the call this buying held July at 7.85. Later, however, liquidation forced prices slowly downward with July leading.

ACTIVE MARKET

The Signs Point to That In Lumber Circles.

Several Heavy Buyers From the East Are Here.

Advance In Prices Very Soon Is Looked For.

With the presence in the city of a number of Eastern lumber buyers, this week, there are decided signs of an activity in the local market and it is known that several deals are under way at the present time, some of which are likely to be closed up before the end of the week. The only sale thus far reported this week is one made by the C. M. Hill Lumber company to Eastern parties. The sale amounts to about 1,500,000 feet of No. 3 and better and the price is said to be very satisfactory. In fact higher than was paid for the same grade a year ago. The lumber is to be cut at the company's mill.

Local lumber shippers received telegraphic word from below last evening that the St. Clair river, which has been impassably blocked with ice and tieing up navigation for the past week, was likely to be open today. There are now several lumber carriers on the other side of the river, bound for the head of the lake on the advice of agents, but have been waiting for the opening of the river. Only two lumber boats, the steamer Rhode and consort Negaunee, wintered at the head of the lake. These boats have been quartered near the lime kiln and are understood to be in readiness as far as tieing up is concerned. Little can be learned of the rate that is likely to go into effect with the carriers on the way up here, the situation seeming to be that the agents are taking the chance of getting the boats here first and the chartering to be done afterward. There is considerable lumber that was sold for early shipment and it is understood that the shippers feel reasonably confident of boats and business. It is said that one or two charters have already been made.

A few coal boats are reported on the way to Duluth, but it is not believed that any are on the Lake Huron side of the St. Clair river. Several other coal charters have been made, but the boats are not yet loaded. The rate is said to be 40 cents. A year ago at this time there was 1,500,000 tons of coal under charter for the head of the lake at a 50-cent rate. So far as can be learned, but one hard coal cargo has been chartered, those already made are of bituminous coal.

The local lumber consumers throughout the Northwest are said to be expecting a jar inside of the next ten days in the rise in prices of finished or high grade lumber, with the possibility that the lower grades will also be effected. This proposed increase will, of course, be determined largely by the condition of trade and the future prospects. A certain portion of the manufacturers, anticipating the rise, are said to have gone so far as to prepare a new list of prices, it having been arranged to put the schedule into effect about April 1. Since the first of the month just closing, there was everything in the trade to encourage the advocates of lumber prices and it is expected that at the May meeting of the lumbermen an effort will be made to put up prices. The lumbermen feel that a change of schedule would not be out of place in view of the scarcity of dry stock and a shortage in staple grades.

A Balloon Ascensionist Killed

News comes to us of a balloon ascensionist who was killed while making one of his daring trips. His hands slipped from the trapeze, and the horror-stricken crowd saw a sight they will not soon forget. Life is too valuable to trifle with in fool-hardy adventures. It is best to employ ourselves in peaceful pursuits, where we may be secure. Then if we take care of our health we can live to a good old age. The best means of promoting health is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This medicine aids digestion, regulates the bowels and cures dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulency and insomnia. It will also prevent malaria, fever and ague, which is prevalent at this time of the year. Be sure to try it.

THE DERBY.

"His Eminence" Won the Twenty-Seventh Kentucky Event.

Louisville, Ky., April 30—The twenty-seventh Kentucky derby has passed into history, and not one of the 25,000 people that saw it can say aught except that it was a race from the time the flag went down until the son of Falsetto pased under the wire a winner in the good time of 2:07¾.

It was nearly 5 o'clock when the bugle sounded for the derby, and people scrambled for places from which they might see the event decided. His Eminence, with Winkfield in the saddle, emerged from the paddock, followed by Sannazarre, Driscoll, Amur and Alard Scheck in the order named. On the second attempt at a start the little flag went down, and the twenty-seventh Kentucky derby was on. When they straightened out on the back stretch Winkfield, on His Eminence, was hugging the rail, still a length in the lead. Alard Scheck had moved up to second place and was half a length in front of Amur, who was about the same distance from Sannazarro and Driscoll, who were moving down the back stretch on even terms.

"His Eminence wins," was the joyous shout that went up from thousands when the Falsetto colt reached the seven-eighths pole, running with long, even strides, and Winkfield sitting in the saddle guiding him to victory. Sannazarro made one final effort, but it was of no avail, for His Eminence was under the wire a winner by a full length of daylight, with Sannazarro half a length in front of Driscoll, Amur fourth, and a length away, with Alard Scheck, the favorite, last by three lengths.

BAKER ADVANCED.

Made Assistant General Superintendent of Postal.

Chicago, April 30.—Charles M. Baker, for many years general superintendent of construction of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company, will today succeed E. J. Nally as assistant general superintendent of telegraph. Mr. Nally was recently appointed general superintendent.

Mr. Baker is a practical telegrapher. He occupied various official positions, and in 1883 he was made superintendent and manager of the Postal company at Cleveland, Ohio, where he remained until January, 1884. He was then appointed superintendent of construction, with headquarters at Chicago, which position he held until 1898, when he was promoted to be general superintendent of construction.

MINERS KILLED.

Five Asphyxiated and Seven Badly Injured.

South Mcalester, I. T., April 30.—An explosion of gas occurred in the mine of the McAlester Coal company at Alderson yesterday, by which five men lost their lives and seven were injured. Another is reported missing.

The explosion occurred at about a quarter before 7 o'clock in the morning, at about the entry between shaft No. 5 and slope No. 7, which leads to the same mine. About 125 men were at work in the mine at the time. It is not definitely known how the gas ignited.

The dead were all asphyxiated. The explosion was not severe, as others working in other parts of the mine did not hear it and the engineer at the shaft mouth heard no noise, but saw smoke arise. No damage was done to the mine.

FINE BUILDING

For Indian School Service at Riverside Cal.

Washington, April 30.—The Indian bureau has completed plans for the new Sherman institute at Riverside, Cal., which is expected to be one of the finest buildings in the Indian school service. It will cost $125,000 and accommodate 200 to 400 pupils.

The corner stone will be laid in July, and Representative Sherman of New York has been invited to make the dedication speech.

Replying to their questions the officials held out some hope that work would soon be obtainable.

TO REDUCE ROYALTY

Canadian Government to Cut the Tax on Yukon Gold.

Rush Begun to the Gold Fields For the Season.

A New Regulation Has Been Made For Placer Mining.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Consul General Bittinger sent to the state department recently a report to the effect that the Dominion government has decided to reduce the royalty on gold mined in the Yukon from 10 per cent to 5 per cent. The 10 per cent royalty was imposed during the first outburst of excitement over the discoveries of gold in the Klondike region, before the conditions attending the work of prospecting, mining and converting the ore were fully realized. The general impression was that the gold was in "pockets," as easily opened as a silo on a farm. The more labors and privations and risks of the miners became known, however, the more clearly was it seen that a 10 per cent royalty was so onerous an impost on gold imposed under such conditions that it tended to discourage mining operations. Considering the great expense incident to the opening up of the Yukon—of its government and administration—the reduced royalty must be regarded as an equitable tax. The government is commended for the reduction, as well as for its efforts to establish law and order and facilitate transportation in the Klondike region.

The rush to the Alaska and Yukon gold fields for the season has already begun and will be large.

The news from Dawson is highly satisfactory. Increased and more systematic work is being done. The discovery of the new placer diggings on Clear Creek, about five months ago, is said to be the most important since the original discovery of the Klondike. Clear Creek is a branch of the Stewart river, which runs into the Yukon. Looking in a northeasterly direction from the summit of the dome at the head of Bunker Creek, the position of the new placers can be easily discerned. Although over 1000 claims have already been recorded in the new district, and some gold has been taken out, it is impossible to accurately gauge the value of this discovery; but sufficient prospecting has been done to show an extensive area of gold-bearing gravel, which is likely to aid considerably to the output from the Klondike district.

A new regulation of the government for placer mining in the Yukon territory has been substituted for those established on Jan. 18, 1898. One of the provisions is that a free miner's certificate may be granted for one or more years, not exceeding five, upon payment in advance of the fees prescribed by the regulations for each year covered by the certificate. For a certificate issued in favor of an individual, the fee is $10; for a joint stock company, having a nominal capital of $100,000 or less, $50; and for a company having a nominal capital exceeding $100,000, $100. Only one person or joint stock company shall be named in a certificate.

As this is the fourth year since the phenomenal run of 1897, cannery men confidently expect—as has been the case every fourth season for some time—a good run of salmon, and great preparations are in progress in British Columbia for the anticipated catch. Last year the total yield was much smaller than that of any season since 1895, and as there are no stocks left on hand, it is hoped that good demands and high prices will prevail. The total pack of salmon on the coast last year, according to a communication received from Consul Smith, at Victoria, is placed in round figures at 2,500,000 cases. Of this number, British Columbia furnished 536,413 cases, which realized the handsome sum of $2,167,000.

It is known that the salmon caught on Puget Sound originate in the Fraser river, in British Columbia. With a view to the continuation of the supply of this valuable fish, the catching and preparation of which furnish employment for thousands, and in which millions of dollars are invested in both British Columbia and the United States, the legislature of Washington, on Feb. 27, 1901, adopted a joint resolution, appointing a committee of three to confer with a similar committee appointed by the provincial parliament of British Columbia "relative to the establishment of, and maintenance upon, Fraser river and its tributaries in the province of British Columbia of a fish hatchery for the artificial propagation of salmon."

This resolution was forwarded to the consul of the United States, at Victoria, and by him brought to the attention of the government of British Columbia. In reply, Premier Dunsmuir said that the control of the fisheries of the province rested solely with the Dominion authorities, and that the provincial legislature could, therefore, take no action in the premises without special authority granted by the government at Ottawa. It is understood that an effort will be made to establish the hatchery by private parties.

There was considerable trouble on the Fraser river last year with regard to the price paid fishermen for salmon—no traps being allowed in British Columbia waters. The business was largely controlled by the Japanese, in spite of the fact that British subjects only are allowed to take out fishing licenses.

Heretofore the tin used in the manufacture of salmon cans has been brought in sailing vessels from England, around Cape Horn, but some of the proprietors of canneries are now using the American product, and next year it is expected that many of the British Columbia canneries will purchase their tin in the United States.

According to a recent communication to the state department from Consul Thackers, at Havre, the production of anthracite and bituminous coal for the year 1900 was 32,587,179 metric tons, as compared with 32,256,148 tons during the same period of 1899—the first six months. The production of lignite was 682,206 tons, compared with 606,645 tons in 1899. The total production of mineral combustibles for the year amounted to 33,270,385 tons, as compared with a production of 32,862,712 tons in 1899, an increase of 407,673 for the year 1900.

The consumption of coal and lignite in France during the year 1900 was over 43,000,000 tons, as compared with a little over 40,000,000 tons in 1899.

Of the amount of coal imported into France, 8,600,000 tons were brought from Great Britain alone. This is the trade in which American miners and shippers of coal can hope to share, if they can solve the question of securing cheaper ocean transportation rates to the French coal-receiving ports.

The production of pig iron in France during 1900 was 2,699,494 tons, an increase of 121,093 tons as compared with that of 1899.

The production of iron rails, sheet iron, etc., in 1900 amounted to 745,312 tons, a net decrease of 88,541 tons in comparison with 1899.

During the year 1900 there were 295,915 tons of steel rails manufactured in France, which was an increase of 40,249 tons, as compared with the steel rail products of 1899. The production of sheet steel also showed an increase, being 301,651 tons, as compared with 278,690 tons in 1899.

There were 38,133 tons less of commercial steel manufactured in 1900 than in 1899, the production of the two years being 667,171 tons and 705,304 tons respectively.

Dr. Hamilton W. Mable spoke recently at theJohns Hopkins university upon the poetry of the South, in the fourth lecture of the Turnbull Memorial course. Especial mention was made of Nimrod, Hayne, Lanier and Ticknor. They were primarily singers, he said, and all their work is colored by a love of native soil and provincialism, which added much to its sweetness. Nimrod, he said, had more natural fire than Hayne, but the latter was more finished in his work. He was spoken of as the only Southern poet who had given his life entirely to letters, and he was classed with Emerson. His beautiful life after the war, when everything was swept away from the Southern people, was another illustration of his nature.

Lanier, the lecturer, ranked as the first national poet of the South. His field was much broader than the others, and he was almost a great poet. He partly spoiled the vitality of his poetry because he thought in kusise long before he thought in poetry, and he lost in mixing the arts. The lecturer dwelt also upon Lanier's life, cut short almost as soon as it developed into full power. Dr. Mable illustrated his address by selections from the poets of whose works he spoke.

Absolutely Clean

In the Schlitz brewery cleanliness is carried to extremes. We do more than is necessary to be certain of doing enough.

The caldrons in which the beer is brewed are kept scrupulously clean and covered. The air in which the beer is cooled is filtered.

The barrels in which it is stored are cleaned with steam and soda, then glazed with rosin on the inside, then cleaned again. The bottles are cleaned with utmost precaution.

Still we filter the beer, then sterilize every bottle, for the slightest uncleanliness taints the whole product. It is in these ways that Schlitz beer has gained its reputation for purity, and made Milwaukee famous.

Changes to Be Made In Steel Companies.

New York, April 30.—It is learned that the National Steel company will soon remove its office in this city to Youngstown, Ohio, where its most important plant is situated. It has been here for two years.

It is reported that the allied companies, the American Steel Hoop company, the Steel Steel company and American Tin Plate company would remove their main offices from this city, by order of the parent company, the United States Steel corporation. The last named wishes the main offices of the subsidiary companies to be near their principal mills. A. S. Wheeler, who is treasurer of all four subsidiary companies, would not talk last night about their possible removal.

IT CAUSED SUSPICION

Section Three of Platt Amendment Proved Stumbling Block.

Cubans Were Afraid of the Army and Imperialism.

All Has Been Satisfactorily Explained to the Delegates.

New York, April 30.—The Cuban delegates visited Gen. Brooke, at Governor's Island, and were much pleased with their entertainment. When seen at the Fifth Avenue hotel last night, Senor Capote said:

"The report to be presented to the convention relative to the matters concerning which we conferred with President McKinley and Secretary Root has not been prepared. We are working at it, and do not expect to complete it much before our arrival in Havana."

T. Estrada Palma called on the delegates at the hotel last night and was in conference with them for over two hours. Nearly all the matters which brought the delegates to the United States were gone over, and Gen Palma's views ascertained. There is reason to believe that the subject that the question of a fitting candidate for the presidency is brought up, and that the possibility of Gen. Palma's selection was discussed.

When asked for a statement, Gen. Portuondo said:

"A great stumbling block has been removed. That is all I care to say."

"What stumbling block do you mean, senor?" was asked.

"Section three of the Platt amendment," was the answer.

"The Cubans have been afraid of your armies. They fear what some call imperialism. Now in section three, I think, of the Platt amendment, it is provided that the United States may send troops into Cuba whenever, in the opinion of Washington, such action is necessary. This provision awakened widespread suspicion. Many said that it was only a pretext for the United States to continue a standing army in Cuba for all time. The presence of soldiers, and especially those of another people, cannot but be onerous and discomforting to us.

"Others said that although the United States might withdraw her forces now, she could, under this provision, immediately send them back again. This, then, was a stumbling block. It was perhaps magnified in the eyes of the common people, and they demanded that if the suspicions were well founded, such a measure should not receive our sanction. But President McKinley soon assured us that these suspicions were groundless. When we said that by this provision the United States had more jurisdiction over Cuba than over any one of its own states, because in the latter case I understand the national government cannot send troops into a state without the permission of the state government, he said:

"'Gentlemen, you need have no fear. Troops will not be sent into Cuba unless conditions are little less than anarchy.'

"The president's answer so convinced us that we could not but be impressed with his sincerity."

"How do the Cubans feel in regard to independence?" was asked.

"Ninety-nine per cent of our people," the general answered, "want independence. They will not even listen to annexation. They want independence—absolute independence. Now I do not mean that the Cuban people are not disposed to give the Americans what they (the Americans) will need for their defense. I tell you that if the question of independence is settled and all differences on the subject are eliminated, everything else can be arranged."

"What do you mean by independence?"

"By independence I mean sovereignty. We want to regulate our own international affairs. But our preferences will be for America, to help and support her in case of need."

"Are you sure, then, that the United States will grant Cuba its desired independence?"

"Yes, I am sure. And I believe that Washington will soon announce to the world that Cuba is a sovereign power, and that Cuba will indeed be a nation by Feb. 24, 1902."

REVIVO RESTORES VITALITY

Made a Well Man of Me.

THE GREAT FRENCH REMEDY

produces the above results in 30 days. It acts powerfully and quickly. Cures when all others fail. Young men will regain their lost manhood, and old men will recover their youthful vigor by using REVIVO. It quickly and surely restores Nervousness, Lost Vitality, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Lost Power, Failing Memory, Wasting Diseases, and all effects of self-abuse or excess and indiscretion, which unfits one for study, business or marriage. It not only cures by starting at the seat of disease, but is a great nerve tonic and blood builder, bringing back the pink glow to pale cheeks and restoring the fire of youth. It wards off Insanity and Consumption. Insist on having REVIVO, no other. It can be carried in vest pocket. By mail, $1.00 per package, or six for $5.00, with a positive written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Book and advise free. Address

A Strange Manifestation Causes Great Excitement at Menominee.

Menominee—A most strange manifestation is alleged to have developed here Monday in the home of an humble Polish family. Anton Cznarkel, a devout Catholic, returned from church and knelt in prayer. On the wall was a picture of the Savior on a cross. Upon looking up he discovered blood trickling down outside of the glass from the points where the hands and feet were pinioned. In his alarm he sent for priests. Two came and wiped the blood off, but it reappeared as fast as it was wiped away, running down a distance of six inches. Hundreds affirm the strange occurrence and great excitement prevails. The house has been closed and no further visitors will be admitted. So far no one can account for the strange phenomenon. Bishop Eis has been sent for.

Ironwood—The first ore train of the season on the Northwestern road went to Ashland last week and the dumping of ore on the docks was begun. The engines in the ore traffic on the Northwestern this year are much larger than even the monsters used last year. The large engines of last year were 19 by 24 cylinders and carried 170 pounds of steam. The engines this year are 20 by 26 cylinders and carry 200 pounds of steam. The new ones are the latest and most approved pattern, and as they have about 600 feet more heating surface they are easily steamed. The big engines of last year weighed 217,900 pounds, while those of this year weigh 264,800 pounds. A new 60-foot steel turntable is being built by the Northwestern in this city to accommodate the new monsters.

Houghton—L. T. Buckman, of Houghton, who has been employed for a couple of years past as boss lineman for this istrict by the Western Union Telegraph company, left to claim a small fortune left him by an aged bachelor uncle in the shape of 320 acres of land near Felton, Cal.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic train, due here at 7:10, was over an hour late Saturday night on account of the railroad coal sheds at Humboldt, the junction of the Republic branch and the main line, being on fire and the train could not pass. She ran back to Ishpeming and came up to Champion on the Northwestern tracks and from that point ran over her own tracks to Houghton.

Calumet—Mrs. Joseph Henwood and family and Mr. and Mrs. George Hill and family, of Central City, Colo., arrived in the city to make their home. Mr. Henwood has been in Calumet for some time and is employed in the city, while Mr. Hill expects to secure a position around the mines.

WINE SEIZURES.

Seattle, April 30.—Under special instructions from David M. Dunn, collector of internal revenue, Special Deputy Mullay, of Portland, and Deputy Ross, of the Seattle office yesterday seized in various hotels and restaurants and saloons in this city upwards of 150 cases of imported champagnes and Rhine wines for alleged violation of internal revenue laws. The property seized by the officers is valued at between $4000 and $5000. The allegation made by them is that the wine was found in the various establishments without having the revenue stamps as required by law.
